DEATH IN THE FLOOD

Destructive Freshets in Western Pennsylvania.

A BIG LOSS OF LIFE REPORTED.

Hundreds of Dead Bodies Floating Down the River.

The Johnstown Reservoir Gives Way and Deluges the Town—Houses Swept Away by the Score and Many People Drowned. Wires Cut Down and But Meagre Details Obtainable—A Special Train Leaves Pittsburg for the Scene.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 1.—Destructive rains are reported from Johnstown, Cambria county, and adjoining towns. Great loss of life is reported, and towns partly under water.

At a late hour last night reports from the vicinity of Johnstown announced that at least 500 people had been drowned and the loss of life might be even greater.

A telegraph operator in the Pennsylvania railroad signal tower at Sang Hollow, twelve miles below Johnstown, says that about seventy-five dead bodies have floated past him down the river from Johnstown.

It is stated that the reservoir above Johnstown broke about 5 p. m. and the water deluged the town, sweeping away houses by scores, and drowning probably hundreds of people. Wires are down and no communication can be had with Johnstown.

No trains are running east of Blairsville, twenty-eight miles west of Johnstown, and there will be no trains through to the East before this afternoon.

Pennsylvania railroad officials in this city state that they have advices that over two hundred dead bodies have been counted floating down stream at Johnstown alone, while all along the line many additional lives have been lost. Johnstown is described as wholly submerged, only two houses being entirely above the water line.

W. N. Hayes, supervisor of the section of the Pennsylvania railroad covered by the flood, telegraphed at 10 o'clock last night to Superintendent Pitcairn as follows: "The destruction is terrible. The dump at Johnstown is gone between the bridge and the tower, west of Johnstown. At some points the track is entirely carried away, and the road bed is gone. The river for three-quarters of a mile above the bridge is filled with building and driftwood forty feet high and is on fire burning furiously and is entirely beyond our control. I cannot estimate the amount of damage. I walked over from Johnstown to Sang Hollow, four miles. Johnstown is literally wiped out."

Superintendent Pitcairn, who is at New Florence, sixty-five miles east of Pittsburg, telegraphs that over one hundred men, women and children passed Sang Hollow, clinging to debris. Seven were rescued at Sang Hollow, two at Connemaugh furnace and two at New Florence. Only forty-seven of the one hundred and over passed New Florence. The loss of life and property will be terrible.

S. J. Herron, solicitor for the Times, left Johnstown at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and has just arrived in this city. Mr. Herron tells a graphic story of the disaster that fell on the Mountain City.

All of yesterday afternoon and last night rain poured down in a deluge. The little mountain streams swelled into torrents pouring their waters into the Connemaugh river that passes through the centre of the city.

Soon the banks of the river overflowed and the streets through the city began to disappear beneath the rapidly increasing current. Houses and bridges above the city were swept away by the flood and added largely to the damage further down. The water rose so rapidly that many people could not escape from their homes and ran to the upper stories from which they were rescued by men riding horses and mules. The scenes of rescue were most thrilling.

A Greensburg, Pa., special says: "Reports from Johnstown are to the effect that hundreds of lives have been lost. Houses have been carried away bodily. People fortunate enough to escape are fleeing to the mountains."

Eighty-five persons were seen floating past a point near New Florence, clinging to drift wood.

All the buildings along the Conemaugh, between New Florence and Johnstown, have been carried away. The railroad towers have been abandoned by the telegraph operators. The Covetown and New Florence bridges have been destroyed.

A Greensburg, Pa., special says that houses are floating down the river with people clinging to them. At Coketown the houses are almost entirely covered. Many dwellings at Blairstown are submerged. Hardly a dwelling is left in the vicinity of Sang Hollow. The Bolivar and Nineva bridges are gone and the Saltsburg bridge is likely to go. The river is rising at Livermore and threatens the town.

THE BURSTED RESERVOIR.

It Was the Largest in the United States. Used as a Fishing Pond.

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 1.—The reservoir was situated 2½ miles northeast of Johnstown, on the site of the old reservoir that was one of the feeders of the Pennsylvania canal. It is the property of a number of wealthy Pittsburg men, who constitute the South Fork Fishing and Hunting club. The sheet of water was formerly known as Coenemaugh lake. It is from 200 to 300 feet above the level of Johnstown, and is 3½ miles long by from 1 to 1¼ miles wide, and in some places is 100 feet deep. It is the largest reservoir in the United States. The dam holding the water in check was from 700 to 1,000 feet long, 90 feet thick at the base, 116 feet high, and 20 feet thick at the top. It was inspected monthly by a Pennsylvania railroad engineer. It is supposed that a cloud burst suddenly added such a volume of water to the immense amount already poured in by swollen streams that the dam could not support the strain.

Several members of the South Fork club were on the spot with their families, among them some prominent merchants and financiers.

WHOLE TOWNS DEVASTATED.

In the Course of the Flood Which Swept Down from the Dam.

DERRY, Pa., June 1.—The town of South Fork, which contained about 2,000 inhabitants, lay in the course of the flood which swept down from the broken dam to Johnstown, and it is believed that four-fifths of the town was carried away. Four miles lower down was the village of Mineral Point with 800 inhabitants. It seems difficult to hope that any of them escaped. Six miles further down was Conemaugh, with 2,500 people, but in this case the formature of the country afforded some chance for escape. The town itself was devastated. Woodale, with 2,000 people, lay still further down. It suffered greatly.

THE SUSQUEHANNA FLOOD.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 1.—The biggest flood since the memorable one of '65 is on its way down the west branch of the Susquehanna river. Advices from points North of here indicate that much damage has already been done by high water, and what may follow no one cares to predict. A great volume of water has fallen in this part of the country in the past few days and all the streams are bank-full. Telegraphic, telephonic and railway communication are very seriously interfered with. Numerous landslides are reported all along the Pennsylvania road north of here. At Clearfield the water is rising at the rate of 1¼ feet per hour. A half dozen bridges have been swept away and the streets of the town are overflowed. The people are rowing about in boats. The booms at Caledonia and Curwensville have broken and it is feared that the Lock Haven boom will break.

Lumbermen here fear that in the latter event the Williamsport boom will not stand the strain, and that 225,000,000 feet of logs, valued at over five millions of dollars, will be carried away on the flood. The river is rising rapidly here and in a few hours it will probably be twenty feet above low water mark. The Beach Creek railroad have already sustained losses that will aggregate $25,000. The rain is falling in torrents and the present outlook is anything but encouraging.

The Juniata Overflowed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 1.—A special from Tyrone, Pa., says: "The Juniata river has overflowed its banks at this place and flooded the southern portion of the city, causing great damage. People had to be removed from their homes in wagons. All of the railroads centering at Tyrone are greatly damaged."

A Flood in Virginia.

LYNCHBURG, Va., June 1.—There is a great flood in the James river. The river is now reported twenty-five feet and rising a foot an hour. Many of the factories and machine shops on the river front are flooded, and considerable damage has been done. The river is higher than it has been since 1871.

The Flood at Shamokin.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., June 1.—The heavy rain of the past thirty-six hours has caused great damage. All collieries in this vicinity have been forced to suspend and many are washed out. No trains have arrived on the Lehigh Valley road since yesterday at noon, a bridge west of here having been swept away.

Serious Washouts on Railroads.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western, and the roads between Washington and Richmond have serious washouts. No trains have gone South to-night. The Baltimore and Ohio is said to have lost seven miles of track by washouts near Martinsburg, Va.

A Big Land Slide.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 1.—An extensive land slide is reported at Lilly's Station. The water is said to be ten feet deep over the Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

The Harriet Hubbard Ayer Suit.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Judge Daly of the Court of Common Pleas has appointed Richard M. Henry receiver of the 498 shares of the Recamier Manufacturing Company, concerning the ownership of which a legal contest is now being waged between Mrs. Harriet Hubbard Ayer and James M. Seymour and his son. The receiver must give a bond of $25,000.

Indicted for Malpractice.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 1.—Mrs. Mary Jones and her son Charles, who have been running a "Women's Hospital," were indicted yesterday for performing surgical operations on women when no such treatment was required. They were held in bail. It is alleged that they have committed a large number of the crimes mentioned.

A Bad Baseball Player.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 1.—The Grand Jury to-day found a true bill against "Sam" Crane, now of the Metropolitan base ball club, charging him with stealing $1,500 from Edwin Fraunfelter. The allegation is that Crane eloped with Fraunfelter's wife, and induced the woman to take with her $1,500 of her husband's money.

The Management Is Satisfactory.

MANCHESTER, N. H., June 1.—The annual meeting of the Manchester and Lawrence Railroad company was held yesterday. A statement was presented from President Sinclair that the management of the road under the lease by the Boston and Maine was entirely satisfactory.

Lightning at Carlisle.

CARLISLE, Pa., June 1.—A heavy rain and wind storm prevailed here yesterday afternoon. A lightning bolt badly damaged the First Presbyterian church and seriously injured Mary Kelly, of Springfield, and a colored domestic, name unknown.

WHO WILL SOLVE IT?

The Efforts to Solve the Cronin Murder.

SOME SET-BACKS IN THE WORK.

The Grand Jury Temporarily Stops Investigating the Case.

Ex-Detective Coughlin, P. O. Sullivan and Frank Woodruff Formally Arraigned in Court—A Futile Effort to Manufacture a Sensation by Arresting a Man Who Hasn't the Slightest Connection With the Case.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Contrary to general expectation, the Grand Jury occupied itself yesterday with routine business instead of taking up another branch of the Cronin case. This was due to the fact that State's Attorney Longnecker has not yet made up his mind whether or not it is desirable to complicate the investigation by going into the alleged perversion of the physical force fund. Lawyer W. J. Hines, with whom it is said the murdered man left valuable papers giving the full details of what he had learned regarding the conspiracy against his life, had a long conference this afternoon with Chief Hubbard, but no information was vouchsafed by either regarding its nature. Before leaving the City Hall, however, Mr. Hines said that he was now more convinced than ever that the conspiracy was the work of individuals and not of the Clan-na-Gael as a body. He believed that the men under arrest were implicated in the murder, but that they were not the heads of the conspiracy and may not have been the actual murderers. He was not satisfied with the conduct of the case by the police and would not be until the criminals were arrested and the guilt fastened upon them.

Ex-Detective Coughlin, P. O. Sullivan and Frank Woodruff were formally arraigned in Judge Williamson's court yesterday on the charge of murdering Dr. Cronin. They were hurriedly brought into court through the passageway leading from the jail at a time when very few spectators were present. Counsel for the prisoners had not been notified of the intended action but Lawyer David, who represents Sullivan, happened to be in court at the time. All three pleaded not guilty and David made a motion to quash the indictments but no date was set for argument. After each of the three prisoners had been furnished with a copy of the indictment against him they were taken back to jail. All three looked anxious and careworn, although it was apparent that they were trying to preserve a cool exterior.

An effort was made to manufacture a sensation out of the arrest of a man variously known as "Williams" and "Mack," who was taken by the police from a West Side lodging house. It was gravely stated that he knew all about the crime and that it would probably be developed that he was the man who nailed down the carpet in the Carlson cottage. Chief Hubbard knocked this story in the head last night.

Williams, he said, had not the slightest connection with the mystery and he was simply being held at the Desplaines street station pending his return to the Bridewell, from which he escaped some time ago.

It is developed that at the conferences between Hubbard and Hines the entire situation was gone over and that the Chief expressed the opinion that there was no evidence on hand that would warrant any additional arrests, especially of the "suspects" on which the batteries of Dr. Cronin's friends have been directed. The city detectives, however, are still following up a number of leads, promising and unpromising, and some of which may result in additional arrests at any time.

Supt. Hubbard did not come to his office till late in the morning. He was at the North Side at an early hour and thence he went to the office of Luther Laflin Mills, who is engaged by Dr. Cronin's friends to prosecute the case.

Mr. Mills was not at his office and the Chief concluded he would wait for him.

He refused to talk about the Cronin case. He admitted that he had heard that a man named Williams or Mack had been arrested, but would say nothing more.

The Insurance Company Beaten.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The suit of Dr. W. M. Reynolds for a policy of $2,000 written by the Fireman's Insurance Company of Newark, upon his cottage at Flushing ended to day, with a verdict for the full amount. Dr. Reynolds and his wife have yet two suits against the London Assurance Company, one for the amount of a policy and the other for malicious prosecution on the ground of attempting to defraud. Other polices held by them were paid by the insurers.

Dr. Gage Suicides.

PHILALELPHA, June 1.—Rev. Dr. William L. Gage committed suicide by jumping from a fourth-story window of the Orthopedic Hospital yesterday. He left his home in Hartford, Conn., on Thursday May 9, and came to this city with the intention of entering the Orthopedic Hospital. Melancholy was the predominant feature of his ailment.

Sullivan-Kilrain Battle Ground.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The toss for choice of battle ground for the Sullivan-Kilrain fight will take place at Jim Wanely's resort in this city on June 8. In case Sullivan wins he will probably select Bay St. Louis near New Orleans where he defeated Paddy Ryan in 1882. The fight will take place Monday, July 8.

The Report Denied.

WATERVILLE, Me., June 1.—It is officially denied that there have been any expulsions of Colby University students as was stated. Two seniors and two freshmen were suspended for general bad conduct. The report that the lady students had anything to do with these suspensions is wholly untrue.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—The streams in this locality are considerably swollen by the severe storm.

—Some of the night police say that they would not object to doing day service, if the opportunity was afforded them.

—The German nine of North Plainfield, Philip Koechli, Captain, defeated the Young Crescents of this city, by a score of 9 to 0.

—The regular Saturday evening meeting, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the rooms, No. 73 West Front street, this evening.

—A horse belonging to Mr. Samuel Allen ran away on Grove street, during last evening, and wrecked the wagon to which the animal was hitched.

—The East New Jersey Baptist Association will meet in the Park Avenue Baptist church, in this city, next Tuesday and Wednesday, commencing Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

—The Chatham nine of North Plainfield defeated the Twilight Jr., Club of Scotch Plains at the latter place on Decoration Day, by a score of 22 to 16. The return game was to have taken place today.

—One year ago today, the Prohibition National Convention met at Indianapolis, and nominated Gen. Clinton B. Fisk of this State, for President, and John A. Brooks, D. D., of Missouri, for Vice President.

—The fair in aid of St. Joseph's church of North Plainfield, is still in progress in the Gesang and Turn Verein Hall on Somerset street. Last evening there was a large attendance in spite of the unpleasant weather.

—People who have bought gasoline stoves say that they are the best stove for Summer that they have ever used and saves them money, time and expense. Pierson the hardware man has a large line of them.

—The bass season is now open and those in need of tackle will do well to examine the stock of lines and rods at A. M. Vanderbeek & Co's. Also for ball goods, sporting goods, music and musical instruments go to 33 Park avenue.

—A couple of young colored toughs stopped the driver of a bottled beer wagon on West Second street, yesterday morning, and demanded some beer. The driver politely told then that if they interfered with him, he would give them a club.

—The entire top of the large elm tree standing in front of the City Hotel on Second street, fell down yesterday afternoon during the gale, and another large tree at the corner of Park avenue and Seventh street, was also blown down about the same time.

—District Clerk B. F. Kinsley has completed the census of children in the Bound Brook school district and finds there are 368 between the ages of 5 and 18 years. This is the largest enumeration ever made there. Last year's, which was larger than ever before, was 344.

—There was an increased attendance at Reform Hall, last evening, when Bishop McNamara, the converted priest, preached the third in the series of sermons to Catholics and Protestants. His subject was "A Teacher Sent from God," which he handled in an eloquent manner.

—Referring to the Memorial Day exercises at Westfield, the Standard of that place says: "Mr. N. P. Frich of Plainfield in the returning procession was backed into; his team was thrown to the ground and the pole of his coupe-rockaway was broken. So glad was he that his ladies were not injured that he said not a word."

—The strong wind this morning blew over a show case full of Summer hats that stood at the entrance of Mrs. Adams millinery rooms, and the broken glass was strewn all over the sidewalk in front of Dr. Shaw's weather service bureau. The case was fastened to the flag stones, but one bolt was pulled out and another broken off by the strength of the wind.

SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.

1,500 DEAD.

NEW YORK, June 1—Despatches from Bolivar, Pa., state that the number of lives lost by the flood at Johnstown will reach 1,500. At York, Pa., this morning, a general alarm was sounded on the bells of the city for the people to seek a place of safety.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Hattie Currie of Arlington avenue, is visiting in Brooklyn.

Miss Handren of Brooklyn, N. Y., visited friends in Dunellen, during Decoration Day.

Mr. Frank E. Newman of West Fifth street, is at home from the Boston School of Technology.

Mr. M. A. Davis of Dunellen, is home again from an extended trip through New York State.

Mr. Frank Vosseller is carrying his arm in a sling because of a dislocated shoulder that resulted from a fall.

Miss Ida Lorton of West Fifth street, has returned home after a pleasant visit with relatives in Philadelphia.

The Misses Lulu and Kitty Tierney of Brooklyn, were recently the guests of Miss Angelina E. Feytel of North Plainfield.

Mr. Wm. Marsh, one of Colorado's postmasters and progressive business men, is visiting at the home of his father, Mr. Seymour Marsh, of Putnam street.

Mr. George Angleman, Jr., left Plainfield yesterday for Rosedale, Kansas, where he has accepted a call to preach in the only protestant church in the place. Mr. Angleman is a young and earnest Christian worker who deserves great credit for his courageous undertaking.

The colored Knights Templars, Cypress Commandery, No. 6, of this city, Sir Israel Jones, Eminent Commander, will have charge of the funeral and burial services of their late brother, William Washington, to be held to-morrow, beginning at three o'clock, in Bethel Mission.

Mr. Henry E. Hopkins, whose father was one of the last of the Park House managers, is now a partner in the law business of P. A. Campbell, New York. Young Hopkins has entirely lost the use of the arm that was the cause of so much suffering to him just before he left Plainfield.

Save Your Money.

A Provident Savings Committee has recently been organized by the Plainfield Relief Association, the object of which is to urge those who have no bank account to lay aside such sums as may be spared from their weekly earnings which being placed in the hands of the treasurer will constitute a fund from which depositors may draw as necessity requires.

Collectors will call weekly for the money, receipts will be given and when the savings of each depositor amount to one dollar, interest will be paid at the rate of four per cent. per annum.

A similar organization is already in successful operation in Morristown, where the amount saved by small deposits reached during two years over two thousand three hundred dollars.

If there are any in Plainfield who desire to avail themselves of this opportunity to save money in small amounts, they are invited to leave their names at the Plainfield Relief Association rooms No. 45 West Second street, so that collectors may call upon them.

Skillful Veterinary Surgery.

A valuable horse at A. D. Thompson's Riverside Stock Farm was rescued from suffocation yesterday morning, by the operation of tracheotomy, performed by Dr. E. R. Voorhees of this city. This makes the fifth time the operation has been performed at Mr. Thompson's establishment, and each time it has been followed by successful results.

Among the number operated on was a valuable trotting horse in whose case the operation was delayed on account of his value, and because Mr. Thompson was unacquainted with the results in such cases. But the dyspnœa became so great that it was necessary to do something to prevent immediate suffocation. Consequently the trachea, or wind-pipe, was opened and a silver tube inserted. Recovery was rapid and complete.

One of the Suspected Burglars Released.

Government Inspector Hugh Gorman, of the Post Office service, was in this city yesterday, and told a PRESS reporter that Smith, one of the suspects held in New York for the burglary of the Plainfield post office, had been released for want of evidence, but McDonald, his companion, is still held.

The probability of just such action by the authorities, was published exclusively in these columns of May 23.

Closing Exercises.

The closing exercises of the Warren Mission Industrial School, took place in Warren Mission chapel, this afternoon, in the presence of a large number of the parents of the scholars and friends of the school. The past season has been one of rapid progress, as was evidenced by the exercises today.

—Dr. A. M. Dam, 405 Columbus ave., Boston, Mass., would be pleased to answer any correspondence from parties using or intending to use his remedy.

NO CLUB HOUSE YET.

The Plainfield Bowlers Decide Not Purchase the Property Proposed.

Twenty-one of the eighty-six members of the Plainfield Bowling Club, met in the parlor of Force's Hotel, last evening, to receive the report of the committee appointed to select a site for a club building. President E. C. Kieb presided. The meeting was a special one, and the purpose was plainly designated. Consequently the small attendance was rather disheartening to those who favored the project. It looked as though three-quarters of the members only joined the club for an occasional bowl, and took no interest in, nor would give anything towards, a club house.

The Committee, through Dr. J. T. Fritts, reported that after a two-month's search for a site, and the consideration of different localities and properties, they would recommend the lot 51 feet front by 151 feet deep at No. 4 East 5th street, with the house on it recently occupied by the Tariff Reform Club. The property entire could be bought for $4,700.

A long discussion followed, from which it seemed that the opinion of the majority was that a vacant lot could be purchased and a brand new building erected thereon exactly to suit the members and the purposes of the club, for no more money than it would cost for the Fifth street site and to remodel and repair the old building. The recommendation of the Committee was therefore rejected by a vote of thirteen to seven, but the Committee was retained and requested to look further.

The Marriage of Mu Ya and Ta Lang.

The Japanese wedding in high life, given by the Society of Christian Endeavor in the Presbyterian church, Dunellen, Thursday evening, was very well attended, and the Japanese ceremony was presented in a true Japanese style.

Miss Fanny Humpston made a charming bride for his Royal High Majesty, Mr. Tingley; and Miss May Harold deserves great credit for her acting of the part of "Go Between," in attending to the bridal party's wants, and their guests. Miss Imogene Smith played the wedding march.

The young friends of the bride and groom did themselves great praise in their Japanese song and chorus under the charge of Mrs. Carpenter, who presided at the piano and rendered Japanese music to the singing of Miss Edna Richter and Master Marlow, who were joined by the chorus. After the wedding the entire audience were invited down to the basement of the church, where iced cream and cake was served to all free of charge.

The decorations of the church and basement were exquisitely arranged, and presented a beautiful picture. Many requests were made to have the entertainment repeated. The costumes were gorgeously beautiful.

Borrowed News.

The Bound Brook Chronicle has the following to say of former Plainfielders:

"Mme. Alberti has in charge the Department of Elocution in the School of Music at Key East Beach Assembly the coming season (July 8 to August 18) and her husband, Mr. Wm. M. Alberti, who has for several years been confined to his bed by injuries received in a railroad mishap, is in pleasant anticipation of being at the seashore with her. They will probably leave town week after next.

"Mr. John H. Staats, proprietor of the County House in Somerville is a Leland in the hotel business, as he is also the proprietor of the City Hotel in Plainfield (managed by his son-in-law, Landlord Beerbower), the Sheridan House in Elizabeth (conducted by his son J. A. Staats) and the Fairview House at Chatham, of which Mr. Staats takes personal supervision during the Summer months."

New Brunswick Pleasure Seekers Come to Grief.

A party of young men from New Brunswick, drove over to this city in a surrey, yesterday afternoon, and spent several hours in the North Plainfield bar-rooms, drinking "tea." About ten o'clock last evening, as they were driving along Liberty street near the railroad bridge, the vehicle struck an iron drain pipe which projected into the roadway, and the occupants of the surrey were thrown out promiscuously in the mud. The surrey was completely wrecked, and the young men's toilets were sadly disarranged. The men stabled the horse in Patrick Muldoon's barn, and started for home on the 3:29 o'clock train this morning.

Somerville Applauds the Crescent's Short Stop.

Short stop Dilts, of the Crescents, played short stop for the "West Ends," at Somerville, Thursday afternoon, and made two more base-hits off of the Rutgers College pitcher.

A Somerville paper, telling of the game, says:

"In the first inning Rutgers got a man as far as second base on a muffed fly that split Smith's finger. Smith was replaced by the Rev. Asa Dilts, who was called down from the grand stand, and whose appearance was greeted with loud applause."

The Roses.

Now Roses brim the air with sweets—
Roses like flush of maiden's cheeks,
And Roses white as foam that beats
O'er beach the crested billow seeks,
Roses with which there'll naught compare
In all the earth's dominions round—
Unless it be the jewels rare
And precious gems at Collier's found.

MUTILATING THE PUBLIC LIBRARY BOOKS.

Ten Dollars Reward for the Detection of Those Who are Guilty.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Public Library, was held Wednesday evening. Present, Messrs Male, Dumont, Babcock, Baldwin, Yates and Stillman.

The treasurer made his annual report, of the condition of the library on June 1, 1889, which on motion was embodied in the annual report to the Common Council.

On motion the bill of McHall & Rohde of $372.67 for books was ordered paid out of the general fund and included in the account ending June 1, 1889. The following bills were ordered paid out of the general fund and charged to the account of the next year: Insurance for three years on building and books, $90; Miss Adams, salary for May, $50; Mr. Odam, salary and sundries, $41.9; W. H. Williams, periodicals, two months, $19.55.

The annual report of the librarian was read, approved and ordered on file. On motion the Library Committee was instructed to procure two printed notices in large type, on pasteboard, of chapter 6 of the laws 1888 relating to the mutilation of books, etc., and add thereto a notice offering a reward of ten dollars for information leading to the detection of persons so offending.

On motion it was also ordered that $5,000 additional insurance be taken out on the books in the library.

The librarian's report for the year ending May 28, 1889, reads as follows:

E. L. ADAMS, Librarian.

"What We Desire."

The journal of the Camden Y. M. C. A., Our Young Men, for May, 1889, tells what that association wants. As it is just what Plainfield, also, needs, the article is copied below:

"A home. A fine building on the best corner in town obtainable, which shall be specially adapted to the work of the association, and by its attractive exterior, and home-like interior, draw to its open door the young men of this city. We want to use its best portions if not all of it for our work. It must contain an attractive Reception Room—the key to the whole building—the appearance of which will speak welcome and charm to every young man who enters. A well-lighted Reading and Correspondence Room, with the best of literature and all conveniences for writing; handsome Parlors, provided with appliances for recreation, pleasure and music. A neat Chapel for religious meetings, and a larger one for lectures, entertainments, etc. A Room for the Boys, with furnishings of special charm for them.

"The Minister's Room must furnish a cozy nook for their meetings and other use they may desire. A large Gymnasium with first-class apparatus, and connected with large Bath Rooms must be provided. The intellectual needs of young men must be attended to in ample Class Rooms.

"The use and success of the whole must be sanctified and sealed by the Prayer Room and its power. We desire a place where the physical, social, intellectual and spiritual needs of young men may be met properly, effectively and successfully, and the damning effects of saloons and worse places counteracted, and we believe the business man of Camden will see the wisdom of just such provision."

Westfield Whittlings.

The funeral of the late Erastus Miller, who died on Tuesday, took place from the house at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, and from the Baptist church a half hour later. Rev. J. K. Folwell, the pastor, officiated. Interment was made in Fairview cemetery.

Hill, the photographer, from Elizabeth, was in Westfield on Decoration Day, and succeeded in getting some excellent views of the procession, the monument and other points of interest.

Prof. Nelson's crack team of colored base ballists, was "knocked out" by a picked nine of white players on Thursday by a score of nine to four. "Pop" Nelson declares that "dey done gone an' beat de cullud chil'n, by gosh!" The defeat however, will not interfere with playing the bass drum, four years hence.

Contracts have been given out for the erection of two new frame dwelling houses on Kimball avenue. One of them will be occupied by Rev. C. H. Patton, pastor of the Congregational church, and the other by Mr. T. D. Bushnell and family.

Disgusting Drugs.

Blue-mass for torpid liver, castor oil and other disgusting drugs for dyspepsia and sick headache, are being surely banished from use by the sweet, fruit-like HAMBURG FIGS. 25 cents. Dose, one fig. J. G. Miller, Agent, Plainfield.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

NEWS FROM EUROPE

England's Queen and Her Premier Don't Agree.

SALISBURY TOO MUCH OF A TORY.

He Refused to Humor Her Majesty by Voting for the Marriage Bill.

The Conservative Leader Is Opposed to Legalizing a Union with a Deceased Wife's Sister and He Wouldn't Stultify Himself by Voting Against His Opinion. Editor William O'Brien's Libel Suit Against the Premier.

LONDON, June 1.—When Mr. Lincoln went to Windsor Castle on Saturday to be presented to the Queen as the new American Minister to the Court of St. James, there went with him as the representative of the Government, Viscount Cross, the Secretary of State for India. If time-honored custom had been observed, however, the son of the martyred President would have been accompanied, not by a subordinate member of the Cabinet, but by the Premier himself. It was probably in anticipation of the comments, which were inevitable, that the Court Journal hastened to explain in advance that Lord Salisbury would be unable to do the honors upon the occasion, in consequence of the fact that a Cabinet meeting had been called for the same day and hour.

But at the aristocratic clubs where the inner doings of the "divinity that doth hedge about a King" are discussed with a good deal of freedom, another explanation is given of his Lordship's absence, and it is supported in one particular of circumstantial evidence in the fact that the call for the Cabinet meeting was not issued until the Court Journal had appeared with its announcement, and that moreover the conference itself was of so little importance that it lasted barely a quarter of an hour.

The story as told is that there is a serious breach between Her Majesty and Lord Salisbury, as a result of the latter's failure to vote for a bill legalizing marriages with a deceased wife's sister, and which was defeated in the House of Lords a couple of weeks ago. It is pretty generally known that the Queen was particularly desirous that the measure should become a law and although she never interferes directly with legislative matters she had caused a hint of her desire in this connection to be conveyed to the Premier.

The latter, however, Tory to the blood though he be, refused to humor his august Sovereign. He is opposed on principle to the measure, has voted against it time and again, did not propose to stultify himself, either by changing from and supporting it or by using his influence with his colleagues in its behalf and remaining away from the debate and division itself. So he went to the House, as usual, sat quietly in his seat while the debate was in progress, and then, with several other members in the cabinet, voted "No" upon the second reading, while the Prince of Wales, with Earls Granville, Spencer and Roseberry, and other distinguished statesmen, recorded themselves as in favor of the bill.

When the news of the defeat of the bill reached Windsor, the Queen, it is said, waxed exceeding wroth and expressed herself very forcibly regarding Lord Salisbury's lack of personal allegiance. It is said that the present Premier's relations with Her Majesty are even more strained than were those of Mr. Gladstone and the Court a few years ago.

Salisbury Won't Apologize.

LONDON, June 1.—Lord Salisbury's solicitor, Sir Richard Nicholson, announces that the Premier has definitely decided to let the suit for libel and slander brought against him by Mr. William O'Brien go to trial and the service of the writ has accordingly been accepted. The Premier had the alternative of withdrawing the charges made against Mr. O'Brien in his Waterford speech and of tendering an apology, but this course he has absolutely declined to follow. Eminent counsel have been secured by both sides and the trial will cause a sensation.

Some Relief for Ireland.

LONDON, June 1.—In the House of Commons last evening, Mr. Balfour introduced bills providing for an elaborate system of drainage in Ireland, for the improvement of the Shannon and other rivers and loughs and for the construction of additional railways in Ireland.

The Samoan Conference

BERLIN, June 1.—A protocal has been drawn up by the Samoan Commissioners which will be signed if favorable answers are received from Washington and London. No further meeting will be held until the forthcoming instructions arrive.

Two Highway Murders in Ireland.

DUBLIN, June 1.—John Lawler, manager of the Balymena branch of the Provincial Bank of Ireland, and Mr. Murray, the assistant manager, have been shot dead on a road just outside of Ballymena.

Legitime Is Overthrown.

PARIS, June 1.—Hippolyte telegraphs from Hayti that he has defeated Legitime and captured Port-au-Prince and that he has proclaimed himself provisional President.

Tickers That Do Not Tick.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Mr. H. J. Moore, vice-president, announced in the Stock Exchange immediately after the Board closed, that while under the decisions of the court the Exchange could not dispense with the Commercial Telegram ticker and keep the Gold and Stock it could dispense with both. Existing contracts expired at 3 p. m., yesterday, and by resolution of the Governing committee will not be renewed.

Mrs. Cleveland Will Be Bridesmaid.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 1.—Miss Emma Jenks, only daughter of Hon. George A. Jenks, of Brookville, Pa., ex-Solicitor-General, will wed Congressman Benj. F. Shively, of Indiana, on June 17. Mrs. Grover Cleveland will be bridesmaid, and the ex-President will be a guest. Pittsburg proposes to give the late occupants of the White House a grand reception.

Their Bridal Tour Ended.

Rev. Father Byrne Dead.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 1.—Rev. Father Byrne, for years parish priest of Salamanca, died in this city yesterday.

BRIBERY AT THE POLLS.

The Report on the Block Island Election in Rhode Island's General Assembly.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 1.—In the General Assembly yesterday a report from the Committee on Elections concerning Block Island bribery cases was read. It showed that from 75 to 100 men were bribed to vote for John G. Sheffield, Jr., who holds the seat, from $25 to $100 being paid for votes. The Republicans made counter charges against the Democrats of similar proceedings. Accompanying the report was a resolution that John G. Sheffield, Jr., was not legally elected and not entitled to his seat in the House, and that Christopher E. Champlin was entitled to the seat held by Sheffield. The House voted 40 to 21 to continue the matter to the January session. A motion to consider was laid on the table. This disposes of it until January.

The State Department is Reticent.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—State Department officials will say nothing whatever concerning the Samoan conference. Should a treaty be made with Germany and England it will be kept secret until the meeting of Congress, when it will be presented to the Senate. It is stated, however, that if a mere understanding is arrived at its conditions will be made public without any delay, unless something unforseen should occur. As great a reticence is preserved at the Department about the Behring Sea matter. Nothing official can be learned.

Postmasters for New York.

All the Bids Rejected.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Secretary of the Treasury has rejected all the bids offered for the construction of a public building at Troy, N. Y., because the appropriation for this purpose is not large enough to cover the lowest bid.

Divers for the Men-of-War.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Secretary Tracy has decided to attach a sub-marine diver to each vessel of the Navy in commission. These divers will be taken from the crews of the vessels to which they will be attached.

Reduction of the Public Debt.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—It is estimated at the Treasury department that the public debt reduction during the month of May was $7,500,000.

No Disinterment to Be Made.

BROCKTON, Mass., June 1.—District-Attorney Kingman has decided that the remains of Henry E. Lincoln shall not be disinterred for the purpose of holding the autopsy asked for by the New York Mutual Reserve Fund Insurance company, which has been sued by the widow of the deceased to recover $10,000 life insurance. The company claimed that death resulted from suicide, while the friends of the deceased assert that he was murdered.

Funeral of Peleg W. Chandler.

BOSTON, June 1.—The funeral of the late Peleg W. Chandler was held yesterday from the New Jerusalem church and was attended by a large number of friends. Among those present were Hon. Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, Mayor Hart, Hon. John W. Chandler, Gen. W. W. Blackmer, Hon. John F. Andrew, ex-Mayor Green, Prof. Charles F. Dunbar of Harvard, Col. Charles R. Codman, Hon. George S. Hale and Gen. Joshua L. Chamberlain.

Free Religious Association.

BOSTON, Mass., June 1.—The second annual session of the convention of the Free Religious Association was continued yesterday, Col. Higginson presiding. Rev. Minot J. Savage opened the discussion on the topic "Religious Instruction in the Public Schools." He believed it the most cruel of all tyrannies to compel a parent to submit his child to such an education as he believed it would cause the destruction of that child's soul.

Fatal Shooting at Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 1.—A grocery clerk named George Sholer was shot by Charles Letts yesterday afternoon and will probably die. Letts, who had been drinking, accused Sholer of theft. Sholer resented the charge and thrashed Letts, who then drew a revolver and shot Sholer through the body.

Assumed Control Last Night.

CONCORD, N. H., June 1.—The Concord railroad assumed control of the Boston, Concord & Montreal road last night. Frank E. Brown has been appointed General Passenger Agent of the system.

Charged With Embezzlement.

BOSTON, June 1.—William B. Derby, ex-cashier of the Mutual District Messenger company was arraigned yesterday charged with embezzlement, pleaded not guilty and was held in $20,000 for trial.

For a Constitutional Convention.

NEWPORT, June 1.—The House has passed the resolution calling for a constitutional convention, but the Senate indefinitely postponed the matter.

Incendiaries in Arlington.

BOSTON, June 1.—An unoccupied house at Arlington, owned by Mrs. Albert Griffiths, was burned by incendiary fire last night. Loss, $5,500.

A MORNING WALK.

Though we have said good-bye,
Clasped hands and parted ways, my dream and I,
There still is beauty on the earth and glory in the sky.

The world has not grown old
With foolish hopes, nor commonplaces nor cold,
Nor is there any tarnish on the happy harvest gold.

Spent was the night in sighing,
In tears and vain regrets, heartache and crying—
Lo! breaks the windy azure morn with clouds tumultuous flying!

Life is not all a cheat,
A sordid struggle trite and incomplete,
When the sun and shadow flee across the billows of the wheat;

When upward pierces keen
The lark's shrill exultation o'er the sheen
Of the young barley's wavy fleece of silky, silvery green.

Did'st think, oh, narrow heart!
That mighty Nature shared thy puny smart?
Face her serene, heart whole, heart free, that is the better part.

Are the high heavens bent,
A vault of snow and sapphire wonderment,
Merely to arch, dull egotist, thy dismal discontent?

Would'st pour into the ear
Of the young morn the thoughts that make thee drear,
View the land's joyous splendor through the folly of a tear?

The boon thou hast not had—
'Tis a slight trivial thing to make thee sad
When with the sunshine and the storm God's glorious world is glad.

'Tis guilt to weep for it!
When blithe the swallows by the poplars flit,
Aslant they go, pied cloven gleams thro' leavage golden lit;

While breezy purples stain
The long low grassy reaches of the plain
Where ashen pale the alders quake before the hurricane.

Ah! there are still delights
Hid in the multitude of common sights,
The dear and wonted pageant of the summer days and nights.

The word is not yet said
Of ultimate ending, we are quick, not dead,
Though the dim years withhold from us one frail joy coveted.

Our life is all too brief,
The world too wide, too wonderful for grief,
Too crowded with the loveliness of bird and bud and leaf.

So, though we said good bye
With bitter futile tears, my dream and I—
Each slender blade of wayside grass is clothed with majesty!

A COMPETENT CLERK.

But He Had a Dangerous Weakness for Cipher Telegrams.

I had engaged a new clerk. He was, I confess, the best penman I had ever seen, and being thoroughly acquainted with the art of double-entry book-keeping, filled the position for which I had employed him with entire satisfaction to myself. Aside from his work, there was something about the young man I did not exactly like—a peculiar, reserved way with him that, during his stay with me, I never understood, and I suppose I might always have remained in ignorance concerning its meaning had not the circumstance I am about to relate thrown some light upon his true character.

One forenoon, about two weeks after the engagement of my new clerk, I had occasion, while he was absent, to go to his desk, and saw, lying on the floor just beneath it a half-sheet of foolscap paper, on which were inscribed, in my book-keeper's handwriting, the following characters, which appeared to constitute a key to some secret record or correspondence:

14	15	i	2	16	17	3	4	18	19	5	6	20	21	7
8	22	23	9	10	24	25	11	12	26	27	13
p	q	r	s	t	u	v	w	x	y	z	&

On what slight incidents are great events often based! I carelessly put the piece of paper into my pocket, where it lay for months forgotten by myself, to be brought forth at last as the instrument wherewith two great villains were brought to justice, and as the means by which I was saved the loss of a large sum of money.

One day after the banks were closed I was paid the sum of £3,000, which I placed within a drawer in my small office safe, intending it should remain there over night, and the next day I would put it on deposit.

Gamnett (my new clerk) was present, and appeared very observant of what I was doing—following my every motion with an eager, nervous, excited glance, which, although it attracted my attention at the time, did not impress me as a matter of much importance, and was soon out of my mind; though afterward I had cause to remember it very distinctly.

"Gamnett," said I, as I swung to the safe-door, locked it carefully and put the key in my pocket (by the way, I may as well state here that I was the only one who had a key)—"Gamnett, you know, of course, about the money, and to insure its safety I wish you would do me a favor."

"I am ready to oblige at any moment—the present none the less," said he.

"Well, then," said I, "I would like to have you sleep in the office all night and guard against burglars. You can sleep on the couch and keep the fire burning, so you will be warm and comfortable. You may take my rug, and every thing will be all right. Of course I shall pay you extra for the trouble."

"It will be a happiness to do so," said Gamnett, somewhat eagerly, I afterward thought. "I care not for extra pay."

"I am sorry to have to cause you so much trouble and inconvenience," said I, gratified at the readiness with which he acquiesced, "and I hope it will not often occur. By the way, Gamnett," I added, putting on my overcoat, "I shall not be back at the office to-night, for I am going to town by the five o'clock train. You and Wilson can see to things while I am gone, though I shall probably return to-morrow. Good night."

"Good night, Mr. Parker. You can depend upon my faithfully carrying out your directions."

The unusual cordiality with which he spoke, combined with the fact that he made use of my name for the first time in my remembrance, occasioned me some surprise; however, I soon left him at the desk, and, wrapping my overcoat closely around me, went out into the cold wintry air and wended my way homeward.

After partaking of a warm, hearty meal, I proceeded to the station and took the five o'clock train for town, where I arrived two hours later.

In my younger days I had been employed in a telegraph office, and had become a competent operator, though for various reasons I did not like the business, and, after having worked at it for a few years, resigned my position to engage in something more congenial to my taste. Among the many acquaintances I had formed at that time was that of a young fellow by the name of Taylor, who was also an operator, and, at the time of which I write, was employed by the telegraph company in their office, where, for old acquaintance sake, I called without delay, and found him seated by his instrument engaged in the perusal of the evening paper.

"Taylor," said I, advancing toward him, "how are you?"

"Halloo, Parker, is that you?" he exclaimed, rising from his seat. "Give us your fin, old fellow, and say, how goes it?"

"First rate," I replied, shaking hands; "you still keep at the old occupation, I see."

"Yes, and probably always shall. Here is the paper; sit down and be comfortable. I've got to receive this message that's coming. 'No peace for the wicked,' and certainly not for telegraph operators."

I took the seat he offered, and, spreading the paper out before me, began to read—my friend in the meantime taking down the dispatch, and otherwise busying himself about the instrument, which had commenced clicking in a very lively and animated manner.

"It's from your place," he said, presently.

"Is it?" said I, folding the paper to get at the inside.

"It's in cipher, too," he added soon afterward.

"From my place, and in cipher?" I repeated, throwing aside the paper. "Who is it from?"

"Haven't come to that yet."

I had become strangely interested, I scarcely knew why, and waited impatiently for the complete transmission of the message.

The instrument went on clicking at a great rate, and presently Taylor began to spell aloud, as fast as it came over the wires, the name appended to the telegram.

"G-a-m-n-e-t-t. Gamnett," said he.

"Gamnett!" I exclaimed, starting up. "Why, he's my clerk! Taylor, let me see that telegram."

Although the proceeding were somewhat irregular—it not being usual for telegraph officials to allow third parties to become acquainted with the contents of other people's messages—my friend, under the present circumstances (which were considered as partial justification for the act), handed me the paper, on which he had transcribed the message, and glancing over it eagerly, I saw what follows:

"TO WILLIAM JACKSON, 119 Cappies Street:

"20-4-23-16-16-10-4-7-24-9-16-21-3-8-7-24-21-9-9-15-21-10-4-16-9-14-17-16-13-8-14-23-5-16-23 8-7-21-16 10-13-8-6-10-7-20-7-23-23-7-11-1-7-20-16-8-7-11-21-11-13-10-4-10-4 16-10-7-7-6-9-16-20-20-15-8-16-14-10-16-6-26 13-14-10-7-21-16-15-16-14-10-10-9-16-7-17-17-13-1-16-13-13-11-13-8-6-6-16-10-26-7-24-11-21-13-9-6-16-16-8-10-4-16-23-16.

"GAMNETT."

"Who is this Jackson—the man to whom the dispatch is addressed? Or don't you know?" I asked.

"He keeps a sort of blacksmith's shop, and makes tools," said Taylor. "I don't like his looks—he's vinegar-visaged."

I hardly know why it was, but the fact of my clerk's having sent a telegraph dispatch in cipher looked very suspicious to me, and I instinctively thought of the paper I had found under his desk, and which was still in my pocket.

"Taylor," said I, "I wish you would allow me to keep a copy of this dispatch. It may affect my interests more than you think for."

"Well, if you think it does, go ahead," said Taylor. "Only don't get me into hot water—that's all.

"I'll take care of that, Taylor," said I, going to a desk and sitting down before it. "Now leave me alone for a few minutes, and I'll see if I can solve this mystery."

By the aid of the piece of paper I have before mentioned I soon obtained the following translation:

"TO WILLIAM JACKSON, 119 Cappies street:

Three thousand pounds in the safe and Parker gone until to-morrow. Come down with the tools immediately, and at one be at the office and I will let you in. I sleep there.

"GAMNETT."

In a perfect thrill of excitement I bade my friend a hasty good-bye, and telling him that I would more fully explain at some other time, ran back to the station and took the night train for home.

As we whirled onward in the darkness I revolved the whole matter over in my mind, and came to a decision as to what plan I should pursue—which will be better illustrated by the actual facts as they occurred.

Going directly to the post-office I communicated my discovery to the chief, who set a trap by means of which the burglars were caught engaged in the accomplishment of their nefarious schemes.

The station was watched, and a stranger carrying in his hand a large bag was observed to alight from the half-past eleven o'clock train from town, who took his way to my office, on the door of which he gave a peculiar knock, and was at once admitted by Gamnett.

The officers waited on the outside a sufficient length of time for them to get fairly at work, and then, breaking into the office, found one man engaged in blowing powder into the keyhole of the safe, and the other, my clerk, looking over the burglar's tools.

Both Gamnett and his bosom friend Jackson were generously provided by the benevolent authorities with an elegant stone mansion across the seas; and so highly delighted were they with the many charms that this magnificent retreat afforded, that they were easily prevailed upon to occupy for the period of ten years apartments of the cosy dimensions of seven by nine feet—the windows of which were ornamented by iron bars, placed lengthwise, in fulfillment of the directions of an ingenious architect, who had an eye to beauty, and wished every thing belonging to the country to present as snug and safe an appearance as possible.

A Disagreeable Bed-Fellow.

One night the son of Colonel Dodge, while sleeping in camp upon the ground next to his father, and lying on his stomach, was awakened by a disagreeable cold tremor running through him. He called to his father and said: "Father, there is something the matter with me. I think I have got chill. I have a cold sensation in the small a of my back, very strange, unlike any thing I ever felt before, and I am frightened." To this, the father, suspecting the truth, replied: "Lie perfectly still," then jumped from his own place of repose, stood a few feet away from the boy with his pistol in his hand, and said to him: "When I count three, I want you to jump!" The boy replied: "All right." The Colonel then counted three, and Frederick jumped to his feet, dislodging from his back an enormous rattlesnake which had coiled there for warmth, and the Colonel shot the serpent before he could strike the boy.

General Custer's Old Scout.

Sergeant Charles C. Wagner is the only survivor of General Custer's immediate command. The Sergeant owed his escape to a happy circumstance. He was sent by General Custer with dispatches to Major Reno, ordering the latter to bring forward his forces. While on this mission the deadly attack was made, and when he returned with Major Reno every soldier in the canyon was dead and all shorn of their scalp locks but Custer. His hair the savages had respected. Sergeant Wagner's life has been a succession of thrilling adventures. He lost a leg in a fight with Indians, having been hit by a poisoned arrow which necessitated the amputation of the limb, and his appearance sitting erect upon his horse, with his strongly-outlined face, his deep-set, resolute eyes and the long black hair falling upon his shoulders, is that of a thoroughly typical representative of the far West.

He Poisoned His Parents.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., June 1.—William Benson has been found guilty at Edgartown of poisoning his father and stepmother with paris green and arsenic at Tisbury last March, and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

A Prominent Lumberman Dead.

A CITY OF THE DEAD

Johnstown's Ruins Filled with Corpses.

5,000 PERISHED THERE ALONE.

The Few Buildings Left Standing Are Turned into Morgues.

THE TOWN IS SIMPLY ANNIHILATED.

At Least Fifteen Hundred Buildings Were Entirely Destroyed—Many of the Dead Identified—An Awful Spectacle of Death in a Church—Heartrending Sights in the Stricken City—Walls of Buildings Falling and the Scene of Desolation Lighted Up by the Fire at the Bridge, which is Still Burning. Swift Punishment Meted Out to Thieves Who Were Caught Robbing the Dead. Relief on the Way—Hundreds of Charred Bodies Believed to be Under the Ruins of the Burned Bridge—Nobody Knows How Many Thousands the Full Roll of the Dead will Number.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The worst fears that have been expressed by word or in print about the calamity at this place have been fully realized. Ten thousand persons met their death in the rushing waters that poured down upon this city and the adjacent villages. Two thousand persons more were roasted alive after escaping from the torrent. The city is a complete ruin from end to end. Hundreds of bodies still lie under the smouldering mass at the point where the bridge was and under the debris that is scattered far and wide in the valley. Each searcher finds scores of bodies.

HORRORS ON HORRORS.

The Allegheny River Growing Putrid With Floating Corpses.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 3.—Pittsburg and the towns and cities on the rivers are threatened with a dire calamity. The Conemaugh flows into the Allegheny; from the Allegheny the water is drawn that flows into all the houses of this city. From this water a stench is arising. It is being filled with this putrid flesh of the thousands of bodies that have been unrecovered. Already the water is black and no one will drink it unless forced to by dire necessity. As the bodies further decompose it is feared thet this will give great cause for alarm. Physicians dread an epidemic not only here but in the river towns below, where water is taken from the Ohio. The Health Board are considering a proposition to take the ice supply and have it used by the citizens for the coming week, until the pestilential fluid is washed out of the river beds.

Worse and worse are the reports from the stricken city. Frank P. Hearne the iron manufacturer of Wheeling, arrived in this city to-day and registered at the Monongahela house, footsore and badly fatigued, after a journey of thirty-two miles over the mountains on foot. He was covered with mud and he gives a very thrilling account of the scenes at Johnstown. "It was almost 4 o'clock Friday afternoon", he said, "when the first signs of the awful disaster appeared. It was first reported that the dam had bursted at South Fork, but it was denied. However, all persons were on the lookout for such an occurrence and shortly after the alarm had been given, the dam did burst. Houses were turned over and everything was crried away. All of the drift, which was about ten miles in length, became clogged up at the Pennsylvania railroad bridge. It is a magnificent stone bridge, and as the river grew high the drift piled up in heaps—houses, barns, lumber yards and everything imaginable jammed together—and the main part of Johnstown lodged at that point. The drift covered about three-fourths of a mile long and five acres in breadth. Where once was the fine city there is now only a three-story grocery store and the school-house. These buildings are all that are left of the hundreds of houses. And many people are located in the school-house. There is a strong strain on the bridge, but it is a strongly built structure and withstands all force. When the debris took fire the most heartrending scenes were witnessed, and groans were heard on all sides. All day it was like one big funeral. Everybody met in Johnstown has a sorrowful tale to tell about his or her lost relatives, and it is one awful wail from dawn until night. The newspapers have not exaggerated the tale. The scenes were so sickening and mournful, and as darkness settled over the once thriving city last night it certainly presented a death like appearance. People lined the mountains, and here and there small fires were seen where families were trying to cook provisions, while above all was the great flaming mass of debris burning at the bridge, its flames rising high into the air. There are sorrowing tales on every side. The Cambria Iron works and the Gautier Steel department were destroyed. The great broad street alone is calm. I had a very hard time to get back. I went from Johnstown over the mountains to Bolivar, a distance of thirty-two miles, on foot and from there I reached this city—glad to get away from the awful scenes."

BURIED UNDER DEBRIS.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The recovery of bodies has taken up the time of thousands all day. The theory now is that most of those killed by the torrent are buried beneath the debris, and the events of the work in the ruins in a large degree justifies this assumption. Six bodies were taken out of one pile of rubbish not eight feet square. The truth is that bodies are almost as plentiful as logs, only the swirl of the waters put the bodies under and the logs and boards on top in the general stacking up of the animate and inanimate. The rigidity of arms, standing out at right angles to the bloated and bruised bodies, shows that death in 99 out of 100 cases took place amid the ruins, that is after the wreck of houses had closed over them. Dr. D. G. Foster, who has been here all day, is of the opinion that most of the victims were killed by coming in violent contact with objects in the river and not by drowning. Three hundred bodies were rescued yesterday. The eastern end of Main street, through which the waters tore most madly and destructively, and in which they left their legacy of wrecked houses, fallen trees and dead bodies in a greater degree than in any other portion of the city, has been cleared and the remains of over fifty taken out of the portion cleared. All over the town the searchers have been equally successful. As soon as a body is found, it is placed on a litter and sent to the morgue where it is washed and placed on a board for several hours to await identification. The morgue is the Fourth ward schoolhouse, and it has been surrounded all day by a crowd of several thousand people. At first the crowd was disposed to stop those bearing the stretchers, uncover the remains and view them, but this was found to be prolific not only of great delay, but also of scenes of agony that not even the bearers could endure, nor the thousands calmly stand up under. Now a litter is guarded by a file of soldiers with fixed bayonets in charge of a sergeant, and the people are forced aside until the morgue is reached. The authorities have published the full list of identifications so far as follows: Charles F. Buttler, assistant treasurer of the Cambria Iron works; Emil Young and Geo. Randolf, Beaver Falls, Pa.; Harvy Barker, Jonas Murther, Conemaugh; J. G. Cox, Philadelphia; Mrs. A. W. Jones, Porter Miller, Elmer Binkley, S. D. Eldridge, Mrs. Mary Barbour, Mrs. Geo. Woodward, Jacob Wild, wife and child, Kate Linehart, Robert Baldwin, P. McNally, Frank Dimond, Wm. Penrod, P. McAubury, John Steiner, W. L. Davis, Mrs. Drefaunce, the two Misses Drefaunce, Ellen Harrington, Charles A. Marshall, John Burns, John Andrews, C. H. Wilson, Mrs. A. M. Jones, M. Little, of Sewickley; the three Misses Hamilton, Charles Wilson, John Andrews, Mas. O'Connell. These represent only a small portion of the bodies sent to the morgue. The following are under treatment at the hospital: Mrs. Nellie Sechriet, Phil and Mattie Lenberger, Bouheim and Maurice Newman, John Murphy, Sam Long. All of the last named are residents of Johnstown. The only outsider is P. J. Boner, of Woodvale. It is astonishing to find how small a number of injured are in the city. Few survived. It was death or nothing with the demon of the flood. It is true that not a few escaped, but they got off almost unhurt.

MAGNITUDE OF THE HORROR.

Two Thousand Bodies Under a Single Mass of Debris.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The magnitude of the horror increases with the hours. It is believed that not less than 2,000 of the drowned found lodgment beneath the mass of debris in the triangle that the Conemaugh cut out of the bank between the river proper and the Pennsylvania railroad bridge. There was the greatest funeral pyre in history. The victims were not upon it, but were parts of its horrible construction. Whole houses were washed into the apex of the triangle. Hencoops, pigstys, stables, outhouses, the refuse of the gutter, the contents of sewers, whole lumberyards, boom upon boom of logs, composed the mass. When the upsetting of a cook-stove ignited the mass and the work of cremation began, it was a costly sacrifice to the demon of the flood, being a literal breast of fire. The smoke arose in a funnel-shaped cloud and at times it changed to the form of an hour-glass. At night the flames lit up this misty remnant of mortality. The effect upon the living, ignorant and intelligent, was the same. That volume of smoke, with its dual form, produced a feeling of awe in many that was superior in most cases to that in the awful moment of the storm's wrath on Friday afternoon. Hundreds stood for hours regarding the smoke and wondering if it forbode another visitation more dire than its predecessor. It was with a feeling of absolute loathing that all people hereabouts awoke to find nothing but a mass of ashes, calcined human bones, stoves, old iron and other approximately indestructable matter, from which only a light blue vapor was arising.

As Badly Off as Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—Conemaugh, Woodvale, Kernville, Cambria City and other surrounding towns in the flooded district are as badly off as Johnstown. At Conemaugh the inhabitants of the lower lying portion of the town have been literally wiped out of existence. At Woodvale the percentage of deaths is even greater than that at Johnstown. Kernville has only a house or two as a monument to its former place makes the recovery of bodies slow work.

Burying the Dead.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The work of burying the dead began yesterday and was kept up till late last evening. Bodies are being buried as rapidly as they are identified. The work of undertakers in embalming the dead has rendered it possible to keep all those embalmed two or three days longer, but this is only desirable in cases where identification is dubious and no claimants appear at all.

All the Telegraphers Lost.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—It has just transpired that the whole corps of Western Union telegraph operators was lost. Among them were Mrs. Ogle, who for twenty-five years has acted as receiver of Associated Press reports here, and her daughter Minnie, also a well known operator; also Misses Gorman and Watkins and three messenger boys who were unable to escape from the building.

Two Thousand People Burned.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—It is thought by many that fully 2,000 persons were burned to death in the debris at the bridge. The Cambria Iron Works company announce that they will rebuild their plant at once. The work of burying the dead is proceeding rapidly, and necessarily with scant ceremony, as decomposition has set in in most cases.

Exaggerated Stories of Looting.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—Reports of looting and wholesale robbery have been greatly exaggerated. There is a disposition on the part of the Hungarians, laboring Irish and negroes to raid houses but not the dead. The measures adopted by the police have a tendency to frighten them off in nearly every case.

Summary Punishment for Robbers.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—At 5 o'clock last night a posse of farmers surrounded a gang of fourteen thieves who were robbing the dead, and succeeded, after a lively battle with clubs and rocks, in driving three of them into the middle of the stream, where they sank beneath the waves.

Another Fire in Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The additional accumulation of drift that formed after the first fire had burned itself out is now burning fiercely. It is not likely that any of the bodies in the mass will ever be recovered.

NONE WERE BURNED.

But Twelve of the Passengers Are Missing and May Have Been Drowned.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 3.—At Superintendent Pitcairn's office it was stated to the many inquirers for friends who were on the second section of the day express which was reported to have been burned near Conemaugh that twelve of the passengers were missing. "No lives were lost by fire," said Mr. Pitcairn, "but those missing may have been drowned. The fire was caused by a car-load of lime which ran down against the train, the action of the water on the lime caused the conflagration. A parlor car and the Pullman sleepers were consumed." Mr. Pitcairn was unable to give the names of any of the persons on the train, but it is known that on it were ex-Postmaster-General Frank Hatton; W. W. Patrick, the banker, and wife, Pittsburg; Rev. M. Robinson, of the Theological seminary, and Miss Jennie Paulson, from whom their friends have received no word. The officials at the other end of the division are taking a list of the passengers who have succeeded in getting over and thus possibly the list of the missing can be accurately ascertained in due time.

Whole Families Lost.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 3.—Frank Schaeffer of Meyran avenue, this city has received a telegram from his son Frank in Johnstown, reporting the death of Frank's brother and twenty other relatives of the family, three brothers-in-law and their families. Ex-Deputy Revenue Collector Samuel Hawthorn of Allegheny received information last night that four brothers, two sisters, seventeen nepewes and nieces had perished in the flood at Johnstown.

No Respecter of the Clergy.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 3.—Rev. Dr. Gilbert, of Harrisburg, who was to have preached the baccalaureate sermon before the Senior class of Pennsylvania college was unable to reach here on account of the floods. President McKnight delivered the sermon.

CRAZED WITH ANXIETY.

The Women and Children of Johnstown Suffering Great Hardships.

SANG HOLLOW, Pa., June 3.—Advices from Johnstown are that practically every building in the city has either been entirely wrecked or damaged so that it will have to be rebuilt. Whole streets were swept clear of all trace of habitation. The people who escaped to the hillsides have no boats to get around with, and are hard pressed for food. They are camped out in the brush, and the women and children suffer greatly from hardships, besides being half crazed with anxiety over the fate of friends and relatives. The water is not receding much, because the choked-up railroad bridge acts as a dam, and will do so until the debris that clogs the arches is removed, which will be a big job. The Pennsylvania railroad track is torn away bodily for distances of a mile or more in two or three places. The Baltimore and Ohio track suffered also, but not so severely.

Big Loss of Lumber.

BRADFORD, Pa., June 3.—Not a train has passed over the Western division of the New York, Lake Erie & Western railroad since Saturday. The big iron bridge at Belvidere is reported to have collapsed. About thirty culverts and small bridges have also gone out. No trains will pass over the road until to-morrow or next day. On the Bradford division three miles of track between Irving Mills and Carrollton is under two feet of water and the big iron bridge spanning the Allegheny is weakened and may give out. About 2,000,000 feet of logs went out at Nestons Mills on the Allegheny, and other big booms also broke loose.

Twenty-Five Lost at Williamsport.

SUNBURY, Pa., June 3.—This city is flooded. The water reached the top of the river embankments early in the morning, and soon afterward reached a point within eight inches of the great flood of 1865. At noon the water began to recede. All railroad and wagon bridges between here and Williamsport are down. Three men who came down from Williamsport in a boat report the loss of twenty-five lives at that place. The loss here is very small.

Lumber Yards Swept Away.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 3.—The lumber yards at Marietta have all been swept away. The Susquehanna is still rising. Marietta's streets and all the rolling and planing mills are partly submerged. Two men on a raft were carried over the dam at Columbia and were drowned. The Pennsylvania canal at Columbia is badly damaged.

Terrible Loss Around Carlisle.

CARLISLE, Pa., June 3.—Details are coming in from the country hereabouts showing a terrible condition of things. The loss to property will probably reach $250,000. Eight buildings were swept away at Williams Grove, and much other damage done there.

Lynched for Robbing Corpses.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 3.—Adjutant General Hastings, in his report to Gov. Beaver, says 1,500 bodies have been recovered around Johnstown, and that a man has been lynched for robbing corpses.

Senator Stanford's Crazy Niece.

NORWALK, Conn., June 3.—Mrs. Thomas L. Gunning, a niece of Leland Stanford, who went insane a few nights ago and drove the servants out of doors with a stiletto, escaped from her watchers yesterday and again assaulted the servants, who fled from the premises. She was again placed under restraint after a violent struggle.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—The Pond Machine Tool Co., commenced on Saturday, half-holidays for the Summer.

—The Johnstown disaster was about the only subject discussed on the streets, yesterday.

—Officer Lynch looks almost sweet enough to kiss in his natty new uniform, helmet and shoes.

—The direct pouch for Newark now closes at the post office at 1:45 P. M., instead of two o'clock.

—The North Plainfield public school meeting has been postponed from to-morrow until the 11th instant.

—But for the winds it is probable we should have had frost several times within the past few weeks.

—There will be a Mothers' Meeting held in Reform Hall, to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock. All are welcome.

—The Crescent Avenue choir will sing the Gloria from the 12th Mass, at the ground-breaking ceremonies, to-morrow evening.

—William Miller, a young converted Catholic evangelist, will speak with Bishop McNamara and staff at Reform Hall, this evening.

—The regular meeting (the last for the season) of the McAll Auxiliary, will be held at the public library, to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

—The Woman's Home Missionary Society will hold its quarterly meeting, Friday afternoon, at four o'clock, in the Crescent Avenue church parlors.

—Bishop McNamara will resume his series of sermons to Catholics and Protestants, at Reform Hall, this evening. Admission is free and all are welcome.

—The proposed advance in the price of coal is said to be a somewhat hazardous undertaking. It is like putting up the price of ice at the beginning of Winter.

—Young People's meeting to-night, at 8 o'clock in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church. Subject, "Taught of God," John 13, 1:17. Strangers always welcome.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Young Ladies' Mission Band, will be held in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian church, to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock.

—Another disgraceful fracas occurred on Grove street, near Lover's Dell, late on Saturday evening A platoon of Borough Marshals marched over to the scene of battle, but the principals escaped.

—It is understood that Capt. Jones who is well-known in sporting circles is not satisfied with his defeat at pigeon shooting by Frank Class and they will shoot another match for the State championship.

—The City Council will hold its regular June meeting, this evening. The session will doubtless be a long and tedious one, and it is to be hoped that the transaction of business will begin promptly at eight o'clock.

—Workmen are busy on the North track of the railroad getting it ready for West-bound coal and freight trains, the East track being completed some time ago. This will leave the two main tracks for passenger trains alone.

—Owing to the condition of the grounds after the storm, there was no ball match, Saturday. Additional seating facilities have been added, and the ticket stand has been moved to the entrance at the end of the fence nearest Richmond street.

—Fifteen crates of strawberries Saturday, and thirty crates today, were crushed for their juice to flavor the delicious iced cream of which Mr. William Tier is manufacturing many hundred quarts a week at his establishment in Bank place.

—An entertainment will be given by the members of the Loyal Temperance Legion of the W. C. T. U., at the rooms of the Union, No. 73 West Front street, on the evening of Thursday, June 20. The project is for a worthy cause, and is deserving of liberal patronage.

—The devotional committee of the Y. M. C. A., will meet this evening at nine o'clock.

—A reception will be tendered to the pupils of Rodman Seminary, on Friday evening of this week.

—The hearts of the pastor and people were made glad at the communion service at Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning when six persons crossed the line and said, "as for us, henceforth we will serve the Lord." Two persons also joined by letter from other churches, making eight in all, who joined yesterday. Again are the labors of pastor Schenck blessed and the kingdom of God glorified.

—Three butchers busy all day of Saturday, in Mr. George Moore's North avenue market, cutting big quantities of prime rib roasts, Spring lamb and veal, porter house steaks and sirloins, aroused the curiosity of a PRESS reporter, who, upon inquiry, was allowed an inspection of Mr. Moore's charge book for the day. The total amount of meat and fish delivered reached in cash nearly three hundred and seventy-five dollars.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The engagement is announced of a prominent contralto singer of the Crescent Avenue choir, a very beautiful young woman, and Mr. John Faxon, a Boston journalist.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Jackson, and Miss Jackson, are at The Netherwood for the Summer, during the making of extensive alterations to their Crescent avenue residence.

Mrs. Adelaide Roome and daughter, Miss Emma Roome of New York, and formerly of Washington Park, North Plainfield, are at the Hotel Netherwood for the season.

Isaac Sherwood, of Manhasset, Long Island, and Joseph T. McDowell, of New York city, delivered very interesting discourses in Friends' Peace street meeting house yesterday morning.

Mrs. George W. F. Randolph left today for Freemont, Ohio, the home of her father, where she will join a family gathering in celebration of the 90th anniversary of the old gentleman's birth.

Gen'l James B. Megley, of Pittsburgh, a well known ex-Congressman and a very wealthy man, is negotiating for the purchase of the Rockhill-Potts property at Union and Plainfield avenues.

On the terrace in front of Mr. Dan'l J. Marshall's home on Park avenue, stands a tall bush in bloom, on which the writer counted this morning over one hundred large "Jack" roses. Their fragrance fills the very street.

At the coming concert of the Bethel Mission congregation and Sunday school, Mr. Benjamin Sutton will sing "Old Dog Tray" as an encore. The affair will take place at the chapel, Thursday evening, the 13th instant.

Miss Jessie Utter and Miss Alice Holmes will play a duett at the Crescent Avenue chapel ground-breaking exercises, to-morrow evening. An instrumental solo by Miss Vinnie French will also be included in the programme.

At his labaratory on Putnam avenue, this evening, Mr. Leo. Daft will lecture before the pupils of Rodman Seminary, on the subject of "electricity." The pupils will be accompanied by the principal, Mrs. R. C. Dingee, and her assistants.

Mrs. John C. Bliss, wife of the former pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, will be present to-morrow evening at the reception in connection with the ground breaking ceremonies for the extension to the chapel and Sunday school building.

Mrs. A. V. V. Raymond, of Albany, was in Plainfield, yesterday, the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Richards. She attended the Trinity Reformed church, last evening, and occupied the pew she used to when her husband was pastor of the church. Mrs. Raymond returns home to-morrow.

The Funeral of William Washington.

The funeral services over the remains of William Washington, the dead sexton of the M. E. church, were held there yesterday afternoon. The funeral cortege was escorted to the church and afterwards to the cemetery on Plainfield avenue, by Cypress Commandery, No. 6, Knights Templar, of which the dead man was a member. They were headed by a colored drum and fife corps with muffled beat and the air of familiar hymns.

In the church, the Rev. Mr. Newton, (colored) of New Brunswick, made the opening prayer, and the Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut, and the Rev. Wm. Lee, pastor of Bethel Mission, spoke. At the grave, the Masonic burial rites were carried out by Sir Eminent Commander Israel Jones, Past Commander William Douglas, and other members of Cypress Commandery. All joined in singing, "Go Bury Thy Sorrow."

There were fully three hundred present at the grave, including many white people.

Thrown From a Horse.

Mr. William A. Conger, a member of the well-known clothing firm of C. Schepflin & Co., of this city, was accidentally thrown from a horse on Park avenue, near Front street, this morning, and badly injured about the head. He was picked up and carried into Stelle's drug store, where Dr. Hedges dressed the wounds. The patient was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain. Later he was taken to his home on Manning avenue, North Plainfield, and Dr. J. B. Probasco, the family physician, took charge of the case.

—Dr. A. M. Dam, 405 Columbus ave., Boston, Mass., would be pleased to answer any correspondence from parties using or intending to use his remedy.

"COME TO KILL BESSIE."

Is This W. Bradford Williams, Formerly of Plainfield?

There was a curious crowd yesterday morning at the Harlem Police Court to see William Bradford Williams, the elocutionist, arraigned for committing a murderous assault upon his wife, Bessie Williams. Williams had a natural antipathy to children, and on the birth of each of the four his wife bore him he deliberately absented himself, frequently for months. April 20 the fourth child was born and Williams again disappeared, remaining away so long that Mrs. Williams was compelled to seek shelter with her parents.

Saturday afternoon the husband made his appearance at her parent's domicile, and, stating that he had "come to kill Bessie," stabbed her several times with a kitchen knife. Williams was committed by Justice Morgan to await the result of the injuries he inflicted. Dr. Smith at the hospital said that Mrs. Williams would probably be able to leave her bed in a few days.

HYMENEAL.

WINTER—BENSON.

At the residence of the bride's sister, No. 15 Fifth avenue, New York, Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, took place the wedding of Adaline MacMartin Benson and Albert Winter formerly of this city.

As announced in THE PRESS, the wedding was private, about eighty of the most particular friends only, of the contracting couple, being present. The bride was attired in white, and most of the lady guests were also in full dress. The Rev. Dr. Houghton performed the ceremony.

Among those present from this city were, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart H. Whitney, Mrs. J. K. Myers, Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Fritts and Miss Lilian Fritts, and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Waldron. The wife of Governor Robert Stockton Green, and Miss Green, were also present.

The groom was for many years a junior partner of the firm of Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co., and retired from business a wealthy man upon the dissolution of the firm, that followed the death of Charles Tweedy. The bride is a niece of the late ex-Mayor Maxson of this city, and granddaughter of the late Rev. William B. Maxson, D. D.

Mr. and Mrs. Winter are now in Washington. They will sail for Europe in about two weeks and expect to remain abroad until October.

Friends' Temperance Meeting.

A respectable number attended the Temperance meeting held in the Friends' meeting house on Peace street, yesterday afternoon. Robinson Pound presided, and, as customary, opened the meeting with Scripture reading. The speaker was, as announced, Charles F. Swain of Brooklyn, N. Y., and for finished rhetoric and ennobling thought, none could surpass him. His delineation of the evils of liquor drinking was vivid, and the historic data he presented of the growth of various temperance organizations and of popular sentiment on behalf of the cause, very instructive. Additional remarks were made by Joseph T. McDowell of New York, and Col. Dietrich and ex-Judge Harper of this city.

Holy Cross Anniversaries.

Next Sunday will be the twentieth anniversary of the opening of Holy Cross church of North Plainfield, for divine service. It will also be the first anniversary of the Vested Choir. One year ago on Sunday next the choir sung in that church for the first time. The present services are largely attended, and increasing yearly. Those of the afternoon now being equal to the morning attendance of two years ago.

Ground Breaking Ceremonies.

The trustees and choir of the Crescent Avenue church, have arranged exercises appropriate to breaking ground for the Chapel and Sunday School extension, to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock.

A large tent will be erected in the rear of the church. There will be short addresses by the Rev. John C. Bliss, Rev. Dr. Ketcham and the Rev. W. R. Richards.

Col. Shepard Will Speak.

The twelfth anniversary exercises of the Children's Home, will be held in Trinity Reformed church, on Thursday at 8 P. M. The annual reports will be read, and an address made by Col. Elliott F. Shepard, of New York. All interested are cordially invited to be present.

Twenty Deaths in the First Baptist Church.

It was communion Sunday at the First Baptist church, yesterday. Eight new members joined—six by letter and two on confession of faith. It was announced that twenty deaths had occured in the church during the past year.

Rev. D. W. Skellenger Will Lead.

"Lions in the Path," Judges XIV, 5-6, will be the subject at the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A., to-night. Singing will be led by the boy choir and other male voices. All men welcome.

—In another column today the Misses Rocap announce that on September 19 they will open at No. 34 Central avenue, a school for boys. Applications will be received up to the 19th instant. Their Summer address will be at "The Kernwood," Asbury Park, N. J.

CLOSE OF ST. JOSEPH'S FAIR.

A List of the Prizes Awarded.

The bazaar and fair in aid of St. Joseph's church in North Plainfield, which has been in progress in the new Gesang and Turner Hall, on Somerset street, for the past week, closed on Saturday evening. Considering the bad weather which prevailed during the week, the financial result of the undertaking was most flattering, and those who took part are to be congratulated upon their efficiency in conducting the affair. The total net receipts will reach about $1,200. The following contests were decided on Saturday evening: Lady's gold watch, Miss Lizzie Gavin, $401; Miss Bridget Connoly, $122 95. There were other in this contest, and they also did remarkably well.

Gold headed cane, Joseph A. Blatz, $127.50; James Keegan, $105.65.

The little girl's gold ring was won by Nellie Begley and the boy's silver watch was won by John Leahy. Other prizes were awarded to residents of this city and North Plainfield, as follows: Tea set, Annie Cooke; lounge, Mary O'Neill; silver cake basket, Mrs. Richard Boice; life of the Blessed Virgin, Jas. O'Reilly; ton of coal, David Barry; barrel of flour, Wm. Wennas; cord of wood, Mrs. Patterson; clock, Barbara O'Connoly; chamber set, Henry Haurand; lamp, Garret Powers; work basket, James Keegan; group of pictures on Home Rule, Father Freeman; toilet set, Lizzie Vosselman; table, Patrick Nugent; barrel of crackers, John Kenney, foot ball, James Nolan.

A Pleasing Musicale.

On Friday evening last, a very pleasant company assembled at the residence of Mrs. Dey 192 Broadway, to welcome Miss S. Louise Tooker, the celebrated Brooklyn soprano singer, and Prof. Walter A. Dolane of the same city, who had made a flying visit to Plainfield. At present Miss Tooker is the soloist in the Church of the Sacred Heart, New York city. The selections rendered by this lady were very pleasing, especially the solo "It Was a Dream." Prof. Dolane is an accomplished musician, being the author of several compositions, the latest being his "Inaugural March," dedicated to President Harrison.

Miss Annie Hagen of this city, performed several difficult instrumental selections. She is a young Miss, and has a bright career before her as a pianist. About 11 o'clock, a collation was served, after which the guests dispersed, expressing themselves as having passed a delightful evening of song and music. Among those present were: Mrs. E. Dey, Mrs. N. Dey, Mr. and Mrs. Hagen, the Misses Hagen, Mr. J. Barton Kline and sister, Miss C. Dey, Mr. and Mrs. Lyons, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Andrews of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Converted Catholic at Reform Hall.

Reform Hall, last evening, held a large audience. Vice President Harper, owing to the continued ill health of President French, occupied the chair, Rev. Mr. Cleaver conducted the devotional services and the full choir of Mr. Vanderbeek furnished the best of music.

The speaker was Bishop McNamara, who in a logical manner reviewed the important question of temperance in its various phases, showed clearly the disastrous effects of liquor drinking upon religion, the individual, home and society, eulogized the different efforts now being made to eradicate the terrible scourge, paid a glowing compliment to the noble women of America, the W. C. T. U., argued earnestly for total abstinence from whiskey, beer and every other intoxicant, and eloquently appealed for a firm reliance upon gospel truths and an Almighty power. The Bishop spoke for over an hour and commanded unbroken attention throughout.

How Marshal Conover Broke Up the Feast.

Wm. Uhrhahn, the blacksmith, of Somerset street, complained to the Borough authorities, Saturday night, that a disorderly lot of men were occupying his premises and he wanted them removed.

Special Marshal George Conover was detailed to clean out the gang which he found sheltered in a feed wagon along the tail board of which stood a row of bottles of beer. With his club the Marshal smashed the bottles, much to the disgust of those who had paid for the beer and had left a deposit on the bottles.

The Borough is having more than its hands full trying to keep in order the gangs of Plainfielders who steadily float over th ere empty and unsteadily roll back again loaded up with enough liquor to last until they return.

The Unitarian Society Elects a Treasurer.

At the close of a sermon by the Rev. James T. Bixby, Ph. D., in its meeting room at 17 East Front street, yesterday afternoon, the Unitarian Society held a business meeting.

Mr. Henry B. Wells presided, and explained to the congregation that as a slight expense was being incurred by the holding of the meetings each Sunday, it would be proper to choose a Treasurer to whom contributions for the support of the work could be sent. Mayor Male named Mr. George D. Patten, Jr., Mr. David W. Pond seconded the nomination, and Mr. Patten was unanimously elected.

—The annual session of the East New Jersey Baptist Association will be held in the Park Avenue Baptist church in this city, beginning to-morrow. The session will continue for two days.

SEVENTH DAY BAPTIST EASTERN ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Session Held in the Seventh Day Baptist Church in This City.

The fifty-third annual session of the Seventh Day Baptist Eastern Association, which has been in progress in the Seventh Day Baptist church in this city, for the past four days, closed last evening. The Association includes the churches of Rhode Island, Connecticut, Eastern New York and New Jersey, and delegates to the extent of 72 have been in attendance during the session. Delegates were also sent here from four sister Associations.

Mr. Edwin H. Lewis of this city presided as Moderator, and Rev. Mr. Livermore of New Market, and Mr. J. D. Spicer of this city, were the secretaries. The first day's session included an introductory sermon by Rev. A. McLearn, the appointment of committees, communications from the various churches, reports of officers and delegates to sister associations. The second day's session was devoted principally to the transaction of business, with a prayer and conference meeting in the evening.

On Sabbath day the exercises were of a strictly religious nature, and included the regular Sabbath school session, conducted by Mr. D. E. Titsworth, Superintendent of the Plainfiled school.

The exercises yesterday were according to the following programme:

MORNING SESSION.

12: Adjournment.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

2: Devotional service, conducted by O. D. Sherman.

2.15: Conference hour of the Woman's Executive Board, conducted by Mary F. Bailey, Corresponding Secretary.

3.15: Miscellaneous business.

4.30: Adjournment.

EVENING SESSION.

8: Praise service, led by J. G. Burdick.

8.15: Sermon by Geo. W. Burdick of Little Genesea, N. Y., a delegate from the Western Association; adjournment.

Twenty-seven Million Dollars to Widows and Orphans.

Wetumpka Lodge, No. 3,401, Knights of Honor, of this city, meets Thursday evening of this week at their rooms. The following figures in relation to the extent and accomplishments of this benevolent Order, are interesting:

The sixteenth annual session of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Honor, was held at Indianapolis, Indiana, May 14, 1889, and important changes were made in laws of the Order. Hereafter the benefits paid at death will be—$500, $1,000, $2,000.

Amount of benefits paid to widows and orphans to May 13, 1889, $26,911,001.04. Membership of the Order, April 1, 128,000. Members initiated during the Month of May, 1,440.

Membership in New Jersey, 3,900. During 1888 the Supreme Lodge paid for benefits in the State of New Jersey, $105,000.

The following were the officers elected:

SUPREME DICTATOR—A. R. Savage of Maine.
" VICE DICTATOR—Samuel Klotz, New Jersey.
SUPREME ASSISTANT DICTATOR—Marsden Bellamy of North Carolina.
SUPREME REPORTER—B. F. Nelson of Missouri.
" TREASURER—J. W. Branch, "

A Change in the Lehigh Valley Freight Traffic.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad, beginning today, will transfer all its New York freight business from the Pennsylvania Railroad to the new Roselle and South Plainfield branch, connecting with the Central Railroad of New Jersey, over which it will be carried to New York.

President Wilbur's private car, No. 353, carried a party of the Lehigh Valley officials on a trip over the new road, where they were met by the officials of the Central Railroad.

Fresh Air.

Live out doors as much as you can. It is the place for a man to be. It is good for the health. A distinguished physician was in the habit of saying: "However bad the air may be out of doors, it is always worse in the house." It is good for temper. People who are always shut up in the house are apt to grow fretful and peevish. They are prone to acquire narrow views of things, and to worry over trials not worth considering.

Wants Religious Newspapers.

Rev. J. S. Bradbrook, in connection with the work of his new charge in New York city, is engaged in missionary work in the Tombs, Blackwell's Island and other penal institutions. He finds in this work more of a demand for religious newspapers than he can supply, and will be thankful to any who will supply him with copies of such papers after they have finished reading them.

An Every Saturday Night Scene.

There was an unusually large number of "gutter snipes" of all classes that filled the curbs in the business portions of the city, Saturday night, using indecent language and staring ladies out of countenance. It was next to impossible to cross a street without having to break through their line.

A Specific for Heart Disease.

DR. FLINT'S REMEDY removes the danger of sudden death from heart disease, and cures long-standing cases of disease of the heart, bringing back health and strength. Descriptive treatise with each bottle J. G. Miller, Ag't, Plainfield.

The Only Remedy.

Prohibition has had another set-back, this time in Illinois, where the House of Representatives has voted down a prohibitory statute. The evident drift of public opinion just now is toward rigid license laws, which are found to restrict the use of liquors, and against the more radical measures which experience has condemned as ineffective.—Warren Journal.

Prohibition has utterly failed in every State in which it has been tried. Neal Dow says it has failed in Maine, and there is more drunkenness there now than was ever known before. It has failed in Iowa, and the papers of that State comment on the increase of intoxication since the law was put in force.

No reader of THE PRESS will accuse us of upholding the liquor interest in any shape or form. We believe—and we have always said so—that the nine-tenths of all crime and poverty can be laid to strong drink. But fanaticism will not cure this No man can legislate for another man's appetite. Man naturally rebels against such an impertinent infringement of his rights, and when he gets liquor—as he surely will—he will show his defiance of law by an over-indulgence. The only remedy is high license.

The Storm

The severe rain storm which raged in Pennsylvania and caused death and devastation at Johnstown, on Friday, also visited this city. The storm, however, did comparatively little damage in this vicinity except to crops. An immense amount of rain fell, and it is feared that this will ruin the potato crop. Early fruit, such as apples, peaches, pears, etc., have also been badly damaged by the storm.

—The Lake Hopatcong steamboats began running to the trains on Tuesday last.

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

PEERLESS DYES Are the Best.

IN NEW YORK STATE.

Elmira Suffers Fearfully—Thirteen Lives Lost at Corning.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 3.—The water here was from a foot to a foot and a half higher than ever before known. Yesterday afternoon two bodies floated down the river. A roof upon which three persons were clinging is said to have passed by the city. The body of a female baby was washed ashore in the lower portion of the city. The Erie railway bridge was anchored in its place by two trains of loaded freight cars. The water rose to the cars which with the bridge acted as a dam and forced the water back through the city on the north side of the Chemung river where the principal business houses are located. The water covered the streets to a depth of two or three feet and the basements of the stores were quickly flooded causing thousands of dollars damage. The only possible way of entering the Rathbon house, the principal hotel in the city, was by boats which were rowed directly into the hotel office. On the south side of the river the waters were held in check for several hours by the ten foot railroad embankment, but hundreds of families were driven into the upper stories of their houses. Late in the evening two thousand feet of the embankment was forced away, and the water carried the railroad tracks and everything else before it. An extensive lumber yard in the path of the rushing water was swept away, many houses were drowned, and the people living on the flats were rescued with great difficulty by the police and firemen. The Erie passenger train which had been here since Saturday morning went west to Buffalo late yesterday afternoon over the Lackawanna road. On the big flats twelve miles west of here three miles of tracks were washed away, and at Corning the big iron bridge across the river is gone. Part of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad bridge across the river at Waverly has gone, and the road uses the Erie tracks from here to Binghamton. On the Northern Central branch of the Pennsylvania system, the westbound express train that left here Friday night is stalled between Minnequa and Canton. There are great washouts each side of the track, and railroad men say the road will not be open for a week. The damage to property in this city and vicinity is estimated at a half a million of dollars. The crops throughout the Chemung valley are almost totally destroyed. The Conesque valley is also reported to have suffered terribly. Thirteen lives are said to have been lost at Corning.

Both Ends of the Town Submerged.

WELLSVILLE, N. Y., June 3.—The heavy rains raised creeks into rivers and rivers into lakes all through this section. Both ends of the town have been submerged, water in many cases standing clear to the roofs of houses. Farms on the flats along Dykes' creek and Genesee river for miles are under three to ten feet of water. No trains have arrived since midnight Saturday. Edward Fuetterer was drowned.

A Large Tannery Ruined.

ANDOVER, N. Y., June 3.—The two dams at the ponds above the village gave way during the terrible rain storm and the water rushed madly down into the village. Nearly every street in the place was overflowed, and in many cases occupants of houses were driven to the upper floors for safety. Owens' large tannery was flooded and ruined.

The Erie Railroad Suffers.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., June 3.—Several bridges on the outskirts of the city are gone, the highways are impassable. The railroads will suffer, particularly the Erie, whose property in the vicinity of the shops is completely submerged, work being totally abandoned. Many washouts are reported on the different sections of the Erie.

The Worst Canaseraga Ever Knew.

CANASERAGA, N. Y., June 3.—The freshet was the most destructive ever known here. A considerable portion of this village was inundated. The Main street iron bridge was lifted and carried forty rods down stream. It is almost completely wrecked. Live stock was rescued with difficulty.

The Genesee Very High.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 3.—The Genesee is very high and great quantities of timber and other debris are rushing down. Thus far no damage of any consequence has been done in this city.

MR. HALFORD ALARMED.

The President's Private Secretary Had Fears for His Wife and Daughter.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Yesterday was one of terrible suspense for Private Secretary Halford. Early in the morning he received a telegram saying that the train on which his wife and daughter were passengers had been wrecked near Johnstown and all the passengers lost. Later some one unknown to Mr. Halford sent a telegram saying that Miss Halford was all right but saying nothing about Mrs. Halford. In response to inquiries early in the day the Pennsylvania railroad people said that they were trying to establish communication but they could give Mr. Halford no encouragement. It was late last evening when a message was received from one of the general officers of the road saying that Miss and Mrs. Halford were safe at Altoona. Later a confirmatory despatch was received from George W. Boyd, the Assistant General Passenger agent of the road. He telegraphed that the information from Altoona came from the Superintendent of the road and was official. While the ladies had suffered no injury they had lost their baggage. Mr. Halford sent a message asking when he could go to his family and received a reply to the effect that it would be several days before Altoona would be accessible.

The National Capital Flooded.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The rise of the Potomac river and the flooding of the city distracted attention locally from the Johnstown horror. When morning broke the water had formed a big branch of the river running through the city between Pennsylvania avenue and the high ground on which the Smithsonian Institute, the Agricultural Department building and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing are situated. It is reported that a colored man was drowned in the deep water near the Baltimore and Potomac station on Sixth street. The flood is now subsiding.

The James River on a Rampage.

RICHMOND, Va., June 3.—James river is on a big rampage, and Richmond is almost as completely isolated from the outside world as she was during some portions of the War. Apprehensions of a freshet equal to that of '70 and '77 proved to be well founded. On all railroads there have been serious washouts and damage. The lower portion of the city is completely submerged.

Two Women Drowned.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 3.—At Taneytown, Carroll county, Mrs. Charles McFadden and Miss Maggie Moore were drowned in the flood. They were attempting to ford a stream but their horse and vehicle were washed away. The driver escaped.

THE TWO BIG PENNANT RACES

Western League Teams Didn't Do Very Well in the East.

Boston Astonishes Its Rivals by Remarkable Playing—Glasscock Thinks the Beaneaters Will Win the Championship Hands Down—The Eastern Clubs of the American Association Return Home. Brooklyn Looming Up.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Again the scenes of battle on the diamond have been shifted and the Giants, in accordance with the requirements of the schedule, are called upon to visit Washington and Boston, where they will continue the struggle for the much coveted emblem of victory until the 10th of June, when they will return home for a fight with the Bostons and Philadelphias before taking their Western trip.

The first Eastern tour of the League teams of the West has proven anything but satisfactory to the visitors. They played fifty-four games while here, and it is probably fortunate for them that bad weahter interfered with other contests or a more disastrous result might have followed. Of the fifty-four games the Eastern teams won thirty-four and lost twenty. Boston has astonished its rivals by the showing it made against Pittsburg and Chicago in defeating them in the entire series, while in turn Indianapolis was the only club of the West that captured a victory from the Hubbites. Philadelphia and New York break even on the series, each having gained nine victories. The Giants knocked the Hoosiers out three times and divided honors evenly with the Clevelands and Chicagos. On the other hand the Quaker City boys won three of the four games from both Chicago and Pittsburg, but fell easy victims to the Clevelands.

The great feature of the week in the American Association has been the return home of the Eastern clubs after a fortnight's sojourn in the West. Brooklyn accomplished wonders while in the West, but received a slight setback when the team reached Columbus in dropping two of the four games played. From the time they left here until they got home on Wednesday evening they won thirteen of the eighteen games played, and, barring poor umpiring in St. Louis, they might have secured another victory.

When asked to express his opinion of the League clubs, making practical comparisons of the relative playing strength, Glasscock, of the Indianapolis club, said: "The Philadelphians have been playing in great luck, and have been playing the best ball against us of any club. I do not think that the infield will be as good as the one they had last season, however. I do not think that this club will beat the Bostons out in the race. I think the Bostons will win the championship hands down. I do not see how they can be stopped. Just see how they are batting and what work the pitchers are doing. I do not think that the Chicagos will come in better than fourth. They are not so strong in the box, and just now are weak at short stop. Hutchinson is their best pitcher. The Clevelands are playing beyond their gait. The question with such a young club, is, can it keep up the gait? I do not think so. As for the Washingtons, I cannot see how they can hope for a better place than they had last season. We had no trouble to beat Pittsburg, but they were in crippled form. They will play good ball, but they have been caught out of shape so early in the season that it puts them out of the race."

BULLDOZED BY BERLIN.

England Holds German Socialists in Jail on Trumped-up Charges.

LONDON, June 1.—The exiled German Socialists who have taken up their residence in London, and also their numerous British sympathizers, are greatly exarcised over an attempt by the German Government to obtain the extradition on a trumped-up charge of embezzlement of one of their prominent leaders, Julius Meyers. This man, who was an active and aggressive Socialist leader in Dortmund, in Westphalia, during the excitement engendered by the strikes among the coal miners in that locality, drew upon himself the wrath of the Government by his Socialistic utterances at the meetings of the strikers.

Hearing through a relative employed in one of the Government departments in Berlin that orders were on the way for his arrest he hastily gathered together his effects and left the city during the night disguised as an itinerant umbrella mender. He made his way to the Belgian border and then came to England, arriving in London a month ago. The German Embassy here, who had been notified of his escape from Germany, were on the lookout for him, and before he had been in London twenty-four hours, Mr. Freund, the counsel for the Embassy, made application at the Bow Street Police Court for his apprehension on the charge of embezzlement.

He was promptly arrested and, in the absence of any proof of the charges, he was remanded for a week. Since then his case has come before the magistrates at Bow street four times, each time the Embassy's counsel asking for a continuance on the plea that the papers had not yet arrived, and Mr. Meyers has spent all this time in jail.

The case came up again to-day, and Mr. Edwin Dillon Lewis, who had been retained for that purpose by the Socialists of this city, appeared for the prisoner. He opposed the further continuance asked for by Mr. Freund, and submitted the sworn statement of the man in Dortmund, Meyers' former employer, from whom the alleged embezzlement is claimed to have taken place.

This man says he has no intention and never had any intention of prosecuting Meyers for the alleged embezzlement, and that these proceedings were had without his knowledge or consent.

The magistrate stated that he would not order the release of the prisoner at this time, but would inform the Home Office of the facts and submit his own opinion that there was no ground for the surrender of Meyers. The decision of the Home Office is awaited with considerable anxiety.

Spinners on Strike.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 3.—The spinners of the Metacomet Manufacturing Company, have struck for a week's allowance of 50 cents extra on account of the short mules on which they are employed. The union has authorized the strike.

"OLD SOR'FUL."

EIGHT men in a cabin, four the regular occupants, one a stranger who was making his way to a distant mine, two visiting inhabitants of another cabin near by, and the last of the company "Old Sor'ful."

He was welcome everywhere, and he made his stoppings irregular and brief; he was the oldest inhabitant of the section, helpful to any and all; he was a man ever bowed down by grief, not morose or sullen, but simply silent and uncommunicative, and as "Old Sor'ful" (Sorrowful) was he known.

Two cabins stood in Granite Gulch, at the foot of Tennessee mountain, one of the loftiest peaks of the Rockies. Fifty feet lower down the mountain-side, in a thick grove of tall pine trees, at the bottom of the gulch, was the rough home of the two men mentioned as visitors.

Although an ominous snow crown had settled like a great white turban upon the head of Tennessee peak, these miners, inured to risks, were indifferent to the danger signal above them, and drank and jested without a thought of care.

Something was said, or some strange influence moved Old Sor'ful to speech that night and his hearers listened, the first men who had ever heard it, to the story of his life and great grief, told with the simple pathos of an unlettered mind.

He had gone to California in '49. He prospered in the land of the Argonauts and sent regularly sufficient sums of money to his family to keep them in every comfort, but saying nothing about the "pile" that was growing greater every day. He wanted to surprise the folks at home. At last he "sized up" full forty thousand dollars; and a great longing came over him for sight of the waiting ones. His dust was converted into two crisp drafts and he started for "the States."

"You see, boys, I didn't rig up in new togs or any thing like that. We fellows liked to go home in the old camp harness and knock 'round a few days, letting on as though he was dead broke, and then when every one has about made up their mind that you never were no good any way, spring your pile onto them and give the laugh to 'tother side of the mouth.

"I made the overland trip all right and was in the railroad train within three hundred miles of my wife and baby.

"I dozed off towards morning, waked with the glare of sunshine, and in two minutes found that my coat was cut and I had been robbed. I always had been an infernal fool about telling my business to strangers, and there wasn't a man on the car didn't know that I was a miner going home with a fortune.

"I gave the alarm. No one had left the car; there was a big excitement and one man proposed that every body be searched. There was no objection and the conductor and myself went through every man and every piece of baggage on the car. But my money was not found.

"I felt just as though my heart would break, not for myself—I could take hard luck—but for my wife and little girl—the baby that I had never seen; born six weeks after I left home, and now a little girl, awaiting there for her papa.

"I couldn't, I couldn't, go home and face them; the first stopping place I got off and took the next train back to the coast to begin all over again. I was just getting on my feet once more, when there came a letter, four weeks delayed; it had a black border around it. My little one had taken typhoid fever and died, and two days later they laid her mother away with her.

"That settled it. I've been no good since, and I'm only waiting the time when I can join them up there, if they'll let me in."

This sad, true story settled the rough yarns the miners had been telling; the stranger in their midst seemed particularly affected by the recital. It was not long before the party broke up, the two visitors going to their own cabin, and on their invitation "Old Sor'ful" accompanied them.

It was shortly after midnight when the old man roused the two sound sleepers with anxious shakings. Their ears gave them a quick clew to fast-approaching danger; the eyes of each man sought those of the other's for some hopeful gleam of escape, but of hope there was none in the returning glance.

The rumbling, rushing sound as of mighty waters and heaviest thunder mingled, the terrible crashing, crumbling, grinding, earth-shaking roar grew louder each heart-beat of time; the snow-slide was upon them.

Fortune, however, favored these three men and their hut; the slide was broken, "split," as they call it there, and only an arm of the avalanche struck them. But this was sufficient to cover the little house with eight or nine feet of snow, and to misplace some of the logs of its walls, a timber crushing the leg of one of the occupants.

While the injured man lay helpless, his mate and Old Sor'ful, desperately and almost hopelessly, having no idea of the extent of the snow above them, began to tunnel upward, piling the snow behind them as they worked.

It was five o'clock in the morning when they reached the surface, and then, scarcely stopping to breathe, they laboriously dug their way back again, and dragged their wounded and nearly suffocated companion into the air.

Then they opened a shaft to the hut, and having made the sufferer as comfortable as possible, set about the herculean task of reaching their buried neighbors in the cabin above. They had nothing to guide them save their memory of the direction, all landmarks having been obliterated.

For three days and nights these two men burrowed through the mountain of snow, ceasing their labors only at such times as it was necessary to prepare a meal for themselves and the helpless mate. To facilitate the work they tore boards from the interior of their cabin, and laid a track in the tunnel they were constructing, along which they wheeled out tons upon tons of heavy snow.

At a depth of thirty-five feet they came upon a corner of the wrecked cabin.

Hewing a hole through the remnant of roof, they heard the sound of moaning below, and as the light of their candles first flashed into the living tomb there arose a scream of maniacal laughter.

One of the occupants was dead, his skull crushed like an egg-shell beneath a monstrous bowlder; two others, with fractured limbs, were dragging themselves about the earthen floor, raving mad, in appearance like wild wolves, for they had, in the agony of hunger, hacked their arms and drank the blood as it flowed. Pinned down under two heavy crossed logs lay the stranger guest of that unfortunate night, the bones of his body broken beyond all hope of aid from surgeons; he was hurt to death.

But a strange strength and determination had preserved his life and kept clear his mind, spite of the infernal torments and horrors of those days and nights.

His eyes fastened themselves upon the face of Old Sor'ful. "I knew, I knew you would come," he whispered, faintly, as the old man busied over him to afford what relief was possible

This stranger seemed indifferent to all aid for the prolonging of his life. He insisted upon the removal of the others before any thing was done for himself, and begged that he might have a few minutes with Old Sor'ful alone.

When that interview took place the dying man was far gone. Two papers he gave to the wondering old miner, and then he breathed his last.

The documents had been written on the night of the snow-slide, after the visitors had left the upper cabin. They were both signed by the two rescued living men as witnesses. One paper was marked "my will," the other "my confession." The will left great blocks of mining stock and a three-quarter share in one of the best mines of Colorado to "the man known as 'Old Sorrowful.'" The confession was to the effect that it was he who had, years ago, robbed the returning miner of his drafts as he slept. He had retired to a closet and with a knife scooped out the inside of a cake of soap, secreted the drafts therein and replaced the smoothed over soap, which showed no sign of being cut, in his valise. He had forged the signature of the miner, cashed the drafts, and his ill-gotten gains had increased steadily in his hands, only to reach the defrauded one at last, and—too late.

"Too late—too late," that was all the wondering old man said when he realized the truth.

The conscience-stricken stranger's note stated that he intended to take his own life—a torment to him spite of his wealth. But the snow-slide forestalled him; he was saved from self-murder, and lived long enough to see that his acts of restitution reached the hands for which he intended them.

The "wife and little girl" were beyond all benefit from the wealth that came to the old miner, but it came not "too late" to be, through his wise distribution, the means of unbounded comfort and blessings innumerable bestowed on the poor, sick and suffering of the whole land.

ALEX. DUKE BAILIE.

A Sensible Barber.

"My wife is as white as any man's wife," says Jack Sheppard, one of the popular colored barbers of Washington city; "but," he adds, "my children have a little of my color." Jack is almost white himself, and is proud of it. He says: "My wife's father was a German, and her mother was a bright mulatto. My wife can talk and read and write German, and my two little girls and boy can talk it, too. It is funny, Sunday morning, the only morning in the week that we all breakfast together, to hear them little niggers jabbering German all around me, and I don't know what they're talking about."

"Why do you call your children 'niggers?'"

"Because that's right. So long as there is a drop of black blood showing in any of our people, we will be called 'niggers,' and I'm not fighting against that name, as so many of my people do. The negro is an unfortunate fellow, but he needn't be ashamed of his ancestry. The black people who founded our race in America were honest people, and that is more than the white people can say who are so proud of their ancestors. I'm not ashamed of the word 'nigger,' I can assure you."

The True Soldier.

Colonel Hunt, of Kansas City, said one afternoon recently: "The real soldiers of the war were in the ranks, and didn't wear shoulder straps. I was a private during the first five months of the war. The private loses his identity. He has no personality. He is merely part of a great butchering machine. There is no glory for him. I heard the bullets whizzing at Wilson's creek and my hair stood on end. When we charged I forgot fear, of course. When I was an officer, I had my men to look after, the orders of my superiors to execute, and the possible honor and glory of success. I left the army an officer, but I have never forgotten my experience in the ranks, and I honor the real heroes of the war, the men who stood in the ranks, actuated solely by patriotism and personal heroism. My most heroic soldier days, my most patriotically unselfish days were spent in the ranks." There is a true soldier for you.

"ONE of the finest places in the country for a great city," said General Sherman one day when the conversation turned upon the probable removal of the National capital to the Mississippi valley, "is at Nauvoo, Ill. It is a natural, sloping declivity, where good drainage, assisted by the rapids of the river, would make it healthful. It is located in a defensible region, in the midst of good cereal and fruit crops, in a country well watered; in fact, just such a place as a civil engineer might plan and hope for, but could never make without the assistance of nature."

The Worst in Forty Years.

PETERSBURG, Va., June 3.—It is nearly forty years since Petersburg had its last big flood. It occurred on March 9, 1851, but it was nothing in comparison with what has just been experienced. The violent rains sent the Appomattox on a boom. The earliest damage was from the bursting of the receiving reservoir at the water works. The whole lower part of the city is under water. Every bridge but one spanning the river, including the Atlantic Coast line trestle, is swept away, and all railroad communication north and south is suspended.

Is Frank Hatton Among the Lost?

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Some auxiety has been felt for two days about the safety of Frank Hatton, the editor of the Washington Post, who was a passenger on the Chicago limited express on the Pennsylvania railroad. The minds of his friends have been somewhat relieved by the announcement made by the railroad company that the train was safe at Edensburg. Nothing has been heard from Mr. Hatton direct.

No Light in Fredericksburg.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., June 3.—The dam above the town has been swept away. About eight acres of Beck's Island has been carried off by the flood. Taylor's Cliffs have fallen in and filled the canal at that point. The great iron bridge of the Atlantic Coast line across Hazel river fell yesterday afternoon. No services were held in the churches last night as there was no light in the city.

DEAD EVERYWHERE

Conemaugh a Veritable Valley of Death.

WIDE RUIN AND DESOLATION.

A Vast Charnel House Twenty Miles Long.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS LOST.

The Whirlpool that Swept Johnstown Out of Existence.

AT LEAST EIGHT THOUSAND DEAD.

Where Once Stood Stores and Mansions Is Now a Mud Flat—Buildings, Sidewalks, Street Railroads, Have Vanished and Even the Streets Obliterated—Four Square Miles of Houses Piled Into Sixty Acres of Wreckage—Hundreds of Human Bodies Lodged in the Solid Mass Along with the Ruins of Their Homes—Many of them Burned in the Fire that Consumed Part of the Wreckage, Some of Them While Yet Alive—The Worst About the Disaster Yet to Be Written.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June J.—The time has not yet come to write the story of the disaster that has turned the sparkling Conemaugh that rippled so pleasantly through the beautiful valley into a river of horror in a valley of death. No man, or any corps of men, with every facility that can be devised, will ever be able to write a story that shall fully tell of the awful visitation that has made the valley one vast charnel house, twenty miles long and half a mile wide, and that has stained the bright mountain stream a color that not all the water that can flow between now and eternity can ever wash out. With the facilities for obtaining information, and for sending it after it is obtained, that are the best that can be had here now, it is impossible to give more than a vague idea of the awful desolation that is universal from Conemaugh dam to far below Johnstown. This much alone is certain, that, whatever has been written is too weak to adequately convey an idea of the extent of the disaster, and that the horror of the calamity is bound to increase daily for some time yet. Exploration of the valley beyond Johnstown has but just begun. On this account not even a good estimate of the total number of lives lost can be made.

Adj. Gen. Hastings, whose bureau here is endeavoring to make something like a complete record of the number of bodies found, sent to Gov. Beaver his official estimate that at least 5,000 deaths would be absolutely proven. This does not include the large number of deaths that will never be known of positively, and Gen. Hastings' own estimate of the total is 8,000. Nobody thinks this is too small. Nobody who has been about here an hour would think anything too awful to be possible.

The loss of property will be far up into the millions, but no one thinks of that. The tale of the dead is bad, but the tale of the living is bad, too, and it must have attention. There are as many of them as of the dead, and they are hard pressed for food, clothing and all the necessaries of life. Their necessity will continue, not for a day, not for a week, but for months. They are as destitute of all that goes to support life, except the bare breath in their bodies, as are the very dead whose half nude bodies line the banks of the Conemaugh for miles. Their ordinary means of earning a livelihood are gone, with the rest of the town, but there is abundant work for every one. But there must be money to pay the workmen. Food for the immediate necessity of the people in Johnstown itself is coming in from every side, and there is enough to relieve their wants. What the situation is for people further up the valley is unknown here, but their plight must be serious. Clothing enough for the absolute necessity of the time is also coming in, but the people cannot be maintained in idleness for long, and money to set them at work and keep them at work is absolutely necessary. The committee in charge has concluded at the very outset to give the least possible amount of charity and the most work. They ask for money first and most and their character is such that there need be no hesitation about sending it in generous abundance. There is work in cleaning up and rebuilding to last every able-bodied man for six months, and it will be at least a month before any considerable amount of money can be realized from their labor. The generous heart of the country is depended upon to furnish the means of keeping these men at work for at least that long, and perhaps for twice or three times as long; for no one can tell yet how great will be the task of recreating the town.

ROSTER OF THE DEAD.

Over Two Thousand Bodies Recovered. General Hastings' Estimate.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—The total number of bodies recovered is now estimated by Adjutant-General Hastings and the undertakers at 2,300, but the General has wired Governor Beaver that he believes the loss will amount to from 5,000 to 8,000 and that time would produce ample proof of this. In order to facilitate the ascertaining of the number of the dead, all surviving residents of Johnstown and Cambria City have been requested to register at various designated places. While the estimates of the undertakers are that the number of bodies are 2,300, the actual records at the different improvised morgues in this vicinity do not show it, but the reason is mainly that at first before order was established, many corpses were buried immediately upon identification, without registering. The undertakers, however, had matters systematized to a wonderful extent by Sunday evening and their services were most valuable.

GOV. BEAVER'S APPEAL.

Shoes and Clothing and Money Needed for the Sufferers.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 4.—Governor Beaver has issued an appeal to the people of the United States in which, after reciting the appalling facts in regard to the flood in the Conemaugh valley, he says that while the most pressing need for food has been supplied, shoes and clothing are greatly needed, and money is urgently required for burying the dead, clearing away dangerous debris, and caring for the homeless and suffering. The Governor adds that late advices indicate great loss of life and property along the west branch of the Susquehanna and in localities from which no definite information can be obtained. Such facts as have come, however, are appalling, and it is expected that the details will add new horrors. The offerings of aid have already been large and widespread, and the Governor assures contributors that their gifts will be wisely and promptly distributed.

THE CITY OF THE DEAD.

A String of Men Two Miles Long Carrying Coffins to the Schoolhouse.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—Death, ruin and desolation are but meagre words applied to Johnstown proper.

Weeping men, women and children are at all places looking for their dead.

The first tour that has been made through the southeast end of the town was made this morning.

The schoolhouse in the southeast part of the town is now a morgue and in it are no less than 250 bodies, most of whom are unidentified.

About 500 men are working here clearing away the debris in order to make a wagon road for the bodies to be hauled away from the morgue.

St. John's Catholic Church was not damaged so much by water as by fire. It is unknown how the fire broke out.

Living near the church was Mrs. McNally, who, when she saw water coming made a rush for the church, thinking she would be safe there, as it was an immense structure and her home was a small building. The crash of the waters soon broke the windows and drowned the lady. By the force of the water she was crushed in one of the windows where her body was found this morning, burned almost beyond recognition. John McNally, her son, stayed in the house and was drowned there. His body was placed beside the charred remains of his mother, and both were taken in charge by one of the undertakers.

In this part of the town is located the Irish Catholic church and convent. A remarkable story is told about these Sisters. The mother of the convent saw the wave coming, which, she says, was mountain high. She at once called all the Sisters into the chapel. Here the dozen nuns began to pray as they possibly never prayed before for protection from the water. When the water struck the building it shattered the entire structure, and every room except the one where the Sisters knelt in prayer. The room is still standing but it is liable to fall at any moment.

Near the church also were found the bodies of 'Squire Brady, his wife and six children. They were caught by the water before they had time to take to the hills. Henry Roberts, who lives in this part of the town, lost one child, two months old. He had in his house a Newfoundland dog, which was near the child when the fatal flood struck the house. The dog seemingly realized the situation and caught the child and stareed to swim to land. The force of the waters washed the dog and child against the schoolhouse, where they were held until the water began to abate, and as soon as the animal could, he swam to the hillside with the babe in his mouth, and delivered the dead infant to some people who were there.

The horrors of this part of the town are beyond pen pictures or description.

What is just now going on can best be felt when it is told that a string of men two miles long are carrying coffins to the schoolhouse where the hundreds of dead are lying.

One after another the dead bodies are identified and moment after moment dead women and children are being taken into the temporary morgue.

Three sisters who were saved from the flood this morning recognized the dead body of their mother. As if struck by an electric shock the three fell to the ground when they saw her remains. Before their names could be learned they were carried away to a house near by and a physician summoned.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

At 6 o'clock last night, Geo. Irwin, a resident of Hillside, Westmoreland county, was discovered in a dying condition in a clump of bushes just above the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad about a mile below Johnstown. When stretched upon two railroad ties near the track below, his tongue extended from his mouth and he gasped as if death was at hand. By the assistance of stimulants he was in a degree revived and told the following story: "I was visiting friends in Johnstown Friday, when the flood came. We were submerged without a moment's warning. I was taken from the window of the house in which I was then a prisoner by Mr. Hay, the druggist at Johnstown, but lost my footing and was not rescued. I clung to a log until I struck the Cambria Iron works, when I caught on the roof of the building. I remained there for nearly an hour when I was knocked again from my position by a piece of raft. I floated on top of this until I got down here and I stuck in an apple tree. I saw and heard a number of other unfortunate victims who swept by me, appealing for some one to save them. One woman and two children were floating along in apparent safety when they struck the corner of a building and all went down together, and I would rather have died than have been compelled to witness that sight. I have not had a bite to eat since Friday night, and, as Heaven is my judge, I don't feel hungry. I am afraid my stomach is gone, and I am about done for." He was taken to a hospital by several soldiers and railroad men who rescued him.

SOME OF THE DEAD.

The Most Prominent Citizens Numbered in the List.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—Some of the most prominent citizens of this city and of the State are among those who have perished. John Fulton, President of the Constitutional Amendment Association, and General Manager of the Cambria Iron Works was drowned with his wife and children.

H. J. Roberts, Cashier of the First National Bank and John Dibert, a banker, were also drowned, the former's son perishing with him.

The wife and daughter Minnie of Cyrus Elder, one of the greatest authorities on the tariff in the country, are dead.

H. A. Schumaker, Prothonotary of Cambria County, H. G. Rose, District Attorney, Dr. John Lowman, the wife and eight children of Chief of Police Harris and the wife and three children of T. W. Kirkland, a well known jeweler, are dead. C. T. Schubert, editor of the Freie Presse is also believed to be drowned.

THOSE IDENTIFIED AT JOHNSTOWN.

The following is a complete list of the bodies that have been identified at the chapel at Grand View cemetery, awaiting burial: Jesse B. Miller, of Tyrone; Lizzie Kunkle, of Tyrone; Fannie Pike, Miss Schultz, Thomas Sink, Mrs. John Ryan, Clarence Rhodes and child; Hurtzheiden Heidenschull. John Kiperschuid, Mrs. Thos. Knox (colored), Mrs. V. O. Wessinger, John Mower, Mrs. John White, Mrs. Milliard Roberts, John Litz, J. A. Craig, Mrs. J. A. Craig, Mrs. John H. Fisher, Minnie Fisher, Wm. A. Fisher, Ida Fisher, Margaret Fisher (baby), Frank Fisher, Maggie Nobleprice (Fisher's servant), Geo. Fisher, Mrs. Jacob Swank, Lizzie Wagner, Mrs. Thos. Williams, Mrs. Otto Cooper, Mrs. Geo. M. Barber, Florence Barber, Mrs. Philip Repp; child of J. C. Melle, Mrs. M. J. Swank, Maud Swank, Susie Swank, Baby Swank, Mrs. Sallie Laveile, Mrs. Keller, Conrad Latz, Mrs. Walter Davis, Mrs. Ream, Mrs. Lizzie Dyer, Mrs. Wesley Stuft, Mrs. Hecker, Mrs. Lizzie Jacoby, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Nelson Baker, Jessie Hamilton, Mrs. L. W. Delaney, J. L. Smith's three children; Robert Miller, Fred Poland, Walter Poland, Mrs. J. P. McCanaughty, Minnie G. White, Maggie E. White, Emily Young, Charles E. Ludwig, Annie Reese, William Reese, Ella F. White, Charles Musser. The following other persons have been found: Dr. Marborough, Dr. G. C. Brinkley, Mrs. Philip Meyer and child. The other children of Philip Meyer are known to have been drowned, but their bodies have not as yet been found.

CONEMAUGH'S DEAD.

Conemaugh's identified dead are as follows: Dr. J. C. Wilson, wife and daughter; Mrs. Stephen Robin and babe; Mrs. Leech and daughter; Peter Rubritz and wife; Maggie Rubritz; Mrs. John Keeper and babe; George Constable; William Mills; Solomon Boyer; Mrs. McGough; Lyman McHugh; Gertie McHugh; John Atkinson; Mrs. Polly McKim; Mrs. Kate Sample; Mrs. McCoy and son; Mrs. John Burke; Alexander Corr.

THE WOODVALE DEAD.

Some of the Woodvale dead are: Mrs. Ed Burket and three children, Jessie Harvard, Richard Jones and wife, Mrs. J. C. Duncan, W. H. Rosenstein and wife, Mrs. Burke, Joseph Grumbling and seven children, Jas. Wilson.

FRANKLIN BOROUGH SWEPT AWAY.

Franklin Borough, which adjoins Johnstown on the north is almost entirely swept away. The dead who have been found are: Dr. Wilson, wife and two children, Carrie Dean, Essie Kepper, Peter Rubert, wife and two children, Mrs. Leech and two children. Two unknown persons were drowned at South Fork City.

MINERAL CITY WIPED OUT.

Mineral City, six miles above Johnstown is entirely wiped out. It had about two hundred inhabitants. Among those whose bodies were found are: Samuel Page, wife and five children; Mrs. James Finley, Mrs. Abe Byers and two children.

It is said that fully one hundred and fifty bodies were found last evening in a sort of pocket below the Pennsylvania Railroad signal tower at Sang Hollow where it was expected there would be a big find.

A resident of Mineral Point says that there is no doubt the South Fork dam broke and caused the flood. He says that pieces of the bridge and other fragments of the dam were carried down the stream and some were washed ashore at that point.

BRINGING IN THE BODIES.

Two hundred and fifteen bodies were received at the Pennsylvania railroad depot yesterday. After being washed they were placed in caskets and arranged in long rows on the depot platform for identification. Only a few of the number were recognized. Some were so terribly disfigured as to be wholly unrecognizable. The waiting rooms in which the embalming was done presented a sickening sight. Human forms frightfully burned, or cut, or bruised, were laid upon a rough board table, washed and coffined. If they were not recognized in a very short time, they were placed on wagons and taken to the Adams street school-house where they will be kept as long as possible and then buried in a grave bearing the legend "Unknown."

IN THE HOSPITAL.

A regular hospital has been opened on Bedford street. Dr. Foster, of Pittsburg, is in charge. Dr. Alex. E. McCandless, the Sheriff, is his assistant. The physicians have been divided into regular hospital corps and placed in charge of the various departments. A drug store has been opened in the rear of the hospital containing a large quantity of surgical supplies. Samuel Long, who was taken to the hospital yesterday, died this morning of pneumonia. The following named people are at the hospital under treatment: Miss Nellie Sechrist, of Philadelphia; Mahila Liebert, Johnstown, prostrated and badly cut; Bouheim Newman, prostrated; Maurice Newman, fractured leg; John Murphy, contusion and bruised; S. G. Bohn, Woodvale, bruised and contusion; Mrs. Sarah Young, leg fractured and dislocated knee; John V. Shaffer, bad wound on leg; J. C. Tucker, Woodvale, dislocated shoulder; Charles Helrighte, Woodvale, pneumonia, will not live over to-day; Mrs. Alvina Prosser, of Peeltonville, wound on shoulder and arm nearly torn off, in a critical condition; Wm. Rich, bruised and contusion; Rose Young, bruised and sick from exposure. The following

THE PRESS is now in its third year with a subscription list that includes all the intelligent people of the City and Borough, and with the advertising patronage of all the progressive and successful merchants of Plainfield.

WHAT TO DO WITH YOUR SUBSCRIPTIONS.

A number of contributions of money have been offered THE PRESS today, amounting to quite a sum, towards a fund for the Johnstown sufferers.

We have advised all these generous people to add their gifts instead to the funds that are being raised by some of the churches, or to send them as directed in the following proclamation:

PROCLAMATION BY THE MAYOR.

MAYOR'S OFFICE,
PLAINFIELD, N. J., June 4, '89.

The harrowing news of the loss of life and of the destitution and suffering caused at Johnstown, Pa., by devastating flood, arouses the sympathy of all for the survivors of the terrible disaster.

Believing that the citizens of Plainfield are anxious to contribute to the relief of the sufferers, I suggest that they immediately make their donations. Subscription papers will be found at all the drug stores of the City and at the railway station. Money may also be sent to me or J. K. Myers, Ch'n of Finance Committee of Common Council, and to John W. Murray. I also recommend that collections be taken up at all the churches next Sunday for that purpose. Donations of clothing will also be received at the Y. M. C. A. rooms.

JOB MALE, Mayor.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—The public schools will close on Wednesday, June 26, and reopen Monday, Sept. 9.

—The appeal case of the City vs. John H. Tier, for selling iced cream on Sunday, will come up at Elizabeth to-morrow.

—The High School graduating class of '79, will make a present to the school upon the occasion of the annual commencement exercises.

—Next Monday evening the members of Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, will meet to take some action in regard to their afflicted brothers of Council 401, at Johnstown.

—Samuel Hedden, an old resident of Union county, was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train at South Elizabeth, on Saturday night, and dangerously injured.

—A call for a citizens meeting to offer our aid to those who are left of the Johnstown sufferers, may be made. Let every one respond and make Plainfield's contribution a creditable one.

—Music Hall has been engaged for the XIXth annual Commencement exercises of the High School, Thursday evening, the 27th inst. Admission will be on the same plan as in the last few years.

—The Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., are reminded that Mr. H. Melander will give one of his interesting chalk talks at their devotional meeting Thursday evening. Other boys are invited.

—At the Scotch Plains school meeting, last evening, there were 149 votes cast, of which number 101 were in favor of an expenditure of $18,000 for a new school building. The discussion was long, animated and, at times, heated.

—The first of the series of weekly lectures will be delivered to-night at 7:45, by F. W. Grant, on the 2d and 3d chapters of Revelation, at the meeting room, No. 6 East Front street, over the Dime Savings Institution. Admission free.

—Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, United Order of Independent Odd Ladies, will give a first-class entertainment in Warren Mission chapel on Thursday evening of this week. In the advertisement in another column will be found a list of the artists who are to appear, together with other particulars.

—The East New Jersey Baptist Association begun a two day's session in the Park Avenue Baptist church in this city today.

—The decoration of the Crescent Avenue church parlors for the reception of this evening, is a beautiful display seldom equalled of turkish rugs, tapestries and portierres that entirely cover the walls.

—The Band of Hope will meet in the W. C. T. U. rooms on West Front street, to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock. As to-morrow is pledge day, it is especially requested that all the members be present.

—The Revs. John C. Bliss, K. P. Ketcham and W. R. Richards, will be the speakers at the ground-breaking exercises in the large tent back of the Crescent Avenue church, this evening, at eight o'clock. There will be vocal music by the choir, and other features of entertainment already mentioned in these columns.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Runkle, on Memorial Day.

Mrs. H. A. Ayres, of Broadway, will leave in a few days for a month's visit with her daughter in Westerly, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Demarest of East Fifth street, are spending a few weeks in Albany at the home of their son-in-law, Rev. C. E. Dunn of that city.

"Aunt Sally" Butche, wife of Mr. Geo. Butche, the faithful driver for No. Two Engine Company, is confined to her home on West Front street, by illness.

The presence of Mrs. John C. Bliss, wife of the former pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, at the reception in the church parlors, this evening, will undoubtedly attract her many friends.

Six young women have arranged a tennis tournament to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac W. Rushmore, next Saturday afternoon. The proceeds will go towards a charitable purpose.

Mr. Charles Wilkisson and family of Union avenue, will leave Plainfield about the first of July, and may remain away permanently. Miss Wilkisson will go to New London, Conn. Mr. Chas. Wilkisson, Jr., is at Tacoma.

Members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., are requested to meet at their rooms, Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, to attend the funeral of their brother, Absalom R. Hartpence, who died at his home in Evona, yesterday.

Neighbors in the vicinity of the Washington school have offered to contribute towards a flag for that building, and the Rev. J. L. Hurlbut has been authorized by the Board of Education to add to such amount whatever he thinks right to complete the balance.

Mr. A. W. Rand, Regent of the Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, writes to THE PRESS: "Is it not time to stir up the people of Plainfield to do something as a body for Johnstown?". The letter from Mr. John W. Murray, published in the Council proceedings elsewhere, has brought about such action.

The new design of the diplomas for the graduates of the High School and the Training School departments, has been received and accepted. It is the work of Mr. W. M. Smith, a past-graduate, whose talents in the way of designing and engrossing, THE PRESS has already spoken of. Nothing more need be said in assurance of the delicacy and dignity of it as a whole.

Music Hall Disgraced.

It may be readily imagined that the majority of the audience at Music Hall, last evening, was the very toughest class of citizens, as the advertisement of the affair was admitted exclusively to the columns of the news. Its readers were out in large numbers, filling the air with the aroma of stale tobacco and bad whiskey some of which was passed around the parquette and dress circle in commodious bottles.

The "entertainment" that occupied the boards the Y. M. C. A. lecturers were wont to trod, and which S. G. graduates will anon sweep with their trains of white illusion, consisted of fake sparring in which "de champion, 55-years-old man, Happy Jack Flynn," and others took part and such athletic sports as a wrestling match between a young man and a cracked tenor voice.

It was a disgraceful affair for a city like Plainfield, and one that only the news would advertise. The Hall was rented under a misconception.

For the Johnstown Sufferers.

Among the many contributions that THE PRESS has been offered today for the Johnstown sufferers, are the following by mail:

W. J. Davis, New Market	$1.00
J. Maier, Park Hotel, Dunellen	1.00
Mrs. C. Kaerth	1.00
Carl Kaerth	2.00
	$5.00

This amount will be handed to Councilman J. K. Myers, who has already received some $250 for the same purpose, and through whom future contributions may be made as is also stated in the Mayor's proclamation elsewhere.

North Plainfield Township Committee Meeting.

A regular meeting of the above named Committee was held in Spencer's Hall, last evening, with Chairman Coddington in the chair. All the members were present. About the only business transacted was the appropriation of small amounts to the several road districts, for work on the roads.

GENTLEMEN OF THE COUNCIL, GO SLOW!

The People's Money Must Not be Extorted.

The Council has no right to use the peoples money to protect themselves from the possible and probable personal attacks of the Plainfield evening news.

THE PRESS can mention a score of merchants in the city who unblushingly state that they have been forced to put an advertisement in the news to protect themselves from villification and slander in its columns. They say they "would rather pay a few dollars a year than be a victim sooner or later of the paper's defamation."

But these merchant's pay this hush money from their own pockets, whereas the Council are custodians of the funds of the people, and have no right to vote it away in payment of a bill for unauthorized advertising claimed by the news.

And not only was the advertising unauthorized—and, in fact, published in defiance of the emphatic orders of the City Clerk—but it was not even published in compliance with the law. Whoever made the affadavit that it was properly published, perjured himself.

It is almost time the news was compelled to halt in its continued scheme of extorting money from the public. Some time ago through Councilman Bowers, the news succeeded in getting a false claim paid with the people's money; and now again, although the City Clerk explicitly refused to give the news the advertising and warned it that he would not approve any bill for the same, it bases its hopes on the personal fears of the Councilmen and expects again to force a payment.

A Just and Proper Increase.

At the Board of Education meeting, last evening, all were present—Messrs Jacob Kirkner, Lewis F. Wadsworth, John W. Murray, George H. Babcock, J. L. Hurlbut and Miss Bulkley.

The Committee on Teachers—President Kirkner, Dr. Hurlbut and Miss Bulkley—recommended the reappointment for the coming year, of all the teachers, with an increase of salary for each ranging from $25 a year upwards. The total amount of the increase was about $1,600, and was made, the Committee stated, because they were informed that the law required them to devote the additional one dollar per scholar allowed by the State, to the teachers' salaries.

Mr. Babcock said that he was creditably informed that there was no such requirement in any law, and the North Plainfield authorities did not intend to increase the salaries of their public school teachers. He, however, thought that the teachers deserved every cent they could afford to give them.

In this the entire Board agreed, and the Committee's recommendation was unanimously adopted.

Brothers in Chancery.

Vice-Chancellor Bird heard argument in the Vice-Chancellor's Chambers at Newark, yesterday, in the partition suit of Isaac R. Collins of Westfield, against his brother John Collins, a builder, at Springfield. The suit was brought to have the Court order a partition of lands in Westfield and Plainfield. It appears that prior to the death of Noah Collins, the father of Isaac and John, he deeded to the latter all his property, and he has had the collection of the rents since November, 1881. A short time ago Isaac applied to the Chancellor to have this deed set aside, and the Chancellor decided in his favor. John then appealed to the Court of Errors and Appeals, but the appeal has not yet been argued before that tribunal. In the meantime, Isaac began the suit which was heard yesterday, asking that an order be made to divide up the lands in question, and that his brother be required to account for the rents he has collected. After hearing the argument the Vice-Chancellor decided that John need not account to Isaac for the rents, but he ordered that the lands should be divided.

Every Comrade Fall in for Roll Call.

The annual reunion of the survivors of the 11th Regiment, N. J. Vols., will be held at Belvidere, N. J., Tuesday, June 18. It is earnestly requested that every surviving member of this regiment will assemble at the home of their old commander and patriot, Gen. Robert McAllister, as a testimony of the appreciation and love we still bear for him in these his declining years.

Generals Sickles and Carr have been invited and will no doubt be present on this occasion. The final report on regimental history will be made, and it is important that every member should be present. The good citizens of Belvidere have made all arrangements to give the old veterans a hearty welcome and a bountiful supply of "hardtack."

New Market Notes.

Mr. A. S. Coriell has made a division in his store fitting up the South side for the post office, in which he has placed a new cabinet and other conveniences for the pulic.

The Lehigh Valley R. R., have put on another local leaving here for New York at 12:57 P. M., returning at 4:20 P. M. It is reported that still another train is to be added to leave here between 2 and 3 P. M., and arrive from New York about 9 P. M. With these extra facilities New Market ought to show signs of growth.

—Dr. A. M. Dam, 405 Columbus ave., Boston, Mass., would be pleased to answer any correspondence from parties using or intending to use his remedy.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

W. J. MAGIE,
Judge.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

The Water Works Question to be Considered at a Subsequent Meeting—An Ordinance Introduced and Adopted on its Second Reading Requiring "Certain" Property Owners to Curb in Front of Their Premises—Judge Suydam Resigns and Mr. Wm. M. Stillman Elected in His Place—A Public Meeting to be Called to Aid the Johnstown Sufferers.

The City Council met in regular session at 8:30 o'clock last evening, with President Dumont in the chair. The other members present were: Messrs. Dunham, Jenkins, Marsh, Moffett, Myers, Newhall—7. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved, after slight alterations were made.

Petitions and communications were received as follows: From Chas. H. Hand, submitting plans for new building, on West Second street, and agreeing to fit up Council chamber, furnish and heat the same with steam for $100 a month. Referred to Finance Committee.

For stone crosswalk at Ninth street and Broadway; also at Ninth street and Third place. Referred to Street Committee.

From property owners on Elm place, asking to have a top dressing of stone spread on that thoroughfare. To Street Committee.

From Messrs. E. Woltman and G. F. Fuller, asking for water works franchise. Referred to Water Committee.

From E. C. Mulford and others asking Council for improvements of a general character, such as water works, sewerage and street railway. Referred to Water Committee.

From Mr. Leo Daft, a communication explaining the delay in exhibiting his electric railway in this city, said delay being caused by the manufacturer of the car. Mr. Daft promised to exhibit his system here, early in June. The matter was referred to the Street Committee.

Sundry applications, for hack, peddlers and cartmen's licenses, were received, referred and subsequently granted.

The following open communication was received from Mr. John W. Murray, which was referred to the Finance Committee:

To the Honorable, the Common Council, Plainfield, New Jersey:

GENTS:—Our citizens have been for the past few days horrified by the reports that have reached us from an adjoining State of loss of life and property by flood and fire, and of suffering by famine and want entailed upon the survivors. This terrible disaster calls for our promptest action and seems to be given us by the Almighty as a test of our charity. With the fullest enjoyment of all that makes life pleasant, no community ought to be more ready than the citizens of Plainfield to urge forward and extend a helping hand to the unfortunate. I would suggest you appoint a committee to issue a call for subscriptions, or call a meeting of citizens, as your body decide. Meeting could be held in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A.

Respectfully,
JOHN W. MURRAY.

Claims were presented and referred as follows, including over $300 in poor bills:

M. Powers, $24.84; Electric Light Co., $673.41; Geo. M. Angleman, $90 and $115.50; John H. Angleman, $17.25; M. Welch, $23; Thos. Melville, $9.75; L. H. Biglow & Co., $16.80; J. Hefferman, $12; Jas. Motley, $7.50; Jno. Kane, $10.50; Jno. Dunn, $30; Jno. Adams, $9; W. C. Smith, Treas. Winfield Scott Post, $50; Jno. Johnson, $125; S. Edsall, $21.93; O. B. Leonard, $63,75.

Fire Dept.—T. O. Doane, $43.86; Wm. Grattan, $5; Jos. Cooney, $28.33; Gas Co., $8.55; Engine Co., No. 2, $25; Geo. Conover, $41.66; Marsh & Ayers, $12.62; Wm. Hickey, $5; Jno. Albert, $6.

The Clerk reported on an old claim of T. W. Morrison for advertising which was ordered paid at the last meeting as soon as proof of publication was furnished. The Clerk stated that all but two of the advertisements had been inserted in the news twice in one week, which is contrary to the law. The matter was referred to the Corporation Counsel, he to repor whether or not the advertising was legal.

The monthly statements of the Treasurer and Collector were received, and referred to the Finance Committee. The Collector reported that $618.68 in taxes had been Collected during May.

The quarterly report of the Overseer of the Poor was submitted in detail; it showed a total of 48 families who are receiving aid from the city; $221.75 was expended for provisions during the quarter; the report urged the necessity of providing shelter for the poor. The document was filed.

Chief Doane, representing the Board of Fire Engineers, reported with approval a list of the newly elected Fire Department officers. They were confirmed. He also reported progress on the work in No. 2 Engine house, and recommended painting the wheels on the Truck at a cost not exceeding $25, and the floor in the Truck house, at a cost not to exceed $60. The department apparatus, wells, etc,, he reported in good condition, and asked for instructions concerning protection from fire on the Fourth of July. At a later period in the proceedings, the Board of Engineers was authorized to make the same arrangements as last year.

The report of the Directors of the Public Library and Reading Room for the year ending June 1, 1889, was read and filed. It showed these figures: Balance to credit of general fund at last report, $896.87; received from taxes, $2,250.23. Total disbursements for year, including salaries of Librarian and Janitor, $2,318.45; balance on hand, $928.65. Special fund, total receipts including a balance, receipts from lecture, fines, dues, etc., $1,176,34; disbursements, $219.27; balance on hand May 31, 1889, $957.07. The library contains 7,903 volumes of which 552 have been added by purchase and 273 by gift during the year. There are 1467 card holders, and the total number of visitors to the building during the year was 27,084. Mayor Male nominated the following Library Directors to succeed themselves: For two years—Messrs J. E. Tracy, M. W. Tyler and H. P. Talmage. For three years—Messrs A. C. Baldwin, J. W. Yates and Wm. M. Stillman. The nominations were confirmed.

The Mayor also nominated Robert Walker and Vincent W. Nash as special policeman; also John R. Naylor as pound master, all of whom were confirmed. Hereafter the dog pound will be located at No. 15 Lake street.

City Judge Geo. P. Suydam sent in his resignation, to take effect immediately. His resignation was subsequently accepted and Mr. Wm. M. Stillman was elected in his place.

The Finance Committee reported on the claims of the Electric Light Co., and that of the Grand Army Post. They were sent to the Auditing Committee. Finance Committee was authorized to call a public meeting if in their judgment it was deemed advisable, in response to the above request of Mr. J. W. Murray.

The Fire and Building Committee, reported its disapproval of the claim of Mr Johnson in part payment for the work now in progress in No. 2 Engine house. The report was received and filed.

Mr. Newhall, from the Water Committee, stated that said Committee deferred reporting on the matter of water works this evening, but hoped to be able to do so at the next regular or special meeting of the Council.

NEW BUSINESS.

Mr. Marsh introduced an ordinance amending the ordinance providing for the construction, maintenance and repair of sidewalks. It was adopted on its second reading, and ordered engrossed and advertised. The ordinance provides that all the sidewalks included in that territory bounded by Front street, Central avenue, Seventh street, and Broadway to Front street, shall be curbed with blue stone, four inches thick and 16 inches deep, at the expense of the land owners.

The same Councilman introduced another ordinance relating to the construction of vaults and cisterns in the streets in the city. Read twice, adopted, and and ordered engrossed and advertised.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

Under this caption the ordinance dividing the Fourth ward into two polling districts, and the street sprinkling ordinance were called up and adopted on the third reading.

At the request of Mr. Marsh the vote by which the ordinance relating to the erection of buildings was defeated at the last meeting, was reconsidered, and the ordinance was laid on the table.

A motion by Mr. Marsh to appropriate $250 for street repairs, prevailed, and the Mayor and Treasurer were authorized to execute three-months notes as follows, in anticipation of taxes: One for $3,000 to be placed to the credit of the general fund, another for $500 for Fire Department purposes, and one for $500 to be placed to the credit of the poor fund.

Upon resolution adopted Justice V. W. Nash was authorized to receive and execute all warrants for the collection of delinquent taxes, his compensation to be as follows: For taxes previous to 1887, ten per cent., for 1887 taxes five per cent., and for 1888 taxes three per cent. He was required to file a bond in the sum of $1,000.

The rules were suspended so as to allow one member of Auditing Committee to report on the claims sent in during the evening. The report was adopted and warrants were ordered drawn for the payment of the bills.

Council adjourned to meet in regular session on Monday evening, the 10th inst.

And Marie Jansen Sings "Counts Me Out."

There is no doubt about the complete success of Francis Wilson and "The Oolah." The comedian and his new opera have been endorsed by the public, and for the first time since its opening, the beautiful big Broadway Theatre in New York has been found too small to hold the crowds that have gone to see their favorite merry-maker. Wilson is now singing a new topical song entitled "Nobody Knows" that has become immensely popular, and pretty Marie Jansen also has a delightful new number, called "Count me Out." There are also a number of other new features in "The Oolah" which have caught the fancy of the Metropolis, and the opera has settled down for its long and prosperous Summer run.

A game of ball was played recently between the Stony Hill and the Gillet clubs, resulting in favor of the latter by a score of 18 to 3. Fault was found with the umpire for his decisions, which were in favor of the Gillets. The scorer, too, came in for his share of just censure.

The roads through the Valley are being turnpiked preparatory to receiving a top dressing of fine stone, which will make some of the finest drives to be found anywhere through the glen or valley, the unsurpassed beauty of which, with its natural scenery, will prove an incentive for the building of fine residences.

Free Transportation for Your Contributions.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The recent disaster at Johnstown, Pa., has resulted in tremendous loss of life and property and in consequence many are left homeless and destitute. General Supt. C. E. Topping of this company has directed me to receive and forward all matter, freight or money destined to the relief of the Johnstown sufferers, free of charge. Our drivers will pick up any such matter promptly. Any one who may take advantage of this opportunity is assured that their donations will be distributed to the best advantage.

Yours truly,
A. E KENNEY,

The Committees of Award.

The following are the Committees of Award appointed for the public school prizes that are contested for each year and presented at the annual commencement exercises.

English composition, offered by Mr. Jacob Kirkner: the Rev. J. P. Taylor, Samuel D. Huntington and H.P. Talmage

The Dr. C. H. Stillman prize in Mathematics, offered by Mrs. C. H. Stillman: William M. Stillman.

Mr. Conger's Condition.

The condition of Mr. Wm. A. Conger, who received serious injury by being thrown from a horse on Park avenue, yesterday morning, is today slightly improved. He passed a restless night, and complains of severe pains in the head. Dr. Probasco the attending physician has not yet pronounced the patient out of danger, and states that several day's time will probably be required to determine the extent of the injuries.

The Ceiling Fell.

Just after Postmaster Force left the desk in his private office at noon today, about six feet of the ceiling fell with a crash. The heavy chuncks of mortar, nearly a foot square and fully an inch thick, fell directly on the desk and in the chair, which the Postmaster had vacated but a few minutes before.

—Assemblyman Ulrich yesterday filed papers incorporating the Exempt Firemen's Association of this city, under the general law.

IS YOUR BAKING POWDER PURE?

Do its Manufacturers Publish all the Ingredients Used?

IS IT FREE FROM AMMONIA?

As is well known, ammonia is unhealthful in food, and dries up the bread material.

Protection to consumers of food compounds lies in their ability to choose those made from healthful substances. Unless manufacturers publish just what their baking powder is made of, do not use their goods, but buy instead

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER.

This powder is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, and strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, with a little wheat flour to preserve it. This is attested by the official analyses of Government and State chemists, and physicians, and chemists of Boards of Health throughout the country.

A NAMELESS PAUL REVERE.

The Hero Who Rode Through Johnstown Giving the Warning Cry Perished.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—A nameless Paul Revere lies somewhere among the nameless dead. Who he is may never be known, but his ride will be famous in local history. Mounted on a big bay horse, he came riding down the pike which passes through Conemaugh to Johnstown, just before the deluge shouting his portentious warning: "Run for your lives to the hills! Run to the hills!"

The people crowded out of their houses along the thickly settled streets awe struck and wondering. Nobody knew the man, and some thought he was a maniac and laughed. On at a quick pace he rode and shrilly rang out his awful cry.

In a few moments, however, there came a cloud of ruin down the broad streets, down the narrow alleys, grinding, twisting, hurling, overturning, crashing, annihilating the weak and the strong. It was the charge of the flood wearing its coronet of ruin and devastation, which grew at every instant of its progress. Forty feet high, some say—thirty, according to others—was this sea, and it travelled with a deadly swiftness. On and on raced the rider, and on and on rushed the wave. Dozens of people took heed of the warning and ran up the hill.

Poor, faithful rider; it was an unequal contest. Just as he turned across the railroad bridge the mighty wave fell upon him, and both horse, rider and bridge all went into chaos together.

THE FORCE OF THE FLOOD.

Engines Carried Off as if They Were Chips of Wood.

CONEMAUGH, Pa., June 4.—To give some idea of the destructive power with which the volume of water from the lake struck East Conemaugh, it is only necessary to state that it took the round-house with twenty-seven engines in it, two hundred freight cars and about twenty passenger cars, including four Pullman cars. One train of passenger cars on the track was full of passengers. The conductor and engineer ran along the train warning the passengers to flee for their lives. Some started and a portion remained and went down. How many perished is not known. The track, depot, freight house and coal shells are entirely washed away. The mail matter on the east-bound train held there was saved in a miraculous way by two or three engines washing against the train and making a breaker that divided the water which did not close until the car was passed. The mail was not even wet.

Ghastly Find in a Corn Patch.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—A corn patch of about an acre in extent at Nineveh, was dug over by a volunteer force and 138 corpses uncovered. The manner in which the ghastly find was made was purely accidental. A man walking over the field kicked at a clump of garland, overturned it, uncovered a woman's face. This indicated a rich find and the people around were called in to assist with the results above stated. This increases the list of dead in Nineveh to 230. The new dead were found under about four feet of alluvial deposit.

Kept Ignorant of the Calamity.

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 4.—Attending school at Seton Hill seminary, in this city, are a number of young ladies from Johnstown, who, as yet, are not aware of the terrible calamity which befell the city and some of whom, doubtless, have lost their near and dear friends. The Sisters of Mercy, in whose care they are, have refused to allow any papers to be brought to the Seminary until the worst has been learned, when they will be made acquainted with the terrible catastrophe which has befallen their city.

Williamsport in Sore Need.

The city of Williamsport has been sorely stricken by the most severe flood ever known in the State of Pennsylvania. All have suffered great loss. Large numbers of our citizens are wholly destitute and suffering for the necessaries of life. Those of our people able so to do, are giving what they can, but are unable to furnish the relief needed. We appeal to a generous public in the name of God to help us. Let everything be sent to the Mayor of Williamsport.

To Count the Lost.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—Just one month ago the work of taking a census of the city for a new directory was completed and showed exactly 29,400 people claiming residence in Johnstown. The book is now in the printers' hands at Altoona. An effort will be made to secure a copy of the directory, make a new canvass of the city and in this manner ascertain to a reasonable degree of certainty the number that met death in this terrible disaster.

Twelve Mean Swindlers Arrested.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—A boarding-house crowd of twelve men were arrested in a body down at Morrelville yesterday. They had been going to the Relief committee and each representing himself as the head of a family, and drawing supplies. With these they had opened an impromptu grocery and clothing store and were doing a thriving business.

To Clear Away the Debris.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 4.—The Relief committee has placed the work of clearing away the debris at Johnstown in the hands of John Flynn, of the large contracting firm of Flynn & Booth and Captain W. P. Jones, of the Edgar Thomson Steel works. One thousand or more men will be sent to the scene at once and the work pushed with vigor.

Big Loss in Ohio.

BELLAIRE, O., June 4.—The people of Belmont county will suffer loss by the flood of $30,000. Five hundred acres of land with crops on are drowned out by back water. The river is thirty-five feet deep and rising; forty feet expected. Eight hundred people held a meeting here and gave liberally to the sufferers at Johnstown. No bodies found.

Getting Into Running Order.

RICHMOND, Va., June 4.—Matters are beginning to assume their usual shape. Trains are endeavoring to run, but the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac will not be able to send out a train for some days. No Northern mail has been received here since Friday. Communication with Petersburg is still cut off.

Thousands of Coffins Needed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 4.—There have been been between 4,000 and 5,000 coffins sent or ordered to be sent from Pittsburg. The Relief committee has received a telegram from the New York and Brooklyn Casket company offering two carloads of caskets and all the help necessary to handle them.

SOME REMARKABLE ESCAPES.

People Whose Lives Were Saved by the Merest Chance.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—There were some remarkable escapes. Mrs. John Gies was standing on Main street when the flood struck the houses and a portion of a brick house fell on her. She was rescued through one of the windows. Nannie Greenwood was in her house talking to her sister when the building was struck and her father, mother and two sisters were drowned, while she was caught in an eddy and was whirled around into safety. Mrs. Dr. John K. Lea, whose husband is lost, hung by her arms suspended for four hours in the water, supporting at the same time her aged mother, until both were rescued. The most pathetic case yet brought to light is that of James Elgin. He had come to Johnstown to attend the wedding of his sister, Ellen, which was to have taken place last night. He knew of the fact that a terrible disaster had taken place, but had no idea that his family was involved. His agony may be imagined rather than described when learning on his arrival that his mother and three sisters had been drowned and his father demented over the terrible afflictions. The old gentleman was crying like a child and asking those he met: "Did you see them? Did you see them go down? They will come back for the wedding to-night. She is gone for her bridal wreath." Dr. H. Phillips, of Pittsburg, was visiting his mother and there were five people in the house beside himself when the flood came. Dr. Phillips was the only person who escaped death and he was only rescued after being in the water for seventeen hours.

The Hungarians Were Routed.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—Sheriff Dick and a posse of his men got into a riot with a gang of Hungarians at Cambria City. The Hungarians got the best of him and he called on a squad of Battery B boys who charged with drawn sabres and soon had the crowd on the run.

The Chesapeake Full of Logs.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 4.—The Chesapeake is full of logs coming from the Susquehanna river. From shore to shore the surface is running thick with the timber. They may prove very dangerous obstructions to vessels navigating the bay at night.

No Indemnity Bond Filed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 4.—The Secretary of the South Fork Fishing club states that the club has not filed an indemnity bond and that no complaints have ever been made about the safety of the dam by any of the Johnstown citizens.

Frank Hatton Is Safe.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 4.—Ex-Postmaster General Hatton is safe at Edensburg. William Henry Smith, General Manager of the Associated Press, says they were on the same train and escaped together.

No Troops Needed.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 4.—Adjutant General Hastings telegraphs that troops will not be needed at Johnstown as the disorder there is not as great as indicated by the early reports.

Renovo Loses $250,000.

RENOVO, Pa. June 4.—The town by Friday night's flood suffered a loss estimated at $250,000 and the whole country round was flooded completely.

HELP FOR THE SUFFERERS.

Philadelphia Starts With a Big Subscription—Aid from Other Cities.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—In pursuance of the call issued by the Citizens' Permanent Relief association the private office of Mayor Fitler yesterday, was besieged by benevolent gentlemen, who contributed generously in behalf of the Johnstown sufferers. Never was so much money received in so short a time as that handed in in checks, drafts and cash to his Honor, and he announced to those present that the total amount amounted to $138,632.93. This is exclusive of the funds collected and donated by the Pennsylvania railroad and Cambria Iron company. The various exchanges held meetings in the afternoon to take action on the Johnstown calamity. The churches in portions of the city are to remain open for three days to receive donations of clothing, bedding, etc., and all the banks in the city are to receive contributions of money.

Generous New York to the Front.

NEW YORK, June 4.—About 200 leading citizens met at the City Hall yesterday and formed a Johnstown relief committee, with Mayor Grant as chairman. This committee appointed an executive committee headed by General Sherman. An address to the citizens was drawn up and adopted and about $60,000 subscribed on the spot. The Stock Exchange raised $15,000, the Produce Exchange $10,000, and the Mail and Express $7,500 in a short time yesterday. These amounts will be largely increased. The other exchanges are also raising large sums. Many theatres are arranging benefit performances. The police and fire departments have authorized firemen and policemen to circulate subscription lists. The newspapers have all opened funds.

London Is Ready to Help.

LONDON, June 4.—The Americans at present sojourning in London as well as those permanently residing here have already begun organized efforts to collect funds for the sufferers by the Pennsylvania floods. The sympathies of Englishmen, are, also deeply enlisted and nothing is needed but an accurate and reliable statement from America of what funds are required, to ensure the collection of very large sums for the relief of the sufferers. When this information is supplied, every city, village and hamlet in the United Kingdom will respond generously and promptly.

Money and Clothing from Camden.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 4.—In response to a call by Mayor Pratt about one hundred representative business men met in the City Hall yesterday, for the purpose of raising funds for the relief of the Johnstown sufferers. The Mayor presided and stated the object of the meeting. About $1,000 was raised besides a large amount of clothing.

WOMAN IN FRANCE.

A Glance at a Parisian Family and Family Matters, Together with a Comparison with American Usages—Man and Wife in Business.

"The woman in France she carry the purse. This make her economical. The husband he give his whole time to manage the business, and he not have to worry about the little things. The wife, she know that all the success depend on saving the little things, so she keep close watch on every thing in the store, the work room, the kitchen. She do not work with her own hands, she hire, but she see that the work is done without waste. She not get tired with work, so she able to think all the time. Her see the competition of business, so she know how hard it is to make money, and she very careful how she spend it.

"The American woman she know nothing of the trouble of business; the man he carry all the load. She ask for money, she not like it if she not have it, and he give it her, and he go up. Then they all come down together—father, mother, children. He not ask them to help, he go to work again. Yes, the American woman not knowing trouble of making money, she shovel it out." The gesture here was inimitable, says the New York World reporter who conducted the interview. Forming a scoop or shovel with her hands, she went through the motion of shoveling with a graceful swaying of the body from side to side.

"No, the French way best way for all—man, wife and children.

"The French children expect to help the father. They sent to best school, what give solid learning, that the father can pay for. At fifteen they must graduate. The French child not graduate at fifteen, no good for school any more; must do something else. The father, the mother sorry, but they can not help it. School cost money and can not be wasted. The child go work for the father, boy or girl, no matter. There they treated like stranger. Have wages just the same, and must do the work as well. No favors. Keep same hours. If they not do work as well as stranger, then they must do work lower down, they must learn of stranger how to do that work. They feel ashamed not able to do better for own father and mother as a stranger do. They soon learn, or another place found for them. No wasted time; they must earn money and be ready to care for themselves.

"When they learn business they given charge of some part, so the father and mother have more time to enlarge their business, and the child have a place to build for himself or the girl just the same. It is all for the family, and they grow together. What is it in this land? The father work outside, and grow old young; the mother work and worry for more money to spend for show and she grow old inside; the children all this time sit and clean their nails." The scorn, the contempt, expressed at this point as the woman, with blazing cheeks and flashing eyes, used in imagination a nail-cleaner, would have made a triumph on the stage.

"I—is wrong, all wrong," she went on presently. "The French man and woman, by bringing their children into their business are able to save money for them. No girl marry in France without a dot. She have something which is her own. She not dependent on her husband, and he know it. The money all go for his business, but she go into the business and have her share, she know where money come from, she know where it go to, and she great help to her husband, 'less she foolish woman; they are in every country."

"But there are many kinds of business in which a wife or daughters can bear no part," was said timidly in the presence of this earnestness.

"It is a strange kind when the wife or daughters could not keep books or be cashiers, or look out for the clerks. She can find her place if she want to do it. She have foolish pride in this country, and when the husband or father die the mothers and daughters like babies, and strangers come in and take the business out of their hands; sometimes the business have good foundation, and another man make fortune, while wife and children work for wages.

"In France a woman know the business and she carry it on. You been in Paris? You know ——,——," mentioning a confectioner of world-wide reputation. "His wife is his head clerk. She my most intimate friend. I know her. We go together to big dinner in Paris. She carry in her hand a box of bon-bons to the carriage. I say what for? We promised to have it at ——,——," mentioning a hotel connected with an American name famous for great possessions. "At seven o'clock I find it forgotten and too late unless I deliver it, and she in her carriage go to the hotel and her man take it in. Would a clerk be so careful? No.

"The American man and his family be happier when they work together. And the women worth more as she have something to do. Only one thing I like better here; the woman she able, no matter how pretty, to go about without anybody to care for her. The American man respect the women and care for them like his own."

BIG PORK-PICKLE BASIN.

The Salted Sea and the Regular Tides a Puzzler for Missourians.

Morris H. Frost, who was collector of customs at Port Townsend in 1859, used to tell this anecdote about himself: He was raised in the northern part of New York State, and came to Oregon across the plains. He knew what table salt was and coarse salt for pickling beef and pork. He also knew about epsom salts and glauber salts, such as are given to sailors on long voyages, but had never seen the deep bosom of the briny deep; he had never seen the ocean. After residing awhile in Oregon, he came over to the sound and was riding on horseback from the Cowlitz landing to Fort Steilacoom. The weather was warm, the road dusty and his horse very thirsty. At last through the dense forest he discovered the glimmer of water, and, thinking it a lake, he drove his horse in to drink. The animal, in his raging thirst, plunged his head in up to his eyes, then drew it up suddenly, snorting and blowing. The Colonel got off and, taking some of the water in his hand, tasted it, and exclaimed: "Pork pickle, by thunder!" A man coming along the trail at the time explained that it was the salt water of Puget Sound, and showed the Colonel a brook near by where the horse quenched his thirst.

The Colonel, when relating this to a reporter of the Port Townsend Argus, said that he was not as green as a friend of his from Pike County, Mo., who went to Olympia for a few days. He noticed the tides, but he didn't know what to make of them. He told Colonel Frost that this was the strangest country he ever saw, for there were two freshets every twenty-four hours, and nary a drop of rain. "The fact was," said the Colonel, "he and I had our hair full of hay-seed, but I have got the hay-seed out of my hair by wrapping some kelp leaves round my head, and now I am as salt as any one."

MRS. ASTOR AT HOME.

The Small but Sumptuous Apartment in Which She Receives Her Friends.

Mrs. William B. Astor's reception-room is a snug, small, sumptuous apartment that looks out on Fifth avenue through a single window, cased in ebony wood and smothered in hangings of turquoise blue silk and indigo-tinted lace. The walls, says Clara Belle, in the Philadelphia Press, are hung in turquoise silk, with a decorative dado and a canvas-painted ceiling, and the ebony finish of the wood-work is as beautifully polished as a piece of onyx. In the center of the parquetry floor is an odd design of small Persian rugs, inlaid as it were in a field of garnet terry. Precious rugs drape the small divans, and superb specimens of needle paintings are shown in the chair coverings. The most attractive article of furniture is a small upright piano of light mahogany, beautifully embellished with panels of carved silver, symbolic of music and song.

Figures of cupids and busts of children fill the corners of the room with beauty, and as the visitor enters she passes under the glossy green branches of a small palm tree that stands on a pedestal of polished green marble. All the ornaments are of Dresden china, and the fantastic beauty and grace of the figures, the variety of design and brilliancy of color produce an effect both novel and agreeable. On the walls hang brackets, baskets and pockets of flowery porcelain, and about the metal cabinet, along the edges of small stands and fairly crowding the piano shelf are shepherds and shepherdesses, troubadours, peasant girls and court figures, no two alike, and each outrivaling the other in gayety and color. Another feature of this room is the splendid array of artificial flowers, a variety of decoration, by the way, that Mrs. Astor is very fond of.

Violets, lilies, lilacs, feverfews, hyacinths, buttercups and a little wilderness of field flowers are knotted together in clustering bouquets and freight the wheelbarrows, vases and jardinieres of Dresden china, while in the slender forms of crystal and jeweled ware are roses, asters, japonicas and magnolias of such a remarkable composition as to challenge detection in a flower show without the assistance of touch or smell. The linen blossoms were brought from France last summer, and the sum paid for them would have procured a very nice supply of cut flowers for an entire season. All the hangings about the room are made of rich, blue silk canvas, handsomely worked in silver threads. The family crest, done on a field of scarlet and white in silk, silver and gold, and mounted in banner form, is the glory of an east corner.

Mrs. W. W. Astor's callers are directed to a little Pompeiian room, finished in black wood and richly hung with crimson, the silk twill covering not only the walls and window, but paneling the doors and draping furniture, table and mantel-shelf. The color is that warm blood-red that makes a plain face pretty and a pretty face glorious. By means of a large and beautifully embroidered screen the room can be provided with a snuggery, and it is here that the lovely young mistress sees an intimate friend who has only a moment to stop and a word to say. The fire-place has a delightful profusion of brasses, and among the furniture is a little tete-a-tete table spread with a dainty china service, where the refreshing cup of vanilla cocoa or sweet chocolate is brewed with jeweled fingers and discussed with fragments of Four Hundred reputation.

GRINS FOR GROCERS.

Reflections and Speculations Dedicated to Lugubrious Cheese-Mongers.

No matter who thinks to the contrary, the grocer, writes Frank B. Welch in the National Grocer, always thinks he has the right of weigh.

Advice to provision dealers: When goods are going down, keep it dark. When goods are going up, make your mark.

Some men are so small that they run a weekly bill at their grocer's in order to obtain a roll of cabbage leaves (by courtesy a cigar) when they settle up on Saturday night.

A grocer in the city who does a business of thirty dollars a week is a storekeeper. In the country on a like amount he becomes a leading merchant.

When a man runs an account with his grocer, he becomes an object of much attention. If he fungles up the cash for every thing he buys, he is regarded as one who does not need watching.

Grocery-men have a hard row to hoe in this world. If they succeed in business folks say they sand their sugar, water their vinegar, and otherwise rob their customers. If they fail they are stigmatized as fools. In either case they are never called honest.

To nobody is there more force in the expression, "eggs is eggs," than to the grocer when the succulent fruit of the hen is selling first-hand at about two cents apiece, and nine out of every dozen he sells and warrants to be fresh are returned to him for post-mortem examination.

People in the grocery business should be skilled in the arts of the clairvoyant. Then when a customer forgets about half of the things he was going to purchase, all they will have to do will be to go into a trance and, lo! the whole list is before them as plain as the print of the store-boy's teeth in a hunk of cheese.

A conscientious grocer will always remove any dirt or extraneous substance from his goods when he sees them. But it does not follow that he shall subject his goods to rigorous scrutiny in order to maintain his conscientiousness. If flies will persist in dying in the dried currants, it is no reflection upon him.

Snores Like a Sea-Lion.

A correspondent of the Lancet makes a humiliating appeal to the medical profession to tell him what he is to do with a lady patient on whom he has been bestowing fruitless care and attention for the last twenty years. This lady is an inveterate and incorrigible snorer. Her husband has confided to the medical man that the snoring is "much worse lately," and that, whereas his helpmeet was wont to let him off with only three or four hours of torture, she now "snores all night, and can be heard all over the house." Moreover, she frequently wakes herself with the noise five or six times in one night, and it is rare that her husband can get to sleep till three or four o'clock. Whether she lies high or low makes no difference—she can sleep and snore at any time in a few minutes, and to aggravate the case she has lately taken to yawning a great deal.

The Wastes of Cooking.

America wastes enough yearly to feed the thousands who are now said to be out of employment. The time may yet come when it shall be considered practical somewhere in the course of the education which a State gives to the people to teach girls how to extract the greatest amount of nutriment from the common material of food, and a careful statistician justly remarks that "whoever can teach the masses of the people how to get five cents' worth a day more comfort or force out of the food which each one consumes, will add to their productive power what would be equal to one thousand million dollars a year in value."

Baltimore Is Tardy.

BALTIMORE, Md., JUNE 4.—As yet no organized effort has been made for the raising of money for the relief of Johnstown, but the casual subscriptions for that purpose to-day amounted to over $3,000. Mayor Latrobe will call a meeting of citizens some evening during the present week for the purpose of mapping out a plan for the receipt of subscriptions.

New Brunswick Starts a Fund.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 4.—Mayor Van Cleef called a meeting of citizens last night at which $500 was subscribed and a committee appointed to raise funds for the Johnstown sufferers. The masons and other bodies are co-operating.

BURYING THE DEAD

The Chief Occupation of Johnstown's Survivors.

GRAVE-DIGGERS AND COFFINS

Hundreds of the Victims May Never Be Identified.

DYNAMITE DOESN'T DO ITS WORK.

Hundreds Digging Graves and Burying Their Wives and Children—The Heroism of Women—Poor Workmen Who Developed into Veritable Leaders—Ten Thousand Laborers at Work on the Wreckage.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—The day in Johnstown has brought little change in the situation. The chief labor of the living is still the burying of the dead. Their sole dependence for support is upon the charity of the country, a charity, be it said, that is proving as the occasion is pressing. The immediate daily necessities of the suffering people are being met by the train loads of provisions and clothing that come in from all directions. The money available is being used to employ the idle in clearing away the debris, exhuming the dead from their hiding places, and generally in making Johnstown, to an extent, an inhabitable place once more for those of its people who have further need of homes above ground. What has been done and can be done with the money already in hand is a trifling beginning, but already the place shows the effects of the work of the gangs of laborers who have been set to pulling down damaged buildings, removing and burning the bodies of animals and other offensive debris, and doing whatever else seemed most immediately necessary for the health and well being of the place.

Dynamite has added its horror to the sixty-acre mass of wrecked buildings, railroads, streets, and human beings that lie above the railroad bridge. A half dozen times yesterday afternoon the heavy thunder of the huge cartridges was heard for miles around, and fragments of the debris flew high in the air, while at a distance the crowd looked on in dreadful sorrow at the thought of the additional mangling that the remains of the hundreds of bodies still buried in the mass were bound to undergo. There was little complaint, however, even on the part of those who have relatives or friends buried there, for the work of the past few days has shown how futile was the idea that anything but an explosive could effectually break up and remove the compact mass. All that hundreds of men have been able to do has amounted to nothing more than a little picking around the edges. Even the dynamite is doing the work slowly. The surface of the mass about where it was used is upheaved and washed out a bit, but the actual progress is, so far as can be seen, very small. It will be a week before the gorge can be opened even now. Meantime a proposition is being discussed not to open it at all, but to bury it deep, and by filling in to raise the level of the whole city.

THE CAUSE OF THE DISASTER.

The investigations of a reporter show clearly that the major part of whatever responsibility may belong to human agencies for the calamity that has desolated the Conemaugh valley must be placed upon the South Fork Fishing and Hunting club, the association of wealthy Pittsburg gentlemen that has for four or five years past been endeavoring to establish a sportsman's paradise at Conemaugh Lake. When they leased the lake they closed the waste gates, through which all the water that had ever before accumulated in Conemaugh Lake had found a safe and speedy exit. It is measurably certain that had the waste gates been maintained the dam would never have given way. They were removed, it is said, because whenever they were opened the game fish with which the lake was being stocked would escape. The fish have escaped just the same, and the lives of 8,000 human beings have gone with them.

Estimates of the Loss of Life.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—Superintendent Morgan of the Cambria Iron company, who is regarded as an exceptionally level-headed man, has returned from a tour of the entire flooded district. He declared that only about 15,000 persons are now alive where 29,500 lived and had their being before the flood. Adjutant-General Hastings maintains that the death list may not exceed 8,000, and of this number he thinks 5,000 bodies will never be recovered. Mr. McConnaughy, the chief of the bureau of registration, said that he is convinced that the number who perished is fully 10,000 or more.

A TRIP OVER THE GROUND.

Physicians Believe That It Was a Mistake to Put Out the Fire.

JOHNSTOWN, June 5.—In company with several physicians from the city, another reporter and your representative, a trip was made across the burning drift about the bridge and up the banks of Stony Creek.

Amidst debris of the drift in different places could be seen the bodies of men, women and children, some of them partly buried beneath fallen timber and masses of rubbish. Other bodies were seen so badly charred by the flames that it will be impossible for them to be recognized.

In several places were seen charred hands.

In one place was a man's leg that had been torn from the body.

The doctors all expressed the opinion that a mistake was being made in putting out the fire. It will take a month to remove the mass of wreckage and before that time the bodies will have bred disease and pestilence and impregnated the water all the way to Pittsburg with the germs of an epidemic.

The general opinion among the doctors is that a large quantity of petroleum should be poured on the drift and set on fire, and in this way get rid of it in a short time.

There is no possibility of recognizing any of the bodies now in the drift and it would be better to have them all burned than to be allowed to lie and rot.

After crossing the drift we continued up Stony Creek. It seems as though but little search had been made in that direction.

All along the banks is a mass of drifted clay that has settled down with the falling waters, and beneath it are many bodies.

That this is the case was shown by an incident that occurred to our party.

One of the party saw what looked like a piece of fur sticking above the surface. It was thought to be dog, but when it was kicked a hand and an arm was knocked out.

The party then threw back the clay and uncovered the body of a fine looking woman about 30 years old. She was well dressed. The body was washed off as well as possible and left on a board.

A little further along the body of an old grey-haired man was found on the bank of the creek half in the water.

Three similar finds were made in a distance of less than a hundred yards.

As soon as possible a force of men will be put to work uncovering this clay when it is expected that hundreds of bodies will be unearthed.

In one place in the burning drift, in plain sight from the bank above, can be seen the bodies of two men and a woman half covered by the side of a building that has fallen on them and crushed them.

It has been impossible as yet to remove them and it may be days before they can be taken out.

In the meantime the building that crushed them is slowly smouldering and burning and it will be but a short time till nothing is left of the bodies but charred bones.

What is needed at Johnstown more than anything else is grave diggers.

BLOWING UP THE WRECKAGE.

Yesterday morning the authorities, despairing of being able to remove the drift, decided to begin breaking it up by means of dynamite. Accordingly, at 1 p. m., a five-pound can of dynamite was exploded among the wreckage at the second pier of the west end of the stone bridge. It made a terrific report, but failed to dislodge any of the debris.

CARING FOR THE SICK.

Three Hundred Physicians Kept Very Busy at Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—Dr. W. B. Lowman, of Johnstown, is in charge of the medical relief corps. He is assisted by over three hundred physicians. Dr. Lowman said to-day: "The first day or two very few injured people were seen. They are coming in now by the score, sickness is getting alarming and we see our duties multiply hourly. Nervous prostration, pneumonia and fevers will be, and are the most frequent ailments and pneumonia is sure to be very prevalent because of exposure in the water and dampness. There are over 2,000 sick in the general hospitals here and in the boroughs already, and there will be three times as many. We must arrange to disinfect the city immediately. Two car-loads of disinfectants have already been received from Pittsburg, but a train-load will be required." The list of the recovered dead kept up its appalling growth yesterday, but the list of those recognized is not so large as on Monday, owing to the fact that many of the bodies recovered are burnt beyond recognition, or decomposition has set in. The ascertained list of 2,800 bodies Monday was augmented by 138 more in Johnstown, Cambria and Kernville, a large number at Woodvale and, it is said, 32 at Nineveh and vicinity. The undertakers are becoming fagged out, many having worked day and night for seventy-two hours. The additional list of identified bodies recovered yesterday is as follows: Emma Zimmerman, W. B. Harris, Alice Veil, Sofia Blough, John Carlain, agent of F. D. Nickerton; John Roalew, J. C. Weakland, W. S. Pitts, Capt. J. A. Morrow, of Mt. Savage; D. W. Layton, lady supposed to be Mrs. John Murpay, Carrie Giehl, C. P. St. John, Jennie Wells, Joseph Williams, Mrs. T. T. Harris, Maggie Surah, William Harris, Dr. Marborough, Carl Wener, also his wife and child; Hamilton Clark, Georgie and Willie McDowell, C. D. Knee, Miss Lambert, Mrs. Dizzie Gallagher, Mary E. Neary, Mary O'Connell, Moses Fisher, Mrs. Rose Steel, Claus Brushn, P. E. Constable, Charles Hofmann, Mrs. E. Umbrock, Mrs. Edward Howe, Mrs. Nixon, Mrs. A. Lambert, Mrs. Fennel, Julia Price, F. Bishop, Joseph Slick, Mrs. Louthmer, Miss Ray, Jennie Frank, Mrs. Rose Zellar, Mrs. Agnes McDowell, Campbell Peyton, Charles Bischoff, Josiah Ross, George McDowell, Jennie Peyton, Mrs. Henry Kratzer, Alice Kenna, Hattie Smith, of Osborne, Greene county, Ohio; Catherine Myers, Emanuel Blough, Charles Murr, T. L. Buchanan, Daniel Suraney; James Potter, Margaret Vinton, Martha Morgan, Mrs. Mary Keely, Katie Frank, Mrs. W. J. Gilmour, four children, niece and mother; besides 103 unknown. The dead reported to-day from Woodvale are as follows: Wm. Tross, wife and Conrad, William, Katie and five other children—entire family; Joseph Schaller, wife, two children; Mrs. John C. Tucker and two daughters; Wm. Beck, wife and two children; Mrs. Wm. Allison, Mrs. Sarah Barber and her four children, Edward Barker, wife and two children, were crushed; Edward Brennan, wife and five children; Mrs. Patrik Brennan, four children; Mrs. Thos. Jones, two children; Wm. Baker and seven children; also his sister, Dollie Baker; Joseph Schey and wife; Richard Jones, wife and daughter; Mrs. Burkhart, Mrs. Dr. J. C. Duncan, Mrs. Hoops and three children; Mrs. Smith and two children; Edward Thomas, and wife; John Hannan and three children; James Broken lost three children; E. B. Evans, wife, two children; Herman Oller, wife and child; Mrs. P. M. Smith, three children; Mrs. Stuft, George Gettys, Dr. Josepe Patton, wife and daughter.

DISTRIBUTING THE SUPPLIES.

Feeding and Clothing the Sufferers at Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—General Hastings has instructed his Assistant Major, A. L. Spangler, to organize the following departments of distribution: Beef and meats, clothing, tinware, flour, coffee, sugar and tea. Major Spangler has also organized a special department including Kernville, Woodvale, Cambria City, Morrellville, Conemaugh and other towns, and in each of these he will establish branch depots and from these assistants will distribute the necessaries to the worthy. This scheme will enable those in charge to give to all who are needy and prevent imposition. The principal depot is at the Pennsylvania passenger station. A portion of the platform has been wired off and large tables, filled with all kinds of good, substantial, cooked and uncooked food, arranged along the whole length of it. Police are on guard, not only to repress the eager crowds, but also to prevent the incoming of loafers who are very abundant. Those asking aid are admitted to the wired passageway and as fast as their wants are attended to, their baskets filled and addresses taken, they are hustled out at the other end where also are stationed several officers who narrowly scan each outgoer in order that he or she may not duplicate the visit on the same day.

Major Spangler said to-day: "We have an abundance of everything except boots and shoes, and there should be a supply of them immediately. The railroads are forwarding us stuff by the train-load as rapidly as they can move them, and on the whole, we are doing very well. Each applicant is supplied with a day's rations either for himself or his family. Those who do not have families and are hungry are given lunches from the supplies we keep on hand all the time. Money is of no use just now. I may say that many applicants have money and are willing to buy, but there is nothing to buy in the city and we can sell nothing."

Gave It All to the Sufferers.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—The large dry goods store of P. A. Cobalt was the only store left from the flood. It is said he had about $30,000 worth of stock on hand, but gave it all away to the flood sufferers.

HE GAVE THE WARNING.

Civil Engineer Parker's Effort to Relieve the Lake of Pressure.

SOUTH FORK, Pa., June 5.—It was John G. Parker, an excellent civil engineer, of Philadelphia, who first saw the danger that threatened the Valley by the bursting of the dam.

Early Friday morning he discovered that the waters must have an additional outlet or the dam would give way.

Hastily securing a force of thirty Italians he set to work to prepare another sluice. In half an hour his purpose had been accomplished, but still the water continued to rise.

As he rode he warned the people on every hand of their danger.

Soon hundres of families were fleeing to the hills for safety. Reaching South Fork station, he telegraphed the warning to Johnstown. Some heeded the warning; others laughed at it.

No Need of Troops.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—Adjutant-General Hastings' order calling out the 14th Regiment and ordering them to this place is not looked upon as altogether a wise move. H. Collins, the iron broker, Pittsburg, says: "I see no need of soldiers here. There are enough people now to be fed without bringing in soldiers to eat up what has been sent for the relief of the needy." Everything is quiet and orderly this morning. Dr. John Buchanan, of Pittsburg, who has charge of the registration said this morning that he had only gotten track of about 8,000 out of a population of 29,000. It does not follow that those not reported dead or drowned are not lost but it gives a better idea of the terrible loss of life.

President Harrison Presided.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The meeting for the relief of the Johnstown sufferers at Willard's Hall yesterday afternoon brought together many prominent public officials, Army and Navy officers and citizens, and resulted in generous contributions and donations of money, provisions and clothing. President Harrison presided and made a brief but eloquent and impressive speech that touched the sensibilities of all who heard him, and elicited from his audience frequent applause. An aggregate of $10,000 was subscribed.

Bodies Recovered Every Ten Minutes.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—The body of Mrs Hattie H. Smith, Osborn, O., who with Miss Blanche Hornish were passengers on the Day Express which was swept away, was recovered this morning. Miss Hornish's body is still in the ruins. Bodies are being recovered at the rate of one every ten minutes. The majority of those recovered so far to-day are those of women and children.

All Drowned but One.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—A family of ten persons named Berher came here last Wednesday from Rhode Island. The father and several sons secured work in the Cambria Iron works. All were drowned except Harry, a thirteen-year-old son. The little fellow has been taken in charge by a lady living out of town. He says his uncle Thomas B. Pugh, lives in Westerly, R. I.

Railroad Communication Established.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—Railroad communication with the outside world was established before noon yesterday. The first relief train having just passed over the bridge across the improvised trestle and track up the incline to the Johnstown depot. The train was loaded with thousand of pounds of assorted provisions and 2,00 coffins.

Buried His Wife and Children.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 5.—Wm. Gaffney performed a very pitiful duty yesterday. On his father's and wife's side he lost fourteen relatives, among them his wife and family. He got a man to take his deceased relatives to the grave, and he had the mournful duty to perform of digging his wife's and children's graves and burying them.

NOTES OF THE FLOOD.

Lebanon, Pa., will raise $5,000 for the Johnstown sufferers.

The New York State Grand Lodge of Masons has given $2,000 to the Johnstown relief fund.

About $13,000 has been subscribed in and around Scranton, Pa., for the Johnstown sufferers.

Chicago is busy raising relief funds and expects to be able to send $100,000 to the stricken valley.

PROCLAMATION BY THE MAYOR.

MAYOR'S OFFICE,
PLAINFIELD, N. J., June 4, '89.

The harrowing news of the loss of life and of the destitution and suffering caused at Johnstown, Pa., by devastating flood, arouses the sympathy of all for the survivors of the terrible disaster.

Believing that the citizens of Plainfield are anxious to contribute to the relief of the sufferers, I suggest that they immediately make their donations. Subscription papers will be found at all the drug stores of the City and at the railway station. Money may also be sent to me or J. K. Myers, Ch'n of Finance Committee of Common Council, and to John W. Murray. I also recommend that collections be taken up at all the churches next Sunday for that purpose. Donations of clothing will also be received at the Y. M. C. A. rooms.

JOB MALE, Mayor.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—The Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A., meet to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock.

—The fund for the Johnstown sufferers is swelling. Mayor Male hopes to be able to send at least $5,000 from Plainfield.

—The Street Commissioner ran his scraper over some of the principal streets in the city, yesterday, leveling the roadbed.

—Thirty thousand dollars is the bequest to the Bay City, Mich., Y. M. C. A., from the will of the late Alexander Folsom, of that city.

—The handsome "Jack Rose" bush in front of Mr. D. J. Marshal's residence on Park avenue, was photographed by Photographer Thorn, yesterday.

—The Central Times will be out one day later this week, as it is delayed in getting ready some legal advertising which must appear in the current number to meet the requirements of the law.

—Bishop McNamara, the converted Catholic priest, conducted another of his series of gospel services to Catholics and Protestants, in Reform Hall, last evening. There was a large attendance.

—The next grand celebration in this country will occur in 1892, which will be the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. New York City will doubtless be the place.

—A strawberry festival, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church, will be held in Vincent chapel, on to-morrow and Friday evenings. Admission will be ten cents, and there will be music among other attractions.

—June, by many regarded as the most delightful month in the year, was ushered in last Saturday by strong blasts from the Southeast and floods of rain. It is the period of new bonnets and dresses, roses, picnics, base ball, young onions and early bilious attacks.

—Owing to business engagements Mr. Leo Daft telephoned from New York on Monday that he would be unable to lecture before the pupils of Rodman Seminary, on that evening. The lecture will take place at his labaratory on Putman street, this evening.

—"Sweet girl graduates" are getting their minds and dresses in good shape for Commencement Day exercises in the various institutions of learning. The "sweet" boy graduate is satisfied if he has a bicycle on which to start out on the "grand boulevard of life."

—The news said last evening, that the North Plainfield School meeting would occur last night. That was all wrong. The meeting is called for the 11th inst., as told in THE PRESS, exclusively. The few people who did congregate in front of the school house, probably a dozen or so, to be present at the meeting, went away declaring that they had been fooled by the foolish sheet. The result is, fourteen new subscribers to THE PRESS.

THE GROUND BROKEN.

The exercises and ceremonies last evening of breaking ground preparatory to the erection of the new chapel and school rooms of the Crescent Avenue church, were a grand success officially, socially and artistically. It was all arranged by the choir of the church, and brought great credit and financial success. The members of the different committees are given below, and Mr. I. C. Pierson was the Commander-in-Chief of the entire force.

The receipts will reach $200, which after the payment of contingent expenses, will be devoted towards the choir's subscription to the fund for the proposed extensions and alterations. The pickaxe which the Rev. Mr. Richards, the pastor, wielded, and the spade and shovel that Mr. H. B. Newhall, Superintendent of the Sunday School, and Mr. J. W. Murray, President of the Board of Trustees, used in breaking ground at the point where the rear wall of the new chapel will stand, were afterwards sold at public vendue by Auctioneer Roger F. Murray, for $16.50—Mr. J. W. Murray gave $6 50 for the pickaxe, Mr. W. H. Hillman gave $5.50 for the spade and Mr. Leo Daft gave $4.50 for the shovel.

A large tent was erected back of the church, covering the ground of the new building and connecting with the church parlors. In this tent were seated 400 people when the exercises began. A long programme had been prepared, which was continued throughout the evening in both the tent and later in the parlors. The musical features were: a solo by Mrs. J. K. Myers, "The Daily Question;" a solo by Mr. Elmer Runyon, Strebelski's "Dreams;" a song by Miss Alice Holmes, "Thou Wondrous Youth," by Abt, with violin obligato by Mr. Alfred Holmes; "Skylark," a trio, by the ladies of the choir; and Pinsuti's "Parting Kiss," beautifully sung as a mixed quartette by the full chorus. Miss Vinnie French played a Nocturne by Liszt, "Will o' the Wisp" by Chopin, and "The Arkansas Traveler." Miss Jessie Utter and Miss Alice Holmes rendered as duetts, an Octette of Mendelssohn's, and an Overture by Kahliwoda.

Preceding the formalities of breaking the ground, addresses were made by the Rev. John C. Bliss, D. D., of the Washington Heights Presbyterian church, New York, formerly pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, and by the Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham and the Rev. W. R. Richards. Dr. Bliss' references to personal experiences in the church during years long past, and the work of the congregation and himself together, brought tears to the eyes of many of the old members. At the close of the exercises he was overwhelmed with attention, and pleasant words were showered on Mrs. Bliss, who with Mrs. Richards and other ladies of the church, subsequently held a reception in the parlors.

On the wall of one parlor was hung a set of Architect Teale's plans for the chapel and Sunday school extension and alterations. They showed a building 68 feet broad, by 56 deep. The auditorium when all connecting doors are thrown open, will seat about 650. A gallery, also containing classes, will encircle the interior after the plan of Vincent chapel, which it will somewhat resemble.

The walls of the parlors were literally covered with rugs, tapestries, portierres and curtains, in rich plushes, soft chenilles, delicate laces and bamboo and beads. Such adornment for such purpose, has never been equalled in Plainfield. The decoration committee, who deserve great credit for it all, were Mrs. J. K. Myers, Miss J. L. Demarest, Miss Eleanor Demarest and Mr. George Schoonmaker.

The refreshments were also particularly good, under the direction of Mrs. S. R. Struthers, Miss C. O. Dunn, Miss Augusta Holmes, and Messrs Arthur C. Baynon and A. J. Gavett. Probably 250 people were served during the evening, at tables under the big tent.

The Japanese booth, from which over 200 fans were sold, was presided over by Miss J. L. Demarest, Miss Carrie Dewey and Miss Jean B. Murray.

The flower stand was literally loaded with quantities of the most beautiful roses, big baskets of pansies and other flowers. The hot-houses of Mr. John Taylor Johnston and other members of the congregation, were almost emptied to contribute to the occasion. The ladies in charge were, Miss Sadie Hunter, Miss Carrie Milliken and Miss Katharine Yates.

Mrs. Arthur Baynon and Miss Gussie Murray, dispensed lemonade from a pretty booth of straw and daisies.

The music committee consisted of: Miss Alice Holmes, Miss Jessie Utter, Miss Carrie Dewey, Mr. Elmer Runyon and Mr. Alfred Holmes.

A Suggestion For Our Merchants.

One of Plainfield's enterprising and generous merchants writes THE PRESS as follows regarding aid for the Johnstown Relief Fund:

DEAR SIR—Why should Plainfield wait for others to get ahead of her? Friday is considered an unlucky day. Cannot the merchants change the superstition by contributing 5 per cent. of their cash sales on Friday of this week? I am willing if others are. Interview them regarding it and see what the result will be.

Yours very respectfully,
CARL KAERTH.

—The Union County Board of Freeholders will meet at Elizabeth to-morrow afternoon.

$1,000 FROM PLAINFIELD.

The Governor of Pennsylvania Wired to Draw on the City National Bank for that Amount.

Mr. Samuel Milliken of Central avenue, who is a personal friend of Governor Beaver's, has wired the latter to draw at sight on Plainfield, for $1,000, in aid of the sufferers at Johnstown and its vicinity.

Mayor Male has contributed $200; Mr. Milliken gives $250 for himself and $50 for his wife; Mr. James T. Closson handed the Mayor this morning, $100; a paper that was was left lying on the piano in the tent at the Crescent Avenue church ground-breaking, soon had $54 subscribed on it, and other amounts are being rapidly received.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. Edward Rushmore and family of Park avenue will Summer in Washington Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Runyon are in New York city for a few days, visiting relatives of Mrs. Runyon's.

Rev. Mr. Simpson, of the Church of Our Saviour, of Netherwood, will soon remove from Elizabeth to Plainfield.

Mrs. Truell of Central avenue, this city, will take possession of the "Kernwood" House at Asbury Park, to-morrow.

Mrs. John C. Bliss who has been the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Richards, will remain in Plainfield for a few days longer.

Miss May Humphreys of Mt. Sinai Training School, New York city, is spending a few days of her vacation, before she graduates in October, with her friend, Mrs. Arthur Stace of No. 18 Kensington avenue, this city.

Mr. George W. Taylor, of West Second street, was expected to reach Johnstown, Pa, last Friday, and his family were much worried about his safety until they received a telegram saying that he had been delayed in his trip. Such delay probably saved his life.

The most finished writing, of the best style and finest English, that is being done in description of the disasters at Johnstown, is to be found in the New York Sun, and much of it is the work of Ernest O. Chamberlin. He left for the scene on Saturday, but was only able to reach there Monday afternoon. During his absence Mrs. Chamberlin is visiting his parents, on Madison avenue, this city.

Mr. Felix Helsey, representing one of the most reputable studios in New York, is in the city taking orders for crayon, pastelle and oil portraits. A picture he has just completed of Mr. A. L. Force, the junior proprietor of this paper and THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, is most satisfactory and the object of a great deal of praise as a likeness and a work of art. Mr. Helsey will remain until Saturday, and THE PRESS cheerfully recommends him to all who want a large portrait at a very reasonable price.

He Can Sell Iced Cream on Sunday.

The case on appeal of John H. Tier of this city, who was declared guilty by Judge Suydam of violating the city ordinance because he sold iced cream on Sunday, was finished in the Court at Elizabeth today. The jury almost immediately brought in a verdict of not guilty. Messrs. Jackson & Codington were counsel for Mr. Tier.

Counsel on both sides submitted the case to the jury without argument. Several exceptions to the rulings of the court were taken on behalf of the city, on which the case will be carried to the Supreme Court if the Common Council think proper to so order.

Delay on the Central.

Late yesterday afternoon, after this paper had gone to press, one of the heavily-loaded cars on a West-bound Baltimore and Ohio freight train, broke a journal, just this side of the Richmond street crossing, and delayed travel over the Central Railroad at that point for an hour or so. The weight of the car and its contents, made it necessary to send for a wrecking crew. The latter arrived from Elizabethport, and by six o'clock the car was repaired and travel was resumed as usual. Meanwhile, West-bound trains used the North siding.

"Andy" Won the Prize.

A shooting contest has been going on in the gallery on East Front street, since May 13, last, three prizes being offered. The first "shoot" took place on Monday evening, when ten of the persons who had made the highest scores were selected to "shoot off" for the prizes. The first prize, a banjo, was won by Mr. A. M. Vanderbeek, or by "Andy" as he is familierly known; the second prize, a revolver, by William Patterson, and the third prize, 50 cigars, by Fred Smalley.

Stolen and Twisted.

The news of last evening actually contained two items of news—the Winter-Benson wedding, and Mr. Daft's lecture to the pupils of Rodman Seminary—both stolen from THE PRESS of the day before.

But the joke of it all was, THE PRESS stated that Mr. Daft would lecture Monday evening, and the news of Tuesday told how he had lectured; whereas the lecture was postponed until this evening because Mr. Daft was not in Plainfield Monday.

—A coal train broke in two near Netherwood this morning, but no damage resulted.

—Dr. A. M. Dam, 405 Columbus ave., Boston, Mass., would be pleased to answer any correspondence from parties using or intending to use his remedy.

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz: "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST.
DAILY PRESS
(Chautauqua Building),
PLAINFIELD, N. J.

—Don't forget the noon prayer meeting every day, from 12 to 1, at the W. C. T. U. rooms.

—Mrs. D. C. Green is having the exterior of her Park avenue residence dressed up with an attractive coat of paint.

—To-morrow, corner Front and Grove streets, T. J. Gillies, auctioneer, will sell at auction a quantity of household goods, etc.

—The grounds adjoining the Park House are in a deplorable condition. A herd of cattle could graze for a week on the lawn.

—A subscription paper was started in the manufactory of C. Schepflin & Co., this morning, in aid of the Johnstown sufferers. The firm headed it with $25, and every employee added something.

—Hospitality is one of the things that help to build us a town. Some men can give money to build up and improve, others cannot, but all can exert themselves a little in courtesies to newly-acquired citizens.

—Mr. Ernest O. Chamberlin of this city, one of the talented writers for the New York Sun, is in Johnstown, Pa. He telegraphs that the reports concerning the terrible disaster of Friday last are not and cannot be exaggerated.

—It is reported that a couple of colored men got into a wrangle over a girl on Park avenue, near Seventh street, last evening, but as there were no bodies at the morgue this morning, it is believed that no razors were used in the affray.

—Mr. J. E. Yose, the driver for Gazelle Engine Company, is utilizing Mr. Conover's four handsome iron gray horses by attaching them to the roller which is doing such effective service on Westervelt avenue. The animals are models of their kind.

—The employees of Mr. Aug. Van Deventer, at the Creston Carpet Mills, this morning, contributed $50 to the Johnstown relief fund, which amount was sent to Mr. J. K. Myers. A list of the subscribers will appear in THE PRESS to-morrow.

—That specialist who was here some few years ago, Dr. E. Kimbell, is again at the City Hotel for a few days, ready to remove effectually and painlessly moles and other blemishes, and to cure all aggravating troubles of the feet, of whatever character.

—Councilman Dumont has stretched a common sense wire along the Seventh street approach to his residence from the East. At this point, pedestrians were in the habit of making a "short cut" from Crescent avenue into Seventh street, thus treading down and killing the grass.

—Eighteen packages — barrels, boxes and bundles—were sent from Plainfield today for Johnstown on the 2:02 train by the U. S. Express Co., free of charge, as the company announced in THE PRESS of yesterday. A barrel of flour from French Bros., was included. The goods are expected to reach their destination, to-morrow.

—The tennis tournament already spoken of in these columns to be contested by six young women on the grounds connected with the Union avenue residence of ex-Councilman Isaac W. Rushmore, Saturday afternoon, is for the benefit of the building fund of the Y. M. C. A. Admission will be 20 cents, and an exciting struggle is promised.

—A comprehensive view of the location of Johnstown, Pa., may be had by placing this city in a similar position. For instance if a huge dam was built across the notch on Somerset street, even with the mountain top, and all of Washington Valley was one bread expanse of water. Johnstown was situated just in this way, and the bursting of the huge dam resulted in the loss of thousands of lives.

A Dangerous Spot in North Plainfield.

A very dangerous place, which is a menace to both pedestrians and those driving at night, is situated on the dug-way road, leading from Washington Valley. The woods on the lowest side having been cut away, there is nothing to keep persons from driving or walking off the bank. A rail fence should be erected before THE PRESS is called upon to chronicle an accident. The attention of the Town Committee of North Plainfield is called to the matter.

Pond Tool Company.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Pond Machine Tool Company, held in this city on Monday afternoon, the following Board of Directors were re-elected: Messrs D. W. Pond, Albert C. Stebbins, J. Rogers Maxwell, Henry S. Manning, Chas. A. Moore, Eugene L. Maxwell and Henry S. Graves. The stockholders also made an inspection of the Company's Works here.

Free Telegraph Despatches.

Manager Schermerhorn of the Western Union office in this city, has received instructions to "accept messages on account of the relief of the sufferers from the flood at Johnstown, Pa., and send the same free."

Obstinate Indigestion

Obstinate cases of indigestion or liver complaint, are easily cured by a few HAMBURG FIGS, as may be proved at small cost. 25 cents. Dose, one fig. J. G. Miller, Agent, Plainfield.

—Quite a severe thunder shower passed over the city at an early hour this morning. The rain fell in torrents, and there were several heavy claps of thunder. So far as reported no serious damage resulted in this vicinity.

—Mrs. M. H. Conger, 151 Duer street, says: "Since using Dr. Dam's Remedy have not had a sick headache."

East New Jersey Baptist Association.

The forty-eighth anniversary of the East New Jersey Baptist Association, opened in the Park Avenue Baptist church in this city, yesterday, with several hundred delegates in attendance.

Rev. G. W. Nicholson of Jersey City, is Moderator. Rev. A. R. Dilts, delivered the address of welcome, and Rev. H. F. Barnes of New Brunswick, preached the introductory sermon. During the noon intermission refreshments were served in the parlors of the Park Avenue church, assisted by the ladies from the First Baptist church. In the afternoon the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society met in the chapel at one o'clock. The remainder of the afternoon session was taken up with the report of the Committee on Application of churches, the reading of letters from the churches, and ten-minute addresses. In the evening Rev. William Rollinson delivered an address.

Today's session opened with a service of prayer, praise and conference, followed by the morning session of the Association. The programme was as follows:

Report of Committee on Church Letters.
Report of Committee on Minutes of Corresponding Bodies.
Report of Committee on Place of next Meeting.
Report of Committee on Introductory Sermon for 1890.
Report of Committee on Doctrinal Discourse for 1890.
Doctrinal Discourse. Rev. J. B. English, D. D.
Report of Committee on Obituaries.
Report of Committee on Resolutions.
Miscellaneous Business.

Following is the programme for this afternoon's session:

Election of two Trustees of Disabled Ministers' Fund.
Report of Standing Clerk.
Unfinished Business.
Farewell Hymn—"God be with you till we meet again."
Adjournment.

An Artist's Picture in Words.

The leading story in St. Nicholas for June is, both in its letter press and illustrations, the composition of George Wharton Edwards.

We had been afforded frequent opportunity to enjoy the delightful charm of the pictures his brush and pencil have created, but not until our reading of the story referred to, "How I saw 'Old Carolus,'" did we imagine the same lights and shadows, mezzo tints and color, could be blended with the same fascinating effect in a picture of words. Besides all that which betokens the artist, the story is full of a purity of sentiment and tender pathos that can only spring from a sincere affection for the young—an affection that man nor woman cannot be too proud of, and the betrayal of which appeals so winningly to us all.

The People That it Summoned Never Came.

The news of Tuesday announced, with a head on it, that the North Plainfield voters would hold a meeting, that evening, to consider the matter of erecting a new school house.

THE PRESS of the day before announced that the meeting was postponed until Tuesday evening of next week.

Consequently but 14 turned out to the meeting announced by the news. Thus another straw that shows what paper the people read.

—The Bible reading at the W. C. T. U. rooms to-morrow afternoon will begin at four o'clock instead of three as heretofore.

Dr. E. KIMBELL,

THE

GREAT SPECIALIST,

Commences his second visit in Plainfield this morning. Every form of disease of the Feet are cured by him. HOURS—8 A. M. till 7 P. M.

☞ Special favors shown people in moderate circumstances. ☜

Servants will be in waiting to conduct ladies and gentlemen to the Doctor's parlors at the CITY HOTEL, Plainfield, for a FEW DAYS ONLY.

People who desire the services of a skillful

CHIROPODIST,

Are urged to call without any delay, as his engagements in Trenton are positive.

DR. KIMBELL'S charges are moderate and invariably known after examinations, which are always free.

☞ Ladies often make up parties of from two to six and call upon Dr. Kimbell together. The most timid lady, aged person or child can have the most aggravating feet troubles radically and permanently cured and suffer nothing from the treatment.

MOLES AND WARTS OF THE FACE, NECK, OR ANY PART OF THE BODY, are removed without pain, and without cutting.

During the past six years Dr. Kimbell has treated 15,000 persons, ladies and gentlemen.

Plainfield Testimonials:

From J. B. Probasco, M. D.: "I have had personal experience with DR. KIMBELL'S skill in removing corns, and heartily recommend him to the afflicted.
J. B. PROBASCO, M. D.,

appointed a committee to raise funds for Johnstown.

Kate Claxton's company will give a benefit performance in Boston, June 13, for the flood sufferers.

There is no truth in the reyort that three men were drowned on an island near Harrisburg yesterday.

The Massachusetts Legislature has passed the resolution appropriating $30,000 for the Pennsylvania sufferers.

At a meeting of the Faculty and students of Cornell University, $1,000 was subscribed for the Johnstown sufferers.

Three hundred more bodies were found yesterday afternoon opposite Nineveh. This makes seven hundred bodies found at that place.

Hon. Chas. H. Allen is on his way to Johnstown as the special representative of the Boston Relief Committee to find out what is immediately needed.

The Mayor of New Bedford, Mass., to-day telegraphed the Mayor of Johnstown to draw on him for $500.

Four thousand dollars were received for the Johnstown sufferers at a meeting of business men held at Providence, R. I., yesterday.

Bellefonte, Pa., is entirely cut off from all railroad or telegraphic communication with the outside world, but fortunately there has been no loss of life.

Governor Beaver says the Fourteenth Regiment, N. G. P., was sent to Johnstown merely to be on hand in case of emergency, and not because of any violence.

Contributions for the relief of the sufferers by the floods in Pennsylvania are pouring into the Mayor of New York to-day. About $150,000 have already been subscribed.

Thomas Williams, of Johnstown, who lost his wife and family, recovered his wife's remains and took them up the mountain where he dug a grave and buried them himself.

The Charleston, S. C., City Council has voted $1,000 for Johnstown. The Chamber of Commerce of that city raised $380 in a few minutes, and a number of subscription funds are under way.

Over $12,000 was subscribed for Johnstown at a citizens' meeting in the Park theatre, Brooklyn, last night. Dr. Talmage was one of the speakers. The two Coney Island racing associations will each give one day's receipts to the fund.

WILLIAMSPORT'S DISTRESS.

Poor People Homeless and Provisions Scarce—Fears of an Epidemic.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 5.—The following telegraphic correspondence has passed between Gov. Beaver and Mayor Foreman of Williamsport:

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 4.

To Gov. Beaver: The situation is this: The boom has been cleared of logs from the principal yards along the river front and the manufactured lumber has been swept away. The houses of the poor people nearest the river front have been carried away with all they possessed. Thousands of people are homeless and without anything but the clothes upon their backs. Provisions are scarce and are needed quickly. Many of our people are in absolute want for the necessities of life. * * * We badly need disinfectants. Dead animals and all kinds of filth are strewn upon the streets and grave fears of an epidemic are entertained. Stocks of goods of stores in the centre of the city are ruined. It is impossible to estimate the loss and damage to property. Five million dollars is a low estimate on lumber alone. Other losses larger. The surrounding country has suffered just as badly. Booms, bridges and villages have been swept away and the loss of life has been considerable. Judge Cummins is treasurer of the relief fund and will see personally to the faithful distribution of all contributions. Responsible relief committees are now organized in each ward of the city and aid is administered as fast as we get it. Please God we are not dismayed and rely on His guidance, the generosity of our own State and country to aid us in this, the hour of our dire necessity. One thousand military tents will afford the greatest possible relief to our people who are now without shelter. Send us several large mess tents where we can feed the people in large numbers. The low ground where these people reside is an unfit place for them to return to for sanitary reasons. Mayor FOREMAN.

The Governor replied:

Be of good cheer. Your reliance is not misplaced. God and the country will sustain you. Will reach out with help as soon as Montgomery bridge can be crossed. Am loading cars here with flour and groceries notwithstanding the pressure of our own stricken people. Will telegraph Philadelphia at once for provisions and disinfectants. Put your unemployed men to work in removing debris and cleaning your city. I will furnish means for paying them reasonable wages and this will answer the double purpose of preventing disease and the lawlessness which springs from idleness. May not be able to send you tents, but may be able to send canvass.

No Suffering at Lock Haven.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Superintendent Pettit, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, succeeded in getting to the edge of Lock Haven yesterday at 9:30. All the houses had from 6 to 10 feet of water in them. The receding water left considerable mud in the streets and dwellings. Only one person is known to have been drowned at Lock Haven, but several lives are reported lost at Mill Hall, four miles from Lock Haven. Some of the principal citizens who were seen by Superintendent Pettit say there is no suffering.

New Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The following named fourth-class postmasters have been appointed in New York: Robert Hughey, Ashford; William Van Etten, Belfort; G. W. Goodman, Clarks Mills; William Carlin, Devereux Station; A. C. Vaughan, Fort Ann; E. G. Burdick, Glendale; John Weeks, Harrisville; Andrew Gallagher, Johnsonville; G. F. Curtis, Knapps Creek; Anna Schoonmaker, Limestone; C. M. Waters, Lyons Falls; W. H. Miller, Pamelia Four Corners; T. A. Sawyer, Port Leyden; F. A. Whitney, Pottersville; R. W. Hicks, Salisbury Centre; W. A. Brigham, Spencerport; M. M. Whiting, Yorkshire Centre.

Iron and Steel Workers.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 5.—The annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers convened in this city yesterday. Two hundred delegates were present. The Eastern delegates are detained east of the breaks in the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. President Weihe's address was brief. He said that the Scale committee had taken all matters into consideration during its deliberations and are prepared to present a scale which no manufacturer can ignore on grounds of pecuniary loss on account of its adoption, neither will the workmen suffer on account of the terms specified.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Joseph Brobston, the official notary for a dozen of the largest financial institutions in this city has disappeared from his home and office at 328 Spruce street, leaving behind him an unknown indebtedness, of which, however, nearly $9,000 was entered up in judgments in court yesterday.

LIGHT ON THE CASE

Startling Evidence at the Cronin Inquest.

WHAT CAPTAIN SCHAACK SAYS.

He Testifies that Frank Woodruff Made a Confession.

Chief of Police Hubbard Believes that Captain Schaack Has Bungled the Cronin Case, and Suspends Him—The Belief Implied that Schaack Tried to Shield Coughlin and Stand in the Way of Justice.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Startling evidence was given yesterday before the Coroner's jury in the Cronin case by Captain Schaack. It was late when the "Burgomaster" was called. He testified that on the day that the Grand Jury took up the case the prisoner Woodruff, alias King, sent for him and confessed that he drove the wagon with the trunk that contained Cronin's body from the Evanston avenue cottage to the catch basin. He opened the confession by saying that he was in a saloon on Division street one day with two men named King and Fairburn when a stranger entered and took King aside. He produced a big roll of money and gave some to King and to Fairburn. When he had gone Woodruff asked King who it was and he replied "That is the great lawyer Alec Sullivan." Woodruff went on to say that he was hired by Detective Coughlin for the sum of $35, to go to the cottage and get the trunk. The two men before referred to accompanied him. They first drove through Lincoln Park where the trunk was taken out and again returned to the buggy. Then they drove to the catch basin. After the body had been placed therein and the trunk dropped by the wayside they drove to a barn where they washed and fixed up. Coughlin he went on to say, told him several days beforehand that he had a job for him. On the afternoon of May 4 he came to him and said: "Now's the night; it has got to be done. If you can't get out before 3 o'clock it will be no use." At 9 o'clock he got the wagon.

After Schaack had concluded "Major" Simpson, a man well known in the police courts and the Bridewell, testified that Coughlin tried to hire him some time ago to shoot or slug Cronin and promised to pay liberally for the job. A man named Billy Lyon corroborated this and an adjournment was taken.

The evidence taken earlier in the day was that of the Lake View police officers who saw the mysterious vehicle on the fatal night and of the doctors who made the post mortem examination.

Late last night Chief of Police Hubbard issued an order peremptorily removing Capt. Schaack from the command of the Chicago Avenue district and also suspending him from duty. This action was based upon his unsatisfactory evidence yesterday afternoon, and upon the opinion that he had bungled the case from the start. He admitted to the jury that he had not asked Woodruff to describe Alex. Sullivan, and in general demonstrated that he had tried to shield Coughlin to the hindrance of the investigation.

A SPECTACULAR FUNERAL.

Col. John McClellan, Dead, Acts a Role in a Novel Scene.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 5.—The funeral of Col. John H. McClellan, an octogenarian citizen of this place, which occurred yesterday afternoon was the most novel in the history of Gettysburg. Some time before his death, which occurred suddenly Saturday last, he prepared explicit instructions, addressed to his undertaker, as to his funeral.

In accordance with his wishes, the ceremony took place in his opera house. The body was laid in front of a drop curtain showing the scene of his boyhood, himself and his favorite horse. When the throng of people viewed the body it was conveyed to the cemetery, as he had directed, in a clean, plain spring wagon. He was a bachelor of large means and as yet no will has been found.

Celebrating Taunton's Settlement.

TAUNTON, Mass., June 5.—The anniversary of the settlement of Taunton was celebrated yesterday by the firing of cannon and the ringing of bells. Literary exercises were held at Music hall. Among the distinguished guests present were Governor Ames and staff of Massachusetts, Governor Ladd and staff of Rhode Island, Chief Justice Morton and many others.

Bad Wreck on the North Penn.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 5.—A disastrous wreck occurred on the North Penn road near Sellersville yesterday. A freight train was wrecked and both tracks were blocked all day. A tramp was killed and another fatally hurt. Hiram Meek, the engineer, was badly injured. A broken axle was the cause of the accident.

Evidences of Malpractice.

MALDEN, Mass., June 5.—The body of Mrs. Frank Craggs, who died May 12, apparently of inflammation of the bowels, has been exhumed and evidences of malpractice obtained. The action resulted from the recent finding of an infant's body near the Bragg's place. The suspected parties are under surveillance.

FISHING ON THE PIER.

Thousands of People on the Piers—Superstitions of Anglers—How and What the Perch Bites—The Crab as Bait and Its Peculiarities—Winter Fishing—Origin of the Perch in the Lakes—Bass and Perch Compared—Eels in Disgrace.

[Special Chicago Correspondence.]

There are thousands of little piers along Lake Michigan which were built for breakwaters for the protection of the land. Whatever the original intention of the builders, these piers have been generally monopolized by fishermen and fisherwomen who love the perch. The most conspicuous fishing-ground, of course, is the Government breakwater at Chicago, and on many a day it presents a double broadside of people angling for his perchship. The outing about the Government pier is a convenient haunt for this fish. At either end of it are channels of moving water. The bottom is sandy and clean, and the perch loves cleanliness and pure water. Food for the perch on such grounds is naturally plentiful, as it is favorable for the minnows and fry of many species of fish of which the perch is particularly fond. Sad as it may seem, the perch makes no distinction, and after leaving its young fry to their fate, eats them with the same relish as it does the young of any other species. The barbarian is not the only cannibal; the principle is everywhere prevalent that big fish eat the little ones.

It is strange how the stuff and nonsense of the fishermen who sell poles and sell minnows on the pier is generally believed. These weather-beaten mariners assure us that the direction of the wind determines whether perch will or will not bite. For instance, if the wind is blowing from the southeast or east we are told that the perch will not bite. When asked for a reason, the Waltonian replies that either there is none or else he will say that the perch is an eccentric animal, and has chronic objections to such winds. The fact is, the perch have to eat every day, no matter where the wind comes from. If the wind blows from either of the directions mentioned the water is rolled on this side of the lake and the perch goes across or out into the clear water. As has been stated, he is a cleanly fish and will not tolerate any thing but pure water. The direction of the wind therefore only determines whether he will bite or not in the sense that it indicates the condition of the water. There were less perch caught last season than any other for years, and again the old mariner on the pier put on a gloomy face and repeated the worn-out tale to the effect that the fish had been caught out by the overplus of anglers and had no chance to propagate.

It is true that comparatively few perch were caught last summer from the Government pier. This was simply because east and southeast winds prevailed, driving the fish into the pure water across the lake. At St. Joseph perch appeared by the million, and the market there was glutted with them.

The perch is not a difficult animal to lure with the hook. His nature is trusting, and he believes every thing and every body honest. All of his experiences on this continent since the advent of the white man have availed him nothing. He nibbles the hook with the same belief in its virtue as his ancestors did four hundred years ago He acquires no hereditary warnings or suspicions. This may be due to the fact that he propagates so rapidly that nature has no time to adapt him to environment and the rapid progress of the age. Go over to the pier, rent a pole for a dime of any one of the numerous furnishers there, buy a dozen minnows for another dime, and, if the water is clear, I'll warrant a perch will bite before you are ready, no matter how conspicuously the hook shows.

The perch, among other things, is lazy. He would rather take the poor little minnow writhing in death agonies on your hook than chase the swarm of free ones which may be hovering all around him. The furnisher, if you ask him, will bait your hook. He will take a minnow and run a hook through it just above the tail. Then he will run it through again from the other side just below the gills. The minnow is then fast, but the hook shows in two places. If you were angling for black bass in the rapids of some river this would never do. You would have to remove the sinker so that the minnow could swim about and attract attention. In order to convince the bass that there was a square deal and no trap and to enable the minnow to live and swim, you insert the hook through the tip of his bills, running it through his lower bill and out through the upper one. Then the minnow would have full use of his body and tail to swim with. You have to cast him gently so as not to kill him. If he died you would have to put on a live and lively one. The bass will not take a dead minnow. Not so with the perch. He will take a minnow dead or alive, swimming or helpless, and ask no questions.

The bait for the perch is usually a matter of indifference. When minnows are plenty it is better to bait with them. Grasshoppers, worms, fresh meat, etc., are good bait for them. There is some question, however, on the subject of crabs. The old fishermen claim that the perch will not take crabs, that they are only good for "sheepsheads," and this specie in fresh water are not good to eat. Crabs abound by the millions among the miles of rocks forming the Government piers. How they get there is said to be a question, but it is not. They crowd fearlessly all over the bottom of the lake in reasonably shallow water. They are partial to rocks, underneath which they live and breed. When the rocks were placed in the lake to make breakwaters the crabs were not long in finding it out. They doubtless migrated there in numbers and bred fearfully and wonderfully underneath the great blocks of granite. They have a friendly habit of crawling up to the surface for food of any kind which may fall in. When any thing falls in the water they jump out from their hiding-places and grasp it in their tentacles. To catch crabs, all one has to do is to lower the fish-line on which a minnow or other bait is placed into the shallow water which percolates among the rocks of the piers.

A crab will grab the bait in his claws and absolutely hang on while you draw up the line. Whatever the fishermen may say these fellows make good bait for perch With all their limbs on the perch are afraid of the crabs, as their squeeze of the interior of the fish is not desirable. Then they have a way of extending their tentacles so that only a large-mouthed fish like the sheepshead can swallow them. They have a way also of escaping under rocks and in the sands which disgusts the lazy perch. Now, to make bait of them, pull out the tentacles, and when the perch sees his enemy helpless he will grab and swallow him with a vengeance.

Doubtless the best perch fishing along these shores might be had in winter. There is a peculiar state of things here at that season. When the ice covers the lake its great pressure necessarily forces the air out of the water to a large extent. Fishes are in need of air as much as mankind is of water. If one could look into an air hole in winter he would see thousands of fishes near the surface acting as if they were having a great battle to breathe. They are.

They have come up to the surface for air. If it were possible to drop a hook and line into an air hole the fish would bite with great rapidity. It is a well-known fact that if a hole is cut in the ice, fishes will come to the surface, and if it should thunder and lightning, will jump out on the ice. This phenomenon has been witnessed on the St. Lawrence river so often as to become an established fact in science. The fishermen of the upper lakes and the straits take advantage of this trait of the fish to spear them all winter as they come up to the surface where holes have been cut through the ice. The moral is obvious. There can be no doubt that fine sport might be enjoyed along the piers here in winter wherever the water happens to be free.

The flesh of the perch here is hard and well-flavored. In the rivers and still lakes at this time of year it usually contains grubs and parasites. Our perch is a bony fellow and that spoils any great demand for him. He has only one use, and that is for frying.

Some chefs know how to extract the skeleton and make a very edible dish of him. The finest perch known is found in Lake St. Clair. The variety found there is much thicker than is found elsewhere, more rotund and the bands of yellow are of stronger color. But, strangely enough, the St. Clair perch has only a backbone, or vertebræ, like the bull-head. When these fellows are fried the epicurean draws out the vertebræ and eats the delicious flesh without fear of swallowing a bone. How do you account for it? Why, the St. Clair perch climbed the Niagara Falls from the lower lakes, possibly, and lost those small bones which make his fellows in other regions a semi-nuisance. The Lake Michigan perch had another origin. He entered this lake from the Mississippi in prehistoric times, when the waters of Michigan swept out through South Chicago. He never exerted himself enough to lose any bones.

The United States Fish Commission has committed an error which, were it not for the high standing of that body, would be supposed to have emanated from the madhouse. Some years ago it placed 6,000,000 young eels in this lake, and perhaps millions more. The eel is an enemy of the perch, whitefish and other edible fishes, and are now vigorously engaged in their extermination. This same Fish Commission is an enemy of the eel weir and eel fishermen, and have destroyed by law the eel industries of the East. Why did it put the eels in this lake? They are now being drawn up in the nets of fishermen on the pier in the little nets lowered for minnows. What business have the eels in those little nets with the minnows? Why, the rascals have been feeding on the young fry. The Fish Commission obstinately maintains that the eels go to sea to spawn, then die, leaving their young to go up the rivers alone, to grow up, go down to spawn and die. Why did the Commissioners make this doctrine ridiculous by placing the eels in lakes where they can not get to the sea to breed, where they must stay and eat up the other fishes? The eel is voracious and ravenous.

He catches the female perch, whitefish and other innocent species, runs his sharp snout through their sides and sucks out the thousands of little eggs within, leaving the victim dead and useless. These young eels of several years ago are now two and three feet long. They have spread all over the lake and carried devastation and death with them. They can not propagate, according to the United States Fish Commission, and there are not enough of them to catch with profit by the fishermen. But there are enough to destroy the lake fisheries in time. This is the Commission, by the way, which the people employ for the purpose of building up our fisheries and stocking the waters with edible and marketable fishes, not their enemies. If I was absolutely certain that there was one eel about the pier, I should consider it the proper thing to do to throw down my pole and leave. Perch are not partial to the company of eels, and would certainly get out of their vicinity.

WILLIAM HOSEA BALLOU.

THERE is a Matrimony Club in Baltimore. It is both skirted and kilted. That is to say, in modernized English, both male and female membership is allowed. Those who join it wear badges, showing to other members that they are marriageable and want to "get there." It is a novel idea, and especially helpful to the girls.

IT is estimated that the magnificent stalactite cave lately discovered near Recliere, Canton Berne, is about 6,000 meters long, 600 broad, and 4 to 20 high.

Boot and Shoe Workers.

BOSTON, June 5.—In the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Union convention, H. J. Skeffington's acts since the Rochester convention were approved, with a vote of thanks. The attitude of the Lasters' union in opposing boy labor on lasting machines was endorsed. The blue label of the Cigarmakers' union was legalized. A boycott was put upon the firms of D. A. TEN THOUSAND DEAD

The Latest Death Roll of the Conemaugh Valley.

JOHNSTOWN FULL OF COFFINS.

A Thousand Funerals Wound Up the Hillsides Yesterday.

MANY MORE BODIES RECOVERED.

A Close Estimate of the Loss of Life. People Returning to Their Wrecked and Dreary Homes—An Army of Laborers at Work—Will the South Fork Fishing Club Be Held to Account? The Danger of a Pestilence Growing. Williamsport's Cry for Help.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 6.—Chaos has given way to order. Johnstown, arising like one who has had a fearful dream, looks around, hoping that this calamity has been exaggerated. On every side her people who were spared see what an ordeal they have been through, and yet there comes a prayer of thankfulness, for to every one it is now evident that the loss of life in this valley will not reach 12,000, and will probably fall to 10,000. This is awful, but how many hearts will beat with renewed vigor in the hope that dear relatives and friends are among that list of two thousand! About eighteen thousand survivors of the flood and flames have registered, leaving about eleven or twelve thousand to be accounted for. It is, of course, impossible that all of the saved have entered their names on the books.

The appearance of Johnstown has changed greatly within the past twenty-four hours. Now white tents cover the plain where formerly stood the houses of Johnstown. Thousands of men are at work clearing up the debris. As the rubbish is gone over and the bodies and scattered articles of value recovered the wreckage is piled up and the torch applied. In this way the valley is assuming a less devastated condition. In twenty-four hours more every mass of rubbish will probably have been searched, and the investigations will be confined to the smoking wreck above Johnstown bridge.

GOING BACK TO THEIR HOMES.

There are still many scenes of horror, but not as many as on previous days, though they are none the less startling. The homeless people have nearly all found shelter. The workmen cook and eat just after removing a corpse and then return almost gaily to their labors. Everything is going on smoothly, and the new management of affairs promises great things for the valley. The crowd of people seeking relief has greatly diminished, and the tradesmen have begun to look around for a chance to resume business. All of them who have houses left are busy cleaning the mud out of their premises, and some people have even moved back and taken up their old life again as though nothing had happened.

HOW WILL A PESTILENCE BE AVOIDED.

There is no doubt that within a few days a whole stratum of dead humanity will be reached, and that the bodies will be brought out in heaps. The place is little more than one-third cleared yet, and that which remains was the most densely populated. Already the odor is becoming offensive, and something will soon have to be done to prevent a pestilence among the living.

The business of burying the dead engages almost every laborer in this borough. So much of this work has there been that all sensibility seems to have left those who handle the corpses and prepare them for the grave. It is not that they are heartless, for any one can see by the kindly way they direct and help searchers for lost friends that they are sympathetic. The truth is that there has been so much handling of bodies to do that men have lost the dread which usually seizes them in the presence of a corpse.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

The Fearful Work of the Flames Described by an Eye-Witness.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 6.—An eye-witness of the horrible scenes in and about the stone bridge of the railroad during Friday night and Saturday states that nothing in art or literature can half delineate the horrors of that night after the ruins had taken fire. Dore's wonderful imagination would be at fault were he to attempt to depict anything so fearful in its accumulation of horrors as this showed. At all times during the night the moans and shrieks of souls in the fearful torrent of flame could be heard above the roar of the flames and the booming torrent which thundered by. All through Friday night the horrid din kept up until some of the on-lookers fled from the spot unable to bear it longer. Another party as late as Saturday morning heard the shriek of a woman's voice amid the ruins, and looking in the direction was horror-stricken to see a woman's white arm and shoulder amid a pile of ruins on which the flames were rapidly encroaching. For several moments the arm swept the air, the hand clutching convulsively at space, then a broad sheet of flame swept down toward it and the most fearful scream of mortal agony that ever thrilled the air arose. Then all was silent, and the wave of fire swept on, crackling as if in glee at what it had done.

CLASPED IN THEIR MOTHER'S ARMS.

The bodies of a woman and three children were taken from the debris in front of the First National bank. The woman had all the children clasped in her arms. Mrs. Mary Connors, a widow, Miss Teresa Downs, her sister, also a ten-year-old girl, supposed to be named Bracket, of Woodvale, and an unknown man, were taken to the depot morgue.

ONE OF HER DEAR ONES FOUND.

The first body taken from the ruins this morning was that of a boy named Davis, who was found in the debris near the bridge. He was badly bruised and burned. The remains were taken to the undertaking rooms at the Pennsylvania railroad station, where they were identified as those of Willie Davis. The boy's mother has been making a tour of the different morgues for the past few days and was just going through the undertaking rooms when she saw the remains of her boy being brought in. She ran up and demanded the remains and seemed to have lost her mind. She caused quite a scene by her actions, but calmed down after a while and stated that she had lost her husband and six children in the flood and that this was the first one of the family that had been recovered. She said she had not slept a wink since Saturday, and had visited the different morgues at least one hundred times and was almost crazy from the sights she had witnessed.

ONE HUNDRED ADDITIONAL BODIES.

The corps of workingmen who were searching the ruins near the Methodist Church have found one hundred additional bodies.

DIAMONDS IN HER SHRIVELLED EARS.

Brought out at this place was a woman's head, black and shrivelled, and yet the diamonds glistened in her ears. The forward man who carried the sheet stumbled, the head rolled to the ground, and the gems shaken out of the ears fell back into the ruins.

Over in Johnstown proper the workmen found many bodies to-day, among them those of four or five commercial travellers. Pinned to the breast of each man was his business card and his name and address. They had been stopping at the Hurlbert house when the waters rushed in, and, seeing that death was inevitable, they had provided a way for their friends to learn of their fate.

DANGER OF DESTITUTION.

Plenty of Provisions En Route, But Little Food at Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 6.—Director James B. Scott reported some danger of destitution this morning, owing to the slow way in which provisions were coming in. There are at least sixty carloads of provisions and other supplies en route between here and Pittsburg, but there is not track facility enough to handle them with sufficient rapidity. Owing to the lack of bridges to get across the stream between the island and the railroad, not much was done except the work of repairing, which is being pushed with great rapidity. At the American club headquarters reports were received that there was great destitution in Conemaugh and Mr. McFeely was immediately sent to that point for a conference with the local committee on ways and means of getting forward goods of all kinds, and especially provisions. Reports from Morrellville, three miles below Johnstown, are that there is plenty to eat, but a lack of tents, blankets, and other comforts. Altogether seventy dead bodies were taken out yesterday near this point. The work of removing the debris is pushed as rapidly as possible. The majority of arrests made thus far has been for petty offenses, such as stealing from private houses and refusing to work. There is no doubt, however, in spite of all precautions, that the bodies of the dead have been mutilated by ruffians who have removed rings and other valuables. In spite of Director Scott's statement that there is enough to feed the men now here, Captain Jones, in charge of supplies, is continually crying for more. He has now 3,300 men and 1,600 more are coming from Pittsburg. He has plenty for them to eat, but not enough cooking utensils. As all the tents that have been erected are already filled he will take such time as is available to build shanties and repair vacant buildings. The work of clearing up has begun and will be prosecuted with great rapidity. The following are additions to the list of dead: Henry Ludwig and wife, bodies not found; Mrs. Morrell Swank and sixteen-year-old son, bodies not found; Mrs. George Hager, body not found; Miss Laura Hamilton, body not found; Jacob Wild, wife and daughter, bodies found; Mrs. Jane Bridges, body not found; Mrs. Aaron Davis and three children, Woodvale, bodies not found; John G. Alexander and wife, Woodvale, bodies not found; Mrs. Martha Alexander, body not found; Noah Evans, wife and four children, bodies not found; Mrs. Reese, body found; Mrs. Mary Fitzharris, body found. The remains of a man and girl were found near those of Mrs. Fitzharris. Samuel Long died in the hospital from injuries. Hamilton Clark, body found: Mrs. Lizzie Gallagher, body found. The following bodies were found and are now lying in the Presbyterian church: Joseph Williams, Mrs. John T. Harris and three children; Dr. Marburg, Carl Weser, wife and child; Jessie Bending, John B. Clark, Hamilton Clark, George and Lillie McDowell, aged three and five years old: George D. Knee, Mary E. Neary, Moses Fisher, two unknown women; Mary O'Connell, Mrs. Resensteel, Claus Brush, Philip Constable.

THE MISSING TRAINS.

Two Are All Right in Altoona While Two Are Wiped Out.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 6.—Robert Pitcairn, General Superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Superintendent Starr of the Fort Wayne road said to-day in regard to the missing trains, that the first two were all right in Altoona, but the two sections of No. 8 were almost wiped out. They thought the loss of life cannot possibly exceed twelve, and they are hopeful it will not reach that number. The reports of lost from the trains, they say, are very inaccurate, even as received over the company's lines. The following persons whose fate was in doubt were accounted for by telegrams to the Pennsylvania railroad office, to-day: F. Coleman, John W. Early, of New York, at Altoona; Mrs. Gen. Lew Wallace is safe at Altoona; F. E. Fitch, safe with his daughter; R. E. Pettit, at Altoona, uninjured; Mrs. M. C. Brady, at Ebensburg; a Mrs. J. A. Brady is supposed to be lost, as she was a very old lady and remained in her berth in the Pullman; Mrs. Scherzy, safe; Mrs. Emily Schenck, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., safe at Altoona; Mrs. Frank Patterson, daughter and child, of Frankford, Pa. Mr. Pitcairn said that the mortality on these eastbound trains was grossly over-estimated, and the more telegrams come in, the more firmly the fact was established. Still there is a vagueness in the reports leaving the fate of a large number of passengers still in doubt. Chief Bigelow last evening ordered a corps of civil engineers to report this morning to go to Johnstown. About a dozen men will go, taking with them all the necessary instruments for surveying and laying out the streets and property, with a view to re-organizing the destroyed city.

PROCURESSES AT WORK.

Startling Discoveries Made By the Ladies of Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 6.—At the Second Presbyterian Church relief rooms last night the ladies attending to the wants of the sufferers were startled by the presence among them of certain women about the town, who eagerly tendered their assistance in relieving the wants of the half-famished and tattered strangers.

Their assistance was promptly declined, and a suspicion of their motives being aroused an investigation was instituted resulting in the astounding discovery that at several stations between Johnstown and this city procuresses had stopped and at once sought the acquaintance of many of the younger lady passengers, whose attractiveness in face and form for the time being was a misfortune.

The ladies' explanation of their solicitious interest in the unfortunates that they would be at once provided with comfortable homes in their families.

Hereafter the Pennsylvania officials will carry Johnstown sufferers on special trains only, which will make no stops, thus frustrating the evil designs of these human vultures.

Was Manager Meisel a Victim?

MANSFIELD, O., June 6.—The following has just been received from Superintendent Starr, of the Western division of the Pennsylvania Railroad company at Pittsburg: "Have good reason to believe that Meisel, manager of the Mansfield Baseball club, who was on Pennsylvania Railroad train No. 8, was drowned at Conemaugh." C. F. Meisel left Mansfield on Friday morning, bound for his home in Newark, N. J., where he has a wife and two children.

FORCED TO CALL A MEETING.

Mayor Miles, of Meriden, Conn., Finds Himself in Bad Odor.

MERIDEN, Conn., June 6.—Mayor Miles, who has gained an unenviable notoriety by his refusal to call a public meeting to organize a relief fund for the sufferers by the Johnstown flood, has found himself forced by public opinion and a unanimous vote of the Common Council to do that which he could have done of his own volition. He has issued a call for a meeting of Meriden's citizens, to be held at the City Hall, "to give practical expression to our sympathy with the distressed people of Johnstown and vicinity."

But even in writing his call Mayor Miles manifested his opposition to and lack of sympathy with the general feeling that made such action on his part obligatory. He is careful to say that it is done "be request of the Common Council," as if anxious to shield himself from any suspicion of being affected by the charitable impulse that has found expression in every Connecticut town and hamlet and which moved the Legislature to appropriate $25,000 on behoff of the State for the relief of the afflicted. When Mayor Miles was first asked if he intended to do what every other Mayor in Connecticut was doing his reply was that "Charity begins at home." He said that Meriden had her own poor to attend to; her high school, her town hall and her electric lights to care for. "Suppose," he said, "a wealthy citizen looses a child; we meet him on the street and express our sympathy, but we don't give him a $5 bill to pay his funeral expenses. Pennsylvania is able to buy and sell Connecticut. It is one of the richest States in the Union. Timely aid to its child, Johnstown, in the way of immediately available succor, is all right, but the sending of money should be left to the great State of Pennsylvania, which is and ought to be able to take care of Johnstown and its other children.

TEN MILLIONS LOST.

JOHNSTOWN, June 6.—Ten million dollars is the sum at which some of the Pennsylvania railroad officials at this place figure the loss and damage to the property.

The through trains will not be run for three weeks at least.

Further up, where the railroad crossed the river diagonally on a fine iron bridge, not even a suggestion remains to show that there ever was a bridge there, nor is there a particle of roadbed, rails or ties remaining for three-quarters of a mile.

From there for a distance of a mile the ballast is washed away and the track badly twisted.

The viaduct at South Fork, supposed to be one of the strongest in the country, has entirely disappeared.

The Duncannon bridge, a large iron structure, is also destroyed.

The culvert in the stone bridge at Johnstown was repaired and strengthened to-day.

LABORERS IN DEMAND.

The Only Kind of New-Comers Wanted at Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 6.—Several large delegations of laborers with tools arrived this morning and are doing effective work. These are the only kind of men that are wanted or needed. Thirty doctors arrived from Philadelphia this morning in charge of Dr. Forbes. The doctors were thanked for their willingness to help, but their services were declined from the fact that there are but few sick to care for. W. H. Devor has been given charge of the impromptu embalming establishment in the Pennsylvania railroad station by Benjamin Lee, Secretary of the State Board of Health. The best estimates this morning on the loss of life, based on the registry of living and the unofficial poll, put it at from 12,000 to 15,000. The drift of opinion among intelligent men, physicians, engineers and railroad men is that from 1,000 to 1,500 of the bodies will never be heard from.

His Prediction Came True.

PITTSBURG, June 6.—The Conemaugh dam was originally built about sixty years ago. About fifty years ago it burst and let the water down the valley, but there were few people living there then and little damage resulted. An old resident of the valley, named Goughknow, who died some time ago, predicted another invasion of the valley by the waters of Lake Conemaugh escaping from the restraint of its dam. "It may not come in my time," Mr. Goughknow would say, "but it will come surely."

IT IS DEVOTED, LOCALLY, TO THE INTERESTS OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, ITS SUBURBS AND ITS NEIGHBORING TOWNS; AND, POLITICALLY, TO THE ADVANCEMENT OF "THE GREATEST GOOD TO THE GREATEST NUMBER."

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED ON ALL MATTERS OF PUBLIC CONCERN, BUT PUBLISHED ONLY WHEN ACCOMPANIED BY THE NAME OF THE WRITER, IN CONFIDENCE, AS ENDORSING THE TRUTH AND HONEST INTENT OF THE COMMUNICATION.

ADVERTISING RATES MADE KNOWN ON APPLICATION AT THIS OFFICE. NOTES OF CHURCH ENTERTAINMENTS, FAIRS, SOCIABLES, LECTURES, CARDS OF THANKS, LODGE RESOLUTIONS, ETC., INSERTED FREE OR NOT, AS CHARITY OR JUSTICE MAY DEMAND.

W. L. AND A. L. FORCE, - PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - MANAGING EDITOR.

THE PRESS is now in its third year with a subscription list that includes all the intelligent people of the City and Borough, and with the advertising patronage of all the progressive and successful merchants of Plainfield.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—"What is so rare as a day in June?" Today's quite raw.

—The regular monthly business meeting of the Reform Club will take place at Reform Hall this evening.

—A subscription box for the relief of the Johnstown sufferers is located at the entrance to the postoffice.

—A strawberry and iced cream festival was held at New Market, last evening. The attendance was large and the receipts were consequently so.

—The Ladies' Aid Society and the members of the Mission Band of the Congregational church, today sent a barrel of clothing to the Johnstown sufferers.

—The closing reception at Rodman Seminary, will take place to-morrow evening. The reception will include a play by the pupils, tableaux, vocal and instrumental music, refreshments, etc.

—The boys of the city are invited to the illustrated chalk talk to be given by Mr. H. Melander, at the devotional meeting of the Young Men's auxiliary, at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, this evening, at 8 o'clock.

—About twenty colored gentlemen held a caucus in the roadway in front of Shaw's drug store, last evening. It was stated that they were arguing among themselves with reference to government appointments.

—At Elizabeth, yesterday, Judge Mc Cormick discharged the petit jury for the term, with the thanks of the Court. The Judge also adjourned Court over until Saturday morning at ten o'clock, when sentences will be pronounced.

—Mr. Charles Krewson, who is high man at the Olympia alleys in the prize contest, with a score of 233, left today for Asbury Park where he will resume charge of the billiard rooms and bowling alleys of the Coleman House for the season.

—A strawberry and iced cream festival under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church, will be held in Vincent chapel, this and to-morrow evenings. Admission will be ten cents, and there will be new attractions offered each evening.

—All are cordially invited to attend the informal meeting for Christian conference to be held this evening, June 6, at the meeting room, No. 6 East Front street, over the Dime Savings Institution, at 7:45. "Eternal Punishment," is the subject to be considered.

Advertising a Hypocritical Sheet.

It is surprising that so many men of common sense and business judgment, have permitted themselves to be used to boom the dying news.

Those who desire to contribute towards the relief of the Johnstown and vicinity sufferers, should send the money through Treasurer J. K. Myers, or others named in the Mayor's proclamation.

The city has pledged itself to the extent of $1,000, and as shown by Gov. Beaver's message elsewhere, that amount has been already drawn for. Yet instead of making up such amount, the people are contributing their money to advertise a paper that will trample over every dead body in the Alleghany valley if necessary, for the sake of assuming a charity that it possesses not.

She Was Alive.

A good story is told concerning one of Plainfield's gallant fire laddies. It appears that the gentleman in question went to New York on Tuesday, and by appointment visited the Eden Musee, where he met a friend from this city. The two entered the building together. The policeman at the door was passed without comment, although the admission ticket was tendered to him, but in the passageway leading to the "Chamber of Horrors" stood a beautiful woman, motionless. The fireman stood for a moment admiring the female and then remarked to his friend: "If I didn't know that was wax, I'd swear she was living." The woman turned and smiled pleasantly. Exit fireman and his friend.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Under the direction of Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, amateur theatricals will be given in Seminary Hall, Thursday evening of next week, in aid of the Johnstown sufferers.

Mrs. Anna Davis Footman, wife of Robert H. Footman, died at Savannah, Ga., Tuesday. She was a former resident of Westfield, and cousin of Postmaster Addison Clark.

Archdeacon Rodman having resigned his place at the head of the Archdeaconry, the office has been filled by Bishop Scarborough in the appointment of Rev. Mr. Cullen of Freehold.

At the residence of Architect Wm. H. Clum, on New street, last evening, took place the marriage of Mary A. Wilson and Lester VanRensselear Clum, both of this city. The Rev. Cornelius Schenck officiated.

President Jacob Kirkner, of the Board of Education, points with pride to the fact that the cost per scholar in the public schools of this city, is no greater than in Elizabeth, yet everybody knows, and the State report shows, how much higher a standard of education the Plainfield pupil reaches.

The marriage of Miss Josephine Brewster, formerly of this city, and Mr. Theodore Wood, of Metuchen, took place yesterday afternoon at one o'clock, at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. Samuel Barber, 18 Remsen street, Brooklyn Heights. The ceremony was performed by the bride's uncle, and among the guests was a lady 90 years old who had also been present at the marriage of the bride's mother. After a wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Wood left for parts unknown.

The City Offered Council Rooms and Offices in the New Opera House Building.

The building already described in THE PRESS, to be erected by Mr. Charles H. Hand on Second street, just East of Park avenue, will be of pressed brick with terra cotta trimmings.

The Opera House in the rear will be capable of accommodating an audience of 700 people. It will also make a ball room with a dancing surface of about 64 by 98 feet. In the basement, under the large stores each side of the entrance, will be billiard rooms and bowling alleys.

Two lodge rooms will be fitted up in the third stories of the building. The second stories, however, if the city will rent, will be thrown into one arranged with a large Council chamber and eight offices for the Mayor, Assessor, Collector, Treasurer, Corporation Counsel, Chief of Police, Fire Department, Street Commissioner, and all other officers of the municipality. All this the owner offers to rent for $100 a month, and heat with steam. The proposition is now in the hands of the Finance Committee.

W. H. Clum is the architect of the building. Work on the excavation is almost completed, and it is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by October.

The Matter that Concerns Us All.

A remarkable book of unusual interest that is now being offered the reading and thinking public, is That Unknown Country, or future retribution according to the opinions of sages, scholars and divines, especially at the present time. Everybody has some thought if not a fixed belief regarding punishment after death, and everybody will find in this book a most learned theological student and writer to agree with him.

A well-known leader in every sect has written his opinion at length—Roman Catholics, Presbyterians, Universalists, Jews, Independents, Lutherans, Methodists, Unitarians, join in a marvelous symposium. The Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., of this city, is one of the list of authors which includes David Swing, T. DeWitt Talmage, Edward Everett Hale, Bishop Huntington, Howard Crosby, Cardinal Manning, Father Hewitt, and many other leading lights. It will surely be a source of profit and interest to all who are interested in the subject—and who is not?

A Thrilling Experience.

Two Newark peddlers had a thrilling experience in North Plainfield on Tuesday evening. The men were about town all day peddling strawberries, and at night they had three crates left. The men drove into North Plainfield on the outskirts of Washington Park, where they laid down and went to sleep, allowing the horse to graze by the roadside.

During the night a thunder shower came up, and during its progress a lightnig bolt struck a telegraph pole but a few feet from them. The horse was knocked down and the men were prostrated. When they recovered from the shock the horse was driven under the shed in the rear of the Farmers' Hotel on Somerset street, where the men related their experience to Officer Grant and others.

Gov. Beaver's Reply.

June 5, 1889.

To Samuel Milliken, Jr.,

In the name of our suffering and distressed people, thanks for the very generous contributions from the citizens of Plainfield. It is gratefully appreciated and will be judiciously administered. Have today drawn as requested on J. K. Myers for $1,000, at sight, through J. C. Bomberger, Treasurer of our Relief Fund.

JAMES A. BEAVER, Governor.

—In another column, contractors and builders of this city will find something of interest to them—the advertisement for proposals for building the new school house at Westfield.

Mr. Daft's Lecture.

By invitation of Mr. Leo Daft, the class in Physics, connected with Rodman Seminary, accompanied by the Principal Mrs. R. C. Dingee, visited the laboratory of that gentleman on Putnam avenue, last evening, and were treated to one of the most instructive as well as interesting lectures on electricity, they have ever had the pleasure of hearing.

A number of experiments was an interesting feature during the lecture. Mr. Daft very clearly explained the nature of the various batteries now in use, referring to their adaptability for certain purposes. His large gas engine was put in operation and the dynamos started by which a powerful current of electric fluid served for many experiments of a higher order, much to the delight of all.

Magnetism was also fully explained with demonstrations. The lecture occupied over two hours, and all expressed themselves as having thoroughly enjoyed the evenings entertainment. On departing for home Mr. Daft received the many thanks of his audience, for his kindness in making such extensive preparation and for his instructive talk.

Fifty Dollars From the Carpet Works.

The following amounts were subscribed for the relief of the Johnstown sufferers by the employees of the Creston Carpet Mills, yesterday, and the total was handed Mr. J. K. Myers to be forwarded:

E. L. B., J. Neagle, M. C., L. M. S., G. W. S., A. Stamm, E. B. K., $1 00 each. R. Alexander, R. Alexander, Jr., M. Maloney, H. Maloney, S. Kerr, Rose Coyne, M. Doyle, K. Schmidt, A. L. G., A. L., Carrie Huff, F. B. C., K. T., E. B., F. Willibald, 25 cents each. T. Muldowney, L. Muldowney, 10 cents each. VanDeventer & Co., $24.30. Total $50.

Of Interest to Unitarians.

Rev. J. W. Chadwell of Brooklyn, will preach next Sunday at 3 P. M., in Mr. Shepherd's music rooms, where the Unitarian course of sermons is being delivered.

Persons wishing to contribute to the cost of these services should address George D. Patten, Jr., at 27 LaGrande avenue, who has been elected Treasurer for that purpose.

Let Others Do Likewise.

Dr. Kimbell, the Chiropodist, is now located at the City Hotel, where he will remove corns, moles, etc., without pain. On to-morrow the Doctor will donate his entire receipts to the Johnstown sufferers. This action is a commendable one, and the citizens will doubtless patronize him, and thus contribute to the relief fund.

Rapid Beating of the Heart.

Whenever you feel an uneasiness in the region of the heart, a slight pain in the shoulder, arm, or under the shoulder-blade, or when you find yourself short of breath when exercising, or your heart has periods of beating fast, you have heart disease, and should take DR. LEGAL NOTICE.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

They Want Franchises Granted Without Delay.

The following petition signed by the clergymen and physicians of the city and other anxious citizens, was presented to the Council, Monday evening, and referred. It speaks for itself, and will be heeded in good time by the Committee which is moving as rapidly in the matters spoken of as the welfare of the city will permit:

To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J.

We the undersigned subscribers, knowing and believing that the time has arrived for the interest and welfare of the City of Plainfield, that the following improvements of a general character are greatly needed for the prosperity of the city, such as water, sewerage and street railways. There being a large number of houses in the city unoccupied, and believing to a great extent it is caused by not having the much needed improvements above referred to.

We understand there are several plans and specifications before your committee for the building and erecting of Water Works, Sewerage and Street Railways. Therefore we petition your Honorable Body to expedite matters as fast as possible by granting a franchise for each of the above improvements, adopting such as your Honorable Body deem most advantageous for the benefit of the city without delay.

Yours very respectfully,

Applauding the Appointment of Engineer Dunham.

We are pleased to note that the recent discussion in the board of trade of Elizabeth, N. J., on the construction and maintenance of county roads, in which Francis Collingwood took an active part, seems to have borne fruit in the appointment, as noted in our personal column, of an engineer, at a reasonably adequate salary, to superintend such work. We trust the good example thus set by Union county may be speedily followed by her neighbors, and we shall watch with much interest the progress of this new departure.—Engineering and Building Record.

The Union county board of Freeholders at their meeting last week Thursday, appointed Mr. F. A. Dunham, of Plainfield, engineer of the county roads under the new law. This is a very responsible position, and on his wisdom will greatly depend the success of constructing the stone roads.—Rahway Democrat.

Returned for the Summer.

Mr. Edward W. Milligan and family of Brooklyn, N. Y., have returned to their Summer residence in Washington Valley for the season. Mr. Milligan, besides being one of the oldest contributors to the welfare of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST as a subscriber, is one of those enterprising men who is making Washington Valley a charming Summer place of residence by his generosity and enterprise. It gives us great pleasure to again see his genial countenance among us. Among the many stylish equipages to be seen on our streets is that of the Misses Milligan with their handsome calico pony and dog cart. His son "Jimmy" sometimes is allowed to handle the reins, when he chaperones the ladies, and then "Calico" has to make time. We hope Mr. Milligan may conclude in the near future to make our fair city his permanent home.

This Evening at Warren Mission Chapel.

Mizpah Lodge, United Order of Independent Odd Ladies, will give a first-class entertainment at Warren Mission chapel, this evening.

A novel feature will be a burlesque on a "Woman's Rights Convention." Alvira Slimmers of Vermont, will be Chairman, Belva Lockwood of Kalamazoo, will be the speaker. It is expected that several delegates will be present. The ladies taking part in this will dress in antique costumes, and no doubt will cause much merriment.

—Dr. A. M. Dam, 405 Columbus ave., Boston, Mass., would be pleased to answer any correspondence from parties using or intending to use his remedy.

The Bicycle Century Run.

The great "Century Run" for bicyclists, which takes place Saturday from the Oranges to Philadelphia, promises to set all previous runs in the shade. L. Clarke, the chairman of the run, states that over 400 applicants have applied for permission to enter the run, and still more are expected. Judging from the arrangements that have been made, the trip will be a pleasant and memorable one. The cyclers will go to Orange Friday night, and the start will be made from the Mansion House at 4 A. M., Saturday. The route traverses through Newark, Elizabeth, Plainfield, Trenton and Princeton, (where they will be photographed in a group and inspect the college). After leaving the latter place they will proceed directly to Philadelphia. Their headquarters in the latter city for their two days' stay will be at the Colonade Hotel, Fifteenth and Chestnut streets. The pace in the run will average about eight miles an hour, so that the wheelmen will not have to over-exert themselves.

The following tells the time at which the cyclers will leave the different places mentioned below, and the arrival at Philadelphia:

Maurice Nolan Interviewed.

In an interview in the Somerset County Jail with Maurice Nolan, says the Messenger of Somerville, Nolan made some statements that may cause more or less of a sensation. He desired the reporter to say that he had only gratitude and praise to express as to the efforts of his counsel, and he thinks no living men could have done more than they did in his behalf.

Nolan spoke very strongly against what he calls the prejudice existing among the citizens of Plainville against him, and repeated what he stated to the Court prior to sentence being passed upon him as to certain Plainville people attempting to tamper with persons on the jury panel and influence them against him.

A statement made by Nolan as to what he saw on the morning of the Race murder is somewhat surprising. He said he then saw two men coming from the barn where the deed was perpetrated, both of whom were well known to him, and one of whom has since died. He affirmed that he saw them go to the barn as well as come away from it, and that one of them on meeting him later had said, "Nolan, you needn't say anything about having met me this morning." Nolan claims as his reason for not sooner making this statement that he kept silent in the expectation of securing his own release, and because of his dislike to incriminate the persons referred to. He did not give their names.

Blue Laws No Longer in Favor.

(From the New York World.)

A remarkable trial took place yesterday in the Union County Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth before Judge McCormick. John H. Tier, who keeps a boarding house and iced cream pavilion at Plainfield, was severely fined by a Justice of the Peace of that city because he sold a plate of iced cream on Sunday.

It seems there is a relic of the blue laws in the shape of a Plainfield city ordinance which prohibits the selling of cream on the Sabbath. Determined to make a test case of it, he refused to pay the fine, and was ably defended by Lawyers Lindabury and Jackson & Codington, while Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh of Plainfield, appeared for that city.

Mr. Lindabury in his address to the jury made a scathing arraignment of the ridiculous ordinance which ought, he said, to have never been enacted. The jury was out only a few minutes and returned with a verdict of acquittal. There was applause in the court room and the vindicated cream dealer was overwhelmed with congratulations.

Union County Christian Endeavor.

The officers of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union met on Tuesday evening, and made the preliminary arrangements for the annual conference, which will be held in the First Baptist church a Elizabeth on the evening of June 21. The union was instituted as the Elizabeth Union, but at the October conference was formed into a county organization, and the societies in Plainfield and Springfield received into membership.

Since that meeting there have been societies formed in Westfield, Cranford and Rahway, and these will become members of the union. The coming meeting will be the first county conference, and there will be an increased interest and attendance. Addresses will be made and papers on methods of work will be discussed.

War On the Dogs.

Dog-catcher Babbitt has declared war on the dogs, and hereafter all unmuzzled dogs found roaming the streets at large will be gathered in and massacred, unless redeemed by their owners. The dog pound is now located at the residence of John Naylor on Lake street, and yesterday the dog-catcher took the first installment of dogs there. The total catch yesterday was three.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

WILLIAMSPORT'S LOSSES.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 6.—A. C. Hopkins and Company, of Lock Haven, have received despatches announcing that their whole stock of logs and lumber at Reynoldsville, 10,000,000 feet, is lost. All the logs and lumber belonging to Wainright and Bryant, at Brookville, 12,000,000 feet, are gone. Tweed, of this city, learns that all his own logs and lumber and those of Sprague, Striedy and Bubb, which were reported lost, are saved, rendering these firms $100,000 better off than they hoped yesterday. Six men were found drowned in a cabin at Little Trout Run on Big Kene Creek yesterday. They had been employed there peeling bark. One was Enoch Weir of Jersey Shore, and another Joseph Cesserman of the same place. A boy named Geiger was killed by the breaking of the Maynard street bridge, and his body was washed away. A man named Miller is also missing but all the others who were on the bridge escaped. The city remains in utter darkness, but the gas company officials promise to resume operations and have the gas available by to-morrow night. The electric light company also promise to furnish light in a few days. Lieutenant-Governor Stone arrived here last evening with seven carloads of provisions which will be transferred across the river and distributed. Five more cars are expected, some of them containing tents sent from Harrisburg, which are much needed. The ladies of the city will meet to arrange for receiving and distributing clothing of which a large quantity is on the way here. Trains will be run to Renovo and Lock Haven to-day. The Pennsylvania railroad begins work on its Williamsport bridge to-day. The Montgomery bridge will be ready to run trains across by to-morrow. At Ransom's Island, below this city, 20,500,000 feet of logs are piled up and 12,000,000 feet of lumber. In one of the houses that floated upon the island the body of an unknown young woman has been discovered. Some letters near the body were signed "W. H. Jackson."

NEWS FROM MINERAL POINT.

The First Intelligence from That Hamlet Since Last Friday.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 6.—Mineral Point, containing about two hundred and twenty-five residents, is situated about seven miles east of Johnstown. It has since last Friday been completely cut off from the rest of the world, and until your reporter managed to get into the place by working his way along the bed of the stream, it was uncertain whether any one had escaped. The loss of life was not nearly so large as it would otherwise have been, had not the most of the people left their homes some time before, owing to the reports of the dam being liable to break at any moment. Out of a total of thirty-four houses in the place only seven are left, and the reason they were not taken was that they were situated some distance up the mountain out of the flood's reach. Not a single vestige of the houses swept away can be seen. There was only one church in the place and it was swept away. The number of persons known to be drowned is sixteen. The town is almost completely obliterated. What was formerly the main street is now the bed of the river. Many responsible people here who saw the flood coming, affirm that it was at least twenty feet higher in the centre than at the sides, and, as one person graphically expressed it, looked just like a sliding forest rushing on us. A large number of freight cars were lying at Mineral Point when the flood came, containing produce for the East, some being filled with hams, others with eggs, butter, flour, crockery, etc., these being a very godsend to the destitute inhabitants some of whom would probably have starved before any aid could have reached them. Mr. Stoner, the division boss of the Pennsylvania railroad, has kept open house for the unfortunates, five families staying in the house with his family, besides giving free meals to all who apply.

Locked in Each Others Arms.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June .—During the work of removing the rubbish from the Methodist Episcopal Church a man and his wife were found clasped so tightly in each others arms that it was found necessary to bury them together. Just as the flood struck the city a wedding was going on and the principals were drowned just as the ceremony was completed. The minister escaped, together with nearly all the witnesses.

Nominated on the Eighty-Second Ballot.

CONCORD, N. H., June 6.—Last night the Republican Senatorial nominating caucus, was a dead lock until the eighty-second ballot, when D. A. Taggart was nominated as President of the Senate. Senator Chandler's supporters jubilantly assert that the result indicates Chandler's success in the United States Senatorial caucus, but Dr. Gallinger claims that it has no such significance.

NOTES OF THE FLOOD.

The Ohio river is rising rapidly.

New Brunswick, N. J., has raised $3,000 for the Johnstown sufferers.

The Bradford, Pa., citizens' fund in aid of the flood sufferers foots up $3,000.

About $1,500 has been raised at Norwalk, Conn., for Johnstown, and $1,500 more is expected.

In the town of Conemaugh there are only thirty-eight persons positively known to have perished.

The Jamestown, N. Y., subscription fund for the relief of the Johnstown sufferers amounts to $2,245 so far.

Chicago's contributions to the Johnstown sufferers has now reached about $90,000, and it is expected that $20,000 will be collected to-day.

The Grand Councilor of the Order of Pennsylvania Junior Mechanics has sent an address to all local councils appealing for aid for the Johnstown sufferers.

Forty-two bodies have been recovered from the river at Blairsville, Pa., and now await identification. The public school building has been turned into a morgue.

Governor Beaver has received no information confirming the report of the discovery of a large number of bodies at Phillipsburg. He regards it as untrustworthy.

John Aird, of Cohoes, N. Y., and John Don, of Troy, N. Y., both travelling men passengers on the day express last Friday from Pittsburg have not been accounted for.

At the different registration places 18,000 residents of the devastated district have registered as alive and well. The total population of the flooded district was about 40,000 or 50,000.

The Secretary of War has detailed Lieut. John Biddle, of the Engineer Corps, to command the detachment of thirty men of the engineer battalion which will erect the trestle and pontoons at Johnstown.

The Controller of the Currency has received a telegram from Postmaster Baumer, at Johnstown, Pa., saying that the First National bank of that city is flooded but expressing a belief that the postoffice funds are safe.

THE CRONIN MURDER

An Important Clew Said to Have Been Found.

WHAT AN EXPRESSMAN SAYS.

He Hauled the Murderer's Goods and Knows Them by Sight.

They Belong to Chicago and the Expressman Says He Saw Them in Chicago Last Saturday—The Police Think They Will Catch Them in a Day or Two—The Testimony Taken at the Coroner's Inquest Yesterday.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The police claim to have an important clew to the murderers of Dr. Cronin.

They have found the expressman who hauled the murderers' goods from the building at 117 Clark street to the Carlson cottage.

According to the expressman the fellows belong to Chicago and he has seen both of them frequently since he hauled their goods.

The last time he saw them was last Saturday.

The expressman's description of one of the men tallies closely with that of Simons, who bought the furniture from Revell & Co., and of Williams who rented the cottage from the Carlsons.

The police believe the two men are still in town, and they are relying on the expressman to find them.

The testimony of Captain Schaak yesterday that Woodruff had confessed that he had driven the rig that hauled the trunk containing the body of Dr. Cronin, and that he had been paid to do the work by Sullivan, creates considerable excitement, but it been understood for several days that Woodruff had turned State's evidence.

All the evidence at the inquest yesterday was directed toward establishing the fact that the deceased was firmly impressed with the idea that his life was endangered through the machinations of Alexander Sullivan. Maurice Morris, a member of the Clan-na-Gael, said that at the last convention he had heard general delegates say that Cronin and Dr. McCahey, of Philadelphia, ought to be gotten rid of. Cronin had told him that he believed McGeehan, the Philadelphian, had come to Chicago at the instigation of Alexander Sullivan to kill him. Joseph O'Byrne, Senior Guardian of Camp 365, swore that on the day before the physician disappeared Cronin had told him that he was badly broken up and discouraged, and that he believed he would give up and let those rascals, Alex. Sullivan and Recorder of Police Michael Boland, of Kansas City, complete their murderous designs and kill him. O'Byrne went on to say that he had heard McGeehan say that Cronin and McCahey ought to be killed, because they were scoundrels. He had heard that there was a trial in Camp 20 but knew nothing definite on the point. He did not, however, believe that Cronin was a traitor. Closely pressed he admitted that rumors that Cronin had been tried and convicted came to him through friends of the latter. P. McGary, a Lake View boilermaker and intimate friend of the dead man, gave his evidence with so much dramatic effect that once or twice he was applauded. He testified that Cronin had several times told him that his life was in danger, that Alex. Sullivan, if he was murdered, would be found to have been the instigator; and that there were papers in his safe which would connect Sullivan with the deed. Witness told how he went to Toronto and met Long, the reporter, who was responsible for the circumstantial stories regarding Cronin having been seen in that city. McGary offered him $2,000 to substantiate what he had written, but he could not do it. Instead he said: "I wish to God I had never had anything to do with this business." He had heard that ice-dealer Sullivan, Detective Coughlin and Detective Whelan were members of Camp 20. It was a matter of daily conversation among the members of the Clan that there was a conspiracy to kill Cronin. At one meeting of Camp 20, when the witness remarked that the man who gave Le Caron his credentials, was worse than Le Caron himself, Lawyer Beggs remarked: "There must be union and unity among Irishmen even if there has to be war." Closely questioned, witness said that the man who gave Le Caron his credentials was Lawrence R. Buckley, of this city. This created a sensation. Responding to another question, the witness said dramatically, "I thank God that I don't belong to any organization of which Alexander Sullivan is a member, for I consider that man is the cause of all the disgrace and slurs that have been put upon the Irish people." The last witness was Byron C. Smith, Receiver of the Traders' bank. He showed by checks on file and ledger entries that in the summer of 1882 Alex. Sullivan had altogether $100,000 in the bank, of which $10,000 was a personal account and the balance credited to "Alexander Sullivan, agent." By September 6, 1882, all this money had been drawn out on checks made payable to J. T. Lester & Co., bankers.

Woodruff emphatically denies that he made the confession attributed to him yesterday by Captain Schaack to the effect that he said Sullivan paid a large sum of money to two men in a saloon.

UNCLE JAKE'S JOKE.

"SPEAKIN' of jokes," said Uncle Jake, as he reluctantly pushed his empty glass away, "'minds me that I used to be powerful fond o' playin' pranks when I was a boy. When I was 'bout eighteen years old I used ter lay awake nights to study up some projec' er nuther to git off on somebody. It done me more good to put a tack where it 'ud be set down on than it would to 've found half a dollar; and I'd go 'thout my dinner any day to git a chance to hide the hired man's hat. But I had an experience one night that changed my sentiments considerable. Allus after that whenever anybody said any thing 'bout jokes it made me feel like I wanted to go out behind the barn and think." And a shade of melancholy flitted across the old man's face as he recalled the misfortunes of that long-ago night.

"Tell us about it, Uncle Jake," urged Bronson.

"Well, it can't do no harm to tell it, as I know of," said the old man, after a moment's reflection. "It happened the night o' Aleck Simpson's birthday party. Aleck had kind o' give out that his party was to be one of the finest affairs they'd seen in that neighborhood, and so I made preparations accordingly. I'd got the promise of Emily Peters' company. Emily was a smart little critter goin' on seventeen, and the purtiest gal in the county. All the boys were wild over her. Her cheeks 'minded you of strawberries and cream and she had a way of flashin' her big brown eyes at a feller that used ter set my heart a thumpin' like a woodpecker hammerin' on a holler limb.

"I FIXED THE WRONG BUGGY."

"I hitched the sorrel colt up to pap's new top buggy, and I jist calculated me an' Emily 'd lay 'em all in the shade. I knowed the other fellers 'ud be jealous of me for a month to come. But we had a little spat on the way and by the time we got to the party I felt more like layin' down in the haymow than goin' in 'mongst the crowd. I could a stood it though if Emily hadn't got up a flirtation with Fred Gibbs, a spindle-shanked leather-head that I despised top o' the earth, and give me to understand that she was goin' home with him.

"That jist made me red hot. I went out doors and set to work to think up some plan of revenge. By and by the thought struck me that I could get even with Fred and Emily and have a great joke on 'em at the same time by stealin' the bars offen Fred's front buggy-wheels so's the buggy 'd tumble down with 'em on the road home, and I went right straight to tend to it. After I'd throwed the bars over into the cow-lot I went off and laughed till I was sick, a' thinkin' how Fred and Emily 'd be puled out on the prairy and have to walk home.

"Soon as I could straighten my face up I went in and out sich a splurge among the girls that I reckon I must 'a made Emily jealous; anyways, she left Fred and kind o' made up to me. By the time we was ready to go home we was as sweet on one another as though nothin' had happened.

"The first half mile of our road was smooth as a floor, but I didn't hurry none. I told Emily the sorrel colt was young and it wouldn't do to drive him too fast, and she 'lowed I was right.

"We got along splendid till we came to a little creek we had to ford. As the wheels went down the bank there was a jolt and then a wobble, and out we went into the creek, ker-chunk. Jeminy! You could a' heerd the screech Emily give as she sousen into that icy water clean over into the next county. I felt like hollerin' myself, only my mouth was so full of mud and gravel I couldn't. Quick 's I could I helped Emily out. By that time we could hear the sorrel colt a-tearin' down the lane half a mile away, jist lickety-brindle; so there was nothin' left to do but walk back to Simpson's. It was along towards the latter eend of October, and our clothes froze stiff. Emily's mouth must 'a froze shet, too, I reckon, fer she's never spoke to me to this day. Of course I felt awful, but fer all that I couldn't help chucklin' every time I thought of the trouble that Fred and his girl 'ud git."

"Did Fred's buggy wheels come off in the creek, too?" asked Bronson, after waiting in vain for the old man to finish his story.

"Noap. Didn't come off at all. Ye see, Fred's buggy stood right side o' mine that night; it was darker 'n a sack o' black cats, and I was in a dreadful hurry, and—well the fact o' the matter is, I fixed the wrong buggy."

C. F. CARTER.

The Effects of Superstition.

There is a man in Washington City who says that he stood within two feet of Guiteau when he fired the fatal shots at Garfield in the Baltimore & Potomac depot. He says: "I was so startled, so fearful that my turn might accidentally come next, that I disappeared in a dazed manner and hurried home I intended the next day to appear as one of the witnesses against him, but when I learned that the man acted irrationally and that his defense was insanity, and when I further heard that he claimed to have been providentially sent to do that terrible deed, I kept my story to myself. No witnesses were needed to prove the shooting, and I was superstitious enough to keep entirely out of the affair." Even now the gentleman mentions the matter only in confidence to a few friends.

Early Indiscretions.

"It is strange how a man is obliged to pay for his early exposures or indiscretions," said Senator Davis, of Minnesota, recently, while lying ill in Washington. "When I was young I was strong and vigorous. During the war I constantly exposed myself to all sorts of weather and to numerous fatigues. I laughed at sickness, even as a possibility. But I'll tell you that within the last ten years I've been paying up for it. My physician says that all these twinges and almost unbearable aches and pains are the result of those exposures of more than a quarter of a century ago."

SUCCESS IN MARRIAGE.

The Sensible Views of an Extremely Sensible Woman.

Something About the Secrets of a Perfect Home Life—The Science of Good House-Keeping—How to Bear the Unpleasant Things of Life.

On the much mooted question, "Is Marriage a Failure?" a lady writes to the Chicago Inter Ocean some remarks so sensible that we can not but quote them for the benefit of our readers:

A woman makes a failure of marriage unless she makes an effort to do a great deal more than is implied in her marriage contract. It is supposed that the husband supplies the material for the home, and they are very raw materials indeed unless the wife takes hold of those means with the hand of a creator, building up out of them helps and associations loved and needed by both. And a woman must put her soul into her house, or it is a hollow and sounding shell.

As high as we must rate the accomplishment of good housekeeping, it is not all in the making of a home. I know a lady who was a marked failure as a housekeeper who was the idol of her husband, and who graduated to the world a family of accomplished and honored children. And there are women who in pain and weakness are confined to their own rooms, yet who manage to hold the power in an orderly house and fill it full of love-light and happiness sufficient for the comfort of all who cross its threshold.

It is the quality of recognizing and filling need that is the essential quality of success in marriage. Practically, if a man comes home from business with a headache, hungry for a bit of sympathy and love, and a good deal of quiet, and finds his wife in a raging excitement over an elaborate dinner, and is ordered to keep out of the way and amuse the children till the great proceeding is culminated, he is about as unfortunate as the man who brings a college friend home to dinner and finds his wife in wrapper and slippers deep in a French novel. But the woman who spies the coming friend from the window slides out of her wrapper in a twinkle and appears upon the scene in due time with a soul-cheering cup of French coffee, is the woman who makes her husband envied among men.

Unfortunately women have hobbies, and ride and ride and never perceive that they are boring their companions to death. There are men who would go to war to be rid of paper flowers, hair flowers, rugs, tidies and what not; and there are men who think art and music are inventions of the evil one to make people miserable. Any one, anywhere, who cultivates a hobby at the expense of other people's comfort is making a failure of life; but true politeness of the heart between friend and friend, man and wife, will obviate the danger of overdone amusements.

It is easier to forgive virtuous excess of zeal, and it is mostly excess of zeal for excellence of some kind that causes some women to be more exclusively housewives than wives of men. The greatest charity should be extended to a woman who makes her house so perfect in detail and polished in appearance that her friends go into it with fear and trembling, for she is afflicted with a virtuous zeal, and has only overdrawn a very good thing. Housekeeping has its fanatics and martyrs as well as any other good cause.

But housekeeping conducted as a means of happiness and comfort, either in a cabin or a palace, is a science that no wife can neglect if she wishes to sustain the law of mutual helpfulness in marriage.

A wife expects her husband upon marriage to begin a course of toiling for her support without remission or any suspension of responsibility, and why should he not expect her to aspire to the greatest excellence in home-making! Just here is where the wedge of dissolution frequently enters. A woman fails to give as much as she receives—that is, she works from compulsion more than from a desire to keep up her side of the partnership with dignity and grace.

But one says: "I work all the time; I work like a slave." Yes, my dear, you do work like a slave—just like a slave, and not like a responsible being seeking an end and not the means. You have braided little Eva's dress up and down and all over, which does not help little Eva, and your husband would have appreciated you more had you spent your evenings with folded hands and happy face in your rocking-chair by his side. You spend hours of time on unnecessary things and forget the essentials of your partnership, which is to evolve as much peace and comfort as possible out of your materials.

The science of good housekeeping in these days, when we can buy so many conveniences, is not so much superiority in any one thing as a general excellence in every thing. We do not need cooking-schools for girls so much as schools where all branches of home-making are taught, in order to preserve the balance of usefulness in the girl's mind. A man does not want to marry a chef de cuisine, and it is no wonder the papers make fun of cooking-schools. To learn one department of housekeeping to the neglect of every thing else is ruinous.

If a woman is to marry, there is nothing so much to be valued as good health and good sense and a very loving heart, and then it will follow that she will adapt herself to the calls upon her ability. When a woman marries for a life of ease and doesn't get it, there is certainly no remedy in her case so long as she forgets that life is a struggle anywhere, and feels that she should be excused from helping to carry the burdens of those by whom she may be surrounded.

The mutual bearance and forbearance of life is as greatly the secret of happiness in marriage as in any thing else. We have to tolerate unpleasant things in our companions in any relations of life, and why try to build up a law of marriage in any other way?

Wild Hogs in Florida.

Speaking of the wild hogs of Florida, a correspondent of the Providence Journal says: The hogs are the fiercest creatures in the wilds of Florida, and when assailed boldly attack any thing from a cougar to an alligator. They display none of the fear of the saurian which their domestic congeners do, and, though they avoid his cavernous mouth as much as possible, yet they will not hesitate a moment to charge him on dry land, and the probability is that not a shred of him, except the hide and skull, is visible half an hour afterward. They are by far the most dangerous foe a hunter can encounter in the wilderness, because, if he takes to a tree, they are sure to range themselves around its base and remain there for hours, or until compelled by hunger to start in search of pabulum. Even then the old tuskers seem loath to leave, and grunt their rage and champ their foaming jaws at the fugitive, while their malicious little eyes fairly snap with expressions of ferocity.

Irresistibility of Widows.

The fact is worth bearing in mind that Washington, after having been disappointed in two love affairs, married a widow and found the experiment a complete success.

The Attorney General Will Decide.

BOSTON, June 6.—The question of the constitutionality of the resolve passed by the Legislature under suspension of the rules, appropriating $30,000 for the flood sufferers and which caused debate in the Houses has been referred to the Attorney General for his opinion. Meanwhile the Governor withholds his signature.

To Investigate the Troy Postoffice.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Civil Service Commissioners Roosevelt and Thompson left on the eleven o'clock express yestesday for Troy, N. Y. They will make a thorough examination of the Troy postoffice, which for some time past has been represented to be in an unsatisfactory condition.

An Extraordinary Term Appointed.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 6.—Gov. Hill has appointed an extraordinary term of the Oyer and Terminer Court to be held at Saratoga, June 25, and has designated Judge Daniels to preside. Although it is not stated it is supposed it is ordered to try "boodler" McQuade.

State Senator Ives Married.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Mr. H. E. Ives, State Senator of New York, and Miss Annie, daughter of Thomas E. Waggaman of this city, were married yesterday at 11 o'clock at Trinity Church, Georgetown.

THE STRICKEN CITY

New Perils Now Threaten Johnstown.

PESTILENCE LURKS THERE.

Dwellers Along the Allegheny and Ohio River Menaced by Disease.

THREE THOUSAND BODIES FOUND.

Seven Thousand Men at Work on the Ruins Make but Little Progress in Clearing Up the Wreckage—Bodies Uncovered at Every Point—A Mother Found with Three Children Clasped in Her Arms—The Feeling Growing Stronger that Fire Must be Used to Cremate the Dead in the Ruins for the Salvation of the Living—Terrible Work of the Torrent.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 7.—Another day's work upon the ruins of Johnstown has shown the almost hopelessness of the task of making the site of the town safe for the present and habitable for the future. Seven thousand men with 500 teams and all other appliances that could be used for clearing away the ruins have made hardly preceptible progress in bettering the condition of the town. The sixty-acre gorge above the bridge, supposed to contain yet hundreds of bodies or fragments of bodies, withstands stubbornly every effort to remove it.

Three days' work, with the aid of dynamite and the most powerful lifting and pulling appliances, has not cleared a space 100 feet square. The committee in charge of the financial part of the work is in despair at the enormous extent of the task before it, and to-day issued an appeal to the official authorities and the financial organizations of the country to designate a commission to take charge of the work.

Disease consequent upon the reaction after the excitement and hardships of the past week threatens to make sad inroads into the portion of the population that still remains alive. The condition of the ruins, filled with dead bodies, menaces a still more serious situation, which is being delayed, providentially, by the continued cool weather. Danger hangs over the unhappy town from another source.

The presence of nearly ten thousand laboring men, half of them gathered at random from the idle classes in other parts of the country, and divided by race and other prejudices, threatens to lead to rioting and disorder beyond the power of the military now on hand to quell.

Liquor has been introduced among these men surreptitiously, and trouble is feared. Very strict regulations are enforced. The whole city is surrounded by a guard of soldiers, and more troops are under orders in Pittsburg ready to come here at once if needed. An effort is being made to cut off, as far as possible, the means of entrance to the city, so as to keep away the crowds. The number of passenger trains has been reduced to the lowest possible number, and no tickets to Johnstown are sold except upon a permit from the Relief committee at Pittsburg.

Supplies of every sort continue to pour in from all parts of the country, and the immediate necessities of the people are liberally provided for.

UNDER MARTIAL LAW.

Soldiers on Guard All Over the Conemaugh Valley.

JOHNSTOWN, June 7.—Yesterday afternoon the borough of Johnstown and the adjoining boroughs, or what is left of them, practically passed under martial law. Adjutant-General Hastings says he has not declared martial law, yet the soldiers are on guard, and no one is permitted between the rivers unless he has an order from the Adjutant-General. The sight-seers are debarred altogether, and the town is inaccessible except to newspaper men and other people who have business here. It is probable that the Eighteenth regiment will be ordered out, from the fact that it takes so many soldiers to cover the ground. A special guard will have to be put at Kernville, Millvale, Cambria City and other points.

A THRILLING STORY OF ESCAPE.

Thomas Magee, the cashier of the Cambria Iron company's general stores, tells a thrilling story of the manner in which he and his fellow clerks escaped from the waters themselves, how they saved the money drawer and rescued the lives of nineteen people during the progress of the flood. He says:

"It was 4:15 o'clock when the flood struck our building with a crash. It seemed to pour in from every door and window on all sides, as well as from the floors above us. I was standing by the safe, which was open at the time and I snatched the tin box which contained over $12,000 in cash and with the other clerks at my heels, flew up the stairs to the second floor. In about three minutes we were up to our stomachs in water and started to climb to the third floor of the building. Here we remained with the money until Saturday morning, when we were taken out in boats. Besides myself there were in the building Michael Maley, Frank Balsinger, Chris Mintzmeyer, Joseph Berlin and Frank Burger, all of whom escaped. All Friday night and Saturday morning we divided our time between guarding the money, providing for our own safety and rescuing and feeding the poor people who were floating by. We threw out ropes and gathered logs and timber together until we had enough to make a raft which we bound together with ropes and used in rescuing people. Besides this, we cut large pieces of canvas and all cloth and wrapped it around bread and meat and other eatables and threw it out to those who went by on house-tops, rafts, etc., whom we could not rescue without getting our raft in the drift and capsizing. We must have fed 100 people in this way alone.

"When we were rescued ourselves we took the money over to Prospect Hill and sent for the Justice of the Peace who swore us all in to keep guard over our own money and that taken by Paymaster Barry from the Cambria Iron company's general offices, amounting to $4,000, under precisely the same circumstances that marked our escape.

"We remained on guard until Monday night, when the soldiers came over and escorted us back to the office of the Cambria Iron company, where we placed the money in the company's vault."

FIGURING THE LOSSES.

The Life Loss About 2,000 and Property Valuation About $34,000,000.

JOHNSTOWN, June 7.—The loss of life by the floods in the towns of Mineral Point, Franklin, Borough, East Conemaugh, Wood Vale, Kernville, Cambria, Minersville, Morrellville, Sheridan and Cooperville, which, with Johnstown, constitute the string of communities in the direct path of flood, is about 2,000 and the loss of property about $6,000,000.

Johnstown proper and Millvale will probably add 7,000 to the death list, and about $18,000,000 to the financial loss.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's loss will be about $10,000,000, making the total loss as near as can be figured over 9,000 lives and more than $34,000,000 of property.

The loss of life at Johnstown proper is but little more than a guess.

It was too large a place for any body to known everybody, and the survivors are so scattered that the registration of the living, which has reached 12,000 in the district indicates nothing.

The loss in the smaller towns is obtained from leading men in each, who have in a measure, got their headsagain, and are able to think with some coolnes.

In detail the loss falls as follows:

	LIVES.	PROPERTY.
Mineral Point,	16	$100,000
East Conemagh and Franklin,	38	120,000
Woodvale,	200	3,500,000
Johnstown and Millville	7,000	18,000,000
Kernville,	700	300,000
Cambria,	1,000	750,000
Minersville,	8	35,000
Morrellville,	1	10,000
Sheridan and Coopersville,	None	75,000
Pennsylvania Railroad,	"	10,000,000
Total,	9,063	$32,890,000

P. E. Chapin, of Washington, who built the Gautier Steel Works, and up to January, 1888, was General Superintendent of the Cambria Iron works at Johnstown said to-day: "The loss sustained in round numbers I should think would reach $30,000,000. I doubt if twenty years will enable the valley to recover from the awful shock which is almost too horrible to realize."

W. S. Steele, Secretary of the Westmoreland and Cambria Natural Gas Company said: "Our company alone cannot replace its plant which has been washed out for less than $175,000."

Postmaster Bauman, of Johnstown, who knew every building in it and is a stockholder in a large number of manufactories and mercantile concerns in the valley, said: "I think that $20,000,000 will be found a very low estimate of Johnstown's financial loss.

"I am trustee for the largest estate in Johnstown and know what I am talking about when I make this estimate."

GATHERING THE CORPSES.

The Harvest of Bodies at Johnstown Continues Unabated.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 7.—Bodies are being recovered to-day all over the lower part of the town. Two children of Benjamin Hoffman, Miss Minnie and a little girl about two years old, were found this morning at the family residence. They were wedged in among the debris, but were only slightly disfigured. They were taken to the Presbyterian church. The body of a sixteen-year-old girl, supposed to be either Laura Frank or Miss Brinker, was found in the rear of the residence of Henry Hawes and was taken to the church. There are now at this receiving place about twelve bodies that are unidentified. Others are being brought in as they are recovered from the debris in the extreme lower end of the town. A great many are identified by being found in the houses in which they lived. Many of those found are too much disfigured to be recognized.

More Destitution Reported.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 7.—Mr. B. F. Carter has arrived here from the Crescent Pail works having walked all the way. He reports that part of the works and many of the houses have been swept away. The water was up to the roof in most of the houses. The population took refuge in a church on the hill-side and in such buildings as were not too much in water. The people are entirely destitute and Mr. Carter came to get relief. Most of the men of the town are helping to repair the railroad. About sixty people are destitute.

To Williamsport by Raft.

DUNOIS, Pa., June 7.—Alarming reports of destitution at Williamsport, which is entirely cut off by rail, have reached this place. All of last night men were at work building a boat with which to carry a relief party and a large supply of provisions from this place. The current in the Sinnemahoning river is running about ten miles an hour. The distance is sixty miles. The party will stop at Lock Haven where it is said there is much distress.

Dangerous Sidewalks.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 7.—The sidewalks in many parts of the city have been so undermined by the flood as to be exceedingly dangerous. Last evening while a crowd was congregated on Third street where a sale of damaged goods was in progress, the sidewalk gave away and Jacob Brookens, an old soldier, was precipitated into a deep opening below, and crushed to death by the flagstones which fell upon him.

They Want Rubber Gloves.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 7.—Superintendent Bradinger, of the Grand View cemetery, says his men are in need of two hundred pairs of rubber gloves. The bodies brought there for interment are so badly decomposed that it is becoming exceedingly dangerous to handle them without rubber gloves, and coffins, without any regard to decency.

5,000 Men at Work.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 7.—Although not less than 5,000 workmen are busy repairing the Pennsylvania railroad between Pittsburg and Altoona, the officials can form no estimate of how soon through connection will be established. There have been nine bridges washed away on the road, six of which are gone between Altoona and Harrisburg.

Sprinter Nills Missing.

WATERTOWN, Mass., June 7.—William Nills the 100 yard sprinter with a record of 10¼ seconds, who belongs here, was last heard from in Johnstown and is thought to be among the victims. At a citizens meeting last night $300 was subscribed and a committee appointed to collect further aid for Johnstown sufferers.

Believed to Have Perished.

BANGOR, Me., June 7.—A Kingman special special says that Nathan Donnelly and six companions from Carroll, who left for Dobsis Lake to peel bark on May 22, are believed to have perished. Fifty men with dogs have started to find them.

The Elks' Re-union Postponed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 7.—The national reunion of Elks was to have been held in Pittsburg June 19, 20 and 21. The re-union has been postponed until July 16, 17 and 18, owing to the disaster at Johnstown.

CREMATION THE CRY.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 7.—The sanitary question is the paramount one of the hour. The State Board of Health is looked up to as a more important factor than the militia and civic forces combined. This afternoon the work of the Board was distributed, Dr. Lee taking a relay to Pittsburg with the intention of establishing headquarters in City Hall. There a force of sanitary inspectors will be established, half of which go up the river by boat and the remainder take a construction crew up the railroad. The latter have adopted cremation as the cry. Dr. Morrell, Deputy Chief of the State Board of Health, said to-day:

"The point has come in this horror when sentiment should be laid aside. To endanger the lives of the living that the dead may be identified is no longer justifiable. Besides, the bodies are all past being embalmed, and friends can scarcely recognize features any longer. Identification is possible only by clothing or jewelry on the persons."

Dr. G. G. Gross, who is now in charge of the Johnstown bureau of the State Board of Health and Sanitary Inspectors, assured your correspondent this afternoon that there is no immediate danger of an epidemic in Pittsburg. "The danger," said he, "is that people will be scared into being sick. But the work looms up before us like a mountain. We need thousands of men to work on the debris and clear it of carcasses. This is the pressing question of the hour. Delay increases the danger a hundred fold."

LOST ON THE TRAINS.

Official Railroad Report of the Dead and Missing.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 7.—The official railroad reports of the dead and missing from the eastbound trains that left Pittsburg last Friday now give the number at fifteen passengers and the colored porter of the Pullman car New Orleans. There were no losses from the first two trains. The corrected list of dead is:

Mrs. TALBOTT, nee Long, Cleveland, with two or three children.

CYRUS SHICK, Reading, and his sister-in-law, Miss STINSON, who is a sister of Judge Stinson.

Mrs. Shick saved her life by going back into the car to secure her waterproof.

JOHN ROSS, Jersey City.

Mrs. J. B. RANNEY, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Miss JENNIE PAULSON and Miss BRYANT, of Pittsburgh.

Mr. MEISALL, manager of the Mansfield, O., baseball club.

Miss AGNES C. CHRISTMAN, of Beauregard, Miss.

L. PHILLIPS, (colored,) porter of the Pullman car, New Orleans.

Mrs. Wineford and daughter.

Mrs. SMITH and child, of Dayton, O., where the bodies have been forwarded.

Miss HURNISH, of Dayton, O.

ANDREW EWING, Ligonier.

Mrs. MARY SWING, Bellefonte.

LOCK HAVEN'S FLOOD.

The First Reliable News from This Flooded District.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., June 7.—The flood reached here Friday evening, and by Saturday morning the whole city was inundated, people going around in boats. The highest water was at noon Saturday. The booms gave way, letting millions of logs adrift. Small buildings were upset, and the drifting matter injured many dwellings. There was no time to remove goods from stores and merchants lose heavily. People took to the upper parts of their houses, or if they feared to remain in their homes, went in boats to the court house. The water was from five to twelve feet deep. The city is now in a muddy and delapidated condition.

James Guilford was the only person drowned here, but 28 were drowned in the vicinity, namely: William Confer, wife and two children, and two children of Jacob Koshner, at Wayne township; Robert Armstrong and sister at Clintondale; John Harter, A. Rhein, Mrs. Rhein and two girls; at Monkeyville. Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. William Emerheiser, Mrs. Henry Snyder, at Salona; Mrs. Luther Lyler and three children, at Cedar Springs. [Mr. Lyler was lodged in a tree and saved. He saw his wife drown two rods away.] Charles Cole and two children, Mrs. Clem Barner and two children, at Rote.

Most of the bodies have been recovered. Farmers along the river have suffered great loss of crops, barns, dwellings and live stock. The damage in this county will reach into the millions. The reservoirs of drinking water are ruined, but river water is being utilized. Business is at a standstill. There is no gas or electric light. All

IT IS DEVOTED, LOCALLY, TO THE INTERESTS OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, ITS SUBURBS AND ITS NEIGHBORING TOWNS; AND, POLITICALLY, TO THE ADVANCEMENT OF "THE GREATEST GOOD TO THE GREATEST NUMBER."

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED ON ALL MATTERS OF PUBLIC CONCERN, BUT PUBLISHED ONLY WHEN ACCOMPANIED BY THE NAME OF THE WRITER, IN CONFIDENCE, AS ENDORSING THE TRUTH AND HONEST INTENT OF THE COMMUNICATION.

ADVERTISING RATES MADE KNOWN ON APPLICATION AT THIS OFFICE. NOTES OF CHURCH ENTERTAINMENTS, FAIRS, SOCIABLES, LECTURES, CARDS OF THANKS, LODGE RESOLUTIONS, ETC., INSERTED FREE OR NOT, AS CHARITY OR JUSTICE MAY DEMAND.

W. L. AND A. L. FORCE, - PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

J. A. DEMAREST. - - MANAGING EDITOR.

THE PRESS is now in its third year with a subscription list that includes all the intelligent people of the City and Borough, and with the advertising patronage of all the progressive and successful merchants of Plainfield.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—The Borough Council will meet in regular session this evening.

—This evening the scholars in Rodman Seminary will be tendered their closing reception.

—Carpenters and Joiners Union, No. 155, have a special notice in our advertising columns.

—The scholars of Trinity Reformed Sunday school will observe Children's Day on Sunday afternoon with appropriate exercises.

—The strawberry and iced cream festival by the Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church, will be continued in Vincent chapel, this evening.

—Bishop McNamara, the converted Catholic priest, will deliver another in his series of sermons to Catholics and Protestants in Reform Hall, this evening.

—Yesterday's Evening Sun acknowledges the receipt of $1,800 from this city, as the first installment of Plainfield's contribution to the Johnstown relief fund.

—The Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein will hold a family festival at Keller's Grove, North Plainfield, on Pfings Monday, June 10, for which invitations have been sent to the members.

—Breakfast at Force's Hotel will be served to-morrow morning at 7:30, to the bicyclers of New Jersey who will take part in the 100-mile ride from Orange to Philadelphia, told of in yesterday's PRESS.

—Judge Magie has granted an order for the presentation of a petition from citizens of North Plainfield, asking for an increase of the liquor license fee in that township to $700, and named Monday, June 17, as the time to hear the petition.

—The Diamond base ball club, recently organized in this city, will play a match game with the Buttermilk club of New York, on the Crescent's grounds, to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Nicholson and Jayne will constitute the battery for the Diamonds.

—The tennis tournament at the Rushmore residence on Union avenue, to-morrow afternoon, will begin at three o'clock. Six young ladies will contest, and the Rev. C. L. Goodrich will umpire the match. The proceeds will go towards the Y. M. C. A. building fund.

—The Chatham nine of North Plainfield will play the Twilight Juniors, of Scotch Plains, to-morrow morning at 9:30 o'clock on the Crescent grounds. This is the return match which was to have taken place on Memorial Day, but owing to the inclement weather was indefinitely postponed.

—Just as this paper is going to press, a runaway horse in North Plainfield knocked down and probably seriously injured John D. Moore, an aged blind man. He was taken in a wagon to his home in Chatham street. A little boy was also hurt by the same horse, but the particulars of both cases cannot be given until to-morrow.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. Charles Thompson, formerly of this city, is the engineer on the Central Railroad ferry-boat, "Plainfield," which runs between Jersey City and New York.

Mr. Thomas S. Armstrong, of Reynolds' pharmacy, is confined to his home with malarial fever. His cordial greeting, genial smile and pleasant word, is much missed about the Chautauqua corner.

Mrs. Charles Matthews of North Plainfield, who is at the home of her sister, Mrs. Greenough, Sunbury, Pa., is very anxious to get home but is detained by the wreckage of the late floods in that State. The air they breathe throughout that country is said to be beyond description in its odor and effect.

The Plainfield Browning Club will meet at the Chautauqua Rooms, next Tuesday evening, and the following members will take part in a profitless consideration of "The Statue and the Bust," Miss Stout, Miss Sutphen, Mrs. Scribner, Miss French, Mrs. Goddard, Miss Bulkley, Mr. Goodrich, Mr. Joy and Mr. Larrabee.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE CHILDREN'S HOME.

An Entertaining Programme, Last Evening—Reports of President and Treasurer—Address by Elliott F. Shepard.

Trinity Reformed church was well filled last evening, upon the occasion of the anniversary of the Children's Home. The Rev. Dr. Ketcham, and the Revs. Cornelius Schenck and C. L. Goodrich, occupied the platform with Col. Elliott F. Shepard, son-in-law of the late Wm. H. Vanderbilt, and editor of the New York Mail and Express.

The evening's programme was as follows:

Organ Prelude—"Charity".....Rossini
Scripture and prayer....Rev. Cornelius Schenck
Duetts—Tuscan Folk Songs.....Luigi Caracciolo
a. A Streamlet full of Flowers.
b. Nearest and Dearest.
Mrs. Geo. A. Chapman and Miss Chapman.
Treasurer's Report.
President's Report.
Solo—"An Old Garden".....Hope Temple
Mrs. Geo. A. Chapman.
Address.....Col. Elliott F. Shepard
Offertory in "D flat".....Geo. L. Bruce Old Hundred.
Benediction.
Organ Postlude.....Eugene Thayer

Before the doxology a collection was taken up which netted the sum of $93.87, besides a check for $25 which the managers of the Home had tendered Col. Shepard for his address, and which he endorsed back to them and laid in the plate as his contribution.

The Rev. Dr. Ketcham acted as master of the ceremonies, and announced each part of the programme. Each side of him were stands on which stood big bunches of roses, and behind him Mr. Arthur Titsworth officiated in a very pleasing way on the organ.

The exercises were opened by Dr. Ketcham's request: "Let us have the thoughtful attention of you all from the outset, to the reports and address of the evening, that an earnest purpose may arise in your hearts that during the next year the society shall have more of your offerings to assist them in its glorious work." The Rev. Mr. Schenck then read a lesson from the scripture, and offered prayer.

After the duetts of Mrs. George A. Chapman and Miss Chapman, the Rev. Mr. Richards read the reports of receipts and disbursements by the late Mrs. Serrell and her daughter.

The Rev. C. L. Goodrich read the report of the President, Mrs. Horace Kimball. It covered a period of eighteen months, and was listened to with great interest throughout. It was beautifully written. A steady increase in growth, and zeal, and usefulness, was reported. "No one who is not interested and associated with us," Mrs. Kimball continued, "has any conception of the many pitiful cases brought to our attention. Full well we realize how it may be true that has been said of New Jersey: 'One in every thirty families has a member in the alms hous, in the asylum, or in the cell.' About forty different children have been cared for by us since the last report, and homes have been found for many of them. But there are still a large number about the streets who should be lifted up and saved. Our work is never finished but grows in its demands on us every year."

The report spoke also of many cases of children suffering from neglect or cruel treatment by their parents, and the managers of the Home were called upon to protect the little ones or interfere in their behalf. "There is no limit to our work, but we have an abiding faith that the friends who have sustained us in the past will continue to make it possible for us to heed the cry of the little ones." Appreciation was expressed for the efforts in behalf of the Home by the West End Literary Circle and the King's Daughters, and for the gratuitous medical attendance in the Home by Dr. Edward Rushmore, and to cases outside by Drs. W. H. Murray and M. B. Long; also to Dr. D. H. Thickstun for dental services, to Mr. H. P. Reynolds and Messrs. Field & Randolph, to Mr. W. H. Guion for coal, to Mr. J. J. H. Poillon for flowers from Netherwood chapel, and to the editors of the city papers. The report closed with a touching tribute to the nobility and faithful service of the late Mrs. L. W. Serrell, for eight years the Treasurer of the Home. She left it the sum of $1,000 in her will, which has been invested as a permanent endowment fund. Reference was also made to the $2,000 left the Home by Mrs. Sarah G. Lattimer, whose will, however, is yet in litigation.

Before introducing the speaker of the evening, Dr. Ketcham begged permission to use him for a text. "The last I saw of Col. Shepard," he said, "he was taking care of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church—giving them a sail down the bay in a big iron steamer, and talking to them in the Metropolitan Opera House. Now you will agree that the gathering of the General Presbyterian Assembly is a very large affair—500 or 600 ministers and divines and leading laymen all together. The next time I see Col. Shepard is at a much smaller affair, you'll probably say. But no! I think this is the greater occasion; for Heaven is more interested in the little ones than in the bishops and ministers and church leaders. You will be the most sure of enlisting the sympathy of the angels and the approval of Heaven, by the lifting up and the helping of the children. It is not, whosoever did it unto a bishop or a moderator—but 'unto one of the least of these, my children.'"

At the close of Col. Shepard's talk, which was of some length, Dr. Ketcham spoke of the orphans in Johnstown and stated that the Children's Home of Plainfield intended to adopt two of them. "There is some legal barrier," said the Doctor, "to the Home's acceptance of any children except from Union and Somerset counties. But where there's a will there's a way—and where there's a woman there's a will."

To Hon. James A. Beaver, Harrisburg, Pa.

The Children's Home Association of Plainfield, N. J., will, if necessary, receive at once, two orphan children from Johnstown.

Plainfield, N. J., June 7, 1889.

Mizpah Lodge Entertainment.

An entertainment of a miscellaneous nature was given in Warren Mission chapel, under the auspices of Mizpah Lodge No. 1, United Order of Independent Odd Ladies. The entertainment was a pronounced success in every particular, and reflected great credit upon those who took part. The exercises opened with an overture by the orchestra, followed by a recitation by Mr. Davis, and a violin solo by Prof. Conde. Then came a humorous recitation by Master Voehl, and a cornet solo by Mr. W. Bartow of Bound Brook. "The Gypsy Pudding," a farce in one act, was commendably rendered, and the singing by Mr. Haskard was warmly applauded. Mr. J. H. Carney also contributed some humorous recitations. The entertainment closed with a burlesque on a Woman's Rights Convention," the delegates being attired in antique costumes. "Belva Lockwood," of Kalamazoo, addressed the Convention.

At the close of the entertainment the members of the lodge, together with their families and those who took part in the exercises, met at the residence of Mr. Drake on East Front street, and enjoyed an hour or so of general sociability.

Crippled Crescents For To-morrow.

As Gately feels bound to pitch to-morrow for the nine of the institute where he is studying—it being one of a series of championship games—the Crescents are afraid they will be without his services at Somerville.

Lee is sick though it is hoped he will be able to play, and for other reasons it is not probable that any but a weak team will tackle the West Ends at Somerville, to-morrow afternoon.

Since the above was written word has been received that Gately will be on hand sure, and his catcher with him. They will make a team with McMurray, first; Condon, second; Lee, third; Dilts, short stop.

—The Francis-Eder Dramatic Co., will produce "The Social Glass," a temperance Drama at the Bound Brook Hall in that place this evening, under the management of Mr. F. C. Francis.

THE FESTIVAL IN VINCENT CHAPEL.

The Opening Night a Success—Those Who are Taking Active Part.

When the doors of Vincent chapel were thrown open last evening, a very pleasing sight greeted those who were present. The ladies of this church had planned for some time to hold a strawberry and iced cream festival, and last night their hopes were realized when the arrangements had been completed and the very large crowd filled the chapel to show their appreciation of the labor expended by those energetic ladies.

The chapel looked very pretty with the different stands, which were decorated in a way to attract one's eye. The flower booth was probably the most conspicuous. It was in the shape of a Summer house, and the decorations of leaves and ferns made it a very handsome booth. The variety of flowers displayed here was something remarkable and showed great taste in the selection.

Next came the fruit and candy booth. Everything to suit the taste was sold here and a great number surrounded the booth and kept those in attendance very busy. Then there was the booth of aprons and fancy articles, where one could buy anything they wanted in that line and of course at a reasonable price.

The pride of the ladies, and particularly the young ladies, was the gypsy encampment, which occupied the whole room in the back part of the chapel. The young ladies worked hard to make this a success and they deserve credit for what they did. There were two tents pitched, straw laid loosely around the floor, and everything went to make up a real "gypsy camp." Then there were nice young ladies dressed in gypsy costumes, who would tell your fortune for a small price—and who would not have their fortune told by such attractive young ladies? There was also lemonade sold at this camp.

All these booths were presided over by young ladies principally, with some young men helping. Below will be found a full and complete list of those who are assisting in the affair, which will be continued this evening:

Fruit and Candy—Mrs. S. I. Mitchell, Mrs. S. C. Baker, Miss Laura Baker, Miss Belle Lunger, Miss Lillie Chandler.

Apron and Fancy booth—Mrs. J. N. McNaughton, Mrs. C. VanVliet, Mrs. J. W. Jackson, Mrs. P. M. Smith, Mrs. C. C. Cokefair.

THE NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Dates of Dedicatory and Other Opening Services, and Their Nature.

The new church that is just being completed for Dr. Ketcham and his people—and which is probably one of the handsomest in the State, in its interior—is to be formally dedicated on Tuesday evening, the 25th inst.

During the evening of the next day, Wednesday, there will be another special service under the auspices of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, in their own behalf and in behalf of the Sunday school. There will be addresses by prominent Christian workers.

Friday evening, June 28, will be held a fraternal service presided over by the Rev. W. R. Richards of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, in which pastors of the different churches of the city will take part and also a layman representative of the churches and one for the Young Men's Christian Association.

The arrangements and date for the inauguration of the very fine Midmer organ that has been built for the church have not yet been finally settled.

A Victim of Many Fires.

The barn of John Wendell, near Mount Bethel, was struck by lightning, Wednesday morning, and burned to the ground. The building was a total loss together with its contents, farming implements, etc., all of which were covered by insurance in Mr. Wm. Woodruff's agency in this city, for $1,000.

A short time ago Mr. Wendell's house was struck by lightning, and almost consumed. Wednesday morning he was awakened by the storm and got out in time to save his horses that were in the barn. It is only a few months since his wagonhouse caught fire and was burned down.

—The closing exercises of the Kitchen Garden, connected with the W. C. T. U., will take place in the W. C. T. U. rooms on West Front street, on Tuesday evening next.

—Mrs. W. W. Hall, 75 W. Sixth street: Since using Dr. Dam's Remedy, the swelling in my knees from rheumatism is all gone, and I can walk up and down stairs without help.

THEY JUMPED ON THE LITTLE GIANTS NECK.

Plainfield's Colored Ball Players Can Beat Somerville, if the White Folks Can't.

A team of gaudy kalsominers from Somerville, in potato-bug caps, came down to Plainfield, yesterday, to do up the colored ball players of this city. They called themselves the "Little Jints," carried a wagon-tongue bat about four-foot long with a black band around it, and were headed by their Manager, Mr. Zach Titus, arrayed in a striped swimming shirt, a gold plated medal and an umbrella. They also brought an official scorer with them, Mr. Mush, and a large amount of determination to win.

The Plainfield shiners were also dressed regardless. They had on their new suits for the first time, but they had had no practice. Capt. Jack Carey did not play himself, but directed his team from the grand stand. When the game was half over and the Somervilles were seven runs ahead, Captain Carey saved the day by firing his brother Mose off of first base and putting Mr. Martin on that bag. The Plainfielders called themselves the "Centrals."

The "Little Jints" had the reputation, the practice, the wagon-tongue bat and the scorer, but they didn't have the umpire. Charley Kline officiated in that capacity and kept an account of balls and strikes on a sheet of wrapping paper with a blue pencil. He was ready to bet cigars on the man at the bat, in favor of the Centrals every time. He hollered "gee!" and started for the fence every time a foul tip went by him.

The attendence included a number of ladies of color who fainted and fell off the top seat of the grand stand when Gamey Nelson lighted his pipe full of Coons' Delight. A pair of prominent legal lights of the city were present, and many other illustrious black and white folks. When game was called shortly after three o'clock, the field presented a beautiful sight, its green grass dotted here and there with black daisies.

Pop Nelson's boy was not on hand in the beginning, and an imported catcher from Saratoga put the wire fence around his mouth and went behind the bat for the Centrals in the first inning. If he had staid there the score would have finished in favor of the "Little Jints." But Nelson arrived after the first inning and helped save the game for Plainfield.

There was some "scand'lus playin'" as Jim Scott remarked, on both sides, and at the close of the seventh inning, although the Centrals had pulled up four runs and busted the cover of the ball, the score stood 20 to 14 in favor of Somerville. In the next inning, however, the Plainfielders quit 'em. Little Sammy Vandervoort, the Somerville pitcher, lost his catch, and every man of the Centrals made a run. Os TenEyck, while at the bat, was struck in the temple by a pitched ball and had to be carried off the field. A culled lady in the crowd rushed to his aid, turned white as the ace of spades, shouted "Golly! He's knocked sensible," and fainted in Ed Staats' arms.

The excitement was increased when Mose Carey stepped to the plate and was knocked off his base by another pitched ball. He was likewise laid by to recover, and the "Little Jints" had to put up a new pitcher and surrender the game. If Sammy had stuck to it as Harkins does, and drove the batters back, Somerville would have won the game.

The score was as follows:

Six Speakers Last Evening at Reform Hall.

The midweek meetings held in Reform Hall under the auspices of the Reform Club, are very interesting occasions and growing in favor. That of last evening was especially so, appropriate remarks being made by Mrs. Angleman, Mr. Vroom of Somerville, and Messrs Markley, Angleman, Neise and Opdyke. Vice President Harper presided, and Mrs. King led the singing. The regular monthly business of the Club was postponed until Thursday evening of next week.

A $6,000 School For Dunellen.

A large and harmonious meeting of the voters of that School District, was held in Dunellen, last evening. I. D. Titsworth was chosen chairman, and the Rev. L. E. Livermore, clerk.

After a short consideration of the subject, a resolution was adopted by a large majority to bond the District for $6,000 with which to build a new school house on the North side of the railroad, at Dunellen. There are now 309 scholars in the District, and only school accomodations for 250.

Plainfielders Off For Johnstown.

A Bovine Suicide.

A cow belonging to Mrs. Davis, of East Front street, near Clinton avenue, committed suicide by twisting a rope around her neck, a few days ago, and was found dead in the barn.

The Board of Health of this city have been vainly appealed to to remove the carcass, and only because of the cool weather is the atmosphere of the neighborhood, bearable.

Anybody but Mack.

At the Somerville ball game, to-morrow afternoon, the Crescents should insist upon some other umpire than Mack. One of the Plainfield nine says he will leave the field if Mack umpires, and the rest of the team should do likewise.

—William A. Slater has pledged $15,000 for a building for the Norwich, Conn., Y. M. C. A. upon condition that $40.000 more is subscribed between now and Jan. 1, 1890.

THE WEAVERS' STRIKE.

A Prospective Settlement of Providence's Labor Difficulty.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 7.—Negotiations which have been in progress for a settlement of the weavers' strike at the Berkely mills seem now about to be successful. The company waives its discrimination against the six men whom it at first desired to eject from its houses, and agrees to give them an equal chance for employment. The company also agrees to abandon the manufacture of cambric muslins, and alter the gears, leaving the schudule the same as that offered for the abandoned goods, and unchanged from that offered for all other goods. The success of the weavers on the cambric muslin question is a decided relief to the employes of the other mills, where these goods form the chief output. The Berkely made but little of them, but if the deduction had been effected it would have spread to the other mills. The spinners' difficulty at the Berkely was settled some time ago but the spinners have remained out to assist the weavers.

Indians Signing the Treaty.

PIERRE, Dak., June 7.—An Indian runner arrived at Fort Pierre this morning direct from Rosebud Agency on his way to Cheyenne, with word that the Indians at the agency had commenced to sign the treaty, and that the commission would get them all. Fort Pierre is a hard day's travel from Rosebud and on the direct trail to Cheyenne, and runners were sent from Rosebud as soon as the result was known of the Indians action there to inform all other agencies.

Congress of Medical Jurisprudence.

NEW YORK, June 7.—At the morning's session of the American International Congress of Medical Jurisprudence at Steinway Hall to-day, papers were read on "Mental Epidemics," "The Power to Transmit and Record Language" and the "Abolition of the Coroner in Massachusetts." Some of the delegates visited the insane asylum this afternoon.

NOTES OF THE FLOOD.

Woodvale has lost a total of 442 out of a population of 1,030 persons.

A fund for the relief of the sufferers by the Johnstown floods has been started in Vienna.

Large quantities of sulphate of iron were placed in various parts of Johnstown yesterday as a disinfectant.

The Aetna Fire Insurance company of Hartford, Conn., has contributed $1,000 for the Johnstown sufferers.

The Phœnix Fire Insurance company, of Hartford, Conn., has contributed $1,000 to the Pennsylvania sufferers.

Mrs. Annie Frederick, aged 84, and Mrs. Horn, taken from Johnstown to Mercy Hospital, in Pittsburg, died yesterday from pneumonia.

The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung in an editorial on the Johnstown floods, closes with a call upon German generosity in aid of the sufferers.

At 9 o'clock last night Governor Beaver had received from and been authorized to draw on parties in various portions of the country $203,000.

Fifty men were arrested yesterday for loafing about Booth & Flinn's tent and stealing the provisions from the working men at Johnstown.

The amount subscribed in Utica, N. Y., for the relief of the Johnstown sufferers is now nearly $6,000. Of this $4,500 has already been sent on.

It is estimated that it will take 10,000 men sixty days to clear away the Johnstown wreck. At this rate it will require $1,500,000 to pay for the work.

The New York Mayor's fund for Johnstown has reached $163,000 and the Chamber of Commerce fund $48,000. Other funds are also increasing rapidly.

Dr. Lee said late yesterday afternoon that one case, presumably typhoid fever, had been reported from some distance out of Johnstown. The doctors say there is not a case in town yet.

Contributions are coming in from New Orleans and all over Louisiana and Mississippi for the Johnstown sufferers. The Catholic Knights of America have issued an appeal for subscriptions.

The feeding of the workers is one of the greatest difficulties of the present moment at Johnstown. Supplies are plentiful enough but there is no way of cooking and serving them to such an army.

Chief Arthur Opposed to Strikes.

CHICAGO, June 7.—About 200 members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers from various states met here to consider the question of a successor to Chief Arthur. Mr. Arthur was asked whether, if certain threatened reductions in wages were made, he would sanction a strike, he replied emphatically: "Under no circumstances of which I can conceive shall I ever sanction another strike." He went on to say that he opposed strikes on general principles, and also on the practical ground that it was useless to try to avoid the operation of the law of supply and demand in the labor market.

Fourth-Class Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The following fourth-class postmasters have been appointed in New York: J. B. Welling, Altensborough; A. B. York, Allentown; J. R. Ross, Belen; J. B. Gleason, Ceres; F. N. Petrie, Columbia; M. Gardinier, Hales Eddy; A. Potter, Hawkinsville; A. L. Hager, Hobart; W. O. Harmon, Leon; C. E. Graf, Martinsville; A. Cartwright, Jr., Roxbury; A. L. Pomeroy, Sand Lake; E. F. Beach, South Dayton; H. G. Willse, South Edmonston; Theodore Cobb, Spring Mills; F. B. Randall, Sylvan Beach; Orson Champlin, West Edmaston.

The Price of His Wife's Affections.

BOSTON, June 7.—In the Superior Court Oliver M. Hapgood, a baggage-master on the Boston and Albany railroad, is suing Horatio W. Southworth, a Springfield paper manufacturer, said to be worth two or three million dollars, for $50,000 for the alleged alienation of his wife's affections by the defendant, who at one time boarded in Hapgood's family in Boston. The defense is a general denial.

CRONIN'S SLAYERS

Strong Testimony Pointing Toward Them.

AT THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

The Doctor Was Expelled from the Clan-na-Gael for Treason.

Thomas O'Connor a Sensational Witness.

Dr. Cronin Told Him He Was Afraid of His Life, for Having Exposed Certain Members of the Clan-na-Gael—Cronin Advised to Go Armed at Night—Lawyer Beggs on the Stand.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Thomas O'Connor, an employe of the city Law department, was a witness at the Cronin inquest yesterday. He was a member of Camp 96, Clan-na-Gael, the same to which Coughlin and P. O. Sullivan belonged. He had known Dr. Cronin for four or five years.

Dr. Cronin, he said, told him he was afraid of his life on account of some exposures he had made of misappropriations of funds by certain members of the Clan-na-Gael. He did not mention any names. Witness advised him to go armed at night. Witness knew Coughlin four or five years. He met P. O. Sullivan in front of his house the night after Dr. Cronin's disappearance. He asked Sullivan how long he had known Cronin. Sullivan said, ever since John Finerty ran for City Treasurer. Witness was present when Daniel Brown of Camp 16, Clan-na-Gael, and a police officer on duty at Stanton Avenue station, presented and read charges in Camp 96, which he had presented in Camp 16. They charged Dr. Cronin with reading in the camp of which he was the chief officer, a circular from a camp which had been expelled from the order by the executive body.

A committee composed of Lawrence R. Buckley, Frank Murray, Dan Coughlin, John F. O'Malley, James J. Cune and others whose name he did not remember were appointed to investigate the charges. They reported the result of their investigation to the executive body which expelled Dr. Cronin.

On Friday after Cronin's disappearance witness met Dan Coughlin and officer Whalen on a corner. They spoke of the disappearance. Coughlin said he believed Cronin was in London with Le Caron. Witness expressed belief that he was true to the Irish cause and was not there. Coughlin replied: "I hope he is over there and alive."

Witness then told of having been approached by a man unknown to him, who told him he might be selected for some work across the water. On Dr. Cronin's advice he determined to have nothing to do with it.

At the afternoon session John F. Beggs, the lawyer who has figured in the case as a personal friend of Alex. Sullivan's and who went East on a mysterious mission for the latter, was the principal witness. Under a close cross-examination he admitted that he was the present Senior Guardian of Camp 20 of the Clan-na-Gael's. There was no roster of the Camp in existence. He could not swear that he did not meet Detective Coughlin on the day of Cronin's disappearance. Nor on the following day, pleading faulty memory. He remembered, however, that he was at the Grand Pacific on the night in question with a party of friends. At a camp meeting in January he said there were several attacks by inuendo upon Alex. Sullivan and in response he pitched into the speakers and handled them without gloves, telling them that if they wanted to abuse Sullivan they should mention his name and not attack him under cover in a cowardly manner. He repeated the story of going to New York May 14 and meeting a man named Powers, who told him that he had met Starkey, the fugitive jury briber. From thence he went to Spring Valley, N. Y. Witness denied that he had sent a despatch from that point signed with his initials and to the effect that he had met Dr. Cronin. From Spring Valley he went to Niagara Falls, where he met John H. Ronayne, a member of the Clan-na-Gael executive committee. They had a general talk. He had seen Alex. Sullivan since his return but not a word passed about the finding of the body. Replying to a final question Beggs said that he had no theory regarding the murder.

A. J. Ford, another member of Camp 20, corroborated previous witnesses regarding Cronin having been expelled at one time from the order. Incidentally it came out that Thomas Murphy, father of the Miss Murphy who claimed to have seen Dr. Cronin on a street-car on the night of the murder, was a member of the trial committee.

End of a Long Standing Feud.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 7.—A long standing feud between Captain J. W. Douglass, a prominent Democratic politician of Dayton, and J. H. Benjamin, editor of the Deland News, had its outcome in the fatal shooting at New Smyrna last night of Douglass by Benjamin. Angered by an attack upon him which appeared recently in Benjamin's paper Douglass assaulted him, knocked him off the pier into the marsh and jumped on him. While he was holding Benjamin's head under water, Benjamin managed to draw his revolver and shot his assailant dead, the ball entering his heart. There is much excitement.

Won by Kingscote.

LONDON, June 7.—The race for the Epsom Grand Prize of 1,000 sovereigns for the winner and 200 sovereigns for the nominator of the winner, added to a sweepstakes of 25 sovereigns each, 10 forfeit, for three-year-olds, was won by Lord Arlington's bay colt Kingscote. The Duke of Portland's bay colt Melanion was second and Mr. J. H. Wright's brown colt Indian Prince, was third. The distance was about a mile and a quarter.

Three Young Men Drowned.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 7.—By the capsizing of a boat in the harbor yesterday afternoon, John Moran, aged 18, James McNiff, 19, and William Hart, 16, were drowned. James Hamilton, aged 18, was saved. McNiff was a good swimmer and declined proffered assistance in favor of Hamilton.

No Satisfaction for the Strikers.

AMESBURY, Mass., June 7.—A committee of the striking weavers of the Hamilton corporation had a conference with mill agent Quinn yesterday. The committee got no satisfaction whatever, and the strikers voted to remain out. One thousand looms and about 400 hands are idle.

A Detective Plucked.

BERLIN, June 7.—A New York detective who came from the Paris exhibition and is now visiting in Berlin, had his pocket picked here to-day. He lost his money and some valuable papers.

MEN WORTH KNOWING.

Two Western Clergymen Who Enjoy a National Reputation—The Habits and Life-Work of Dr. Withrow and Bishop Cheney—The Largest Sunday-School in the World and Its Superintendent.

[Special Chicago Correspondence.]

As a usual thing I do not care to write about preachers. They are privileged characters; adored by the female members of their flocks, revered by two or three score masculine followers, and harshly criticised by that scornful multitude which takes no stock in organized church work. When I call preachers privileged characters I use the word "privileged" advisedly. They are privileged inasmuch as they are exempt from the jeers and gibes of their immediate followers, who, however, are ever ready to prosecute with exasperating commiseration the shepherds of their flocks. Vive la bagatelle is, after all, the maxim to which the great majority of the human family subscribes, and if Samantha can hurt Jerusha by circulating a little story elaborated so as to add piquancy to a commonplace tale she is happy, smiles a self-satisfied smile and is hailed by her intimates as a victor in the contest of trifles.

Spurned on to further efforts by her triumph over Jerusha, Samantha turns to Jane, from Jane to John, from John to George and finally singles out one of her ministerial acquaintances as the victim of victims. Verily, life is made up of little things, but no class has to endure so many pricks as the clerical profession. And that is the reason why I do not care to write about them—being of a humanitarian disposition and not inclined to add to the hardships of a deserving class by exposing their lives and, worst of all, their pictures to the gaze of an extensive newspaper constituency.

And yet, preachers being semi-public characters, every writer is at times compelled to write about them. This being the case, I have singled out for consideration in the following paragraphs two divines whose reputation is so well established that even the scornful multitude would find it difficult to assail their private or public acts and lives.

Rev. John Lindsay Withrow, D. D., pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Chicago, the largest congregation of that denomination in the West, has perhaps a larger number of admirers than any other orthodox minister outside of Brooklyn. Born in Philadelphia, in 1837, he was educated in Princeton College and seminary, where he imbibed enough Calvinistic doctrine to last him for the life-time of one of the Old Testament patriarchs.

He preached many years in Boston and other Eastern cities. His untiring zeal, displayed in the building up of weak churches, a few years ago attracted the attention of his present congregation, whose executive officers offered him a salary of nine thousand dollars per year, an assistant, and various other inducements calculated to make the call acceptable. He became the successor of the famous—some call him notorious—Dr. A. E. Kittredge, who at one time enjoyed a National reputation as the author of the most irresponsible statement ever made from an American pulpit. Dr. Withrow's success in the West, and the commanding position occupied by him in the councils of his denomination, which has made his name familiar in every Christian family in the land, is due to his earnestness and energy. A man of fine physique, a full, melodious voice and commanding presence, supplemented by a thorough education and religious fervor, he is one of the few whose very looks and action appeal to the crowd. As a pulpit orator he has few equals even in Chicago, and as an organizer he has none. While storing up treasures in Heaven and in the hearts of his fellow-men, he has not neglected to make some investments in real estate and other mundane commodities of an equally substantial nature, which he manages with a skill that proves him to be as much of a financier as a theologian. In personal appearance Dr. Withrow is a noble specimen of manhood. He is free from affectation and cant, and as earnest out of church as when occupying the pulpit. That a man of so many virtues should win the love of an immense congregation and the respect of an entire community will not surprise those who have had the pleasure of listening to one of his old-fashioned, but good-natured, sermons.

A man differing from Dr. Withrow both as regards personal appearance and pulpit manners, but just as earnest and successful as his Presbyterian brother, is the Right-Reverend Charles Edward Cheney, D. D., senior Bishop of the Reformed Episcopal Church, and rector of Christ Church, Chicago. Dr. Cheney is a native of Canandaigua, New York, where he was born on February 12, 1836. After graduating from Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., he entered the Protestant Episcopal Seminary at Alexandria, Va., and was, in 1860, ordained presbyter by the Bishop of New York. A few weeks later he was called to Christ Church, Chicago, over which he still presides. On December 14, 1873, he was consecrated Bishop. Dr. Cheney always was what is called a low-church man, and as early as 1864 had trouble with Bishop Whitehouse, of Chicago, the most pronounced ritualist who ever presided over an American diocese. When, in 1873, the Reformed Episcopal Church was organized, Christ Church, under the leadership of Dr. Cheney, espoused the new cause; but not before the rector had been suspended by Bishop Whitehouse. A fierce legal war which lasted some years was waged between the ecclesiastical authorities of the old church against the seceders, which terminated in a complete victory for the Reformers. Dr. Cheney is a good man who believes in that kind of faith which lives by works and not by the observation of ritualistic regulations. He is adored by the members of his flock and by the thirty thousand communicants of his sect, but has never won the affections of the people at large.

Unlike Dr. Withrow, who has been called the most unaffected man in the pulpit, Dr. Cheney makes a painful impression on hearers not accustomed to his ways, by dealing in far-fetched metaphors and by drawing out his words to a seemingly endless length. His friends claim that the Bishop is free from affectation, that he acts and speaks in the pulpit just as he would in a parlor. If such is the case it would seem—to a man up in a tree, at least—that he would make a very tiresome and nerve-trying companion at a surprise party. Dr. Cheney's greatest virtue is charity, and hundreds of poor people have been saved by him from hunger, squalor and misery. In this labor of love the Bishop employs no agents, but takes it upon himself to comfort the homeless and the fatherless. He has always "done good by stealth, and now blushes to find it fame." That a man of such a disposition should gather around him a host of personal friends is natural, and that he has succeeded in making the Reformed Episcopal church respectable in point of numbers as well as principles, must be gratifying to all who love fair play and love to see devotion and enterprise rewarded.

Turning from the pulpit to the Sunday-school rooms, every man acquainted with Chicago affairs will think of Charles B. Holmes, the general manager of the greatest street railway syndicate ever organized, and the superintendent and teacher of the largest Sunday-school in the world. Mr. Holmes was born in Springfield, Vt., in 1840, but removed to Illinois with his parents in 1856. He received a thorough common-school and academic education. He earned his first money as a farm hand, in which capacity he worked for twelve dollars per month. Afterward he engaged in railroad surveying and farming in Northern Iowa. In 1863 Mr. Holmes removed to Chicago, where he became manager of the Union Line Transportation Company and later the superintendent of the Chicago City Railway Company, which owns all the surface street-car lines in the South division of Chicago. Under his management the magnificent cable system of roads was built and the lines extended in every direction, so that they now have 135 miles of track, 2,000 horses, 4,000 horse-power of cables and over 1,000 large cars. During the past year or two a syndicate organized by Mr. Holmes has secured control of the leading street-car lines of Indianapolis, Ind., St. Louis, Mo., Los Angeles, Cal., Davenport, Ia., and Rock Island and Moline, Ill.

That during these years of enterprise he has accumulated a snug fortune goes without saying; and as he has always tried to please the public which patronizes his street-car lines, he has perhaps fewer enemies than any man in public life. Mr. Holmes' hobby is, as has already been stated, a Sunday-school which he organized about eleven years ago in the North division of Chicago, a portion of the city inhabited chiefly by poor foreigners. The school at the present time has over three thousand pupils, who are divided into regiments and companies and are addressed by Mr. Holmes and others every Sunday afternoon. Connected with the school is a relief bureau which does much toward relieving the necessities of the pupils, hundreds of them being supplied with clothing by the patrons of the bureau, chief among whom is Mr. Holmes. It is always a pleasure to honor an honest, self-made man, but it is not often that one finds as ample ground for praise as in this instance. G. W. WEIPPIERT.

"We were sitting in the sanctum of the Burlington Hawkeye, Bob Burdette and I," says Hon. Frank Hatton, "when a collector came in. Bob sat on one side of the table and I sat on the other. The collector came through the door with a bill in his hand and blood in his eye as he asked if Mr. Burdette was in. Bob looked sadly at him, and answered in the affirmative. The collector presented a coal bill, and Bob looked at it very deliberately, and finally said: 'I believe that this bill is all right. This is Friday, let me see, next Monday is our pay-day. Please be kind enough to be here Monday evening with your bill.' The suave manner and confident tone disarmed the collector and he bowed himself out, but promised very sincerely to be on hand Monday evening. As soon as he was downstairs, and the rattlety bang of his hob-nailed shoes ceased to sound in our ears, Bob looked up from his manuscript, and murmured: 'By Jove, Frank, I fear I shall not be here to meet that gentleman, for I lecture in Peoria on Monday evening.' His earnest manner of regretfulness was so well assumed that I hurt myself laughing. It was one of Bob's best practical jokes—and the collector was its butt. Bob don't go off lecturing nowadays, though, to dodge collectors. The world realizes his genius and pays well for his talents."

She Wanted It Cashed.

The visitors in the ante-room of the Postmaster-General were greatly amused a few days ago by the action of a colored woman who called. She handed a letter to the messenger, stated that it was for the Postmaster-General, and the messenger disappeared with the missive. Almost immediately he returned, saying: "This letter is for the postmaster of the city, and not for the Postmaster-General. It is a money order, and the city postmaster will cash it for you." He had to talk long and eloquently to convince the old woman that the Postmaster-General could not make a business of cashing money orders. Finally she went away muttering about her need of the money and "Posemas-Jinnil kin of he wud."

Gov. Goodell's Inaugural Address.

CONCORD N. H., June 7.—In his address the Governor stated that the present indebtedness of the State is $3,682,316, a decrease of $98,984 in the last two years. He recommended modern equipment and increased appropriations for the Normal School and Agricultural College. On the question of temperance he has been forced to the conclusion that it is the duty of the State to prohibit the sale of all poisons to be used for illegitimate purposes. Among other recommendations made are: Measures for the improvement of the State militia; such State relief of the indigent soldiers as will remove the stigma of pauperism; the adoption of the Australian or some system of voting that will insure a pure ballot, and a revision of the laws of the State.

Victory for the Standard Oil People.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 7.—The National White Lead Trust succeeded to-day in purchasing the plant of the Collier White Lead Company and the Southern White Lead Company for $4,500,000. This is a great victory for the Standard Oil people and they now control absolutely the output of white lead in America.

The Seized Schooner.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 7.—The seized American fishing schooner Mattie Winships has furnished the required $3,000 bond, and is getting ready to sail again for the mackerel grounds.

DANGER OF DISEASE

A Blazing Sun Doing Its Baleful Work.

TERRIBLE ODOR EVERYWHERE.

Physicians Working Tirelessly to Avert the Pestilence.

THE RED CROSS ON THE CONEMAUGH.

The City of the Dead Now Full of Busy Life—Every Heap of Rubbish Swarming with Workmen—Little Progress Made in Clearing the Great Gorge Above the Bridge—Busy Scenes at the Relief Stations—Plenty of Food and Clothing for the Needy—Homes Offered to the Orphans of the Flood.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 8.—The passage of another day has made no perceptible improvement in the situation. A little more progress has been made in the work of clearing up the ruins, but the weather has changed for the worse, and the sanitary condition of the place is becoming intolerable. The medical corps has been thoroughly organized and is working tirelessly, and thus far with marked success. More men, teams and appliances than ever were at work on the ruins all day, but their work hardly begins to show. In the gorge above the bridge dynamite was used more vigorously than ever, and with some success. The opening yet made into it is, however, very small. Late in the day several bodies were loosened from the debris by the explosions and taken to the morgues. Elsewhere in the city the gleaners in the field of death have been as sadly successful as usual, and many unrecognizable forms have been added to those already spread out in the morgues—a formality that has become almost useless, as hardly one of the bodies now being recovered can be identified. The Red Cross, the Children's Aid society, the Grand Army of the Republic, the Masons, the Odd Fellows, and several other organizations have established relief agencies here, in charge of leading officers of the State and national organizations. The Grand Army, Department of Pennsylvania, has charge of the distribution of supplies to the suffering. The work of relief has been so systematized that it is believed that now but little goes to those not really deserving.

Every effort is being made to get out of town people who have no business here, or to make them work if they stay. The regulations are very strict and are being rigidly enforced by the military. A sort of quarantine has been established against the town, and very few people are able to get here. The officers of the South Fork Fishing and Hunting club, who controlled the dam, the bursting of which caused the disaster, admit the truth of the statement that the waste gates in the bottom of the dam were kept closed, but claim that they would not have relieved the dam to any great extent.

Under a blazing hot sun to-day, and with an atmosphere heavy with smoke, there has arisen everywhere about the town a terrible oder, the danger of which to the public health cannot be overestimated. The doctors advise every one who can leave the place to do so, and warn those who stay that every possible precaution must be taken if dangerous sickness is to be averted. There is as yet no appearance of anything like an epidemic, almost all the sick being down from the consequences of the excitement of the past week. The place, owing to its high situation among the mountains, is naturally healthy, and this will count for a great deal at such a time as this. Pure water from mountain springs can also be obtained by those who take a little trouble to get it. The doctors, on the whole, are inclined to take a rather favorable view of the situation, in spite of the condition of the atmosphere.

TO FIX THE RESPONSIBILITY.

Coroner Evan's jury, empanelled on the case of Mrs. Hite, of Johnstown, to endeavor to fix the responsibility for the disaster, held another session yesterday in Kernville and adjourned until next Wednesday. In setting forth the case of Mrs. Hite, Dr. Evans was careful to get a flood victim about whose identity there could be no doubt, and whose death by the flood could be thoroughly authenticated. At the next session testimony as to the safety of the South Fork dam and the culpability of the proprietors will be taken.

THE FLOOD'S PARTING CURSE.

It is feared at the Red Cross corps headquarters that the flood has left a parting curse hovering over the Conemaugh valley in the form of the dread disease diphtheria. The attentions of the medical people are now directed to Kernville, where the Red Cross makes no secret of a prevailing epidemic. Miss Clara A. Barton and Dr. O'Neill, of the Red Cross, decided to-day to establish a hospital at Kernville, and after much trouble with the local authorities secured a site and erected their hospital tents with Dr. Berus, of Philadelphia, in charge. To-morrow morning they will be prepared to receive the patients, of which there is a large number.

HARMONY IN THE WORK.

Governor Beaver Denies Reported Disagreements with Citizens.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 8.—Much reckless censure has been heaped upon Governor Beaver by a newspaper opposed to the administration for alleged disagreement with other citizens of the State concerning the methods adopted for the relief of the flood sufferers. Those in Harrisburg well know how earnestly and untiringly the Governor has labored to relieve the distress of the deluged cities.

To-day, in an authorized interview, he denied in toto the reports of disagreement between the General Committee at Pittsburg and himself.

"There is not," said he, "the slightest foundation for such a rumor. We have been in constant and direct communication since last Monday, and all that they have done has been most cordially indorsed by me."

Governor Beaver went to Philadelphia this morning for a conference with leading citizens of that city, when, it is hoped, some plan will be devised by which a central committee of responsible persons may be organized, to which may be referred the distribution of the various funds in the Governor's hands.

"Those who have contributed for the relief of our distressed people," added he, "may be assured that every cent of their contributions has been and will be wisely spent." He says there is need for all the funds contributed and likely to be contributed for the relief of the homeless and destitute. Governer Beaver is being greatly aided in his humane work by General Hastings at Johnstown and Secretary Stone at Williamsport.

HOPE AGAIN REVIVES.

A More Encouraging Outlook at Williamsport—News from Other Places.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 8.—A more hopeful state of affairs is apparent here to-day. With the partial resumption of railway communication and the generous contribution of money and provisions from the outside world for the sufferers here, the spirits of our people are rising.

All this is evident from the activity of the people to resume their normal condition prior to the flood. It is also evident from the fact that our citizens have already contributed $30,000 for the needy ones.

The Montgomery bridge is expected to be in readiness for travel by Sunday.

The first mails to arrive here from the East for a week were distributed this morning.

A relief committee from Troy, Pa., reached this city last night after a perilous journey. They report great damage there. Their people are in need of aid.

Edward Parker, who was in Johnstown and supposed to have been lost, reached his home in this city last night.

Wellsboro, Tioga County, is in a very bad shape. A number of people were drowned. Much property was destroyed and the people are suffering for the necessaries of life.

Reports from Muncy, in the lower end of this county, have just reached here. They are to the effect that while no lives were lost, the loss to property was enormous.

All the bridges in the lower end of Lycoming County are gone, and the smaller streams are raging torrents.

Cashier Green, of the Muncy First National Bank, had seven feet of water in his house.

Reliable reports from Lock Haven that whilst only one person was drowned in that city, the list of those known to have perished in the County of Clinton is thirty or more. The property loss will reach millions of dollars and business is at a standstill. Danger is now threatened them from sickness. Robert I. Fleming is treasurer of the relief fund.

SANITARY WORK AT MILTON.

Money Appropriated to Be Used in Cleaning the Place.

MILTON, Pa., June 8.—A Board of Relief and Sanitation has been appointed whose duties are to look after the proper cleansing of cellars, houses, cess-pools and stagnant places and $500 has been donated to their use.

The mud, slime and debris left by the flood are now being carted away and citizens are doing what they can to repair their damaged houses and premises.

Cadwallader Biddle of the State Board of Charities arrived here last night and found he relief commission attending to the immediate wants of the distressed.

The canalboat Jacob Leithse, of York, Pa., lies midway between the canal and the river, high and dry on a farm two miles below here. She was carried there by the flood.

It Was Their Funeral, Too.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 8.—Lying alongside of the Southward Schoolhouse is a coffin partially burned. Inquiry developed that at the time the water reached Johnstown a funeral was being held in the Catholic Church. The mourners and carriages standing in front of the church were swept away. The church took fire subsequently and the coffin and corpse were partially consumed. What was left of the body was recognized and buried. None of those present in the church were known to have been saved.

Turned His Hair Gray.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 8.—Zill Gruber, of Kerusville, on Friday morning last had jet black hair, mustache and beard. That night he had a battle with the waters. On Saturday morning his hair and beard began to turn gray and they are now well streaked with white. Gruber attributes the change to his awful Friday night's experience.

NOTES OF THE FLOOD.

Trenton, N. J., has collected $15,000 so far for the Johnstown sufferers.

The total amount raised in Rochester, N. Y., for the Johnstown sufferers is $4,700.

The supply of clothing at Williamsport, Pa., is exhausted and such contributions are greatly needed.

Up to last evening $11,500 had been sent from Albany, N. Y., to Johnstown for the relief of the flood sufferers.

Supreme Dictator Savage, of the Knights of Honor, has issued an official distress call to that Order asking aid for the brethren suffering by the Pennsylvania floods.

There was a wedding in Johnstown on Friday and late in the afternoon the friends of the married couple celebrated the event by a dance in the bride's house. Every member of that party was drowned.

At a meeting at Plattsburg, N. Y., last night to raise funds for the Johnstown sufferers, Smith M. Weed, president of the city, started the list with $250. Other subscriptions run the amount up to over $1,600.

UNHEARD-OF FLOODS

Fearful Disasters in the Nittany Valley.

FARMS COVERED WITH WATER.

Bellefonte Lost to the World for a Whole Week.

Telegraphic Communication, Just Opened Reveals a Depressing State of Affairs in Central Pennsylvania—From Tyrone to Lock Haven Everything is Under Water. This Flood Came During the Night—Several Lives Lost.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., June 8.—For the first time in a week this place has at last succeeded in making connections with the outside world.

In all the history of Central Pennsylvania there has never been known such high water and never has it been attended with such disastrous results as on the last day of May and the first day of June, just past.

In 1865 and again in 1876 Centre county had floods, but this time the waters at this place were two feet higher than on either previous occasion.

Bellefonte is built principally upon hills but notwithstanding that fact the waters overflowed the lower streets and filled the lower parts of houses. The damage at Bellefonte was very slight but in the Bald Eagle valley $500,000 will not cover the damage done. From the upper end of the valley at Tyrone, through its entire length down to Lock Haven the water is spread over the entire valley—almost a mile in width, and from three to fifteen in depth. Where a week ago was a rich fertile valley blooming with the promise of bountiful crops, there now is nothing but a barren waste dotted here and there with huge piles of stone and debris, the remains of houses and barns and all kinds of buildings torn to splinters and piled up by the relentless floods.

In all that stretch of valley for a distance of 70 miles there is not one farm uninjured. The Bald Eagle Valley railroad was washed out more than half of its length but has since been temporarily repaired, and trains are running into Bellefonte over that road. In Milesburg the water filled the houses to a depth of from three to six feet and great damage was done. No lives were lost, however. The iron bridge at that place was washed away and the Mill Hall bridge at the lowest end of the valley was destroyed. The loss, independent of the railroad, through this valley is estimated at half a million dollars. In Penn's Valley and along the line of the Bellefonte, Nittany and Lemont railroad the worst damage in the county was done. Millheim was under water to a depth of three feet and being very level sustained severe damage, every business house losing one-half of their stock. At Coburn the waters spread over the entire town, and in some places by actual measurement were thirty feet deep. To add to the horror of the situation the flood occurred during the night.

Families who had not time to take to the hills climbed on the tops of houses only to feel their places of refuge topple and themselves fall into the foaming cauldron of seeming certain destruction. There were drowned a Mrs. Simon Phoust and two children, but had it not been for prompt assistance scores would have perished. At one place thirty-five persons were pulled from the foaming torrent, and many others succeeded in effecting a landing for themselves. Simon Phoust was in Cameron county at the time, and being notified of the fate of his family he started for home. In crossing the Stonemahoning river he too fell in and was drowned, and thus the entire family perished. In Coburn there is not one good house left standing. Individual losses cannot be enumerated, but the total loss will aggregate fully three hundred thousand dollars. The valley is strewn with all kinds of dead animals. The Lewisburg railroad from Coburn to Lewisburg, a distance of forty-five miles, is a complete ruin, only fifteen miles of track yet remaining. It will be weeks before it can be repaired fit for travel.

Bellefonte has been completely isolated ever since last Friday. No mails have reached here in that time and telegraphic communication was not restored until yesterday. The Pennsylvania railroad is now running trains on the Bald Eagle road and it is hoped that in a few days better arrangements will be made although it may be months before the service will be complete.

What the Club Men Gave.

PITTSBURG, June 8.—Immediately upon learning of the Johnstown disaster the South Park Club members in this city, Saturday morning, sent 1,000 blankets. Charles J. Clarke sent his check for $1,000; W. K. Moorhead gave $1,000, Jesse H. Lippincott $1,000, Jos. Horne $1,100, Jos. W. Brown, $500, Col. J. J. Lawrence $200, Calvin Wells $200, C. B. Shay $50, and other members $50 each—in all about $6,000. The club loses also about $250,000 by the disaster, though none of its members, or their relatives were drowned.

What a Detective Discovered.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. June 8.—Alex. B. Campbell, a New York detective who is acting here under General Hastings, returned today from a three-mile trip to the country, where he located thirty-six barrels of flour. Teams and men were sent out to-day to bring the stuff in. The house of Mrs. Mills and the house of Jacob Stutzman, Mr. Campbell says, are stocked with enough provisions to last them months. He also located a house in Prospect which is well stocked with diamonds and other valuables. All were taken from the wreck. Despite the vigilance of the guards and best means employed by those in charge people get through the lines and over the wreckage where they pilfer unmolested.

THE DAILY PRESS

Is an Evening Edition of the Weekly Constitutionalist and is issued at No. 3 North Avenue, every day—excepting Sundays and Holidays—at Five O'clock in the Afternoon; sent through the Post Office at $5.00 a Year, or delivered by Carrier at 10 Cents a Week.

It is devoted, Locally, to the Interests of the City of Plainfield, its Suburbs and its Neighboring Towns; and, Politically, to the Advancement of "The Greatest Good to the Greatest Number."

Correspondence solicited on all matters of Public Concern, but published only when accompanied by the Name of the Writer, in Confidence, as Endorsing the Truth and Honest Intent of the Communication.

Advertising Rates made known on Application at this office. Notes of Church Entertainments, Fairs, Sociables, Lectures, Cards of Thanks, Lodge Resolutions, etc., Inserted Free or not, as Charity or Justice may demand.

W. L. and A. L. Force, - Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. Demarest, - - Managing Editor.

THE PRESS is now in its third year with a subscription list that includes all the intelligent people of the City and Borough, and with the advertising patronage of all the progressive and successful merchants of Plainfield.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Unity Lodge, K. of P., of this city, has contributed twenty-five dollars to the Johnstown sufferers.

—There were no street lamps burning in North Plainfield, last evening, and traveling on foot was extremely difficult.

—In many of the churches, to-morrow, collections will be taken for the relief of the sufferers in Johnstown and its vicinity.

—The Seventh Day Baptist church sent $250 worth of clothing, yesterday—three boxes to Johnstown and one box to Williamsport.

—All are welcome and requested to come and help in the meeting to-night, at 7:30 o'clock, in the W. C. T. U. rooms, 73 West Front street.

—The contributions of Plainfield's people to the sufferers of the late Pennsylvania flood, has exceeded two thousand in cash and still increasing.

—The closing exercises of the Kitchen Garden, connected with the W. C. T. U., will take place in the W. C. T. U. rooms on West Front street, on Tuesday evening next.

—Packages or bundles sent to Relief Association rooms, Second street and Madison avenue, will be forwarded to the Johnstown sufferers. Florence Tweedy, Secretary.

—Dr. Kimbell, the celebrated chirop odist, is meeting with great success at the City Hotel, and to give all a chance to be cured he will operate to-morrow, (Sunday) from 10 A. M. until 4 P. M.

—Table wines, liquors of all kinds and beer for family use, are delivered free of charge by Mr. Charles Bock, anywhere in the city. Orders by mail, or telephone 92, will receive prompt attention.

—The pupils in Rodman Seminary were tendered their closing reception, last evening. On account of the rush of other matter, our report of the entertainment is crowded out today. It will appear on Monday.

—The attention of the Fish Warden is respectfully called to the fact that late last evening a man was seen carrying a fine pair of shad along Central avenue. The season for shad fishing closed some time ago.

—The infant class of the Crescent Avenue Sunday school will occupy the choir of the church, to-morrow morning, and furnish the music. It being Children's Day, the Rev. Mr. Richards will preach a sermon to the young folks.

—The strawberry and iced cream festival next Thursday and Friday evenings in Dunlap's Block, corner Front and Grove streets, promises to be a success in every way. The object is a worthy one and will doubtless be liberally supported.

—At a regular meeting of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein, on Thursday evening, the society decided to start a subscription list for the Johnstown sufferers. The entire receipts from the Family Festival on Monday next will be contributed to the fund.

Warren Union Mission.

The usual Sunday school service will be held at 2:30 o'clock. After the opening, the teachers will take their classes for the study of the lesson until 3 o'clock, at which time services consisting of recitations by the children, and singing appropriate to Children's day will be carried out.

The evening service commencing at 7:30 o'clock will be of like nature with an address to the young by Mr. Wm. D. Murray. All friends are cordially invited, Johnstown Orphans All Cared For.

Mrs. Kimball, President of the Children's Home, whose message to Gov. Beaver of Pennsylvania offering to take two of the Johnstown orphans was published in yesterday's Press, received the following answer this morning:

To Mrs. Horace Kimball, Plainfield, N. J.

Children from Johnstown all cared for by Children's Aid Society of Philadelphia. Thanks for your kind offer of help.

James A. Beaver, Governor.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 7, 1889.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Poillon, daughter of Mr. Richard Poillon of Brooklyn, is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. C. Pease of Washington Park.

Borough Counsel Chas. A. Reed scored 219 points at the Olympia alley, yesterday. Mr. Reed's record is now next to the highest.

Among the many handsome private teams that are admired on Plainfield's thoroughfares, none can excel Mr. Bloodgood's new steel-roan cobs.

Mr. A. P. Roome of New York, has rented a furnished house on Willow avenue, in Washington Park, and will occupy it with his family, June 25.

The Hon. W. D. Edwards, State Senator from Hudson county, will spend to-morrow with Mr. George W. Churchill, of Washington avenue, Dunellen.

Inspector Rogers of the Free Delivery service is in the city today, in consultation with Postmaster Force, with reference to extending the service here.

Mrs. Lily Miller, wife of Dr. Miller of Philadelphia, and daughter of the late Mrs. Sarah Cornell of this city, returned home yesterday, from a visit to relatives in Elizabeth. With her mother, she removed to Illinois several years ago.

A London Sunday newspaper of May 9, asks for information of George William Vicary Comer, last heard of in Plainfield, N. J. Can it be our old friend "John Reginald Talbot?" Information is desired by Mrs. Harry Gisbourn, George street, Weston-Super-Mare, Somerset, England.

The grounds around the old Roome homestead on Washington avenue, are being prepared for the removal of the house to a new position nearer the street. It will be remodeled and put in excellent condition both inside and out, and will add to the attractions of that handsome thoroughfare.

A Faultless Class in Music.

A piano recital by the pupils of Mr. A. Venino was given at the home of Mrs. J. B. Dumont, Seventh street and Crescent avenue, yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The music room and parlors were filled with invited guests.

The programme was as follows:

Duett.....C. Bohm
Miss M. Tracy and N. Whiton.
Andantino—from Op. 22.....Schumann
Miss E. Massett.
Impromptu—Op. 142, No. 2.....Schubert
Miss M. Van Boskerck.
Va'se.....Raff
Miss M. Maxson.
Kamennoi Ostrow, No. 22.....Rubinstein
Miss H. Gardiner.
a.) Consolation.....Liszt
b.) Valse—Op. 64, No. 2.....Chopin
Miss A. Holmes.
Carnival.....Schumann
Miss E. Sandford.

The performance of the entire class convinced everyone present that the instruction and training they had received was most thorough and efficient. All played with a clearness and conception that was highly commendable, and it is improbable that the pupils of any other instructor could show such universal excellence and complete knowledge of what they were about.

Miss Holmes rendition of the Chopin valse was perfection, and displayed a very decided improvement in her playing. Miss Sandford's selection bristled with technical difficulties, and was remarkably well played. Miss Massett, Miss Van Boskerck and Miss Gardiner, were also deserving of particular praise.

Mr. Venino's class in harmony has been such a success that it will continue its studies during another season, besides which a new class will be started. Some of the pupils can already compose and harmonize a theme.

A New Bridge For Grant Avenue, and $250 For Muhlenberg.

At the meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, Thursday afternoon, $500 was appropriated from this year's tax levy, to charity hospitals. This appropriation is under a new law, and the amount designated will be divided between the Elizabeth general hospital and the Muhlenberg hospital of this city.

Mr. Vanderbeek offered a resolution which was adopted, fixing the width of the pavement of roads designated as county roads, at sixteen feet wherever practicable.

The committee on the Grant avenue bridge, near Cadmus' mill, were authorized to have constructed an iron bridge not to exceed $1,000 to this county.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Brief notices will be inserted under this head free of expense, but must be delivered at this office not later than eleven o'clock on Saturday morning to insure publication.

Sunday meetings at 9:15 A. M. and 4 P. M. to-morrow, in Reform Hall. All are welcome.

Being the second Sunday in June, to-morrow will be observed in most of the churches as "Children's Day."

The scholars of Trinity Reformed Sunday school will observe Children's Day to-morrow afternoon with appropriate exercises.

BOROUGH COUNCIL.

THE REGULAR JUNE MEETING.

Willow Avenue Will Probably be Macadamized—Claims Ordered Paid—A Fire Company Organized With Four Members—Resolutions Flooded Through, and Other Details.

The Borough Council met in regular session, last evening, with all the members present but Mr. Bettman. As usual a large amount of business was transacted, which consisted principally of the introduction and adoption of resolutions.

Mayor Cooley called the meeting to order at 8:15 o'lock, and after the roll call the minutes were read and approved.

Councilman Bettman, through Clerk Arnold, asked for permission to withdraw the petition sent in by Willow avenue residents at the last meeting, and instead submitted another petition, bearing on the matter of macadamizing that thoroughfare from Washington avenue to a point known as the farm line between the property of Messrs White and Tappan. The request was allowed.

A petition was received, asking for a crosswalk at the intersection of Orchard place and Willow avenue. Granted by resolution later.

Mr. J. R. VanDeventer, in a communication, called attention to the wretched condition of a certain portion of Clinton avenue, known as the extension to Green Brook. Referred to the Street Committee.

Sundry applications for cartmen and peddlers' licenses, were presented, referred, and subsequently granted.

The monthly reports of the Treasurer and Clerk were received and filed. The former reported a total of $70.80 collected in taxes during the month. Clerk Arnold reported a collection of $54.50 for licenses, etc., during the month.

Claims were presented, referred for certification and ordered paid by warrant as follows: C. Mundy, $1.30; J. Hardy, $26.43; A. M. Griffin, $13.75; A. C. Johnson, $9.84; John Schenck, $66.20 and $7.45; H. C. Marshall, $272.25: N. Y. and N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., $267.88 and $267.88; Plainfield Steam Carpet Co., $7.72; J. J. Heideloff, $7.01; W. L. Force & Bro., $34.80 and $8; T. MacDonald, $38.75; N. B. Smalley, $9.73; Wm. Krewson, $2.25; W. A. Pangborn, $6.25.

Mr. McGee from the Fire, Water and Lamps Committee, made a fragmentary report. He said that $1,500 had been borrowed, in accordance with the Council's action at the last meeting, for street lighting purposes. The Committee also reported favorably upon the petition for an extra lamp on Duer street; Mr. McGee further submitted a communication from Chief Horace J. Martin, in which the latter reported the department apparatus in good working order. The engine, the Chief stated, had been repaired, and was now ready in case of emergency; a new shed has been built in the rear of the engine house, for the storage of hose, etc., and a new lock has been placed on the entrance door to the engine house. The Chief recommended the formation of a new fire company; also the building of a partition between the engine room and the stalls, and the appointment of a janitor. The report was received.

Mr. Emmons from the License and Marshal Committee reported that the Borough lockup was inadequate to meet the demand. He also stated that the Marshals had complained of the interferance on the part of citizens in the discharge of official duties. Later in the evening, by resolutions adopted, the proper committees were authorized to have an extra cell built in the lockup, and also to procure twelve badges, twelve keys to lockup and twelve pairs of nippers for the special marshals—Mr. Smalley voting "no" on the resolutions.

The Street Committee reported that Grove street and Green Brook road had been turnpiked at a cost of about $65; about $100 more will be required on Green Brook road; the cost of macadamizing Westervelt avenue was $582.26, and the cost for similar work on Jackson avenue, the committee reported, would be about $900. The committee further reported the purchase of a roller; and stated that the cost of grading Willow avenue would be in the neighborhood of $200. The report was received.

Mr. Needham from the Supply Committee reported the purchase from Warren Engine Company of the furniture in the Council Chamber for $90. The total expense of fitting up the room, including papering the walls and kalsomining the ceiling, footed up to $127.72. Report received and filed.

RESOLUTIONS BY THE WHOLESALE.

Here's where the resolutions poured in by the wholesale, and except where otherwise mentioned they were adopted:

By Mr. McGee, authorizing the Mayor and Clerk to draw a warrant for $87.50 to meet interest about to fall due on fire department bonds.

By Mr. Emmons, appointing "Al." Smalley a special Marshal.

By Mr. McGee, requesting the Collector to give bonds in the sum of $10,000 for the faithful performance of his duties.

By Mr. Smalley, that the Street Committee negotiate a loan of $800 for use on the streets.

Mr. Smalley acknowledged the receipt of a $300 check from Jackson avenue residents in part payment for macadamizing that thoroughfare. It was ordered turned over to the Collector.

The Auditing Committee reported the claims correct, and they were ordered paid by warrant.

The Collector's bond was read. It contained the names of H. N. Spencer, I. Brokaw, W. C. Smith and C. C. Day, and was referred to the Committee on Laws and Ordinances.

MORE RESOLUTIONS.

By Mr. Smalley, ratifying the action of the Mayor and Clerk in drawing certain warrants for money spent on the roads. Adopted.

By Mr. Smalley, that the Mayor and Clerk draw the weekly pay rolls for street work, and report the same at each subsequent meeting. Adopted.

By Mr. Buckle, authorizing the Street Commissioner to lay a stone crosswalk at the intersec tion of Grove street and Park place. Adopted.

By Mr. McGee, appointing H. J. Martin, J. D. Anderson, Geo. H. Fairchild and H. J. Wilson, as members of the Borough Fire Department, and to take charge of the department apparatus. Adopted. Thus a nucleus has been formed toward the organization of a fire company.

Mr. Smalley made a report on the Willow avenue petition. He said that when the work is completed on Somerset street, about $2,500 will have been expended for street work, out of the total appropriation of $3,000. The committee did not recommend proceeding with the work. The committee reported that the cost of macadamizing certain streets in the Borough had exceeded their estimate.

Mr. McGee said the committee was prejudiced and would not go ahead with the work. What was needed, he said, was a financial exhibit of the money thus far expended and the Council could then act intelligently on the matter.

An ordinance introduced by the Mayor, amending the hawker and vender's ordinance was read twice and laid over. The remainder of the session consisted of the introduction of resolutions as follows:

By Mr. McGee, fixing the compensation of Chief Martin of the Fire Department at $100 for the year ending April 15, 1890. Adopted, Mr. Smalley voting "no."

By Mr. Emmons, that the Street Committee ascertain the amount of money left for work on the streets, and that if in their judgment there was enough to complete the work, then the Council shall authorize the committee to proceed with the work of macadamizing Willow avenue. Adopted.

By Mr. Smalley, that the Printing Committee have notices printed, to notify property owners to trim their trees. Adopted.

By the same Councilman, that the money in the hands of the Clerk be transferred to the Collector. Lost.

Council then adjourned.

Important Council Meeting.

Next Monday evening will be the most eventful session of the City Fathers ever held. It is expected the Water Committee will present the detailed plans and specifications of the Consulting Engineer who they were authorized to engage for that purpose.

Contractors are awaiting with much anxiety to see this bill of particulars, in order to examine, estimate expense and submit final figures for executing the work. This no doubt will apply to the Water Works. Whether it can cover the construction of sewers seems to be questioned. It is generally agreed that the system of sewers must be completed by assessment of property benefitted, and cannot be put out to contractors.

The public await with a great deal of interest the action of the Common Council in this matter.

Saved on a Raft.

E. C. Baynon, brother of C. Arthur Baynon of LaGrande avenue, returned from Johnstown, last evening, where he has been in search of a missing brother who was in business in that ill fated city.

He did not find his brother, but learned of his safety through a woman who escaped with him on a raft made after the water had reached the top of the house where they were living. The entire family of the house where Mr. Baynon was, were saved on the one raft.

City Clerk Leonard Next.

Because City Clerk Leonard is one of the few municipal officers who is not afraid of the defamation of the news, and refuses to audit a false and illegal claim against the city which that paper is try to frighten the Common Council into paying, the City Clerk is threatened by the news as follows, in its issue of Monday:

We shall devote more attention to the matter later on, to reveal some of his [the clerk's] inconsistencies which from time to time have come to our notice, but defer at present for want of space.

Young Folks on a Straw-Ride.

Mrs. Wm. de F. Curtis of Rock View avenue, entertained a number of the young friends of her daughter and son, yesterday afternoon. Among the enjoyments was a pleasant straw-ride under the mountains. The young party consisted of Miss Frances and Ned Curtis, Miss Fanny and Louise Wann, the Misses Dottie, Cora and Emma Haviland, Miss Marion Henderson, Miss Edith Clapp, Miss Dorothy Wells, and Miss Susie and Belle Milne.

Opened for the Season.

The Editor's fruit basket has been opened for the season, and its first contents were the present of a handsome box of "Compton's Favorite" strawberries from Mr. Halsey Compton of West Front street. About 25 of these large delicious berries filled a quart basket, and their flavor was most excellent. We are now waiting for somebody to beat this record.

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $100 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

WHAT DILLON SAYS

He Believes Sullivan Murdered Cronin.

ACCESSORY IF NOT PRINCIPAL.

The Testimony of Luke Dillon Makes a Big Sensation.

The Coroner's Inquest into the Murder Does Not Yet Disclose the Assassins. Policeman Brown on the Witness Stand—Important Persons in the Case Missing When Wanted—A Warrant Out for McGeehan's Arrest.

CHICAGO, June 8.—When the Cronin inquest was resumed yesterday, Coroner Herts called for Officer Mike Whalen and Peter McGeehan.

Neither were present. A subpœna which had been issued for McGeehan was returned "not found."

He was looked for at an address given by himself, where he said he could be found.

A warrant was issued for his arrest.

John F. Beggs was called for and not being present an officer was sent after him.

A notice on his office door said he had gone out of town. "Be back Saturday."

The first witness of the day was Police Officer Daniel Brown, was was Dr. Cronin's accuser in the trial in Camp 96, which resulted in the Doctor's expulsion from the order. Brown testified that he was a member of the Clan-na-Gael at the time Dr. Cronin was expelled. He belonged to Camp 16 and does still, but has not attended many meetings in the past three years. The charge against Dr. Cronin, he said, was treason and consisted in reading before Camp 96 a circular sent out by an expelled camp. The witness said he preferred and wrote out the charges himself. He had an emphatic negative answer for every question intimating that some one else asked or ordered or directed him to make the charges. He was positive in assuming the whole responsibility for making the charges. He was an officer in the Order, and did not hear Dr. Cronin read the circular, but visiting Dr. Cronin's camp soon after, it was read. He heard it talked about, and knowing that the reading of such a circular was contrary to the rules of the Order, he preferred charges.

Lawyer Iles was the next witness, and said that in the summer of 1887 Dr. Cronin had consulted with him professionally, and had told him that he had evidence that a conspiracy against him existed in this city. William Starkey had asked him to testify as an expert in a certain case, and C. M. Hardy had cross-examined him with great minuteness as to his early life. About the same time Cronin's sister had written her brother from St. Catharine's stating that two men had called on her recently and questioned her in regard to him, saying that it concerned Cronin greatly in a case in New York. Cronin wrote to New York and found that no such case existed. "At last" continued witness, "the Doctor jumped up and exclaimed 'Alexander Sullivan is as black as hell. He and others are trying to ruin my reputation, and failing in that, they will seek my life.'"

Luke Dillon, of Philadelphia, was the first witness after recess. He knew Dr. Cronin intimately as an unselfish, patriotic and useful man in the Irish movements. Dr. Cronin had told him that it was Alexander Sullivan's ambition to rule, both in Irish and American politics, and that this ambition would be the cause of Dr. Cronin's death. Dr. Cronin had expressed himself as believing that Alexander Sullivan had no more blood in him than a fish. The witness thought at that time that the Doctor had Alexander Sullivan on the brain, and that Sullivan was only an ordinary villain. He had changed his mind, however. At the time that Alexander Sullivan, Boland and Feeley were tried in Buffalo, Sullivan had protested against Dr. Cronin sitting on the Trial committee—in such language that he believed Alexander Sullivan responsible for the murder, if not a principal in it.

The remainder of the session was given to the testimony of John F. O'Malley and Lawrance Buckley, who were members of the committee that tried and expelled Dr. Cronin. Their testimony elicited no new facts, being confined to such details concerning the composition of the committee and its action as they choose to remember.

Their Labors Ended.

BOSTON, June 8.—The Legislature was prorogued shortly after midnight. The resolve authorizing the Governor and Council to sell the Southern Vermont railroad to the Fitchburg Railroad company was referred to the next Legislature. The usual resolutions of compliment to the officers of the Legislature were adopted and the presiding officers of both branches were the recipients of valuable presents. During the session just ended 473 acts and 112 resolutions have been passed.

Charged with Throwing a Bomb.

BOSTON, June 8.—Thomas Norton, a stationary engineer, 27 years of age, has been arrested on suspicion of having had some connection with the throwing of a bomb into the house of Mrs. Weld, at Jamaica Plain, two weeks ago. Norton is said to have recently threatened bodily harm to a servant employed by Mrs. Weld, and also to have threatened to shoot any rivals for the girl's affections. Norton was committed to jail in default of $300 bail.

Sergeant Toner Killed.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 8.—Sergeant Peter Toner, of the United States steamship Galena, who has been visiting his parents here, met with a tragic death last evening by falling into the zinc mines at Friedensville.

TO TAKE THE CENSUS.

Superintendent Porter Chooses a Corps of Experts to Aid Him.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Superintendent of Census Porter has already decided upon the following experts and specialists to aid him in the preparation of the eleventh census:

S. N. D. North, of Boston, Secretary of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, to have charge of the statistics of the Wool and Worsted industries and of the newspapers and periodical press throughout the United States. Mr. North gained a national reputation through his admirable work on the tenth census. He is a young man of great energy and abil2ty, and was formerly editor of the Albany Express.

Henry T. Cook, of Trenton, N. J., to have charge of the Statistics of the Clay and Pottery industries of the United States. Mr. Cook has had a wide experience as a manufacturing potter, is a graduate of Princeton college and recommended by the leading potters of the country as a man well qualified to undertake the important investigation committed to him.

John S. Billings, of the United States Army, to have charge of the Mortality and Vital Statistics. Dr. Billings is probably the best authority on these and kindred subjects in the United States. He conducted this inquiry for the tenth census, and the volumes compiled by him are regarded as one of the most valuable reports of the census of 1880.

Henry Bowers, of Philadelphia, secretary of the Chemical Association of the United States, in charge of the Statistics of the Chemical and allied industries. Mr. Bowers had charge of this work for the tenth census and his report was one of the most satisfactory of the valuable series of reports on special industries.

Henry Gannett, of the Geological Survey, will have charge of the Geographical department of the eleventh census. Mr. Gannett made a national reputation as geographer of the tenth census and is the best equipped man for the place in the country.

Frederick W. Kruse, of Olean, Cattaraugus county, New York, for five years member of the New York Legislative Assembly and member of the State Excise Commission, in charge of the Statistics of Local Finance. Mr. Kruse is a man of ability and statistical training and a lawyer by profession.

William C. Hunt, of the Bureau of Statistics of Massachusetts, expert and special agent in charge of the Social Statistics. Mr. Hunt has won a State reputation in Massachusetts in the compilation of the Massachusetts census of 1885 and is a young man of high statistical ability and training.

J. K. Upton, of New Hampshire, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of the Statistics of State Finance and Indebtedness. Mr. Upton is one of the best writers on financial questions in the country, and performed efficient work for the Census office in 1880.

FALL RIVER'S WEAVERS

Meet and Express Sympathy for the Strikers at Berkeley, R. I.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 8.—A mass meeting of weavers was held in Carrollton hall last night, for the special purpose of extending aid and sympathy to the strikers at Berkeley, R. I., but incidentally the labor situation in this city, and the profit sharing plan to be adopted by the Bourne mill were touched upon.

The principal speaker was Rev. John Brown, of the Westminster Presbyterian church, who arraigned the mill owners and agents in this city in scathing terms for their treatment of their help. Other addresses were made by prominent labor men.

A resolution was adopted expressing sympathy with the Berkeley strikers, declaring faith in the justice of their cause, pledging assistance in carrying on the struggle and urging operatives throughout New England to extend aid.

The Housatonic Disaster.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 8.—Coroner Holt has rendered his decision in the matter of fixing the responsibility for the recent Housatonic railroad disaster at Trumbull, in which engineer Look and brakeman Olds were killed. He finds that the responsibility rests with J. J. Flynn, the night train despatcher, in not sending his orders in time. He also finds Flynn guilty of negligence in sending out the train from here until he knew where the down train was. He also finds conductor Curtiss guilty of gross negligence in not communicating the orders he received to the engineer. He exonerates the operators at Stepney and Hawleyville.

Legislation in Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 8.—Governor Bulkeley has vetoed the bill providing for a secret ballot. He holds that the bill is too radical, too cumbersome in its details, too expensive, opens the door to fraud and will result in disfranchising voters. The House passed the bill over the Governor's veto by a vote of 121 to 38. This was done under the previous question, with no opportunity for discussion. After the vote was declared Mr. Brandeger protested against the discourtesy to the Governor and moved to reconsider. The bill was reconsidered and tabled and the House adjourned until Tuesday.

Found in a Starving Condition.

KINGMAN, Me., June 8.—The seven men who left Carroll on May 22 for Dobsis Lake to peel bark, and whose non-return caused such alarm that a party of 50 men started to seek them, were found after five days search in an old lumber in a starving condition. They had lost their way in the woods and for many days had been without food. Though still in a critical condition it is thought that all will recover.

Mrs. Callaghan Gets Damages.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Judge Brown, in the District court, has awarded damages to Mrs. Captain Callaghan for the loss of the schooner A. W. Thompson which was run down by the steamer Idlewild, in March, 1887, on Long Island Sound. Judge Brown decides that Mrs. Callaghan's husband, the commander of the Thompson, met his death through negligence.

Templeman Is Guilty.

NEW YORK, June 8.—In the case of Private Detective Frank Templeman, on trial for attempting to blackmail District-Attorney Fellows and Police Inspector Byrnes, the jury rendered a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation to mercy. Templeman was remanded for sentence.

Big Gold Export.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Gold bars amounting to $2,750,000 were taken from the Assay office yesterday for export. This, with the $1,250,000 ordered Thursday, makes $4,000,000 in gold to go to Europe by to-day's steamer.

Fatal Ending of a Dispute.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 8.—James Ross, a miner, struck Frank Stevens, a mining boss, with an iron bar, killing him instantly. The men had had a dispute over what Ross considered excessive docking.

FILIAL AFFECTION.

There's a girl who, I've a notion,
Would make any household glad.
See her beautiful devotion
To her old and homely "dad."
Her soft hand she kindly presses
To his forehead seamed by care,
And she daintily caresses
His remaining lock of hair.

When at eve from plodding daily
He returneth from the town,
She runs forth to meet him gayly,
And she brings his dressing-gown.
How she banishes his sadness,
When to sadness he inclines,
With a smile of tender gladness
And his slippers—number nines.

Who can say what is the reason
Of this fond and filial fuss?
Why at this especial season
Should she treat the old man thus?
Though so bald, he's very thrifty,
And I venture a shrewd guess
That she's working him for fifty Dollars for a new spring dress.

DOMINICK'S COURTSHIP.

It Suited Him, Though It Didn't Please Mrs. Dobson.

Dominick Partridge, riding barnward on his last load of hay, formed a resolution, and uttered it, although the words were rather a remark than a declaration, for what he said was:

"I hadn't ought to be single."

He had been making an estimate of his possessions—of his money in the bank, his acres, the corn and hay and apples and cider in the barn, the cattle and horses that were his own—and he had decided that he was too rich to be a bachelor.

He did not adore those beings of whom some people speak of as "the ladies," others as "lovely woman," and others still as "wimmen folks," but he knew that if there was a Mrs. Partridge he should be much more comfortable, should take a new position as a married man, and doubtless find himself at the end of his days with some one to inherit his property, a son to take the trouble off of his hands in his old age and to be a second Dominick Partridge. Therefore Mr. Partridge, sole of that name at the moment, remarked: "I hadn't ought to be single," and began to call up before his mind's eye a list of the marriageable ladies of Lockslie. There was the Widow Burroughs, too fat and very lazy; the Widow Green, the most suitable partner for a middle-aged man; but "Dunno as I could stand it," said Mr. Partridge. Miss Spicer was stern and man-hating; her sister, Miss Prudie, silly and an old coquette. The minister's sister was cast-iron dignity and frozen elegance combined, but she would stop his pipe, his holiday glass, his circus going, his wearing of old clothes, and doing as he pleased. Who was there besides?

A sudden thought came into his mind and he laughed.

"Why shouldn't I marry for love?" he said, under his breath.

Simon, who had managed his affairs for many a day, and, while supposed to be hired man, was actually master, sat in the hay beside Mr. Partridge, like an old jackdaw in an immense nest, and watched him. He saw his cheeks flush a soft, wintry apple red, and heard him laugh a little foolish laugh to himself.

"I'll bet a cookey I know what you was a thinkin' of, Mr. Partridge," he said.

"I'll bet another you don't, Si," said his master.

"You was a thinkin' of gettin' married," said Si. "There, now!"

"I wasn't exactly," responded Mr. Partridge; "but I was thinkin' of thinkin' about it."

"Comes to the same thing, sir," said Si. "Comes to the same thing. I was turnin' it over in my mind. You'd orter hev a nice, pretty wife in your big house. And hev the parlor fixed up, and a melodeon and softy bottomed cheers, and a chany lamp, and lace curtings, like they do up to the squire's, and your portrait and hern to match, framed. She'd know. That's only a kinder a outline. And I should sort o' take more airs when I drove you to meetin'. It's all very well to be keerless, rampageous bachelors when you're young, but when you're settlin' down there's more required. Your fifty fourth of next November, and I was fourteen when you was born. We'd orter settle."

"But, Si," thoughtfully responded Mr. Partridge. "I was thinking this, Simon. 'Out of the fryin' pan into the fire.' Suppose I was to get a tartar. Middle-aged women get pretty cross sometimes. Peace is a comfort, anyhow. But to be ordered 'round, and flung at, and asked 'why you don't?' and told 'she said so,' like my poor brother Ike was in his wife's lifetime, ain't pleasant."

"Don't take one of that kind," said Simon, with an air of great experience. "Where you'd orter go is up to the squire's."

"Think so?" asked Mr. Partridge, with the winter apple flush all over his face this time. "Think so, Si?"

"So do you," said Simon, looking at his master. "Rich folks like you can choose. You dress up and you look quite presentable yet. The Partridges ain't never been called humly. Why, your cousin Bee was called the handsomest gal in the county at seventeen."

"She was, too," interpolated Mr. Partridge.

"I used to see you sneakin' arter her up the lane, there," said Simon, "and thought you'd make a pretty pair. But she gave you the mitten."

"So she did, Simon," assented Mr. Partridge.

"And got nicely paid for it," said Simon, with a chuckle. "She's regretted it many a day. Her husband ran off, and she's housekeeper to the squire. Yes, she's sorry—she's sorry."

"Think so, Simon?" asked Mr. Partridge, turning red again.

"Of course," said Simon. "Now you got through hayin', leave things to me, and go up to the squire's to spend a week. You'll see 'em all. There's Bella, kinder slim and black-eyed; and Flossy, she's pink and white, and yellow-haired; and Myra, her eyes are gray, and her hair pale brown, and some call her queen-like. You've got a choice, and pretty as they are, they haven't got a beau amongst 'em. This is a poor place for young men, and every body knows Mrs. Dobson wants to marry 'em off."

"Hi!" cried Mr. Partridge, suddenly, in the voice he would have used to a cow who had broken into a cornfield; "hi! Si Millet; where you goin'?"

"Eh!" ejaculated Simon.

"You mean for me to marry one of the squire's little gals?"

"Most suitable match I know for ye. Partridge family is a good one, and you're a rich man," said Si. "Sho! what's a year or two on a man's side when he's as forehanded as you? Go over to Dobson's, I say; but you can take your own course—you mostly do—and you mostly regret it."

With these words the old hired man slipped to the ground on one side, as his master vanished on the other, and the work of housing the hay commenced.

However, on the next Monday Mr. Partridge, dressed with scrupulous nicety, and looking extremely well, took the train for the next station, and appeared at Squire Dobson's with a neat portmanteau in his hand, and was received with open arms by host and hostess, to whom he had written to apprise them of his coming.

Out in the arbor under the big wistaria three young girls clung together, with little chirps and twitters, like so many frightened birds—Flossy with the golden hair, Myra with the brown, and brunette Bella.

"Can it be?" whispered Flossy.

"Say it isn't true," sobbed Myra.

"It's true, and an awful shame," sighed Bella. "That man, only five years younger than pa, has come here to court one of us, and ma wants him to. Ma says it would be a great thing for one of us, because he is rich. What good would it be to be rich? Oh! girls, if it should be me, will you save me?"

"We'll all drown ourselves together, like the seven sisters in the ballad, by what's his name," vaguely sobbed Myra.

"We'll run away and live on wild cherries," said Flossy, the youngest.

But Bella recovered herself first.

"Let us disgust him," she cries, bravely. "Let us frighten him away. Let us show him what it would be for an old man to marry a young girl who didn't care for him."

"My darlings, here is Mr. Partridge, come, I hope, to make us a delightfully long visit," said the mother to her daughters five minutes after, but the daughters shook hands with the Partridge in a limp and unenthusiastic fashion, and retreating to a sofa, began giggling together in a way that horrified their mother.

Generally they were so charming. Why, when a fortune might be lost by it, would they appear at their worst now? The fact that Dominick Partridge intended to look for a wife in her home had been communicated to her by Simon Millet, who had managed to get himself sent over with a present of poultry.

"He's sort o' backward, on account of gettin' on in life," the old man had said; "but you kin encourage him; and I know how solid he is and what he's worth."

With which recommendation he departed. And now the middle-aged man sat looking at the giggling girls, who might have been his daughters; and their mother, in despair at their conduct, fanned herself on her sofa, and did her best to place them in a favorable light. But when she sent Bella to the piano, instead of playing "A Cascade of Pearls," or "The Rippling Waterfall," nicely, pretended to forget her notes, and she dared not bid Flossy bring her portfolio of drawings, because the girl had been making caricatures of Mr. Partridge on his knees to babies in long frocks all day, and was capable of producing those. And Myra was dangerous when vexed; and she felt pleased when Mr. Partridge declared that he must see how the garden looked, and, rising, sauntered out into it. Then, indeed, she could scold her girls in whispers.

Dominick Partridge did not linger to listen, nor did he pause to look at the flowers he passed as he skirted the house, and stopped at a low window beside which a woman sat peeling peaches. She was dressed in a black nun's vailing, and wore a white linen collar and a little, dark crimson bow at her throat. Over her dress was tied a check apron. She bore traces of great beauty in her face, but was fifty years old, and looked it.

"Cousin Bee," said Dominick Partridge, "how are you?"

She looked up and smiled at him.

"I'm very well," she said. "I'm never any thing else; and I suppose you aren't sick, or you wouldn't be flyin' 'round after the girls. I hear you're goin' to marry?"

"I'm generally refused, you know," he answered; "so I shan't count my chickens before they're hatched, this time."

She blushed.

"Have a peach!" she asked. "They're good."

He took one.

"They don't hold a candle to some of mine," he said, as he ate it. "I've kept up my orchards. The place is a sight to behold for beauty, Bee. The house wants fixin'."

"For a bride!" added Bee.

"Yes," said Dominick, "for a bride. She should hev her own way about things. I could afford it. How do you like being Mrs. Squire Dobson's housekeeper, Bee?"

"Like!" repeated Bee. "Oh, I don't expect to like nowadays; I just put up with things. I can do. I don't mind doin'. She likes that. She calls me housekeeper. I'm here because she does; but I do hard work for a very little pay. The other servant they put a cap on and call a 'maid.' Maid and housekeeper. Well, as I said, ef I wasn't called housekeeper I couldn't stay, and I tried to sew at starvation prices after—"

"After your husband died," said Dominick.

"After he went off," said Bee, sternly. "But he has been dead three years."

"And I've had enough fur two all this while," said Dominick Partridge, softly.

"Well, I've no doubt one of the Misses Dobson will share it," said Bee. "When Si Millet told Mrs. Dobson, she was set up, I can tell you. I'd have Bella ef I were you. She's got the most sense. They haven't any of them got too much, but they're pretty—"

"Pshaw!" said Dominick Partridge. "Bee, did you believe Simon Millet when he said I was such an old fool as to want one of those little girls? I'm not an old man. I've got years before me. I feel strong and I feel prosperous, and I feel I hadn't orter be alone, but I don't want a dressy baby to bring up. What I want, Bee, is you. You're a dear, darling little woman, and I've hankered after you all my life. When I heard for sure that your Count—"

"He was a Baron," said Bee.

"Well, that your Baron was dead, I made up my mind that I'd never left off loving you; and jest four days ago I said to myself: 'I'll go over to Squire Dobson's and ask Bee again. P'raps she'll hev me this time.'"

"I don't know what you want of an old thing like me," said Bee; but she laughed, and he kissed her.

"Three young girls," peeping through the hedge hard by, saw him, and clapping their hands softly, ran away to tell their mother.

"And he is awfully nice, and she is awfully nice," they cried, in a musical chorus; "and it was all a mistake of that ridiculous Simon; and you ought to be glad, ma, that you didn't let him find out what you thought. One of us and Mr. Partridge! Absurd. But it's splendid for Bee, and romantic, for they were old lovers."—N. Y. Ledger.

Tough on His Substitute.

A Hartford clergyman tells this anecdote: Early in life, while occupying another charge, he invited a clergyman whom the unregenerate would call conceited and dull to preach in his pulpit. During the sermon our Hartford preacher dozed away in the sweet old way until he was suddenly called on to conclude the service with prayer. Accustomed to regard himself as the humblest of his Creator's instruments, and forgetting that he had not delivered the sermon, he began with: "We beseech Thee to accept the weak and feebie effort that has been addressed to Thee, and more richly to endow Thy servant in the graces he so greatly lacks."

OLEAN IN DANGER.

Its Inhabitants Fear the Fate of the People of Johnstown.

OLEAN, N. Y., June 8.—The largest artificial body of water in the United States is situated 732 feet above Olean. It is said to be liable to give way at any moment. It was formerly used to feed the old Genesee Valley Canal, but is now merely a sportman's paradise.

It is condemned by public sentiment and the State Superintendent of Canals, Mr. Shannahan, and also by people residing in Cuba, Hinsdale, Olean and Allegany. In fact the whole Genesee valley has protested against the maintenance of the reservoir, as it is a public menace to the people and is liable to sweep them into chaos, as did the Johnstown reservoir, at any time.

The reservoir is one-third larger than the Conemaugh reservoir, and there is no reason why it should not be abolished by the State at once. About ten years ago this dam burst, letting out 15 feet of water and flooding the valley for a distance of 150 miles.

The Oldest New York Mason Dead.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Adolphus Andreas, the oldest Mason in New York State, and one of the first members of the Tammany Society, is dead. He was ninety years of age. He was in vigorous health until Wednesday of this week, when he was stricken with paralysis, from the effects of which he died.

THE ODOR OF DECAY

Still Clings to the Conemaugh Valley.

GOV. BEAVER AT JOHNSTOWN.

He Visits the Ill-Fated City and Gazes Upon the Ruins.

The State to Take Charge—One Million Dollars to Be Used to Clean Up the Ruins and Rebuild the Town—Suicide of a Member of the Pittsburg Regiment—Fifty Bodies Recovered Yesterday.

JOHNSTOWN, June 10.—There is doubt no longer that the gaunt spectre of pestilence must be met, and routed by violent means. The very birds have already given a silent alarm. With their warning instincts, always safe to follow, they have changed their course, and now are circling beyond the stricken valley in their flight. The moment they reach the atmosphere permeated with the pestilential odors of death, they wheel suddenly in sharp curves and take an opposite direction.

Such has been the lesson taught by these winged critics in all times of threatened contagion from the decay of animal life, and the doctors are to-day pointing to those wheeling battalions for justification of their claims for the use of fire on the wrecks. Fully two hundred bodies still lie entombed in the debris beneath the railroad bridge, and milder forms of contagion have already sprung from that festering mass of decay.

Diptheria has commenced its ravages, pnuemonia and measles are on the increase and the sanitary outlook has become full of alarm.

Supplies are pouring in to-day from every quarter, and thousands of workmen have renewed their attack on the wreckage that gorges the streets. The Red Cross Society, in gray gowns and the cross in red on their lef arms, are organizing their relief camps. All that human sympathy and practical help can suggest or do is being carried into effect.

But over all the scene hangs an impenetrable cloud of fear, and nothing can dispel it but the disappearance of these bodies in the wreck at the bridge. Mr. King is at work steadily with his dynamite, and large portions of the debris are floating down. The bodies recovered are buried with all possible haste. It now seems likely that the clearing process will not be rapid enough, and the coolest heads are demanding that fire, the only safe and quick purifier be used on the death-breeding debris.

A MILLION FOR RELIEF.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 10.—Governor Beauer, so much inquired for during the last week, came here yesterday, looked at the wreck with weeping eyes, conferred for an hour and a half with William Flinn, James B. Scott, William McCreery, General Hastings and others who have borne the burden of the work of rescue and relief, and pledged a million dollars from the State Treasury upon conditions which were satisfied at once. There will be no extra session of the Legislature. A State Commission, with the Governor at its head, will take control of the relief work on Wednesday.

It was proposed that the state furnish $1,000,000 to General Beaver for immediate use in clearing up and restoring Johnstown. In order to make the State whole, two hundred citizens of Pittsburg, Philadelphia and other portions of it, will become individually responsible until the Legislature meets andmakes appropriation that will relieve them. This plan was unanimously agreed to. It was also arranged that on Wednesday morning General Hastings, acting for Gov. Beaaver, should take charge of the work of policing the valley and clearing it up, including Johnstown and the surrounding buroughs.

Gov. Beaver left at 7 o'clock last evening.

THIEVES STILL PLUNDERING.

Several cases of vandalism and robbery were reported to-day. Last night a number of cars containing supplies were broken into and the contents carried off. What the thieves could not steal they trampled and ruined. The Masonic Relief car was also entered and robbed. Twelve men were arrested for stealing to-day, but they were released upon returning the goods. The military guards over in Cambria City were kept busy last night arresting thieves. They were placed in the guardhouse and this morning drummed out of town. When they reached the outskirts of the town they were warned if caught again they would be summarily dealt with. Many people are imposing upon the Relief Committee, and in several instances men have succeeded in getting enough supplies to last them several months. One man was found this afternoon who had nine sacks of flour in his cellar, besides a large stock of provisions and clothing which he had secured from the committee by misrepresentation.

The work of registration of the survivors of the flood is going steadily on. Up to last evening there were about 21,000 registered and the list is still increasing. The number of the lost is placed now at 5,000 by those who held it would reach 10,000 a week ago. A conservative estimate is between 3,500 and 4,000. Up to date there have been 1,500 bodies recovered, counting the fifty-eight found in all parts of the valley yesterday.

HELD CHURCH IN THE BACK YARD.

Father Fahney is a Catholic priest who believes that where Peter is there is the church, and that churches as well as persons can be made without stone walls. His church yesterday was under the blue sky in Patrick Matthews' side yard. The grass was his footstool and the June roses that —ng in the air were his censers.

The Matthews residence and yard command a view of the wrecked and shattered tower of St. John's and the ruined and torn parish cemetery, now filled with trunks of trees, stones, broken pillars and crosses. Before the preacher stood a pitiful remnant of his parishioners, whom he touchingly exhorted to a performance of prayer and duty. Many of his listeners were moved to tears.

The Grand Army have made the Adam Street Relief Station a central relief station and all the others at Kernville, the Pennsylvania Depot, Cambria City and Jackson and Somerset streets, sub stations. The idea is to distribute supplies to the sub stations from the central station, and thus avoid the jam of crying and excited people at the committee's headquarters. The Grand Army men have appointed a committee of women to assist in the work. The women go from house to house ascertaining the number of people quartered there, the number of people lost from there in the flood and the exact needs of the people.

It was found necessary to have some such committee as this, for there were women actually starving who were too proud to take their places in lines with the other women with bag and baskets. Some of these people were rich before the flood.

Now they are not worth a dollar. A reporter was told of one man who was reported to be worth $100,000 before the flood, but who now is penniless and who has to take his place in the line along with others seeking the necessaries of life.

TROUBLE AT JOHNSTOWN.

A Conflict of Authority Between the Regular Police and Private Detectives.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 10.—Horace Mann, a private detective, came up from Philadelphia to-day with seven of his men in response to a request from General Hastings. Counterfeit policemen and deputy sheriffs in the full panopy of a tin star and a club were easy to find as old tin cans. A pair of shears and a piece of stair banister was all that was required and they could not be told from the genuine.

Chairman Scott and General Hastings issued a supply of cards to Chief of Police Hart, to be given to all officers and told him all without them would be arrested. The Chief put them in his pocket and four of his men who couldn't show cards were arrested by Mann's men. Chief Hart got angry and ordered his men to shoot anybody who interfered with them. He was thereupon arrested himself, taken before Chairman Scott and taught the limits of his authority.

Mann's men found six barrels of whisky and $500 worth of silverware hidden in some of the workmen's tents. They stove in the heads of the whisky barrels, poured it out and confiscated the silver.

A Soldier Suicides at Johnstown.

The Waters Give Up Their Dead.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 10.—The waters began to give up their dead yesterday the ninth since the flood. Fifty odd bodies were recovered here, most of them floating in the water. Seven of them were dragged out of the raft above the bridge. On the body of Chris. Kemple, an undertaker, was found $3,100. The body of Miss Bessie Bryan, of Philadelphia, was dug up and positively identified. It had been buried among the unknown.

Notes of the Flood.

Everything at Johnstown is progressing nicely and the condition of all the patients in the hospitals is favorable.

The Jersey City and Lowell baseball teams played an exhibition game at Jersey City yesterday for the benefit of the Johnstown sufferers.

Rev. Charles A. Bragdon, the General Missionary of the Diocese of Pittsburg, yesterday attended twenty-seven different funerals at Johnstown.

On Sunday last the body of a young lady was found near the Gautier Steel works and was buried among the unknown dead. The body is now believed to be that of Miss Elizabeth M. Bran of Germantown, Pa.

OSWEGO'S BIG STORM.

Rain and Hail Pour Down Upon the City, Doing Great Damage.

OSWEGO, N. Y., June 10.—The worst storm of rain and hail experienced here in many years passed over this section of the State about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The people were just gathering at a mass meeting in aid of the Johnstown sufferers when the sky suddenly became black, and two immense clouds seemed to rise up out of the lake and bear down upon the city.

The people abandoned the meeting and rushed for their homes. As the clouds approached the city they were frightful in appearance. They passed over the city three minutes apart and the sun shone brightly between them. The thermometer fell from 66 to 56. The hail came with terrific force, the stones being of all shapes and sizes.

The Weather Observer picked up one at the Signal office that measured 1¾ inches long and ⅝ of an inch thick. Great damage was done to strawberries and tobacco crops, and in many fields they were utterly ruined.

The second cloud sent down sheets of of rain. The streets were filled from gutter to gutter, and many cellars were flooded. The rainfall in twenty minutes was 1.4 inches; the heaviest in that time ever recorded here.

The air was filled with electricity, and the thunder was incessant and deafening.

The Burgess yacht Merle, owned in Toronto, was driven ashore at Nine Mile Point. The crew escaped. An unknown schooner was driven ashore at Fair Haven.

The First Really Hot Day.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Yesterday was the first uncomfortably hot day of the season. The mercury reached 90 degrees, and there were a few cases of prostration on account of the heat.

HIS DRUNKEN WIFE

Drives Ex-Senator Sabin to Divorce.

A SHINING LIGHT OF SOCIETY.

She Started With Morphine and Wound Up With Alcholic Beverages.

The Senator Married Her Twenty Years Ago Before He Started in His Political Career—At the National Capital She Gave Charming Receptions, and Now She Is in an Inebriate Asylum at Flushing, L. I.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 10.—Senator Dwight M. Sabin has brought suit for divorce from his wife in the Washington County District Court. The summons was served personally upon Mrs. Sabin at Flushing, L. I., a week ago, but the complaint has not yet been filed in court.

The charge made in the complaint is that of habitual drunkenness, an allegation which in itself will be most shocking to the society of, Washington and other cities where Mrs. Sabin has long been a shining light, but which does not compare with other allegations which, it is credibly asserted, Mr. Sabin and his intimate friends have repeated quietly to friends in Stillwater and St. Paul.

It is asserted that Mrs. Sabin had, for some time prior to her marriage, been an invalid, and during that time became addicted to the use of morphine. The habit, it is claimed, has been indulged in to a greater or less extent ever since, and in later years she has added to it the use of intoxicating liquors. It is stated that during the absence from home of Mr. Sabin she occasionally indulged in liquors and drugs to excess.

At the close of Mr. Sabin's Senatorial career Mrs. Sabin was placed, at her own request, in the asylum for inebriates at Flushing, where she is at the present time, and in utter ignorance, it is asserted by her friends, of the scandals which are going the rounds in the West.

Mrs. Sabin's maiden name was E. Amelia Hutchins, and she was the adopted daughter of Dr. Hutchins, a prominent physician of Danielsonville, Conn. She was married to Mr. Sabin at that place about twenty years ago, at the age of 20. Socially Mrs. Sabin is a most fascinating lady, and during Mr. Sabin's Senatorial career in Washington she gave weekly receptions, which were among the most popular given by any lady in that city and attended by the most distinguished people. It is doubtful whether the fault of which she is charged in the complaint ever became apparent to any of her Washington guests, or came to the knowledge of her friends there. Indeed it was so much of a secret that no one in Stillwater, except possibly very intimate friends, was aware of it, though she had lived there many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Sabin have no children of their own, but they have adopted three. Two of these were the children of the late John B. Raymond, of Fargo, D. T., erstwhile United States Marshal, afterward Delegate in Congress from Dakota. The other is the little daughter of a relative of Mr. Sabin.

LATER.—It is said Senator Sabin has obtained his divorce.

IT MAY END IN A STRIKE.

Andrew Carnegie's Attempt to Force the Sliding Scale on His Men.

PITTSBURG, June 10.—Andrew Carnegie will be at liberty to-day to declare the places of nearly 1,900 of his Homestead Steel works employes vacant, since not a single man, who belongs to the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers has signed the firm's proposed sliding scale.

It transpires that it was not the intention of Carnegie Phippt, and Company to enforce their scale on June 1, but they presented it at that time with the intention of giving the men an opportunity to embrace it or quit. From present appearances, the latter will do neither. They have been calmly waiting until to-day, when the Steel committee of the Amalgamated Association meets and formulates their scale then they will meet the firm by committee and discuss wages. Since the meeting they rejected the firm's proposition, the men have ignored the notices sent to them.

It transpired Saturday that the men have other than personal motives in refusing the sliding scale. They have been informed that if the scale is put into operation it will close Oliver Bros.' and Phillip's, Shoenberger's, parts of Jones and McLaughlin's, and in fact all Pittsburg firms working on the same varieties of finished steel which are made at Homestead as it would be impossible for these firms to compete with the amalgamated scale of wages. The output at Homestead is so enormous, (reaching nearly 4,000 tons last month) that it is rapidly securing control of the market, and the men assert that with the Carnegie scale in operation, even the big Illinois Steel company would be crippled. In the interest of the brother members of their organization therefore the Homestead men are determined not to accept the proposed scale, and while they do not want to strike if it can be prevented, they say that the majority will stand a fight of years rather than give in.

THE WHOLE FAMILY KILLED.

The Most Severe Cyclone That Has Visited Kansas in Years.

WICHITA, Kas., June 10.—The storm that visited this section Friday was the most severe known here for years. The western part of Sedgwick County and the eastern part of Kingman County suffered most, and there a space twenty miles long by five miles wide was swept over by a cyclone.

A farmer named Rogers and all the members of his family were killed.

The heavy rain was followed by hail which laid low the grain and fruit crops.

In West Sedgwick County many of the houses and barns and acres of crops were leveled to the ground.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—At the morning service in Trinity Reformed church, yesterday, two infants were baptized.

—The First Presbyterian church collection yesterday for the Johnstown sufferers amounted to $76.

—Mr. Wm. VanSickle, the North avenue butcher, has in stock a choice line of meats, poultry, etc.

—The Young People's Society of Trinity Reformed church will meet this evening at eight o'clock.

—There will be a Mothers' Meeting in Reform Hall, to-morrow afternoon, at four o'clock. All are welcome.

—Much local matter, including the treasurer's report of Muhlenberg Hospital Auxiliary, is again crowded out today.

—Young People's prayer meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church. Everybody welcome.

—The "Young Arlington's" defeated Fred. Firstbrook's nine in a game of ball on the Seventh street grounds, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 14 to 7.

—An interesting account of the Century Bicycle run from Orange to Philadelphia, in which some of the Plainfield cyclers rode, last Saturday, will appear in THE PRESS to-morrow.

—The members of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, are requested to attend a meeting of said Council, this evening, to take action concerning the Johnstown sufferers.

—The "Buttermilks" of New York, defeated the "Diamonds" of this city, on the Y. M. C. A. grounds, Saturday, by a score of 9 to 1. Details of the game will be given to-morrow.

—The annual strawberry festival of the Holy Cross church, will be held in the school building, next Thursday afternoon and evening. The proceeds will be devoted to the school library.

—$15.25 forwarded today by THE PRESS to Mr. J. K. Myers, was subscribed for the Johnstown sufferers by the men connected with Mr. E. Love's print cutting works and wall paper department.

—The Chatham nine of North Plainfield, defeated the Twilight Juniors of Scoth Plains, Saturday morning, by the score of 13 to 7. The pitching of F. Pope, of the Chathams, was a feature of the game.

—Fifteen baby carriages are all that are left in the stock of G. Q. Packer at Park avenue and Second street. He will close those out at any price to make room. Call and see the line of Summer furniture he is offering.

—Those who want anything in the way of hardware and house furnishing goods, should patronize J. C. Pierson, Jr., during to-morrow and the next day. One-third of his sales of those days he will donate to the Johnstown sufferers.

—The service in the Park avenue Baptist church, yesterday morning, was more than usually interesting. The Sunday school joined with the church in rendering a special service arranged by the Baptist Publication Society.

—Mr. Joseph A. Robinson will conduct the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. this evening. Topic: "Doing God's will and to what it leads." John, 7:17; Mark, 3:35; I John, 2:17. Good singing and short talks. All men welcome.

—Mr. Joseph A. Robinson will conduct the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, Monday evening. Topic: "Doing God's will and to what it leads;" John VII:17; Mark III:35; 1 John II:17. Good singing and short talks. All men welcome.

—The police went on duty, Saturday night, with their new suits and hemlets, furnished by the city. Some of the officers, however, have Grand Army buttons on the sleeves of their new coat, and it is presumed that the maker "run out" of police buttons.

—Under the heading of "The Business Merchant" Edsall states some facts in another column that will interest all who wish to economize in the purchase of goods in his line. He says he keeps the largest and best selected stock in this part of the State and sells at the lowest prices.

—It is stated upon the best of authority that one lodge of the Knights of Pythias at Johnstown, Pa., consisting of 160 members, was obliterated from the face of the earth by the recent flood there. Another lodge at South Fork lost most of its members. In all about 300 Knights perished.

—While Mr. Harry Campbell was driving along Park avenue in the vicinity of the Park Avenue Baptist church, about six o'clock on Saturday evening, his horse became frightened and ran away. Mr. Campbell was thrown out and injured about the head and body. Dr. J. T. Fritts dressed the wounds.

Christening at the Congregational Church.

At the morning service in the Congregational church yesterday morning, three infants were christened. The ceremony was rather novel and most impressive. Another feature of the service was the presentation to all of the children, under seven years of age, who have been christened in the church. Each one was presented with a handsome Bible. The pulpit decorations were mostly of cut flowers and were very nice. Rev. C. L. Goodrich, the pastor, preached a sermon to the young.

HARKINS' OCCUPATION GONE.

The Plainfield Ponies Route the Somerville Swaggerers.

Did you hear something drop in the direction of Somerville, Saturday afternoon? It was the bursted bubble of Harkins' reputation.

Did you see the homing pigeons circling through the air? They were the birds that carried the news to THE PRESS office where on bulletins it was announced to the cheering crowds.

Did you hear the drums and fifes that played a song of victory in the evening through the streets? They led the march of the rejoicing Y. M. C. A., nine and their scores of admirers armed with brooms and canes, swelling with pride and exclaiming in shouts of glory.

The "Crescents" of Plainfield, had played its first game of the season with the "West Ends" of Somerville, and had defeated them with ease and something to spare. As the clock struck five-thirty, last Saturday, a cloud of dust rose up from the home plate on the Somerville ball grounds, out of which Demarest was seen to eventually emerge covered with dust and respiration, the winning run in his grip and victory written all over his dirty countenance.

A hurried but a mighty yell went out from the throats of the two hundred Plainfielders as they started for the last train that connects the jumping-off town with the World until they send the evening's milk to market. The inning was not finished. There was only one out—McLaughlin had reached third, Haydon was on second, and Lee and McMurray were coming along with liners to bring them in and to score themselves—but the game was won, and that was glory enough for one day.

Last year the Plainfield players were terrorized in the beginning of the season by Harkins, and never recovered. He made them believe that he would drive the ball through their ribs if they did not stand back from the plate, and every time he pitched a good ball he would shout "look out," and grin as the batter jumped a foot. McCutchen and most of the other players, could not be hired to stand near enough to reach the ball with a wagon-tongue.

Saturday, in the beginning, traces of this same ridiculous nervousness betrayed their existence. But they were not permanent, only shadows of the past, and before the game was over disappeared altogether never to return. In the last four innings the Plainfield ponies seemed to hit the big and rattled Harkins, as they pleased. This with their faultless fielding won them a deserved and creditable victory.

The 2:04 and the 2:30 trains from this city, carried between two and three hundred Plainfielders to Somerville, where they took possession of the grand stand. They stamped the floor out of it and raised its roof before they left. Even during the temporary lead that the West Ends were permitted to enjoy for a short hour, the confidence of the Plainfield contingent was not lessened nor their deafening cheers abated.

As the last half of the ninth inning opened with the Crescents four runs short of victory, the grand stand held its breath for the first time. But when Mc Murray stepped to the plate and soaked one of Steb Harkins favorite deceivers for a base, and Townley and Gately also reached first in safety, the Plainfielders knew that the Crescents were about to jump on the West Ends with both feet, and they jumped on the grand stand in accordance. The bases were filled, no one was out, and Demarest was at the bat. He had just run around as far as third for McMurray, and if he could get around again the game was won.

Bowman, Kelly, Conklin and Harkins himself, however, had all fallen victims to Demarest's long reach in centre field. Hits of theirs good for two bases apiece, he had pulled down out of the sky during the game and saved six possible runs for Somerville. So Harkins proposed to strike Demarest out, and drove some of his hottest teasers past the batter. But Harkins' occupation had gone. He stood in the box a busted bugaboo, so far as Plainfield was concerned, and when Demarest reached out and lined the ball down into the field for two bases, bringing in McMurray and Townley, the wind was driven entirely out of Steb's bubble reputation, and it collapsed beside the rattled pitcher. Demarest subsequently stole home, and the game was won.

The umpires were, W. Cadmus, on bases, and Bradley, on strikes and balls. The former is engaged by the West Ends as their umpire, for the season, and the latter is a great friend of Bowman's. Mack was on hand, but courteously withdrew when he understood the Crescents would not play under his decisions. Bradley was but little improvement, however. He was either intentionally partial to the West Ends, or afraid of them. He called strikes on Lee, Condon and others, that were way above their chins. But his worst decision was when Harkins fouled out to Haydon, and he declared the ball touched the back-stop. This so pleased the big pitcher that he knocked the ball over left field fence for three bases, and the West Ends made four runs in the inning. Cadmus was strictly fair, as he always is, and refused to budge although the Somervilles kicked and threatened, and stopped playing a half-dozen times when they found they were gone.

Every man of the Crescents played his very best. Haydon, the mute catcher, was nervous in the beginning from an over anxious desire to please, but he proved a fine catcher and will be among the leaders at the bat. Gately did better than most amateur pitchers could have done against such heavy weight professionals as Kelly, Harkins and Bowman, and some of the others. His support in the field was faultless, twelve fly catches being credited to the Crescents—Demarest 4, Lee 2, Gately 2, Townley, Mc Murray, Dilts and Condon one each.

Dilts at short had four chances and took advantage of three; but the fourth bounded over his head, letting Harkins and Bergen in, while Conklin made two bases and subsequently scored. But at the bat Dilts' carelessness might have lost the game. Twice when he struck out and the catcher had dropped the ball, he made no effort to go to first. Whereas if he had run at one time it would have let Haydon in from third, and at another time he would have made his first as Conklin muffed the thrown ball.

Lee had not much to do in the field, but he did it well, while McMurray and Condon played together and individually, as fine as silk. They missed no chances. Twice when McMurray had to leave first base to chase a batted ball, Condon covered the bag in time to put the batter out. Once when a high foul spinning in the air twisted itself out of McMurray's hand, he caught and held it in his arms while the 2x4 grand stand almost fell apart under the applause.

A handsome boquet was presented during the game by Mr. Peter Winn, who looks after the Crescents' grounds and paraphernalia, to Pitcher Gately for making the first run of the game.

The following was the score:

Children's Day at Trinity Reformed Church.

There was no special programme arranged for the Children's Day exercises in Trinity Reformed church, yesterday, but a special choir, consisting of Miss Emma U. King, soprano; Miss Fanny Mattison, alto; Mr. H. J. Martin, tenor, and Mr. Robert Gorton basso, rendered delightful music, accompanied by Mr. A. L. Titsworth on the organ. The floral decorations were arranged by a committee of young ladies from the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the church. The programme included prayer by the pastor, singing by the choir and school, a scripture lesson by the Superintendent, Mr. E. E. Anthony, a duett "Magdelene," by Miss King and Miss Mattison, reading of the Secretary's report by Mr. Elias Bird and addresses by pastor and Superintendent.

In the evening the pastor preached with reference to the Johnstown disaster, taking for his text Jeremiah 47:2. The preacher said that the words of Jeremiah found in the text were truthfully illustrated by the recent flood. He pointed out and clearly illustrated these lessons: First, the uncertainty of life; second, the uncertainty of earthly possessions; third, the weakness of man in the presence of the forces of water. Other lessons taught by the flood, he said, are: That a single human life is of more value than a thousand useless lakes, and that warnings unheeded become warnings unobeyed. The pastor's final reflection proved the universal brotherhood of mankind, showing that the American spirit is superior to disaster.

The evening collection, amounting to the handsome sum of $175.60, was contributed to the Johnstown sufferers.

The choir again favored the large congregation present with two very fine selections—"Great is the Lord," and "Saviour breathe an evening Blessing." Both were credibly rendered.

A Chance for the Knights to Contribute.

Grand Keeper of Records and Seals of the State, Eugene V. Lorton of this city, has sent out the following notice to the subordinate lodges, K. of P., asking for immediate contributions for the Johnstown sufferers:

BRETHREN—The recent terrible disaster at Johnstown, Pa., in which so many lives have been lost, and so much property destroyed, has aroused a feeling of sympathy throughout the entire country. Among the sufferers are many members of our Order. In view of this fact, and knowing that immediate assistance is needed, I therefore, in the name of Friendship, Charity and Benevolence, call upon the Lodges and members of our Order in this Jurisdiction to come quickly to the aid of our Pennsylvania brethren and their families. Their needs are great, and I trust every Lodge will contribute as much as can be spared to relieve their sufferings. Brethren, act promptly.

Contributions should be sent as soon as possible to G. K. of R. and S., Eugene V. Lorton, who will receipt for same and forward to their destination.

I am fraternally yours in F. C. & B.,
ARNOLD B. BACE,
Grand Chancellor.

Attest:
EUGENE V. LORTON,
G. K. of R. and S.

Reform Hall Meeting.

In Reform Hall, last evening, President French resumed the chair, and Freeholder Vanderbeek with a full choir, consisting of Mrs. J. King, Miss Alice Smith, Miss Flora Hawkins, and Messrs King and Spencer, were as usual promptly at their posts of duty. Bishop McNamara conducted the devotional services by reading the VIII Psalm and offering a fervent prayer.

The Bishop was the speaker of the evening, and delivered an earnest and eloquent discourse strictly along the line of Gospel temperance. After propounding the inquiry: "Why continue the temperance work?" and making reply thereto: "Because the terrible evils of liquor drinking exist," he went on to detail the ruin-freighted results of strong drink, and urged all to firmly adhere to total abstinence from every species of intoxicants, and from every kind of beverage calculated to incite an appetite for liquor. The Bishop appealed with power to the young men that they might avoid all places where liquor was kept or sold. The meeting closed with the benediction.

A Lawn Party of the Senses.

Mr. F. E. Kinsman is at work wiring the grove and lawn of Mr. Geo. H. Babcock, on Eighth street, with electric lamps, preparatory to the entertainment to be given there next Wednesday afternoon and evening, by the ladies of the Seventh Day Baptist church, for the purpose of raising funds for their new chapel.

The title of the entertainment, Fete Champetre des cinq sens, may, it seems, be taken in more senses than one—at least the whole five, which one is supposed to possess, will need to be gratified if the entire entertainment is to be taken in. The ladies may look for a large attendance if the evening is pleasant—and if it is not the Fete may be expected on the evening following.

The refreshment tables will typify the sense of taste, the flower booth the sense of smell, fancy articles the sense of sight, music, the hearing, and the other may be guessed at.

—William Miller, the converted Catholic, will assist Bishop McNamara in conducting services at Reform Hall, this evening.

—What is Dr. Dam's Remedy? It is a compound of wild cherry bark, red clover blossoms, butternut, yellow dock and dandelion root, in such proportions as to bring out the best medicinal part of each root and herb.

THE CLOSING RECEPTION.

The last reception of the season was tendered the pupils of Rodman Seminary, 25 East Fifth street, by the principal, Mrs. R. C. Dingee, on Friday evening, the account of which was crowded out of our columns on Saturday. The programme consisting of a play, tableaux, recitations vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience, many of whom were obliged to stand throughout its production.

In the play "The Expected Visitors" the following persons impersonated the several characters: Miss Anna Daft, Miss Alice Schoonmaker, Miss Jennie Schoonmaker and Miss Sophia Brower. All the parts were well taken. "Papa's Letter" by Miss Mary Collier drew the attention of all as it was very expressive and well recited. A beautiful tableaux "City and Country Courtship," showing a decided contrast between the two, delighted the audience. The characters were well taken by Miss Anna Teale and Master Fred Smith who represented the country couple, with Miss Lizzie Maltby and Mr. Benney representing the city couple. The solo "Butter cups and Daisies" by Master Fred Freeman, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Wm. Freeman, deserves particular mention.

The tableaux in which Louis XVI was represented was an interesting feature of the entertainment. The following parties who took part in costume presented a grand spectacle. "King," Master Charles Maltby, "Queen" Miss Brower, "Daughter" Miss Jennie Schoonmaker, "Son" (the Prince) Miss Florence Johnson. The last named young lady is a child eight years of age who so much resembled "Little Lord Fauntleroy" in her appearance that she was the centre of attraction. The "Lightning Rod Agent" by Master Willie Thiers was recited in a clear, distinct voice. The violin solo so beautifully rendered by Miss Sophia Maltby with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Volney Green was a treat to all, she was loudly applauded

The scene representing "The Fortune Teller" was another interesting tableaux. A large tent was pitched under which the fortune teller, personated by Miss Bessie Brower, sat surrounded by her visitors, Miss Bertha MacDonald, Miss Alice Schoonmaker, Miss Anna Teale, Miss Mary Collier, Master Linn Edsall and Master Willie Thiers. Colored lights were used in profusion in representing the tableaux. At the conclusion of the exercises refreshments were served after which dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

The Committee on Refreshment, Miss Daft, Committee on Programmes and Orders of Dancing, Miss Sophia Brower, and Miss Daft, deserve credit for the manner in which the affair was conducted.

F. G. Smith Wins the Club Championship.

At a tournament held on the grounds of the U-No Tennis Club, at 141 Central avenue, last Saturday, Mr. F. G. Smith won the club championship prize, a Franklin Expert racquet. The score in detail was:

H. Lovell and V. Rockwell: 3—6, 6—4, 6—3.
F. Smith and H. Simmonds: 6—5, 6—5.
L. Beals and W. Beals: 6—0, 6—1.
C. Aborn and B. Beals, 6—5, 6—5.

F. Smith and H. Lovell: 6—2, 6—0.
C. Aborn and L. Beals: 6—1, 6—2.

F. Smith and C. Aborn: 6—5, 6—0.

Death of an Estimable Lady.

At her home on East Fifth street, about five o'clock yesterday morning, occurred the death of Sarah J., the estimable wife of Mr. Henry VanName, in the forty-sixth year of her age. The deceased was in town the night before, apparently enjoying good health. While on the street she was stricken speechless, but was able to walk home. At eleven o'clock she became unconscious, and died, as above stated, at five o'clock yesterday morning from paralysis. A husband and one son survive her.

The funeral will take place from the Baptist church at Erastina, Staten Island, to-morrow at 2:30 P. M.

The Strawberry Record.

Up to this morning, "Compton's Favorite" held the record for fine strawberries sent to THE PRESS office for competition. But today among the many specimens received, Mr. Moses H. French's and Mr. Floyd Fuller's seem to excel all others. Mr. French's are the largest yet, while Mr. Fuller's as specimens of amateur cultivation for his own family use, cannot be equalled.

Started From a Wrong Source.

THE PRESS does not believe there will be any concert given in Music Hall, that is "proposed" by the news. The people are doing all they can in other ways for the Johnstown sufferers, and besides, the source from which the scheme was started entirely for self-glorification, nips it in the bud.

—The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, will be held in the Crescent Avenue Parlors, to-morrow afternoon at 4 P. M.

—Mrs. W. W. Hall, 75 W. Sixth street: Since using Dr. Dam's Remedy, the swelling in my knees from rheumatism is all gone, and I can walk up and down stairs without help.

Water Works a Sure Thing.

This evening the City Council will meet in adjourned regular session. The main subject to be discussed will be the water works problem, and in all probability a franchise will be granted—but not then. However, it will in all probability be decided which corporation or company will eventually get it. THE PRESS can now tell the successful company's name, but we prefer not to, because requested, disclose the firm's name. There may, however, be a hitch in the matter of sewerage, which is likely to defer the granting of a franchise. Both are needed, and why not grant both at the same time?

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

CRONIN'S SLAYERS

May Be Convicted by Expressman Martinson.

HE IS AN IMPORTANT WITNESS.

The Chicago Police Have Him Under Their Care at Present.

He Carted the Furniture to the House Where the Cowardly Assassination Was Committed, and Says He Can Identify the Men Who Hired Him to Do the Job. More Testimony as to Sullivan's Financial Transactions.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Hakan Martinson will be the most important witness in the trial of Dr. Cronin's murderers. He is the expressman employed by the conspirators to haul the goods to the Carlson cottage. He was in the employ of Larson Brothers, expressmen, at 94 East Chicago avenue, until Saturday, when the police took him out of the newspaper mens' reach. Martinson told your correspondent last night that he had seen one of the two mysterious men who hired him several times since the murder. About three months ago the man asked him to haul a light load from 117 Clark street, and carried the furniture down stairs himself, not allowing Martinson in the flat.

There was a bed, bureau, washstand, several chairs and a large, yellow trunk, but, unfortunately, Martinson fears he cannot identify the latter. After loading he was ordered to drive to Lincoln and Belmont avenues. After waiting an hour there his employer, accompanied by a smaller man, drove up in a buggy. Then they both drove north on Lincoln avenue and stopped at the Carlson cottage, where the stuff was unloaded. After some dispute about payment the two strangers drove away and Martinson reached home about 9:30. The big man, as described by Martinson, was 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighed about 175 pounds. His face was red, hair dark brown, and he wore a mustache and looked "tough." Martinson says he never could fail to identify the man, and will look at Coughlin, Iceman Sullivan, Woodruff and the others.

Harry Jordan, the bartender, will testify at the inquest to-day. Lize Buckley and several others he has long been identified with the case, and was one of the first suspects. McGee and Buckley will be recalled, and the books of the defunct firm, Maurice Rosenfield & Co., may be called for. These are expected to show records of certain of Alexander Sullivan's transactions on 'Change. Rev. Maurice J. Dorney, who made the report concerning Sullivan's alleged embezzlement, may also be called. After Sullivan secured the $100,000 from Egan and paid off his debts he sent checks, among others to George Carl, a New York linen manufacturer.

In connection with this $100,000 transaction the startling statement is made that there was a triangle obedient to the British Government, of which Le Caron was one, and which practically controlled the Clan-na-Gael. A committee is at work collecting money for the Cronin fund. About $5,000 is now at hand, but this is totally inadequate. The bloody clothes sensation of yesterday did not pan out. It is almost positively known that they were taken from the body of a suicide barber.

Col. W. P. Rend, the millionaire coal king, who has been active in the Cronin investigation, has received a notice written in red ink and adorned with skull and crossbones, informing him that his life is in danger unless he "lets up on this Cronin business." Rend is in New York at present

Expect a Decision This Week.

JERSEY CITY, June 10.—The politicians of this city think the new charter case will be decided early this week by the Supreme court. The friends of the new charter are confident that the opinion will be in their favor. Whatever may be the result the dual government in Jersey City will be at an end. The old charter officials and the new ones say they will abide by the ruling of the Supreme court.

Collision on the Erie.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., June 10.—Erie train No. 14 ran over a man at Rock Run two miles above Callicoon early this morning. While it stopped to pick the body up it was run into by train No. 2 from the rear badly damaging one passenger car, shaking up the forward train and smashing part of the engine in the rear train. Fireman Conroy of train No. 2 was seriously injured.

They Went Over the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 10.—"Jacko" Walker, a local boatman, with Frank Davy, a friend, were out on the river some distance above the Falls yesterday when they lost control of the boat and it was swept by the current over the Falls, passing almost directly in the middle of the Horseshoe. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

The Wanamakers Home from Europe.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Mrs. John Wanamaker and child, with several other members of the Postmaster-General's family arrived on the steamer La Bretagne from Havre. They were met by Mr. Wanamaker and taken to the Hotel Brunswick.

Caused by a Misplaced Switch.

ALTOONA, Pa., June 10.—A westbound engine and car went through the bridge west of Petersburg last night, and engineer Port and fireman Hoffright were killed. A misplaced switch caused the accident.

KEMMLER'S LAST CHANCE.

His Counsel Will Appeal Against His Death by Electricity.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 10.—Charles S. Hatch, attorney for William Kemmler, also known as John Hart, the wife murderer, sentenced to be executed by electricity, has filed notice of his appeal to the Court of Appeals. The appeal involves not only a question of the constitutionality of the method of punishment to be used, but it promises to be one of the most interesting cases in criminal history.

Mr. Hatch stated that the writ of habeas corpus will be applied for at once, probably this week. The writ will take the precedence and be heard first. The petition upon which it is expected the writ will be granted will recite the fact of the case and it will be alleged that the punishment prescribed is contrary both to the Constitution of the State and of the United States, which Constitution provides that there shall be no excessive fines levied or excessive bail demanded or no punishment inflicted which is cruel or unusual.

"No man having been executed by electricity how are you going to show the punishment to be cruel and unusual!" asked a reporter of Mr. Hatch.

"We expect to plainly show that the method is what we allege it to be. Under the law it is not provided who shall apply this current of electricity. A bungler might do it. It is a barbarous method, because the prisoner does not know when he is to be killed. Again the law says the current shall be applied until life is extinct. Suppose the current doesn't kill the man at once, why it may be kept up five, ten, fifteen minutes or a week."

When asked how Bourke Cockran got in the case Mr. Hatch answered, "When I determined to appeal this case I looked around for some one to act as counsel. Every lawyer of standing in New York is interested in the question raised in this case and is thoroughly interested in the result of the proceeding. I went to New York, saw Mr. Cockran and secured his services.

"If there is any truth in the statement that Mr. Cockran is interested in another murder, I don't know it."

The argument will be had as to the writ of habeas corpus and an opinion as to the constitutionality of the law obtained before the appeal proper. It is probable that upon the final disposition of the question of constitutionaly the appeal from Kemmler's sentence will drop out of sight.

MR. EGAN NOT RECALLED.

The Report Denied at the State Department By Walker Blaine.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Secretary Blaine was too busy to say anything about the report that Patrick Egan has been recalled from Chili, but his private secretary, Mr. Dent, vouchafed the information that Mr. Blaine had made up his mind neither to deny or affirm newspaper statements of this kind.

Mr. Walker Blaine, however, made a positive denial that the cablegram had been sent.

"There is no truth in the story," he said to your representative. "No enarges have been made to the Department against Mr. Egan and, until they are, the Secretary will take no action. Besides, it would be foolish to send a cablegram to a man who is on the water, only half way to his destination."

ARMES' SENTENCE.

The President Lightens the Punishment Imposed by the Court-Martial.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The President has commuted the sentence of Captain George A. Armes, the retired army officer, who assaulted Governor Beaver and was sentenced by Court Martial to be dismissed from the service. The President, in consideration of the good service which this officer has rendered, and of some mitigating circumstances connected with the offences of which found guilty, commutes the sentence to confinement within such limits as the Secretary of war may prescribe and to deprivation of right to wear the uniform and insignia of his rank in the army for a period of five years.

WEATHER CROP BULLETIN.

The Recent Rains and Freshets Did Great Damage on the Farms.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The weather crop bulletin for the week ending June 8, says:

Recent rains and freshets in the Middle states have greatly damaged growing crops, and in localities escaping the freshets the weather was so cool as to prove injurious.

In New England the conditions were generally favorable for all crops excepting corn, which was slightly injured by low temperature. Reports are especially favorable for all crops, excepting corn, which was vastly injured by low temppratrure.

Changes in the Signal Corps.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—A number of changes in the stations of signal corps officers have been ordered to take effect October 1st, as follows: Second Lieutenant F. M. M. Beall from Washington to Chicago; Second Lieutenant F. R. Day from Washington to St. Louis; Second Lieutenant R. B. Watkins from St. Louis to Cincinnati; Second Lieutenant J. C. Walshe from Cincinnati to St. Paul, Minn., to assume charge of the military telegraph lines in Montana, Dakota, Wyoming and Utah relieving Second Lieutenant F. W. Ellis from those duties; Second Lieutenant J. P. Finley from Washington to Boston, to assume charge of the Military telegraph lines in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Virginia, North Carolina and Florida, relieving Second Lieutenant W. D. Wright of those duties; Second Lieutenant Wright from Boston to Washington, Second Lieutenant Frank Greene from Washington to Prescott, Arizona, to take charge of the telegraph lines in that territory, relieving Second Lieutenant W. A. Glasford, who is ordered to Washington.

The Lost Trenton and Vandalia.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The Trenton and Vandalia, which were wrecked at Samoa, last March, have been abandoned by the Government and their names will be stricken from the Navy list. All of the valuables have been recovered and are now en route to San Francisco on the steamship Alameda. Admiral Kimberly and the remaining survivors are on board, and expect to reach this country about July 8.

A New Appointment Probable.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The second term of Commodore Montgomery Sicard, as Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, will expire in about three weeks. There is no precedent for appointing a Bureau officer for three successive terms, and those who profess to be well informed are of the opinion that Secretary Tracy will make a new appointment.

Secretary Blaine's Vacation.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Secretary Blaine and family will leave the latter part of the month to spend the season at Bar Harbor.

AUNT MANDA.

The Story of Her Wood-Chopping —What Came of It.

"IT'S JEST A DOWNRIGHT HOWDACIOUS SHAME, ZEKIEL, THE WAY THEM FOLKS TREATS THE POOR CHILD."

"It's jest a downright howdacious shame, Zekiel, the way them folks treats the poor child. That's what it is, an' ther haint no two ways about it, nother."

Good old Aunt Manda Goff was thoroughly in earnest, as she always was in whatever she interested herself, and in her excitement waved the pumpkin butter-stirrer so energetically and carelessly as to bring the end of it uncomfortably near Uncle Zekiel's nose as he sat warming his hands over the kitchen fire.

"Wal, wal, Manda," Zekiel said, "don't go ter gettin' riled erbout suthin' that haint heither hyar nor thar to you; an' do be er leetle more keerful with that air paddle, will ye."

"Do you mean to stan' up an' say," replied Mrs. Goff, "that it hain't here ner thar to me what them Martin's does toward Mary. Do you mean to say it hain't none o' my business, ner yourn, ner nobody's?"

"Wal, Manda, yer know it's all in ther family, an' I don't rightly make it out as how we've got any right to meddle atwixt 'em."

"What ef Mary is the widow ov ole Squire Martin's son, is that any reason why ef the Squire won't help 'er none we shant?"

"No, I dunno es it is. Yit you know how headstrong the Squire is, an' how ef he gits his head sot on a thing they haint no reason in him. I don't like ter hev no trouble with our neighbors, an' the Squire bein' sorter quare, it mout be best fer us not ter go ter mixin' erlong o' the affairs o' ther family. It 'pears ter me like it 'ud be best to let 'em alone an' not say nothin' one way or tother."

"Wal, it don't 'pear no sich way to me, Zeke, and it haint right ter let 'em erlone an' leave pore Mary to suffer jest becase ole Martin is too contrary an' stingy to help her hisself, an' too proud to want others to help 'er. Mary's jest es good es any a Martin thet ever lived, an' a mighty sight better than the Squire, an' wuz er fittin' wife fer his son ef she wasn't only a schoolteacher. It ain't no wise right thet he should let 'er suffer, an' ef he won't do nothin' to help 'er along with them two children he haint got no business ter stan' atwixt her an' other folks whut would help 'er."

"No, he haint, Manda, thet's er fack. But it's best ter be er leetle keerful an' not say too much."

"Zekiel, ef I pretended to be er man I'd be one. I wouldn't be erfeered to say my soul's my own. You kin do es yer like, but yer mistaken ef you think I'm goin' ter poke about 'ith my fingers in my mouth an' let that child go on a sufferin' jest to keep Martin in a good humor."

"It's er mouty bad thing ter git up bad feelin's with ther neighbors."

"I know that well ernuff, but it's a awful sight worse to let the innercent suffer. That's my way o' lookin' at it, and I feel es if it wuz ther Christian way, too. Tomorry I'm going ter git up a wood-choppin' for Mary, an' I'm goin' to send Tommy Brown to invite all the men to come an' chop an' haul wood to do 'er all winter."

"You!" Zekiel exclaimed.

"Yes, me. If the men won't take aholt and lead off, I will."

Zekiel knew his wife too well, and was too thoroughly aware of her determined spirit, to stop for a moment to doubt her intentions; and he had long since learned that it was a clear waste of time and breath to engage in any attempt to dissuade her from a purpose, so without another word he got up and went away about his duties.

Bob Martin had married Mary against his father's wishes, and the old Squire, being one of those firm, unrelenting persons, had renounced his son and vowed "up and down" that never, for all time to come, should Bob, his wife, or any of their offspring have one cent of his money or any assistance otherwise from him. When five years later Bob died of consumption after a long and tedious illness, and left Mary almost penniless with two children to support, people thought that the Squire would relent for the children's sake, but in that they were mistaken, for though Mary lived but a mile from him, the old Squire never recognized her and seemed completely oblivious of the existence of herself and children.

The neighbor men would have willingly given the widowed mother assistance, but they feared the Squire, and they knew that by so doing they would gain his lasting enmity and hatred. Thus it went on through the summer and autumn, and then, when cold weather set in, Aunt Manda Goff realized that somebody must do something, and knowing that there is no one on whom a person can rely so certainly as on one's self, she took the matter in her own hands and set to work to get up a wood chopping.

Little Tommy Brown rode about over the settlement and invited every man for miles around, not even neglecting the Squire, and on the morrow Mary was surprised when, at an early hour, the neighbors began to arrive with axes and teams for the purpose of getting up a supply of wood for the winter. She was also somewhat taken aback when she bethought herself that all these men must have dinner, and that there was really but little in the house with which to provide it.

"I don't know what I'm ever to do," she remarked in a fit of despair as she sank back in a chair. "Those men are kind, and the Lord knows I need their assistance, but I am almost sorry they came when I have nothing to fix up for dinner."

"Well, be es cheerful es you kin," a neighbor woman remarked, an' "I dersay it'll all come out well ernuff someway."

And it did come out, for a half hour later Zekiel Goff drove up to the front gate and began to unload baskets and boxes of provisions, and a few minutes after Aunt Manda came and explained it all by saying that "She jest thought she mout es well fetch er leetle somethin' to sorter he'p out, seein' es she could do it jest es easy es not."

Mary cried, she was so overcome with gratitude, and she tried to find words to express her thanks, but Aunt Manda prevented her, for, like all good, generous people, she found all her pleasure in doing good and none in talking of it.

"It hain't much," she said, when the long table was spread, "but it he'ps out a mite, and altogether I reckon they's ernuff fer 'em, an' I s'pect it's 'bout as good 's them men's mostly used to."

It was along toward the middle of the afternoon, and the pile of wood was assuming large proportions, when the old Squire rode down the lane from his mansion, and turning in at the bars, followed the track down to the timber where the men were at work. As soon as he came in sight they all knew he was mad. They could tell that by the way he carried himself, and some of them trembled with fear, for they well knew the form of his wrath. Riding up to the first group he roughly demanded:

"What do you fellows mean by sich doin's es this? Don't you know that when I want wood chopped here I've got money to hire it done?"

For a moment no one spoke, then Jase Cobb stepped forward and said:

"'Squire, it 'pears ter me like yer gittin' right smart riled up fer nothin'. Ef we see fit to come here and chop wood ruther 'n hev ther widder en children freeze, I reckon we hev er right to, an' besides it don't seem ter me yer jest ther one ter talk erbout hirin' uv things, when yer hain't never done nothin' of ther sort."

"Look out, thar! look out!" four or five voices shouted at once just then, but either the Squire did not hear or would not heed, and the next instant a falling tree brushed him from his horse and left him a badly bruised and unconscious mass on the earth.

"We thought the tree wuz goin' ter fall tother way," the men said as they came running up, "but he could er got away ef he'd a listened."

"He hain't dead," another remarked, after bending over the Squire for a minute, "an' we'd best git 'im to ther house, while somebody goes for the doc."

Accordingly the Squire was conveyed to the house—the very house that he had vowed he would never enter, and when the doctor came and examined his wounds and bruises, he expressed the opinion that the Squire would recover in time, but that his confinement would be long and tedious, and that it would be weeks before he could be removed to his own house.

The Squire groaned when he heard this, and mentally resolved that he would go, and that no power or combination of circumstances could compel him to remain an incumbrance on one whom he had always scorned, and to whose claims for assistance and protection he had turned a deaf ear. But he soon discovered that his will was greater than his physical strength, and that, however much he might rebel against the idea of being an unwilling guest under his daughter's roof, he was forced to submit to it.

The Squire had no family save an aged relative who acted in the capacity of housekeeper, and who for years had contended against a severe attack of rheumatism, and was therefore poorly qualified to assume the duties of nurse. Thus it fell out that the nursing came to Mary, and she was well fitted for it after all she had done for poor Bob.

At first the Squire was reluctant to have her near him, and if she did not divine his wants and supply them voluntarily he allowed them to go ungratified. For several days he spoke to her only in answer to direct questioning, and then his words were as few as possible to convey his meaning.

Mary seemingly took no notice of all this, but devoted herself to him with all the tenderness of her loving nature, and in return for his curt, gruff words gave him sentences full of kindness and hope.

Two weeks passed, and the Squire was rapidly recovering, when one evening Aunt Manda Goff came to see him, and as they were alone together for a few minutes he said:

"Aunt Manda, your wood-chopping has been a great misfortune to me in one respect, as I shall have to go on crutches the rest of my days; but somehow I don't mind it so much. It's set me to thinkin', an' I've come to the conclusion that I've always been a fool. That's puttin' it tolerable strong, but it ain't any past the truth, is it?"

"Wal, that ain't fer me to say, Squire," Aunt Manda replied, "but I do think you hain't never acted none too sensible."

"I've been a fool, that's all. And Mary, Aunt Manda, she is almost an angel."

"Yes, I've knowed that all along."

"I know it now, though if I'd a been sensible I might a known it sooner. But that's past. Now, I want you to do me a favor. I want you to tell her what I think, and that I am willing to admit that I was always wrong, and want to be friends from this time. I've tried to tell 'er myself, but I can't do it. It makes me feel so little and mean when she is by."

"I'll do what I can," Aunt Manda replied.

The result of it all was that Mary and the children accompanied the Squire home, and while he supplies them with the comforts of life, they give him equally as much in the way of pleasure, kindness and love.

There was a great change in the Squire, and instead of the proud, haughty nature he once possessed and which made him so disagreeable to those with whom he came in contact, he grew to be gentle, considerate and almost childlike in his behavior towards others; and those who had known him so long found it hard to reconcile the hard, cold, distant man of old with the tender old man who now hobbled about on crutches with Mary's two children for his companions and friends.

However great the change, the neighbors all noted it with pleasure, but none found more satisfaction in it than did Aunt Manda Goff, who, though she said nothing of it, knew quite well that the happy transformation dated from the day of her wood chopping and that it originated in that event.

THOMAS P. MONTFORT.

BEAUTY may be only skin deep; but the trouble nowadays is to tell how deep the skin is.

The Report is Correct.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 10.—A member of the firm of Sibley, Lindsay & Curr, today said that A. Swan Brown, was in this city two weeks ago and passed nearly two days in Rochester looking over their establishment. He intimated that the articles published in these despatches a few days ago concerning the purchase of American dry goods houses by English capitalists, was substantially correct, and that his firm was included in the list. He said that the firm expected to hear from Mr. Brown by cable on his arrival in England, and that he would return to make further investigations in August.

Poverty and Paris Green.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Theresa Astor, wife of a cigarmaker named John Jacob Astor, committed suicide yesterday by taking paris green. Astor claims to be a cousin of his millionaire namesake and has frequently been "written up" as such in newspaper articles. He earns only $6.50 a week, and lives in a miserable tenement. Despondency because of poverty is given as the cause of the woman's suicide.

Welter Champions to Meet.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—There is some prospect of a fight being arranged between Duffy, of Boston, and McMillan, of this city. It will be for $1,000 a side and the welter championship of the United States. The fight will probably take place near New York.

BURNING THE RUINS

The Great Mass at the Bridge Set on Fire.

CLEARING AWAY THE DRIFT.

The Johnstown Survivors Seem to Have Changed Their Minds.

Governor Beaver's Visit Did Much to Reassure the Public—Nearly Forty Bodies Recovered Yesterday—Only a Few of Them Could Be Recognized—Pneumonia and Diphtheria Said to Be Raging in the Conemaugh Valley.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 11.—The greatest menace to the living at Johnstown is the great drift above the stone bridge. It is more difficult to clear away, fuller of animal matter, harder to approach and more dangerous to those who have to use river water than any part of the ruins. Although at first there was a natural sentiment against the burning of this mass, which led to the extinguishment of the fire here by the Pittsburg firemen, there has been a steady change of opinion.

The chances in the event of the finding of a body in the drift are decidedly against its identification, and this is also an argument in favor of the cremation of the whole. The plan is to dry up the part of the river bed where the wreckage is and then soak it with oil and fire it. Now that the river is rapidly lowering this plan is entirely feasible.

The work of removing the debris was continued yesterday with a larger force of men, there being about 500 men at work, but still the progress was very slow. The men are scattered all along the shore, and the debris is being burned. Another large force of men arrived at noon to-day armed with axes and were at once set to work.

The visit of Governor Beaver has done much to reassure the public. In all nearly forty bodies were recovered to-day. Only a few of those could be recognized. Pneumonia and diphtheria are reported at all the valley towns, but as yet there is not much fear of a general epidemic.

The debris of the raft on the eastern side, near the bridge, was fired last night. This means that a number of bodies must be burned. The fire is burning slowly, and no authority is given for the measure. General Hastings didn't care to talk of it.

TWO HUNDRED PEOPLE STARVING.

Two hundred people who have suffered from the flood in New Florence, Nineveh and Centerville, who are housed at New Florence, are starving. They are people who have been used to all the comforts and luxuries of life before the pen-tup waters of Conemaugh Lake devastated their homes and carried away members of their families. In the distribution of supplies New Florence has been entirely overlooked. The good people of that town who have been doing all they can to make comfortable the survivors who have sought their homes for refuge from the flood are at a loss to know why the place was sighted whether by accident or design.

Yesterday the bakers made the last pound of flour into bread and when that is eaten there will be nothing for the poor people to do but starve unless their wants are immediately relieved. The merchants of the place have sold and given everything they had in stock away. They have stocks of staple goods ordered but cannot get them hauled over the railroads.

A citizen of New Florence in speaking of the matter said to your correspondent: "We must have something to eat down there. Coffee, bread and meat are all gone. Little children are crying for more food and the unhappy parents often go without in order to feed the little ones. We have made applications for supplies but have not got any yet. Something must be done soon or we will die of hunger."

GENERAL HASTINGS' DISCIPLINE.

After to-morrow Adjutant-General Hastings will have entire charge, and this section will be entirely under military discipline. In speaking of the general condition of this place as to order, the Assistant Chief of Police said to-day:

"I wish to say that the people of this section are well pleased with the order that has prevailed here since the flood. There have been fewer arrests and less disorder and drunkenness than ever before. It is most surprising that there has not been more disorder, and every one is most gratified to the people in charge for their effective work in this direction."

BRINGING IN THE DEAD.

The First Body Received Yesterday at the Morgue Horribly Mutilated

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 11.—At the Presbyterian Church morgue yesterday the first body brought in was that of a horribly mutilated man. He was taken out of the ruins near the First National Bank, and has not yet been identified.

The following bodies wer received at the morgue in one hour:

J. Knightly, aged 40; unknown boy, aged 12; unknown woman, aged 45, supposed to be Mrs. George Root; Jackson Ripley, Mary Flynn, H. C. Adams, Cooney Schnibbie, Cyrus Shick and Geo. Robb.

James McGinley, Mrs. J. L. Smith, found in Kernville; unknown lady found at Weavers Mills; three unknown women found in ruins at Wollson and Thomas' Stores; George Huring, found at Woodvale, and unknown woman at Merchant's Hotel. Ten bodies were received at the First Ward morgue to-day. All unkown but one—Miss Blanche Hornish, of Dayton, O. She was a passenger on the Day Express. This makes a total of 35 bodies found up to 2 p. m., and 73 since Saturday evening.

The morgues at Kernville and at the Pennsylvania Railroad depot have been abandoned, and a new morgue established in the First Ward school building near the [illegible] bridge.

The State Board of Health reports all of the morgues in a favorable sanitary condition.

RENOVO WANTS HELP.

RENOVO, Pa., June 11.—Ten days have passed since the disastrous flood swept through three-quarters of Renovo and laid waste the houses of the working people of the town. So much has been said and written of the sufferings in other places that Renovo has been almost forgotten, except in the matter of provisions. Sufficient clothing and food has been contributed to relieve the immediate wants of the distressed, but unless aid in the shape of money comes to the people they will be unable to again build up the homes which were destroyed by the flood.

The condition of the people here is distressing in the extreme. The majority of the homes destroyed represent the life time savings of workingmen and unless outside aid comes there will be suffering and poverty such as has not yet been known. Unaided the people are unable to start anew the building up of their destroyed homes, and the Chief Burgess, and citizens generally of the town have asked your correspondent to make known through the press the true condition of affairs in this place.

LOCK HAVEN APPEALS FOR AID.

Money Needed to Clean the Place to Prevent an Epidemic.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., June 11.—The following resolution was adopted at a meeting of citizens with the request that it be given to your representative:

To the People of the United States:

This city has been devastated by the present great flood and immediate assistance is needed. Our streets, alleys and homes are in a frightful condition and money is needed at once to save us from an epidemic.

We are receiving a generous supply of provisions, but Lock Haven alone is not the only place to be supplied from these. Many people in the near-by small towns have lost every thing they had and are dependent upon us for money and provisions.

We need disinfectants badly and money with which to hire teams and men from a distance to help clean our streets and cellars. There was not a square inch of land within the corporate limits of the city proper that was not submerged, and when the water subsided it left a layer of mud and filth which, under the strong sun of to-day, create a stench that is almost unbearable.

The cotents of vaults and cesspools are in our cellars and on our main thoroughfares, and nothing will save us from a frightful epidemic unless help comes promptly and generously.

SHE IS HAPPY AFTER ALL.

Lost Her Home at Johnstown but Now Gets Another.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 11.—One week ago Miss Sarah B. Duncan was a homeless wanderer on the hills of Johnstown, thinking herself the only survivor of her family.

At 5 o'clock last evening, Miss Duncan, arrayed in bridal robes and surrounded by all of her family, linked her fortunes with Albert J. Warden, of Sharpsburg. The ceremony was performed at the home of bride's grandfather in Allegheny, immediately after which the bridal party went to the grooms pleasant home in Sharpsburg.

The bride's father, D. J. Duncan, was Superintendent of the Johnstown street railway system and lost all of his property. The family were caught in the flood, but all escaped, although they were separated for hours and each thought the others dead.

Germans Need Attention.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Mayor Grant sent the following despatch to Governor Beaver this morning:

"The correspondent of the New York Staats Zeitung telegraphs from Johnstwon that Germans there, in consequence of their imperfect knowledge of the English language, are much neglected and especially in the distribution of clothing and shoes. At the request of Mr. Oswald Ottendorfer and other prominent Germans of this city who have been liberal in their contribution to the relief fund I would suggest that you would give the matter your earnest attention. HUGH J. GRANT, Mayor.

Boston Won't Appropriate.

BOSTON, June 11.—By a vote of 6 to 6 the Board of Aldermen refused to appropriate $10,000 from the city treasury for the benefit of the flood sufferers. The objections were wholly upon the grounds of unconstitutionality.

Lawyers and Doctors Play Ball.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 11.—The lawyers and physicians of Worcester played a game of baseball yesterday for the relief of the Johnstown sufferers, and $550 was realized.

Notes of the Flood.

Boston's subscriptions to the Johnstown relief fund now aggregate $108,000.

General Hamilton says that there is no danger of an epidemic at Johnstown.

Three more of the Johnstown sufferers have survived death only to lose their reason, the Rev. Mr. Kunz, his son, and Mrs. Saeger.

CAPTURED AT LAST.

Wanted for Robbery and Intent to Kill, and Captured in the Pines.

WATERFORD, N. J., June 11.—Raymond Moore, the young colored man who several months ago entered the house of Edward Hawkins, a colored man residing near here, and left John Songs lying unconscious on the floor, while Hawkins was away attending religious services, and afterward robbing the house, was arrested in the forests yesterday by Constable Be. Bates. At the time of the robbery Moore was traced through the snow to his residence, but escaped before the searching party reached his house. A few days ago he returned. Bates held a bench warrant, but as he was entering Moore's house the latter escaped by the rear door. Bates fired two shots from a revolver at Moore before he secured him, and even then the prisoner showed fight. He is lying in the Camden jail in default of bail.

Mrs. Haskell Not Guilty of Adultery.

Railway Mail Officials Say They Are Bothered

BY THE CIVIL SERVICE LAWS.

They Can't Get the Right Sort of Men Under the Regulations.

Beside That Men Who Pass the Examinations May Be Debarred from Appointment—Fourth-Class Postmasters Chosen—Attorney-General Miller Not Going on the Supreme Bench—The President Makes Some Appointments.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The officials of the Railway Mail Service are having a peck of trouble in getting the right sort of men from the Civil Service Commission.

About one hundred men have passed examination since the Civil Service rules were applied to the Railway Postal Service and have been certified for appointment, but this is the way the new deal works.

A postal clerk is wanted for service on the New York Central Railroad in New York. The names of the three men highest on the eligable are sent in. The highest man lives in Allegany County and he is rejected because he lives too far away from the railroad.

The second man lives in Clinton County and he is put aside for the same reason.

The third man lives in Cortlandt County, but he is chosen as the last resort, although to accept the appointment he must change his place of residence and move on to the line of the railroad.

No man can be certified for appointment more than three times, therefore when the Allehgany and Clinton men are twice more passed by, because not residing in the proper locality, they are out of the race altogether, although their names stood on the head of the eligible list.

Then, perhaps, the very next man called for is needed on a road running out of Buffalo, but the previous candidate is knocked out and the name that comes out of the wheel may be that of a man living at Syracuse just where they wanted a clerk in the first place.

When a Lake Shore clerk is needed, the Civil Service Commissioners say they cannot choose men according to the section of the State in which they live and railway mail official must do the best they can with the material sent them.

The officials are willing to do this but regret the injustice to the man who loses the appointment altogether because not having been chosen after three certifications owing to the fact that he is residing at a place where he ought not to, and so is no longer eligible.

Fourth-Class Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The following fourth-class postmasters have been appointed in New York: J. K. Reading, Alfred; I. N. Holmes, Almond; S. Church, Belleville; George Gibson, Catawba; W. W. Westcott, Charmfalls; Noble Bronte, Coeymans; Gaylords Casler, Dexter; E. L. Thompson, Fishers; J. H. Lacy, Freehold; William B. Jackson, Holland; G. H. Chase, Jewett; S. T. McDowell, Louisville; C. B. McGillon, Meadowdale; Fernando Hinckey, Middleport; J. A. Martindale, Nicholsville; G. S. Brush, N. Stockholm; E. M. Bishop, Olive Bridge; O. B. Sweezy, Open Meadows; Christian Ahles, Redwood; T. B. Pierce, Reeds Corners; S. A. Bryant, Sonora; A. W. Wixon, S. Bradford; C. K. Bacon, Swain; C. W. McKinsley, Three Mile Bay; D. A. McVean, Victor; Mary B. Ray, W. Coxsackie.

Mr. Miller Not to Go on the Bench.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Those who are in the confidence of the President deny absolutely the statement current to-day that Attorney General Miller is to go on the Supreme Court bench. They say the President has selected a man to take the place of the late Stanley Matthews and it is not Mr. Miller.

Appointed by the President.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The President has made the following appointments:

Thos. J. Morgan, of Rhode Island, Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

Frank O. Hobbs, of New Hampshire, Register of the Land Office at Salt Lake City, Utah.

MILLS TO SHUT DOWN.

Pittsburg Iron and Steel Manufacturers to Close Their Doors.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 11.—Many of the iron and steel mills in the Pittsburg district propose to shut down on July 1 in order to make changes, take stock, etc. The suspensions will vary from two to six weeks, according to the orders on hand. At these mills the manufacturers will not sign the Amalgamated Association scale until they are prepared to resume and it will doubtless be reported that these mills are on a strike. This will not be the case however, and little trouble is anticipated. The Amalgamated Association has not only not prepared any advances, but it has revised the extras in a number of departments to more favorable conditions for the manufacturers, and its members are confident that there will be no trouble this year.

At the session yesterday an application was received from the nut workers to be allowed to organize under a charter from the Association. The application was referred to committee.

President Weihe was chosen as principal delegate from the Association to represent it in the Scripps syndicate which proposes to send some representative American workingman to Paris. The afternoon was taken up by committee meetings.

Sitting Bull's Last Battle.

BISMARCK, Dak., June 11.—It is learned from Standing Rock Agency to-day that Sitting Bull, who has been dangerously ill with pneumonia, is slowly sinking. In a short time he will pass into the happy hunting grounds.

THE PRESS is now in its third year with a subscription list that includes all the intelligent people of the City and Borough, and with the advertising patronage of all the progressive and successful merchants of Plainfield.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—The North Plainfield school meeting will take place this evening.

—St. Mary's T. A. B. Society has contributed $25 to the Johnstown sufferers.

—One of the hackmen at the station is said to have picked up a large roll of bills on Broadway near Sixth street, yesterday.

—One disorderly person was gathered in by the borough marshals, last evening. This morning Justice Hardy discharged him.

—There was no meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, last evening, neither will there be a meeting until a call is issued by the chair.

—Mr. J. K. Myers, Treasurer of the Plainfield Relief Fund, has today forwarded three barrels of clothing to Clara Barton, "Red Cross," Johnstown, Pa.

—Messrs Church, Demarest, Berry and Bennett of Craig place, have started a movement which we trust the Borough Council will compel other property owners to do likewise, and that is the work of trimming the trees.

—One of Jacob Brothers celebrated pianos will be a feature of the Strawberry and Iced Cream festival Thursday and Friday afternoons and evenings of this week, at Dunlap's building, corner Grove and Front streets.

—The Crescent Avenue church having found Tier's iced cream the best, the Methodist people ordered it for their recent festival and were more than pleased. Of the orange ice especially, quantities were sold, and the satisfaction expressed was universal.

—The second of the series of free lectures by F. W. Grant, on "Inspired Church History," will be delivered this evening at 7:45, in the meeting room, No. 6 E. Front street, over the Dime Savings Institution. Subject—"The Judaizing of the Church, and what has come of it." All are invited to attend.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Agnes Rodman, daughter of Archdeacon Rodman, has fully recovered from her recent illness.

Capt. Henry Walker of the ocean steamship "Servia," is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Griffen of North Plainfield.

The Misses May and Carrie Kirkner will sail for Europe in a few weeks, for a Summer tour on the Continent. They will be chaperoned by Miss Bulkley.

Mrs. B. Arrowsmith Hegeman, Jr., and family, with Mrs. Chas. A. Reed, left this morning for Mount Pocono, Pa., where they will spend the Summer.

Mr. James McGee of Willow avenue, Washington Park, has been confined to the house for two weeks with sickness, but is now convalescent and able to be out.

In publishing the appointment of Miss Ella Osborne as valedictorian of the P. H. S., class of '89, the types yesterday gave her residence as East Front, instead of East Fifth street.

The Rev. Asa R. Dilts, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, this city, will address the missionary meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E., at the First Baptist church of Elizabeth, this evening.

Mr. Otto Arens was yesterday elected a trustee for five years of the Gratuity Fund of the New York Consolidated Exchange. The net surplus of the fund is almost half a million dollars. There are 2,307 members of the Exchange.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Newell, to Mr. Geo. Moss Kirkner, both of this city. The ceremony will take place at Grace church, on Tuesday, June 25, at 5:30 P. M.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Rogers of Rockview avenue, Washington Park, will join a pleasure party of New York, Brooklyn and other friends, on June 18. They will visit Saratoga, White Mountains, Quebec, Montreal, Niagara Falls, Thousand Islands, Adirondacks, Lake George and Lake Champlain. The trip will occupy about three weeks.

THE HUNDRED MILE BICYCLE RUN.

The second annual great "Century Run" from Orange to Philadelphia, took place on Saturday last. The start was made at 4:20 A. M., under command of Capt. L. A. Clarke of Flushing, L. I., with 78 men and two ladies—one on a lady's safety bicycle, the other on a tandem bicycle, accompanied by her brother, Mr. Welsh, of Wissahickon, Pa.

On arrival here the Plainfield Club could only furnish two cyclers to accompany the Century men on their trip—Capt. F. L. C. Martin and W. H. Milliken—but contributed liberally of sandwiches and milk, which greatly refreshed the hungry cyclers. It seems a shame that a club the size of the Plainfield Bicycle Club could not furnish more men to take the run—only two out of sixty.

At 7:30 the cyclers started under command of Capt. F. L. C. Martin through Dunellen, New Market and New Brunswick, where a short rest was taken. The lady on the "Safety" was there forced to discontinue her ride on account of a fall, which damaged the wheel. The next stop was made at Kingston, where the cyclers ate everything in the hotel from raw eggs to rice pudding, after which raids were made on the grocery stores and everything eatable was purchased and eaten. (Late despatches from scene of carnage state that a famine is imminent.)

From there to Princeton the roads were vile. At Princeton a stop was made to enable stragglers to catch up, and there several amateur photographers endeavored to "do" the cyclers, but without success. Trenton was reached at 2 P. M., where all did justice to a big dinner at the Trenton House, after which the cyclers adjourned to the State House porch and had their "phizs" taken after a great effort by two photographers. Several members of the Trenton Club accompanied the riders as far as Bristol, where Capt. Martin again took command, as the Captain of the Trenton Club was unable to go through to Philadelphia.

At Holmesburgh, which is eight miles from Philadelphia, about 75 wheelmen from various places met the cyclers and escorted them through Frankfort to Philadelphia, which was reached about 7:30 P. M. Out of 83 who started, 53 rode through all right, including Miss Welsh and the Philadelphia club representatives. On arrival at Philadelphia the wheels were stored in the Century Wheelmen's large club house. At 10 o'clock supper was eaten at the Continental Hotel and quite late all retired, well satisfied with their ride. In the morning a large party went out on the Pike, escorted by the Century club. In the afternoon the visitors were the guests of the Pennsylvania Club, who took them through the Park, visiting the Memorial and Horticultural Halls, after which dinner was eaten at the Belmont Mansion in the Park.

A finer class of men than the Pennsylvania Club is composed of, is not to be found in the country, as the cyclers well know, having been their guests before. At 3:30 P. M., Sunday, the larger part of the "Centurys" returned on a special train, but on account of numerous engagements some of them were unable to return until a later train, reaching home about eight o'clock.

Plainfield's New Club Overmatched.

The "Diamonds," a newly organized base ball nine of this city, played its first game of the season, Saturday afternoon, on the Y. M. C. A. grounds. The visiting team were the "Buttermilks," of New York, and they soured on the home club most unmercifully.

After making nine runs during the first three innings, the Buttermilks stopped playing and amused themselves for the rest of the game. The Diamonds showed the want of team practice. Nicholson pitched a good game, striking out twelve men, but he was poorly supported. Babcock on first, played well.

The score in detail tells the story:

Good Work by the Royal Arcanum.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, held a regular meeting last evening and installed editor Wm. J. Leonard as treasurer. A communication was read from the Grand Regent of the Order, stating that two lodges at and near Johnstown, Pa., consisting of about 90 members suffered from the recent flood there. Already the bodies of sixteen of the members have been recovered and fully identified. Probably one-half of the whole number perished. A committee was appointed to ascertain the exact facts as regards the number lost and the needs of assistance. A subscription paper was also started and a very liberal response was made. The amount subscribed was sent today. Other contributions will follow.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

Considerable Discussion on the Water Works and Sewerage Subject, But no Definite Action Taken—Adjournment Until the 21st Instant.

An adjourned regular meeting of the City Council was held last evening, with all the members present but Mr. Watson. The main object of the meeting was to consider the Water Works and Sewerage question, but further action on the subject was deferred until Friday, June 21, to which time the meeting was adjourned.

The President called the members to order at 8:25 o'clock, and the reading of the minutes and the regular order of business was suspended, so as to allow the Committee on Water, Printing and Stationery an opportunity to report.

Mr. Newhall, as chairman of said committee stated that Engineer Rudolph Herring of New York had prepared forms for advertising for proposals, and also general specifications under which the Water Works firms could bid, both of which the Clerk read. The latter document was lengthy, and was about the same in substance as Engineer Bassett of Newark reported two years ago, and related in full in this paper at the time. Space will not permit us to enter into further detail.

The same Councilman introduced a set of resolutions, providing first: That the above document relating to general specifications, etc., be referred back to the committee for revision, after which one hundred copies of the same be printed for distribution among the corporations and firms who may want to bid; second, that proposals be advertised in two trades papers, said papers to be designated by the committee; third, that an extra amount not to exceed $300 be expended to carry out the provisions contained in the resolutions. No action was taken on the resolution, but it brought forth considerable discussion.

Mr. Marsh unhesitatingly stated that he was disappointed at the Engineer's report. He thought that inasmuch as the Council had expended $500 a couple of years ago to have Engineer Bassett of Newark make a report, and now that Engineer Herring had revised the report, in his opinion it should have been more in detail, before soliciting bids. He said the fact was a well-established fact that the Council cannot grant a sewerage franchise to a foreign corporation, and he thought it unfair to ask the several companies to bid for that work.

Mr. Marsh made a motion, which did not prevail, referring the Engineer's report back to the committee, and to have those portions of it relating to sewerage and obtaining a source of supply of water from the Passaic river, stricken out. He further recommended more details as to size of pipes to be used, and also as to what territory in the city the system would benefit.

Mr. Newhall stated that after the next session of the Legislature the city would probably have the power to grant a franchise for sewerage to an outside party; according to Engineer Herring's report he said the bidders could either bid for one or both of the franchises, as in their judgment they see fit. He thought that water pure and wholesome, could be drawn from the Passaic River, but the Committee did not recommend this source for supply.

Mr. Dunham said he was in favor of both Water Works and Sewerage, and wanted to be so recorded.

Mr. Squires took the chair and the President stated that he had always been under the impression that sewerage was first needed in Plainfield. Mr. Dumont said that he was also disappointed in Engineer Herring's report; he wanted an opportunity to examine it, carefully, and expressed himself as not ready to vote on the question that night.

After some further discussion the matter was laid over until Friday of next week. Council then adjourned.

A New Organ for the First Baptist Church.

The Young People's League of the First Baptist church has undertaken the commendable work of securing funds for the purchase of a new church organ, at a cost not to exceed $5,000. This was decided upon at a meeting of the League, held in the church, last evening, at which Mr. S. B. Joseph presided. The League resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole with Mr. L. H. Bigelow, Jr., as chairman, and thoroughly discussed the subject. The League will probably arrange a concert or some other entertainment for the benefit of the organ fund. The new instrument will be in position on or before October 1, next.

Charity Never Ceaseth.

THE PRESS handed one hundred dollars more today, to Councilman J. K. Myers, to add to the fund for the relief of the sufferers in Johnstown and its vicinity. This amount was the single subscription of Mrs. Martha Duryea of this city.

—What is Dr. Dam's Remedy? It is a compound of wild cherry bark, red clover blossoms, butternut, yellow dock and dandelion root, in such proportions as to bring out the best medicinal part of each root and herb.

—A barrel of clothing and supplies will be forwarded to a poor colored family at Aiken, S. C., to-night, by the ladies of Trinity Reformed church.

A Double Influence.

DR. FLINT'S REMEDY is a medicine which will cure cases of neuralgia which other remedies have failed to reach, as it exercises a double influence, in one case over the circulation, and in the other over the nerves. Descriptive treatise with each bottle. Mack Drug Co., N. Y. J. G. Miller, Agent, Plainfield.

Annual Report of Ladies Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital.

"We take no note of time save by its loss," and this seems verified more and more as the anniversaries of this organization follow each other so closely. We trust the good accomplished, the weary hearts lightened, and the suffering ones brightened, have been conducive of broadening our own desires to assist in every possible manner those who are less fortunate than ourselves. The ways are many in which efficient service can be rendered, and to each one is given an opportunity. If embraced or discarded, who can estimate the results for good or ill? Only He who has affirmed that not a sparrow shall escape His notice, can decide the efforts put forth "In His Name" during the year now closing.

OFFICERS.

The officers elected one year ago were:
President—Mrs. M. E. Edgerton.
Vice President—Miss Mary Tweedy.
Secretary—Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson.
Treasurer—Mrs. H. D. Burlingham.
Auditors—Mrs. E. Cox, Mrs. W. E. Lowe.

Our President, owing to severe illness, has been unable to meet with us but once during the year, which fact, induced her to tender her resignation, which was not accepted; the ladies trusting that her health would be restored, so that she could resume her duties. The Vice President has efficiently filled the position.

MEMBERSHIP.

At the commencement of the year we numbered forty-three active and twelve associate members. Six have been transferred from active to associate. Death has taken one from the associate list—Mrs. J. Taylor Johnston—whose name has stood upon our books (and was first upon the roll call in 1878,) ever since the Board was organized. Two have resigned, and ten members added, so that we now number forty-five active and seventeen associate members. The average attendance has been sixteen and one half, which is an increase over that of last year.

FREE BED.

The dues which are $3 00 a year, and fines for absence 25 cents, are appropriated towards the payment of a free bed. With an active membership of fifty we can make the bed self-supporting, which adds not only funds to the Treasury, but provides a place for a worthy patient. Many such have received this benefit, and have expressed true heartfelt thankfulness in return. While some persons may accept such a favor with complaints, and abuse of Hospital attentions, we are confident they are few in number, for the majority of patients, give merited praise to Mrs. Walrod's competent nursing and care.

VISITORS.

At each monthly meeting visitors have been appointed by the President to visit and to purchase necessary articles for the Hospital. Each one has faithfully performed her labors, and numerous articles have been added for the comfort of the nurses as well as of the patients. Christmas was made very delightful by the beautiful Christmas tree provided by our President and the ladies appointed to assist her. We wish every lady of the Board could have responded by her presence to the invitations sent her that she might have seen the radiant faces, and have heard the heart-felt thanks of the sick and weary ones as they received in turn their useful gifts.

Mrs. Walrod, prompt and untiring in her efforts, was also the recipient of a well earned tribute. The other attendants were remembered with serviceable gifts. Surely each one present felt glad to impart a ray of the bright sunshine coming into her own life at this Christmas tide, into the darkened and sad hearts of the invalids, and returned home strengthened to do more and better work for the dear Christ, who spent this life in serving others, "and, when he departed, left us in his will as our last legacy on earth, the poor! These we have always with us; had we not, our hearts would grow as hard as are the stones." "If thou wouldst walk in light, make others bright. In blessing we are blest, in labor find our rest."

FINANCE.

In the Treasury in May 1888, we had $226.96. We have received during the year, $1,105.13. Balance on hand $221.95. In June 1887, Miss Mary White commenced raising money through the ten cent scheme, and being present at the meeting held November 30, 1888, stated that she had raised (with the donations from a children's fair held at Mrs. Henry E. Bowens) $592.84. This was to be given towards the building of a ward much needed for diseases that could not be admitted into the general ward. The ladies have added to the sum mentioned $107.16, making $700 which has been presented to the Governor's Board with the promise of assistance in furnishing thereof, when completed. Improvements have been made in many of the rooms, this Spring, on first and second floors, as well as in the basement. The Committee consisting of Mesdames Perkins, Fiske and Schipper, attended to their duties in a satisfactory manner.

HOSPITAL BOX.

At our last meeting held in May, it was decided that the Secretary should write to the railroad officials asking permission to place a box in the station for the purpose of holding papers and magazines that any one might donate as reading matter for the benefit of the hospital. The general Superintendent promptly responded giving desired consent, provided a neat box was placed in a convenient location so as not to interfere with passengers. We hope that this box will be remembered by all interested in the comfort and welfare of the sick, by placing reading material therein.

DONATIONS.

We would remember with thankfulness all gifts which have been so generously contributed and which have enabled our Treasury to keep so bountifully replenished that we have not been compelled to raise necessary money by any special effort during the year. As we turn another page upon which no lines have been written, may greater service crown our labors, and may we at the close of the following year know that, "Who soweth good seed shall surely reap. The year grows rich as it groweth old, and life's latest sands are its sands of gold."

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. T. H. TOMLINSON,
Secretary.

SATURDAY'S TROTTING.

The First Meeting in the Series of Saturday Afternoon Out-door Sports.

Decoration Day was the time set for formally inaugurating the trotting season on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association in this city, but on account of the rain the formal opening was put off until Saturday afternoon last. This year's trotting contests, it is expected, will be the most exciting that have ever taken place on the track. The Association includes many new members, and new horses will be put on the turf. The track, too, is in an excellent condition, since Mr. C. C. Brown, an experienced trainer, has been placed in charge of it.

The judges on Saturday were: Messrs N. Robbins, Wm. Van Syckle and M. Quinn. In the first race, between John Hayes' "Andy" and John Osborn's black colt, the former won two straight heats in 2.58 and 2.55 respectively.

In the second race between Nate Robbins' black horse and Geo. B. Bascomb's "Harry," the former won the first heat in 2:57 and the latter the second heat in 2.56. The concluding heat in this race will be trotted on Saturday next.

Mr. O. T. Waring speeded his horse "Copeland" to road wagon at the rate of a quarter in 38 seconds, and Wm. Van Syckle's "Sag Wah" trotted an exhibition half-mile in 1.22. Mr. A. C. Vail was also on the track with "Betsy Bobbit," but did not take part in the races.

"We Told You So!"

(From the news of Saturday.)

"We expect the hearty co-operation of all our people." "We propose that the concert take place next Tuesday evening." "We will endeavor to have the programme ready to publish Monday, if Messrs Mc Cutchen and Pierson can prepare it by that time."

(From The Press of Monday.)

"THE PRESS does not believe there will be any concert given in Music Hall, that is "proposed" by the news. The people are doing all they can in other ways for the Johnstown sufferers, and besides, the source from which the scheme was started entirely for self glorification, nips it in the bud."

(From the news of Monday.)

"It is thought best to hold in reserve for future developments the project for an entertainment to aid still further the Johnstown sufferers."

She Walked From Newark.

A well-dressed woman, walked into Councilman Dunham's office this morning and told a pitiful story. She said that she walked from Newark, yesterday in the broiling sun, having been deserted there by her husband. She was penniless, and was on her way to Philadelphia where her parents reside. The woman said she slept under a tree last night. Chief Carey, Officer Lynch and Councilman Dunham listened attentively to her story, and promptly made up a purse for the unfortunate woman. She was provided with breakfast, and her passage was paid to Philadelphia, for all of which she seemed very grateful.

Scotch Plains Needs Another Example

Probably nothing but a dose of county jail will serve to teach a lesson to the young men who have recently been making themselves such a nuisance to the residents of Scotch Plains. A few nights ago their actions were particularly obnoxious and a complaint was sworn against them before Justice Kyte. It is not long since a term in prison was given two of the same kind, for like behavior.

—A man named Boyle, laid down to repose on the railroad track near the Park avenue bridge on Sunday evening, and Officer Giesse rescued him before he was decapitated. Yesterday the man was fined five dollars.

—Mrs. W. W. Hall, 75 W. Sixth street: Since using Dr. Dam's Remedy, the swelling in my knees from rheumatism is all gone, and I can walk up and down stairs without help.

Detrimental to the Public Health.

For the past three or four days there has been a strong smell of gas, emanating from a lot of dirt deposited in the roadway on Arlington avenue, just North of West Fourth street. The odor is at times stifling, and several cases of illness are said to have resulted from it. The location is in the immediate vicinity of the Washington school building, and is therefore detrimental to the pupil's health as well as others. The nuisance should be abated at once.

It is said that the dirt put on the avenue came from the gas works, which probably accounts for the disagreeable odor arising from it. At any rate, the Health Board should act promptly on the matter.

Prayer for the Amendment of Pennsylvania's Constitution.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—By request of our State President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Mrs. S. J. C. Downs, we will hold a prayer meeting, Thursday, June 13, at 4 P. M., in W. C. T. U. rooms, praying earnestly that Pennsylvania may be successful in passing the constitutional amendment the 18th of June. Every one is invited. Let all come filled with the Holy Spirit. Let the noon hour make this the subject of prayer.

The "Young Chicagos" Beat.

A game of base ball, Saturday morning, between the "Young Chicagos" and the "Young New Yorks," both of Plainfield, resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 10 to 1.

The victor's battery was Charley Smith and Arthur Lederer, while Carmon Parse Sutphen covered first base. These three hit the ball every time. The Y. C's had only five men to the other's nine, but the Y. N. Y's refused to finish the game.

—An interesting account of the Children's Day exercises in the M. E. church at Dunellen, is again crowded out today.

—Thomas Clacy, a driver for Mr. A. M. Griffen, was thrown from his truck in front of the store, yesterday afternoon, and slightly injured.

—The Crescents will play the Montclair nine, Saturday. The battery of the home team will probably be Condon pitcher, and George Cadmus, catcher.

Looking for His Lost Wife.

NEWARK, N. J., June 11.—Louis Juppenlatz, of Philadelphia, is in this city looking for his wife and child. He says he was married about two years ago, that a year ago his wife left him and came to Newark with the child and since then he has not been able to obtain any clue to her whereabouts. Juppenlatz says he has been in Newark fully a score of times, but his search has ever had the same result. He believes his wife stays away because she is intimidated by her parents, who were opposed to her marriage.

Indians Slow Signing the Treaty.

ROSELAND AGENCY, Dak., June 11.—Not quite half enough of the Indians at this Agency have signed the treaty. So far the signatures received number 453. The Commissioners are using every effort to get the Indians to sign as a failure here means a failure at the other agencies. Some outside influence is evidently at work trying to persuade the Indians that they are not getting enough for their land.

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in such week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

THE CRONIN MURDER

A Rumor that Sullivan Will Be Arrested

AT THE CORONER'S COMMAND.

To Be Held Without Bail as an Accessory to the Assassination.

Yesterday's Session of the Inquest Devoid of the Sensational Developments that Had Been Expected—The Police Think the Windsor Theatre Was Set on Fire in Order to Destroy Cronin's Papers—This Clue Being Followed Up.

CHICAGO, June 11.—It is rumored that it has been practically decided by the Coroner's jury that their verdict will recommend that Alexander Sullivan be arrested and held without bail as an accessory before the act of Dr. Cronin's murder.

Yesterday's session of the inquest was devoid of the sensational developments that had been anticipated. James Carroll, a former Philadelphia and Reading railroad man, who says he was thrown out of work by a strike and came here to seek employment, testified that he knew McGeehan and had met him here before and after the Cronin murder. He had loaned him money. He did not know Cronin, and had not conversed with any one concerning the tragedy.

The jury soon dismissed this witness and H. J. Jordan, a barkeeper, was put on the stand. He also admitted being acquainted with McGeehan. Closely pressed by both Coroner and jury he denied having said that if he had found Cronin in the sewer he would not have taken the trouble to pull him out.

A circular issued by Lawyer Boggs was read. It called upon members to pay their assessments and notified them that upon refusal they would be placed on trial as traitors, and in case of conviction every Camp in the United States would be notified of the fact.

Thos. Whelan, who lodged in the house occupied by iceman Sullivan, swore that to the best of his knowledge the iceman was home on the night of the murder. He could remember little. He denied membership in the Clan-na-Gael and was positive that the carpet in the hallway of Sullivan's house had not been removed or changed since the tragedy.

Pat Lannen, another bartender who belongs to Camp 20 couldn't recollect what was done at any of the meetings and knew nothing on any point.

The police have a theory that the Windsor theatre fire of March was of incendiary origin. Dr. Cronin's apartments were in the building and Chief Hubbard believes that the fire was started in the hope that the structure would be destroyed and the incriminating papers in the Doctor's possession go up in the blaze. This theory is being followed up.

The Grand Jury for the present term was discharged yesterday, State's Attorney Longnecker informing the Court that he might find it necessary to summon a special venire to consider the Cronin case.

FOUR MEN KILLED.

Terrible Accident at the Gaylord Mine Yesterday.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 11.—A terrible accident occurred at the Gaylord mine at Plymouth yesterday.

A number of miners were at work in a large breast when, without warning, the rocky roof fell in upon them.

Four men were instantly killed, viz.: Reese Sloyd, Pat Carley, William Williams and Matthew Davis.

Two Poles had their legs cut off and will probably die.

Insufficient propping to sustain the roof was the cause of the accident.

Winners and Losers.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The scores of yesterday's ball games are as follows: League—New York 5, Boston 1; Cleveland 9, Pittsburg 5; Philadelphia 3, Washington 1; Chicago 4, Indianapolis 3 (first game); Chicago 3, Indianapolis 2 (second game). Association—Brooklyn 7, Louisville 5; Athletics 8, Kansas City 2; St. Louis 9, Baltimore 1; Columbus-Cincinnati game postponed on account of rain. Atlantic Association—Jersey City 6, Worcester 3; Wilkesbarre 5, New Haven 4; Lowell 7, Newark 6; Hartford 4, Easton 2.

Tried to Murder His Wife.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 11.—A special from Olean says Samuel Strothard was arrested for attempting to murder his wife. He stabbed her in the neck several times and wounded her in several other places, inflicting dangerous injuries from which she may not recover. Strothard is supposed to be partially insane.

NEW ENGLAND'S BIG STORM.

Various Sections of the Eastern States Made to Suffer.

BOSTON, June 11.—From various sections of New England come reports of a heavy thunder storm yesterday afternoon, which did considerable damage.

At Marlboro, Mass., Charles Butler's house was struck by lightning, the chimney demolished and the occupants stunned.

At Contoocook, N. H., twenty-seven telephone poles were shattered.

At Keene, N. H., roads were badly washed, telephones burned out, and the South Keene railroad depot struck by lightning.

At Dover, N. H., the storm was very severe. The Belknap church steeple was set on fire, causing a slight loss; the calendering room of the Cocheco Print works were nearly ruined by lightning, and a bolt entered the composing room of the Daily Democrat, doing no damage, but badly frightening the compositors. Several houses within the city limits were badly shattered.

A HOUSE PICKED UP.

The Work of a Terrific Wind Storm in New York State.

UTICA, N. Y., June 11.—Meagre information comes here of a terrific wind storm which passed through the lower portion of Jefferson county and Port Leyden, in Lewis county, yesterday afternoon about sundown.

The storm did the most damage in a path about eighty rods wide, but trees fences and other movable objects are overturned on a wide territory.

Telegraph and telephone wires are prostrated and news is hard to obtain, but it is known that several houses were unroofed, a few buildings overturned, the steeple of the Catholic Church in Port Leyden blown down and that one of the Methodist Episcopal Churches is so badly damaged as to threaten its collapse.

A house was picked up by the tornado and blown away about 100 feet and its occupants, an old couple, were injured, but to what extent is not known.

A Deluge at St. Albans.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., June 11.—A deluge of rain accompanied by lightning and hail gullied the streets and filled the cellars here last evening. Much damage was done to business stocks. The roads were transformed into rivers and many culverts were washed away.

A WRECK IN MAINE.

Rain Weakens a Culvert and Causes a Bad Accident.

OAKLAND, Me., June 11.—The train due here at 4 p. m. was wrecked a mile and a half west of this station. A heavy shower had raised Benson brook and washed out a culvert. The engineer saw the danger but not in time to stop his train. The engine passed safely over the weakened culvert, but the tender, baggage, express and mail cars are a total wreck. The passenger cars stopped on the brink.

It will take two or three days to clear the wreck and repair the track.

WRECK ON THE LEHIGH VALLEY.

The Fast Express Derailed Crushes in a House Near Its Track—No One Killed.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 11.—The fast express train on the Lehigh Valley railroad, running between Hazleton and Wilkesbarre, was thrown from the track at Sugar Notch, yesterday, while running at the rate of thirty-five miles per hour.

The cars were telescoped and two of them crushed in a frame house which stood near the track. The tenants had narrow escapes.

The escape of the passengers from instant death was miraculous.

No one was fatally hurt. The following sustained serious injuries:

John S. McGrooty, Deputy Treasurer of Luzerne county; George H. Troutman, a lawyer of Hazleton, John Laugh, principal of the Freeland schools and Mrs. Costello and child of White Haven. It took all day to clear the wreck.

A broken axle under the tender caused the train to leave the track.

The Engine Jumped the Track.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—As the incoming passenger train on the Iron Mountain road was nearing the depot last night the engine jumped the track and dashed into an adjoining building. John Gebhard of this city who was riding on the pilot of the engine was killed. Engineer Diemort was terribly scalded and fireman Carr had an arm and a leg broken. James Strainer, a brakeman was severely injured. None of the passengers was hurt.

Chambers May Again Enter the Ring.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Arthur Chambers, the retired light-weight champion, failing to get an innholders license, is seriously contemplating re-entering the ring and taking a shy at the best light-weight that can be produced. Moneyed men in this city pledge their support in the event of the veteran again coming before the people. Arthur declares that he is as good as he was ten years ago, and in that form could dispose of Jack McAuliffe.

Peterson Challenges McKay.

BOSTON, June 11.—Henry C. Peterson of San Francisco, the well-known sculler, sends from Salt Lake City a challenge to John McKay of Halifax, N. S., to row him a single scull race three miles with a turn, on some Eastern lake, for $1,000 a side, the race to occur four weeks after the signing of articles.

Says He Was Badly Vaccinated.

NEWBURG, N. Y., June 11.—Thos. Sheridan of this city, who claims that he received bodily injuries through being vaccinated with impure virus while a passenger on the steamship City of New York, has commenced suit against the owners of the Inman line of steamers for $25,000.

From New York to Newburg.

NEWBURG, N. Y., June 11.—The "Merry Crew," a boat club connected with the New York Turn Verein of Bloomingdale, arrived here yesterday in a row boat, having made the distance from the metropolis to this city in ten hours. The crew numbered seven persons.

Suicide at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 11.—George M. Babcock, bookkeeper of the Butler Manufacturing company, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself in the temple. Despondency from dyspepsia is supposed to have made him temporarily insane.

BESSIE.

Before him rolled the broad expanse of his rich lands that brought him, each year, more wealth than would gratify his every wish.

Yet gloom sat heavy upon his brow, and the finger-marks of care were plain across his fine forehead. Sisters or brothers he had never known, mother and father were long since dead. He was alone in the world, alone amidst the innumerable who were proud to call him friend or acquaintance; alone, with no confidant, no single soul to receive the words that relieved the pent-up yearnings and emotions of his heart, save Bessie, his loving, true, ever-patient Bessie, his alone, to whom he was a god.

To her only did he pour out his most secret thoughts, his wildest imaginings; tortures of the inquisition, he knew, could not wring from her one word of betrayal of his trusts.

From a shadowed nook long she watched him, then stole silently and, resting at his feet, laid her beautiful head upon his knee and raised her beautiful eyes to read in his own the secrets of his soul.

With lightness of an angel's touch his great, brown hand fell upon her nut-brown hair, lovingly it lingered among the soft, short curls, his brow cleared, his gaze became soft, tender, as it rested upon her, and a sigh of relief told how thankfully she recognized the bond of love between them, how willingly he resigned himself to its power.

Long they thus remained, silent, yet in full communion. But Thurlow was a creature of moods, of strange, sudden, wild impulses. At times he seemed unable to resist the terrible outbursts of passion that swayed him, soul and body; the slightest, seemingly the most insignificant action of those under his control—and he considered all who acknowledged him as master to be under his supreme authority—the most trivial movement of one of these would render him frantic and terrible. In his wrath he would visit his anger on the innocent, unsuspecting victim with the heartless cruelty of a Nero.

No calm followed these storms, for waves of unchecked, soul-searching remorse would toss the unhappy man upon the sea of self-accusation and restless penitence, while the "pride that would not down" part of his uncurbed nature rendered it almost impossible for him to make the least exhibition of sorrow for the ills he had, so ruthlessly inflicted.

"The heart knoweth its own bitterness," and no human creature ever dreamed of the agony this man endured when his passion had spent its force.

But to the lovely and loving Bessie he was tenderness itself, not invariably, alas! still, her gentleness, her obedience, her beauty shielded her from many of the storms that beat upon the heads of others.

It would be hard to tell, puzzling even to conjecture, what demon of ill found its way into the atmosphere of peaceful quiet that surrounded these two as they sat together in the twilight.

Spite of the good angel that seemed to hover over them, the demon forced its way.

What it was, Thurlow could never recall to his dying day. Some slight movement on her part that disturbed the tenor of his thought, perhaps; it might have been only a turn of her head or a wandering glance of her eyes that conveyed to him the idea that her heart longed for another resting-place. Let it be what it might, the spark was struck, the train was fired, and, like a flash, his anger was ablaze.

He sprang to his feet, his eyes flashed with rage, his lips trembled with passion. One word, only one word, he uttered, a deep, stern, unanswerable "Go!" and with rigid, upright figure he stood, his arm extended and his hand pointing out into the swift-gathering darkness.

"Go!"

And she, Bessie, the gentle, uncomplaining, ever-obedient Bessie, hardly yet recovered from the shock his sudden uprise had given her, with slow, lingering steps, cowed and shrinking, trembling and dazed, in ignorance of what had caused offense, with eyes that each moment turned in mute appeal, and longing looks of prayerful petitions for forgiveness, she went forth.

Out and away into the gloom, into the blackness of night that was as midday to the ebon that closed in upon her soul. He, the tyrant, still burning with the fire of unbridled wrath, watched her, with seeming unconcern, even with seeming pleasure, until no slightest semblance of her beautiful form was discernible; then with swift, long strides he turned and entered the house, sought his lonely chamber and cast himself upon his bed.

Long, long, were the hours during which he vainly sought to find oblivion in sleep. That precious gift came not to carry him into the land of forgetfulness. Instead, beating upon his brain and heart, there came the loud knockings of compunction and self-upbraiding for the vile, unmanly act into which he had suffered himself to be betrayed.

When, worn with tossing, he finally drifted into the realm of dreams, no bright visions refreshed him; the haunting spirit of unrest was still in possession and he groaned in his sleep.

The gray, cold shafts of dawning morn that darted through the lattice of his windows reached his wide-open eyes as he lay, all unrefreshed by the fitful slumber, struggling with the pride that fought against the claims of his awakened conscience.

He could recall that even to his dulled senses the beating of rain and rushing sounds of winds had told of a suddenly risen, fierce, wild storm that had swirled through the night-hours.

He forced himself to reject the thought that mayhap Bessie had wandered into the unsheltered open, heedless of a place of rest, fearing or not caring to return to the home from which she had been so harshly driven, refusing to occupy any of the many places awaiting her for repose, if banished from the chamber of her lord. He argued that of a certainty she had hidden her grief in some distant apartment of the great mansion.

But rest he could not; hastily arising at last he donned the clothing he had cast from him on retiring and with stealthy steps searched through his silent home.

Bessie was not there.

Quickening his steps he descended the broad staircase, snatched a hat from the deer-antlers in the hall and wandered out among the still dripping trees.

Broken branches, great limbs rudely wrenched from lordly stems, bestrewed his path, giving mute testimony of the furious elements that had raged through the darkness.

On and on he wandered, instinctively following the path so often marked by the careless tread of his feet with dear Bessie close by his side. His eyes wandered restlessly.

What sound was that? A groan! It was, not a cry, 'twas too faint to be called by that name; it was a murmur of distress, a moan of pain, as of one stricken to death—and that death near, very near at hand.

A terrible, sickening fear struck like a dagger-thrust through Thurlow's heart. The agony of one moment of that time was punishment indeed for his ill doing.

Two bounds brought him close to the underbrush that surrounded a long-unused summer house. Parting the matted branches he peered through the semi-darkness caused by the wild shrubbery and prostrated trees, and he saw —!

One glance! but it was enough. Through his misery he recognized how powerless he was to save, even to relieve, and he recoiled even from the thought of meeting once more those terribly beautiful eyes.

With speed of the wind he hurried back, the servants were just beginning their daily round of duty. His quick, sharp commands at once brought the most reliable of the men before him.

Disguising with an effort the pain that throbbed within him, to all appearances the cool, wise master, he gave his orders.

"James, William, Joe; take axes with you and hurry to the old summer house. Bessie," and as he uttered the familiar name of his dear one, his voice seemed tender, "Bessie was wandering there in the storm last night, the two old magnolia trees were blown down and she is crushed beneath them."

He paused; the men, with sorrow-stricken faces, looked their intense grief, but too well knew the man to offer words of consolation.

A moment, and they were about to hasten on their errand of mercy.

Thurlow stopped them. "One of you," he said, "take a gun with you; load with ball. She is injured beyond help; it will be an act of mercy to put her at once out of her misery. Do not touch her head; shoot her through the heart; I want to have her stuffed."

Then he turned his back on them and strode away to his lonely, lonely home.

She, Bessie, was the prize pointer dog of the Southern States, and had cost Tom Thurlow nine hundred dollars to import.

Hence this anguish! hence these tears!

ALEX DUER BAILIE.

A DIPLOMAT.

A Man Who Wanted an Appointment—How He Got It.

"I have been trying for two weeks to see Secretary Blaine," said a seeker after a consulate one evening last month. "I have been at his door daily, but he has so many distinguished callers that I am always barred, though I personally know him."

He was talking to an experienced and aging Government clerk, who said: "Take this sheet of paper and write down briefly what you would say to Mr. Blaine if you were to get one of those half-minute interviews which are accorded to office-seekers. Don't ask me why, but put it all down, inside of a dozen lines."

The consulate-seeker did so, and then said: "Here it is. That is all I want to say to him."

His friend read it over and then advised him to go to the White House on the morrow, catch Secretary Blaine as he came from Cabinet meeting, talk to him if possible, and, if he could not get a hearing there, place the document in his hands.

Promptly at noon the next day Mr. Consulate-seeker took his position on the north portico of the executive mansion and waited until nearly two o'clock. The Cabinet meeting adjourned, and Mr. Consulate-seeker stepped up to him and said: "Mr. Blaine, can I see you for a minute, only a minute?"

"Certainly, if only for a minute, and thank you for being so brief," responded Mr. Blaine, as he cheerily turned, called the man by name, and shook hands with him. "What do you want?"

"I want an interview with you, and would like to tell my story in full, when you can have time to receive me."

"I never have time. Now is as good a time as any. Tell me what you want, right now, and I'll hear you."

"I am seeking an office, Mr. Blaine," he said, "and I should like to tell you all about it, but as you seem to be in a hurry I will give you this paper which briefly expresses what I want," and he handed him the paper.

"You are an exceedingly practical office-seeker," said Mr. Blaine, as he stepped into his carriage, "and I will read this as I drive along. You ought to make a good diplomat, and I can assure you I shall not forget you," and he drove away, reading the paper. That man has received his appointment.

Match-Breakers.

In Harrisburg, Pa., there is an organization which has excited considerable comment in the press of that State. Ladies and gentlemen of certain churches have agreed to break up wedding engagements, by fair means if possible, between young ladies in their teens and young men or old, who are known to be habitual drinkers. It is kept secret as far as possible, and yet several marriageable young men have felt its refrigerating force. They have been frozen out from the objects of their alleged affections.

Secretary Tracy at Norfolk.

NORFOLK, Va., June 11.—Secretary Tracy arrived here yesterday on the United States steamer Dispatch and was entertained at the Navy Yard by Commodore George Brown. The Secretary expressed himself as well pleased with the condition of affairs at the yard and made very satisfactory promises to the citizens who visited him. He says he will visit the Norfolk yard again at an early day.

It Is Constitutional.

TRENTON, N. J., June 11.—Chief Justice Beasley of the Supreme court has rendered his decision in the Jersey City Charter case, to the effect that all of the legislation of last winter, and the charter accepted by the people are entirely constitutional. A writ of ouster against the officials holding office under the new charter was ordered to be issued.

Shot Himself at His Home.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Edward W. Odell, aged 28, son of Isaac Odell, superintendent of the Providence Steamship line, committed suicide by shooting himself at his home in this city yesterday afternoon. The cause of his self-destruction is unknown.

Prostrated by the Heat.

NEW YORK, June 11.—There were two cases of prostration by the heat in this city yesterday. A cigar salesman named Fox and the other an unknown workman were overcome in Wall street.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

CHAOS GIVING WAY

Some Show of Order Returning to Johnstown.

GOOD WORK IS BEING DONE.

There Is a Possibility, However, of a Strike Among the Laborers.

The New Order of Affairs at Johnstown Under the Government of General Hastings—All of the Morgues to Be Continued for a Short Time Longer. Bodies Now Found Are Very Badly Decomposed—Notes of the Flood.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 13.—Another twenty-four hours has passed and after a trip over the entire flooded district it is apparent that a vast amount of work has been accomplished.

Places that appeared to be insurmountable are gradually fading away before the energetic work which is being done.

Gangs of men will commence on a block of debris, work in opposite directions, and more wagons having been secured, the debris is rapidly disappearing.

GETTING THEIR HOMES IN SHAPE.

Owners of houses have commenced cleaning out their own residences in Johnstown, and when they request, as they frequently do, the foreman of a gang to allow his men to help, they are never refused.

Storekeepers are also commencing to take their goods from the general wreck to the creek to clean them to see what they can recover from the effect of the flood. Of course there are many sad hearts and weeping eyes in families as they find articles that in their happy homes before the flood belonged to loved ones, but with brave hearts they are smothering their intense grief and have apparently resolved that Johnstown shall be herself again, and the prediction is now being freely made that by the first day in July the city will present a very active appearance.

Gov. Beaver states, relative to discontinueing all of the morgues but one, that the Committee had thought of doing so, but the squads of men carrying the dead bodies object to carrying them so far, saying they cannot possibly do it, as the stench is becoming very bad. We therefore, have concluded to have the morgues at the Presbyterian Church, the First Ward School building, and the Fourth Ward school buildings continued.

The time is almost here that they will all have to be discontinued and the bodies are getting in such condition that as soon as they are found, we can only take their trinkets from them and what is in their pockets to be preserved for their friends.

THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT.

At 6 o'clock last evening the new regulations for the government of Johnstown went into effect. The heads of departments were announced as follows: Col. J. L. Spangler will have charge of all the supply stations throughout the flooded district. The district will be divided into two post commissary departments. No. 1 will be under command of Mr. W. H. Horn, who will have charge of supplies received over the Pennsylvania railroad. No. 2 under the direction of Mayor Singer, who will have charge of all the supplies under the care of quartermasters attached to the different regiments of the National Guard of the State Lieutenants Beau and Burnett, of the regular army, are associated with Col. Spangler in the work.

TROUBLE IN THE MANAGEMENT.

The trouble that has been brewing came late last night when William Flinn, of Booth & Flinn, who secured nearly 4,000 men to work in the ruins around town, had a long consultation with General Hastings who told him that Ryan & McDonald had the contract. Mr. McDonald was introduced to Mr. Flinn and asked him to get him 2,000 men and to work the contract with him. Mr. Flinn indignantly refused to do so and unless the Governor yields and make some some concessions it is believed that all of the Booth & Flinn men will leave Johnstown. That will leave General Hastings and Johnstown worse off than has been expected.

New York's Contributions.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Contributions to the Conemaugh Valley Relief Fund came into the Mayor's office very slowly to-day. From the close of the banks yesterday until six o'clock to-day the Mayor had received $6,120. The total amount so far received by the Mayor is $353,212. The Transportation Committee has its hands full sending packages of clothing to the sufferers. The total amount received in Brooklyn is $70,000.

Provisions for Lock Haven.

LOCK HAVEN, June 12.—Liberal quantities of provisions which have been coming to this city, have been freely distributed here and vicinity. Provisions and clothing have also been sent from here to Salona, Mackeyville, Flat Rock, Mill Hall, Queen's Run, Wayne, and Lockport, relieving many destitute persons at these places.

Flood Victims Found in Ohio.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 12.—Two bodies, a man and a woman, supposed to be victims of the Johnstown flood, were found in the river at Anderson's Ferry, six miles below this city yesterday. They were badly decomposed and there was nothing by which they could be identified.

Notes of the Flood.

Three heavy charges of dynamite were exploded in the jam above the bridge yesterday but had little effect in loosening it up.

The Mayor of Columbia, S. C., has sent $1,219 to the Treasurer of the Conemaugh Valley Relief fund, being the amount subscribed by the citizens of Columbia.

At a meeting of Johnstown relief contributors at San Francisco it was voted to send $10,000 of the fund to Seattle. Over $70,000 has been raised for both places.

COMING CONGRESSES.

Big Things Expected of the Peace Assembly in Paris.

LONDON, June 12.—Humanitarians in England are looking forward, with great expectations to the conference which will be held in Paris on the 29th and 30th of this month in the interests of peace on earth and good will to all men.

There is some ground for attaching greater importance to this gathering than to an ordinary Peace Congress, as this will be made up entirely of legislators of the countries represented, men not only with influence in shaping the policy of their own country, but who have a voice in the directing of that policy.

Many members of the British Parliament and French Senators and Deputies, at whose instance the Congress is called, will be present, and quite a number of American legislators have also signified an intention to attend.

The aim of the Congress is to provide a pland for the arbitration of disputes between nations, and in this way avoid the possibility of wars.

Another Congress which will assemble in Berne in Switzerland, in the near future is looked forward to with considerable interest.

This is the Labor Conference to which every European Government has been invited to send a representative.

There has been much doubt expressed as to whether the Tory Government of Great Britain would condescend to take part in a gathering of this sort, but Sir James Ferguson, Under Foreign Secretary, now announces that Her Majesty's Government will send a representative, although to a certain extent he will go with his hands tied.

He will not be allowed to discuss any proposal either to limit the hours of adult male labor, or to restrict production.

Labor leaders here are thankful that they have even this concession from the Government although they would have preferred it if the English representative had been permitted to go untrammelled, and free to convince his colleagues, if he could, of the correctness of the English view.

As it is he will not be able even to discuss these important question which will undoubtedly occupy a large share of the attention of the Congress.

SWITZERLAND IN DANGER.

Bismarck Preparing a Bitter Pill for the Little Republic.

LONDON, June 12.—The air in Berlin is filled with official mutterings that bode ill to the little Swiss confederation, and there is every indication that the German Government is preparing a bitter pill for the Swiss Federal Council to swallow. For weeks the German official press have been preparing Europe for some such move by unbridled attacks upon Swiss officials, and to-day there appear bitter invectives against the Swiss journals.

The North German Gazette, Bismarck's personal organ, calls attention to recent articles in the Berne League, a Swiss paper published in the German language. This paper, the Gazette asserts, is inspired by an intense hatred of Germany, and the articles it refers to, it speaks of as outdoing in malignity the worst prints of the unlicensed Parisian press. The Berlin correspondence of this journal, the Gazette asserts, is so outrageous that it is unfit to reprint in Germany.

All this is regarded as foreshadowing the blow which Bismarck contemplates striking at the Swiss Federal Council, in revenge for the expulsion off Herr Wohlyemuth, the German police official from Swiss terretory, and there is every indication that the German Chancellor regards the time ripe for the blow to fall.

Boulanger Has a Treacherous Friend.

LONDON, June 12.—It is stated that General Boulanger has written to a friend in Paris that the French police could only have discovered the documents which they have just seized through the treachery of some one who possessed his confidence, as their existence was known to only a very few trusted friends.

Select Knights, A. O. U. W.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 12.—Nearly one hundred delegates are present at the eleventh annual session of the Grand Legion, Select Knights, A. O. U. W., which began yesterday. The Grand Officers' reports were read. In the afternoon the officers were elected. Last evening began the most important part of the session, the consideration of the separation from the Supreme Legion, the change of name and the alteration in uniform.

Hanged Himself in His Garret.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., June 12.—A very wealthy bachelor farmer, 70 years old, Elis Snowberger, hanged himself in his garret, near Waynesboro, yesterday. Six weeks ago he exibited evidences of his insanity. One year ago his brother, also wealthy and a bachelor, drowned himself. Worry over money affairs weakened the minds of both.

A Secret Ballot for Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 12.—The House has amended the Secret Ballot bill vetoed by the Governor, by restricting its operations to State and Presidential elections. As so amended it was passed by a large majority. An amendment requiring the grouping of names according to politics was rejected, 83 to 102.

New York Sunday School Union.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 12.—The annual meeting of the State Sunday School association began yesterday afternoon in Calvary Baptist Church. A large number of delegates were present. R. W. McKee of Brooklyn conducted the devotional services. Miscellaneous business followed.

A Post Mortem on Laura Bridgeman.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 12.—By request of the authorities of the Perkins Institution for the Blind and with the consent of the relatives of the deceased, President Hall, of Clark University, made a post-mortem examination of the late Laura Bridgeman. The brain was removed and will be subjected to microscopical investigation by Dr. Donaldson. Results of the highest value are expected from this extraordinary case.

HE MURDERED BOTH

The Terrible Deeds of Crazy Lucien Freeman.

HIS MOTHER AND HIS FRIEND.

A Fearful Double Tragedy Enacted at Meriden, New Hampshire.

The Murderer Used an Axe and Nearly Decapitated Both of His Victims—He First Killed the Man Who Had Been Set to Guard Him and Then Attacked His Mother as She Was Trying to Escape.

LEBANON, N. H., June 12.—A terrible double murder was committed near Meriden early yesterday. Lucien Freeman with an axe killed his mother Mrs. Daniel Freeman and also John Morgan. The murderer took to the woods but has been captured.

The scene of the tragedy is a two-story frame farm house, a quarter of a mile from Meriden village, occupied by Mrs. Orville Freeman, aged 67 and her son, Lucien, aged about 30, who carried on the farm. Lucien has been subject to insane spells and at times has been watched. His brother, Fred., stayed with him Friday and Saturday nights, but being unable to leave his own work secured John Morgan, of Meriden, to care for Lucien.

It is apparent that on Monday night the three retired as usual, Freeman's insanity not being considered of such a violent nature as to warrant a night watch. During the night Lucien left his own room on the second floor and went down stairs where he occupied a bed lounge. Early yesterday morning he arose, got an axe, entered Morgan's room and struck him two terrible blows, nearly severing his head from his body and evidently killing him instantly. It would seem that Mrs. Freeman must have awakened and endeavored to escape, partly dressed, through the kitchen. Her son overtook her as she was leaving the kitchen and gave her a blow on the neck from behind with the axe nearly severing the neck. Freeman then left the house and walked, undressed, through the woods to Orville Eaton's house, a distance of two miles, arrived about 5 o'clock. Mr. Eaton put him to bed and his son, Exom Eaton, left to inform Freeman's brother of Lucien's whereabouts.

During his absence Lucien told Mr. Eaton of his deed. Sheriff Hurlbutt was summoned and arrested Freeman. The latter showed the Sheriff the axe covered with blood and hair, which he had thrown down about twenty rods from the house. There is little doubt that Freeman was insane when he committed the murders. He appears perfectly calm and readily answers questions put to him by officers.

The Coroner's jury at Meriden rendered a verdict against young Freeman, who will be taken to jail at Newport. If not previously declared insane he will be tried in September. In his sage moments he expresses regret for his deed, but seems unconcerned.

At the residence of the bride on Manning avenue, North Plainfield, at half-past six o'clock this evening, will occur the marriage of Miss Flora Case and Mr. William R. Mosher, of this city. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes will be the officiating clergyman.

Kitchen Garden Entertainment.

The closing exercises of the W. C. T. U. Kitchen Garden school took place last evening in the rooms of the W. C. T. U., on West Front St. The attendance was not as large as it should have been, but the enjoyment was nevertheless great. The entertainment was a temperance cantata entitled "One hour with Mother Goose." Those taking part did well, and the 40 or 50 little ones taking part showed careful and patient training, under Miss Alice Smith, who is at the head of this excellent school.

After the Cantata, the Superintendent gave certificates to the following girls, these certificates admitting the pupils to the Cooking School: Nellie Soper, Emma Angleman, Olive Wyckoff, Laura Wyckoff, Clara Armstrong, Mabel Conover. Mrs. Tomlinson, President of the W. C. T. U., who was to have been present to present the certificates, was prevented from coming. About two months ago the children were given barrels, to fill with money with which to help defray expenses of the school, and as a reward for this labor Mrs. J. W. Yates offered a prize. After counting the money, it was found that Miss Lizzie Dunham had won it. The prize consisted of a very beautiful book. Following are the receipts:

Money received—Barrels	$19.33
Money received from Cantata	30.00

Two Johnstown Orphans for Plainfield.

Mrs. N. E. Kimball, President of the Children's Home, says: "As the work of caring for the suffering and orphan children of Johnstown progresses, the Relief Committee find themselves glad to receive aid outside of the State. The Mail and Express of New York has sent a lady to Johnstown to bring ten children to that city. Two of them will come to our Home."

THE SCHOOL MEETING.

A WRANGLE AND THE RESULT.

The Citizens of North Plainfield Emphatically Declare That They Will Not Spend $15,000 for a New School Building. Some Queer Proceedings.

Probably the largest and most exciting school meeting that has ever taken place within the precincts of North Plainfield, occurred last evening, when fully five hundred men, mostly voters, assembled in the basement of the public school building on Somerset street, in response to a call by the trustees for a special meeting in School District No. 38, to decide upon an appropriation for erecting a new school building, $20,000 being the amount asked for in the call. Long before the hour announced for beginning the meeting, groups of men congregated in the basement of the school and in the yard adjoining, and discussed the situation. To the casual observer it was evident that there was more than one axe to grind; the wealthy and influential residents of Washington Park, jostled together with the strong and sturdy laborer, but all were good natured—at this time. Later developments, however, caused a "tempest in the tea pot," and on several occasions the chairman was obliged to throw oil on the troubled waters by rapping for order, or declaring some of those who took part in the discussion out of order. There were no ladies present.

It was whispered about that certain individuals had engaged Mr. Jesse Oakley to draw up plans for an addition to the present school building, at a cost of about $5,000, while it was understood that Architect Teale had drawn up another set of plans for the trustees for the erection of a new building on the Vine street front of the school premises, at an estimated cost of about $15,000. Hence the difficulty. Mr. H. K. Carroll called the meeting to order, and Hon. Chas. Place was elected chairman. Mr. Geo. F. Brown was elected secretary. The latter read the call.

Dr. Carroll, President of the Board of Trustees stated the reasons for calling the meeting. He also read from the school law, defining the power and duty of the trustees, and also the duty of the inhabitants. He said he thought the former vote was due to misapprehension. Dr. Carroll said certain criticisms had been made, among them that the taxes would be increased; also that pupils from Plainfield were crowding out the North Plainfield scholars, and that the tuition fees were being squandered. Again he said the trustees had been accused of engaging an architect. The trustees, Dr. Carroll said, favored the erection of a three story building on another lot, but it was evident that the people, or a majority of them, were not in favor of that. The actual accommodations in the school is for 526, but since the school opened in September 737 children have applied for admission. The Doctor maintained that there was no assembly room or hall in which the 25 pupils could be graduated next week, and that it was highly essential to have a new building. The average enrollment is 599. On the upper floor of the present school building there are desks for 248 scholars and the total number registered is 242. In the intermediate department the actual desk accommodation is 284, and the number of pupils registered is 447. In Miss Ginn's class there are 46 desks and 149 pupils, consequently one-half day sessions are held.

Dr. Carroll said further that on their own responsibility the trustees had engaged an architect to draw up plans for a new building, and all the builders in both Plainfield and North Plainfield had been asked to bid on the same. Sealed estimates were received and opened today, and it was found that the building could be erected, furnished and heated for about $15,000. He submitted a set of resolutions, which the Clerk read.

They provided for the expenditure of $15,000 for the purposes above named, and also for the issue of bonds, in denominations of $500 each and to bear interest not to exceed 4½ per cent., said bonds to be numbered from one to thirty respectively, with coupons payable yearly in sums ranging from $500 to $2,500; also that each year a tax be levied to pay the bonds maturing together with the interest.

Mr. E. St. John seconded the resolutions after an amendment to the effect that the sum not exceed $15,000.

A long and spirited discussion followed during which Mr. E. C. Morse and others insisted upon knowing the name of the architect. The chair decided that this was not necessary, whereupon Mr. Morse moved to indefinitely postpone action on the resolutions. He was declared out of order. "Is this gag law?" shouted a voice. The discussion continued, Mayor Cooley and Messrs Woolston, Buckle, Loomis, Munger and others speaking in support of the resolutions, while others expressed their disapproval. For an hour or so the wrangle continued, and finally Mr. John A. Thickstun made a motion to proceed and ballot on the first resolution, authorizing the expenditure of $15,000. The motion prevailed. The chair appointed Messrs Munger, Loomis and Woolston as tellers and the balloting begun. The vote resulted as follows:

Whole vote	264
For the appropriation	69
Against the appropriation	195

The chair announced the result, and the meeting broke up with great excitement.

The Seminary's Closing Exercises.

The closing exercises at Miss Kenyon's Seminary, this morning, were attended, as usual, by a large gathering of Plainfield's better people, almost exclusively of the gentler sex.

The programme was a most entertaining one, and full of features original, artistic and calculated to show the advancement of the scholars and their faultless training and finish. The opening number was the customary French play, this time varied by Chinese costumes and a Japanese score. Those who understood the libretto, and those who assumed to, betrayed exuberant enjoyment.

The calisthenic drill was given in Spanish frocks, with peasant waists, each girl holding a tambourine. It was a novel picture. A violin solo by Miss Nellie Whiton, accompanied by Miss Margaret Tracy, a piano duett by the same, and the solo performance by Miss Mabel Potter, of a "Chinese Serenade," were interspersed through the programme, which closed with Franz Abt's Fairy Cantata.

In this the entire school of about seventy had been trained and were led by Miss Alice Holmes. It was a pretty piece of harmony throughout, in which Miss Anna Titsworth's accompaniment was not a small part. Great credit was due that so much had been made of a chorus containing so many young voices whose possessors had hardly seen a song book before.

The work of the classes in drawing, botany and other branches, was exhibited in the rooms above, and received sincere praise from the many appreciative ones who examined it.

Resolutions.

At a regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge No. 44, I. O. O. F., the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has seemed good to the Almighty Disposer of Events to remove from our midst our late worthy and esteemed brother, A. B. Hartpence; and

WHEREAS, The intimate relations long held by the deceased with the brothers of this Lodge render it proper that we should place on record our appreciation of his service as a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., and his merits as a man; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we deplore the loss of brother A. B. Hartpence with deep feelings of regret, softened only by the confident hope that his spirit is with those who having fought the good fight here, are enjoying perfect happiness in the Grand Lodge above.

Resolved, That we tender to his afflicted relatives our sincere condolence and our earnest sympathy in their affliction at the loss of one who was a good citizen, a devoted brother and an upright man.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing resolutions be published in the papers and a copy transmitted to the relatives of the deceased.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

As Much Persistence by the Council Towards Acquiring Benefits, as Some of Them Display in Impeding Them.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Anyone who has carefully followed the efforts of the Common Council of this City to provide at various points a supply of pure and wholesome water for its inhabitants, cannot but have this feeling—that if half the persistence had been directed toward acquiring what we need, that has been exhausted in opposing many intelligent and honest plans for our benefit, we should now be enjoying the privileges which the growth of the city and its future prosperity demand.

Go back, if you will to the year 1882, when an application was presented by a Company formed of our own citizens, property owners having large interests and much at stake in the experiment they sought a franchise to begin. That it is an experiment can be proven notwithstanding the fact, that many are aching to make it. A corporation formed here with the object of benefiting us and in return receiving a fair interest on their investment in time, should at least have received consideration. That is to say, in preference to some foreign concern who might come among us even for the sole purpose of earning an honest compensation for good work faithfully performed. But did they? The records show otherwise. After meeting and adjourning, reconvening and passing resolutions in which it was affirmed that the interests of the City imparatively demanded a system of water works "with or without sewers" and harassing the applicants with all sorts of restrictions, the latter were forced to withdraw their proposition and so far as the writer is informed nothing has been presented from that quarter since. This occurred as above stated in 1882, and the proposition submitted while not being over-liberal to the city was a fair one. Professional water works men would perhaps question the advisability of accepting a franchise which restricted them to obtaining a supply of water by boring for it, but as these people were willing to accept the risks it was "none of the City's funeral." Until the year 1885 no determined attempt was made to call up this matter again, and then it came in conjunction with a sewer system. The agitation at the latter period was more severe, and it was amusing as well as remarkable to witness with what perseverance and perversity the Common Council of this City and of our sister, the Borough, fought off the benefits that the "health of the community imperatively demanded." Our little sister rather outdid us in this respect. In fact a water system was offered to the Borough for three years absolutely free and she would have none of it. Had that Council been gifted with even ordinary good judgment the water problem in this City would have been solved then, and no doubt Plainfield today would be paying for, or more properly contributing largely to the expense of North Plainfield's water.

The plans introduced before our own Council were numerous, and one contractor vied with another until at last it was deemed advisable to take some action in the matter. But prior to so doing the Council authorized the engagement of an engineer to draw up plans and a report for the construction of water works and sewers at an expense of something over $500. In due course these were submitted. Without connecting himself to any particular plan, Mr. Bassett, the engineer, located a water supply, but after stating that this could only be determined by a series of tests by boring, he admits that in time it might prove insufficient or unfit for domestic purposes by reason of contamination. He then turns to brook or river water and in this he is emphatically sustained by Rudolph Herring who leans towards Green Brook as a source of supply, but still more strongly to Stony Brook. The details of distribution, piping, pump house, stand pipe, etc., are treated generally in the report and sufficiently to permit a person having any knowledge at all of the subject to form an intelligent opinion even though he might not be posted in the matter in a technical sense. All the public obtained from this was the information and the bill for services rendered. A voucher for the payment of which is no doubt, on file.

And now we come to the present discussion of this very interesting and important question, through the first stages of which the Council is now passing. Propositions have been submitted as formerly, and singular to relate the Committee appointed to report on a plan for improvements desired, completely ignores the investigations of former Committees, and entirely discards the report and plans for which they disbursed the sum stated above. There is no question that at the adjourned meeting held Monday evening, it was believed some definite plan would be advocated by the Committee to reach the desired end. Many Councilmen were disappointed and others chagrined at the utter failure to provide anything tangible for the body to work upon. When by resolution $300 more was asked to advertise for propositions and bids, feelings were expressed in words and the matter was referred to a later meeting for action. Rudolph Herring, an expert water works engineer, is the author of the report which appears to be in great measure a paraphrase of Mr. Bassett's report of 1885, reviewed and recommended by Mr. Herring himself. Another startling request from the Committee was and no doubt should be criticised by the Council. This was that intending bidders should furnish estimates for drawing water from the Passaic River, something that has never been considered in any former discussion of this subject and is certainly not feasible at this time. This would necessitate the laying of some five miles of unproductive pipe and the only excuse that can be offered or was offered for this needless and unremunerative scheme was that although it would be costly today, the City in the distant future would derive a great benefit therefrom. Well, what is the matter with the dim distant providing for its own comfort and benefit? Let us look out for our health and this too in as careful and economical manner as is consistent with a complete system of works. There is no reason in asking for financial or mechanical impossibilities in this matter. No man or set of men with any business ability will think for a moment of making a gigantic outlay to bring water from a distant water shed and distribute it in this town for 200 fire hydrants at $30 each per annum, and the chance of possibly obtaining 1,000 private consumers in a few years at $15 per annum, which is the average for towns of our size. If such can be found you may rely upon it there is something crooked somewhere. If the Council or a Committee will carefully test public opinion on the subject of water works and sewers they will discover that the popular idea is opposed to the City building either, and the objection is based largely on the expense of the undertaking. This in a great measure will prevent the granting of a franchise to a private concern, but if the Council desires in reality to do something for the future prosperity of this place it will instead of restricting and hampering every applicant, rather first form an intelligent idea of what is desired by consulting with specialists of well known ability in this line and then confer in a friendly spirit with the applicants, something may be gained in the way of progress. Always remembering that there is no mint of money in the project for anyone if the work is properly and honestly performed. A legitimate contractor or banker's profit is always expected by the one party and generally allowed by the others in these enterprises.

A careful investigation will also prove, much as some people may be surprised by the statements, that water pipes cannot be laid 3½ feet under the ground without digging a trench in front of some other people's property; that sewers cannot be built successfully without a water supply to flush them but that water works can be built without sewers, and should be at once in order to remove our drinking supply of water from the close proximity to cesspools and other impure spots. Then enforce the cesspool ordinance, and they will find that we will be relieved from any fears of a serious outbreak of disease for years to come.

A Peep into the Future. Offered.

On account of the very wet weather which prevents the completion of the arrangements for the lawn festival at Mr. Geo. H. Babcock's, the affair is postponed until to-morrow afternoon and evening.

In addition to the attractive features of unusual novelty, already, referred to in THE PRESS, one of Edison's new phonograph's will be on exhibition. The people will also be given a chance to peep into the future.

—The Frazee Lee will case came up before Chancellor McGill at Jersey City, yesterday.

The Town Under Water.

NEWAYGO, Mich., June 12.—The back water from the jam of logs in the river has completely inundated Croton, a village six miles from here. The pressure against the piers is so great that the bridge is not safe to cross, and communication is entirely cut off.

Struck by Lightning.

NEWARK, N. J., June 12.—The Callendar Insulating factory at Harrison, N. J., was struck by lightning at 5:30 yesterday afternoon. The building then took fire and was damaged to the extent of $40,000. The firm failed about a month ago, since which time the works have been idle.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

John Gaffney, one of the umpires for the American Association, has resigned.

The Globe Congregational church, of Worcester, R. I., has extended a call to the Rev. Judson V. Clancy, of Jackson, Mich.

George S. Evans, of Massachusetts, has been appointed Division Postoffice Inspector with headquarters at Boston at a salary of $2,500.

The corner stone of the new Roseville Methodist Episcopal church at Newark, N. J., was laid by Bishop Andrews yesterday afternoon.

John Dobson, of Philadelphia, has been awarded the contract for furnishing Indians with blankets. The contract aggregates about $56,000.

The Secretary of the Treasury has appointed Charles H. Litchman, of Massachusetts, as special agent of the Treasury department with headquarters at Boston.

The boiler house, engine and dry house at Perkins & Livermore's mill, in Bradley, Me., were burned yesterday. Loss, $5,000 to $6,000; partly covered by insurance.

At Reichenau, in Saxony, 150 of the population are ill from the effects of eating putrid meat. Four have already died and there are many others who cannot recover.

Patrick Daly, of Long Island City, recently appointed Police Commissioner, has handed in his resignation. The reason for his act it is said emanated from the Excise Board.

Comedian John Gilbert's condition is practically unchanged. No new complications have appeared and his physicians state that his trouble is such that he may die at almost any moment.

Alderman Gorman, of Yonkers, N. Y., yesterday gave chase to and caught a sneak thief who had burglarized the house of Mrs. John B. Fleming. He gave his name as Frank Burr of New York.

A passenger train and a gravel train on the Pittsburg, Cincinnati and St. Louis railroad collided last evening at a curve near New Cumberland, W. Va., causing a bad wreck. One man was killed.

A delegation from the Women's Christian Temperance union of Yonkers, N. Y., yesterday went to White Plains to visit the county jail. They carried flowers and religious literature to the prisoners.

The barn of E. Abrams, at Hewletts, near Rockaway, L. I., was struck by lightning during the storm last evening. The current set fire to the building and it was burned to the ground. The loss is $2,000.

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

SULLIVAN IN QUOD

Arrested for the Murder of Dr. Cronin.

TWO NEW YORKERS ARE SEIZED.

The Coroner's Jury Brings in a Verdict After Long Deliberation.

They Say that Cronin's Murder Was the Outcome of a Conspiracy of Members of the Clan-na-Gael—Detective Coughlin, the Two Sullivans and Horse-Thief Woodruff, Named as Principals or Accessories to the Deed.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Link by link the chain that is to bind the assassins of Dr. Cronin is being forged, and when the Grand Jury again meets there will be plenty of material from which it may make indictments. All day yesterday the Coroner's jury listened to testimony, and at at 4:45 p. m., retired to formulate a verdict.

It was within a few minutes of 10 o'clock when the foreman intimated that the jury had agreed upon a verdict. Only Coroner Herts and a small knot of spectators were in the room. The verdict was read in slow and impressive tones:

We, the undersigned, a jury appointed to make inquiry according to law as to how the body viewed came to his death, state as our verdict, from the evidence:

1—That the body is that of Patrick H. Cronin, known as Dr. Cronin.

2—That his death was not from natural causes, but from violent means.

3—That the said Patrick H. Cronin was decoyed from his home on North Clark street on the evening of May 4, 1889, by some person or persons to the cottage known as the Carlson cottage situated at No. 1872 North Ashland avenue.

4—That at said cottage the said Cronin was murdered by being beaten on his head with some blunt instrument in the hands of some person or persons to us unknown.

5—That the body after said murder was committed was placed in a trunk and carried to Edgewater on a wagon by several persons and by them placed in a catch basin at the corner of Evanston avenue and Fifty-ninth street, Lake View, where it was discovered May 22.

6—That the evidence shows conclusively to our minds that a plot or conspiracy was formed by a number of persons for the purpose of murdering the said Cronin and concealing his body; said plot or conspiracy was deliberately contrived and cruelly executed.

7—We have carefully inquired into the relations sustained by said Cronin to other persons while alive to ascertain if he had any cause of enmity with any person sufficient to cause his murder.

8—It is our judgment that no other person or persons except those who are or had been members of a certain secret society known as United Brotherhood, or Clan-na-Gael had any cause to be the instigators or executors of such plot or conspiracy to murder said Cronin.

Many of the witnesses testifying in the case have done so with much evident unwillingness, and as we believe, with mental reservation. We find from the evidence that a number of persons were parties to this plot and conspiracy to murder said Cronin, and that Daniel Coughlin, Patrick O. Sullivan, Alexander Sullivan and one Woodruff, alias Black, were either principals, accessories, or had guilty knowledge of said plot and conspiracy to murder said Cronin conceal his body, and they should be held to answer to the Grand Jury.

We also believe that other persons were engaged in this plot or had guilty knowledge of it and should be apprehended and held to the Grand Jury.

We further state that this plot or conspiracy in its conception and execution is one of the most foul and brutal that has ever come to our knowledge and recommend that the proper authorities offer a large reward for the discovery and conviction of those engaged in it in any way.

We further state that in our judgment all secret societies whose objects are such as the evidence shows that of the Clan-na-Gael or the United Brotherhood to be, are not in harmony with and are injurious to American institutions. We hope that future vigor and vigilance by the police force will more than compensate for past neglect by a part of the force in this case.

It is reported in police circles that no less than thirty warrents are being made out for suspected accessories all of which will be served on to-day. The list is said to include John F. Beggs, Officer Dan Brown, Harry Jordan, Michael Boland Lawrence R. Buckley, Peter McGeehan, D. C. Feeley, Frank Murray, J. J. Bradley, J. J. Cuenea, and John Moss. It is also reported that a warrant will be issued for the arrest of Henry Le Caron, the English spy, and his extradition demanded. The majority of those named are prominent officers of the Clan-na-Gael.

Immediately upon the verdict being rendered Deputy Sheriffs Palmer, Broderick, and Williams drove in a carriage to the residence of Alexander Sullivan on Oak street, in the North Division. Even on this critical day the coolness which has characterized the noted Nationalist from the opening of the investigation remained with him. Although the jury had retired before he had left his law office under the shadows of the County building, and he knew full well that his arrest was inevitable before morning he was in bed and sound asleep when the deputies arrived. They expected to find him awaiting them and surrounded by his friends. Instead of this, his law clerk, Henry Brown, and the domestics, were the only occupants of the house. He responded with alacrity to the summons and in a few minutes was up and dressed. He said nothing when the warrant was read, but with a self possessed smile accompanied the officers to the carriage. The party was rapidly driven to the county jail where after the usual formalities had been gone through Sullivan was placed in a cell on the ground floor near where the Anarchists were incarcerated.

"Information was derived last night from detective sources that J. J. Moroney, who was arrested in New York yesterday, is a member of the Clan-na-Gael executive, that is to say, the Committee which governs the whole organization and of which Luke Dillon is a member. Moroney, it is claimed, has been identified by the salesman as the man who purchased the furniture which first went to Clark street and afterwards to the Carlson cottage. The identification is represented as having been from a cabinet photograph of Moroney. This same Moroney is claimed also to have been identified as the person who rented the cottage. McDonald, the other New Yorker arrested, was his companion. A witness has been found, it is asserted, who will swear that Moroney and McDonald are the men who posted the letter at Hammond, Ind., after the tragedy, telling the Carlsons that the rent would still be forthcoming. Moroney wrote the letter, so it is alleged, and McDonald was seen to leave the train and post it. In fact, the story in a nutshell is that Moroney and McDonald were the once mysterious "Williams brothers," popularly credited with being the persons who took Cronin's life.

He Is at Liberty to Approve or Disapprove the Samoan Convention.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The Samoan treaty, a copy of which, engrossed by the clerks of the United States Commissioners at Berlin, was received at the State Department Monday, was yesterday laid before the Cabinet by Secretary Blaine. The subject had been discussed at previous meetings of the Cabinet, but no formal consideration had been given it. Secretary Blaine read the text of the treaty to the President, who was already familiar with it, and to the members of the Cabinet, the majority of whom knew little or nothing about it. Mr. Blaine explained the convention in detail, and then set forth the points in which the agreement of the Commissioners failed to meet his own views. The Secretary of State desires a more perfect autonomy of the Samoan islands, than that contemplated by the treaty, which grants a certain representation in the government of the islands to the treaty power. He would have the Samoans free from outside interference of any character whatever.

An hour was spent by the Cabinet in discussing the treaty, but no formal recommendation was agreed upon. It is understood, however, that Mr. Blaine is left perfectly free to cable his indorsement of the convention as soon as he may conclude to do so.

POSTMASTERS APPOINTED.

President Harrison and Postmaster-General Wanamaker Both at Work.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The President has appointed twenty-three postmasters, among them the following:

MASSACHUSETTS — James F. Whitcomb, Athol Centre.

NEW YORK—Seth G. Heacock, Ilion; Joshua M. Williams, Phœnix.

PENNSYLVANIA — Henry F. Beardsley, Montrose.

MARYLAND—David Dixon, Lonaconing.

The following named fourth-class postmasters have been appointed in New York: J. C. Green, Andover; George Hargraves, Ausable Chasm; G. B. Hemenway, Bristol Springs; Morris Pratt, Buskirks Bridge; James Hopkins, Cadyville; H. K. Fisher, Chili Station; Eulalia Allen, Clarksborough; G. H. Fowler, Faughannock Falls; Myron Doty, Fosterville; S. E. Rusk, Haines Falls; W. F. Paige, Kaaterskill; R. Prindle, Little Genesee; G. S. Hayden, Lysander; C. M. Barrett, Moose River; M. P. Worthy, Naples Landing; S. W. Valentine, Ononville; Walter Peak, Peakville; James H. Kelder, Samsonville: George Kuhoupt, St. Remy; B. J. Wever, Schuylers Falls; D. W. Sprague, Sprague ville; Benson Smith, Starkey; Eli M. Shaw, Stockholm Depot; A. S. Van Dusen, W Stony Creek; A. B. Noble, Wevertown.

Mrs. Harrison Off for Cape May.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—To-morrow Mrs. Harrison and the children will leave for Cape May, where they have taken a cottage. They will remain there until the end of the month. The President may run down to Cape May for a single day once or twice while they are there, but he will keep pretty close to the White House until he leaves for Deer Park the last of the month. He will then be joined by Mrs. Harrison and the children, and they will spend the summer at Deer Park.

Major Armes' Punishment.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—In pursuit of directions from the President General Schofield, the Acting Secretary of War, has prescribed a radius of fifty miles from the District of Columbia as the limit within which Major George A. Armes shall be confined for five years as part punishment for his assault on Governor Beaver.

Seattle in Need of Assistance.

PORTLAND, Oregon, June 12.—About $9,700 were collected yesterday for the Seattle and Johnstown sufferers—$5,500 were for the former and $4,200 for the latter. The Chairman of the Relief Committee here received a despatch from Judge J. R. Lewis who has charge of relief matters in Seattle saying that much destitution prevailed. Thousands are being fed and lodged and hundreds must live in tents for months. The work of rebuilding is being rapidly pushed. The Board of Trade held a meeting last night and resolved to raise $30,000 to $50,000 to relieve the sufferers by the Seattle fire.

A Washout at Holyoke.

HOLYOKE, Mass., June 12.—A destructive washout occurred here between 8 and 9 o'clock last night which swept out about one hundred feet of the solid stone wall on the east side of the lower level canal, demolished about twenty-five or thirty feet of the west wing of the Water Power company's Cabot street mill, and wrecked a bridge owned by the Connecticut River railroad which spanned the canal. As near as can be estimated the loss will be from $75,000 to $100,000. This does not cover the loss which will be sustained by the temporary suspension of work in the mill.

The "Electric Sugar" Trial.

NEW YORK, June 12.—In the trial of William O. Howard for defrauding the stockholders of the defunct Electric Sugar company of $6,500 under false pretenses the prosecution called three wholesale sugar dealers to the stand from whom the defendant and Prof. Friend purchased the refined sugar which was used to blind the stockholders as the sugar that had undergone the electric process. These sugar dealers testified to the purchase of the sugar by the defendant and the professor.

Bricklayers on a Strike.

LOWELL, Mass., June 12.—A large gang of bricklayers employed on a new building of the Tremont and Suffolk corporation struck this morning in order to give force to the carpenters demonstration. They were employed by Staples Brothers and had no grievance of their own. The move is aimed at Col. J. W. Bennett, President of the Master Builder's Association who contracted for the carpenter work on the building.

Cigarmakers Well Organized.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The National Cigar Trade assembly continued its convention yesterday. The reports showed the trade was in a prosperous condition and that the unions of the Western cities were better organized than those in the East. The action of the Cincinnati branch to effect a combination with the International Union was endorsed.

A State Senator Murdered.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 12.—State Senator Samuel E. Fields, aged 60, living near Dalton, threatened to whip his adopted son, Dennis Taylor, aged 20, yesterday. The boy had been in an asylum and is supposed to be of unsound mind. Dennis procured a gun and shot Fields, killing him instantly. He made no effort to escape and is now in jail.

Killed by the Hot Weather.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 12—William Rodcliffe, a weaver aged 48 dropped dead in the street yesterday being overpowered by the heat.

FAIRY FEMININE FEET.

What Dame Fashion Provides for Her Followers.

Dainty Styles of Footgear That Are Being Worn This Summer—New Things in Tennis Shoes—Evening Shoes Must Match One's Gloves and Gown.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

It is with joy and gladness that the Spring beauty takes her walks abroad, for high heels are abolished for the promenade and the boot with a pointed toe is not put on for a shopping expedition. The fashion—terrible and magnificent word—decrees that the dressing of the feet must be differentiated this Summer according to the hour of the day and the style of the gown. To wear diamonds at breakfast is not worse form than to keep one's "dress" boots continually on parade. Proper footwear has always been considered more absolutely essential to being well dressed than the wearing of fine gowns, and proper footwear means this season shoes of one kind for walking and of quite different varieties for the carriage, the house and the evening. It is coming to be generally acknowledged that the woman who would sport Louis Quinze heels on Broadway is of the same class as she who walks the street in a conspicuous dinner or opera toilet, a model whose style it is safest to—avoid.

STREET SHOES.

The genuine walking boot is after the English model this summer. It is made of soft pliable leather and on the "common sense" last, with heels not more than an inch in height, square set and not under the middle of the foot, and toes square or a little rounded so as to give the toes room without cramping or overlapping pointed tip of patent leather is quite the most correct ornamentation for a shoe of this kind, the entire vamp of patent leather though showy at the outset, being liable to creasing and stretching and being too sensitive to heat to make a comfortable walking boot for summer. The walking shoe may button or lace, according to the taste of the wearer, though the laced boot is decidedly in the ascendent with fashionables, since the invention of lace hooks that will not catch the gown, as being far more trig and trim to walk in. A laced boot will always keep its shape, where a buttoned boot grows loose and unsightly, though its convenience recommends the button to all women not young, and to stout women. The side laced boot has no advantages and only misses ugliness when worn on a foot that is very slender.

For material, we are returning this Summer to cloth tops on many of the new boots for walking. Plain black cloth is the standby for the dark hued and sober tailor gows, but for the lighter and airier butterfly toilets every shade of dress material is reproduced to match the gloves and the gown, since ooze leather as well as cloth can be dyed any color.

If one wants a walking boot of strictly correct pattern one sends for one of the newly imported English bootmakers, who waits upon my lady in her boudoir and measures her feet after the most approved British fashion. The pieces of footgear sent home by this functionary are not small, no more is the bill. Notions regarding the feet have altered since the days when Suckling likened his lady's feet to mince, peeping in and out from the folds of her petticoat, and even since Tennyson compared Maud's feet to gems set in the green of the English turf. Ideals nowadays are on a less babyish scale. Not a tiny foot, but one which is finely shaped and symmetrical, which will carry its owner well and strongly through the world, is desired. Women, especially young ones, have been slow to learn that a long slim effect is far more graceful and comfortable as well as smaller than a short bunchy one, but they have learned it at last and hence the success of the English bootmaker. Most of his wares, when they do not lace up the front, have an inside lace, to fit the boot snugly over the ankle, over which the buttoned flap lies.

If a woman likes her walking boots somewhat ornamental she may choose a pair in the Waukenphast style, with the straight toe cap stitched across in the manner of a man's boot, or she may yield to the craze for novelty and go in for colors and color combinations. Green is very popular, and so are bright and dull reds in ooze leather. Russet, mouse, coffee, tan and bronze are color staples and are accounted modest in the presence of the more striking shades. A not extreme example of the possibilities of ooze leather is giving in a walking boot calculated to give the foot an appearance of extreme slimness and length, and made with lace vamps of ooze calf in color lettuce green and stiched partly with its own color and partly black; the quarter is of mouse color and the tops and lace pieces are bound with a piping of tan ooze. The toe caps are of patent leather, stitched with black and green. A walking book with the upper made of different colored, narrow strips of ooze leather woven together in a gay basket work; a walking boot with vamp, quarter, toe cap and heels all of different colors and not too sober ones ought to suit the taste of the most extreme, but whatever the vagaries the low heel, the broad toe and the comfortable shape remained the same.

Last year and the year before that we had a tennis shoe; this year we have a yachting shoe, a tourist shoe, in addition to the humble general utility tennis shoe. Even this latter has changed somewhat, for while most of the tennis shoes in former seasons have differed from ordinary shoes only by the addition of a rubber sole, the real tennis shoes are now made of strong linen, faced with leather and are regularly soled with India rubber or with felt more often. The new tennis shoe is cut high or low, and is made up in black canvas stitched with gold very frequently. The yachting shoes are of two varieties, for gala day trips over smooth water and for real service "where the salt winds blow and the waves dash high." The one style is shown in maroon leather with white heels and white ribbon lacings, in navy blue and white, and in gray kid with black ribbons and heels. The other species is a much less "smart" rubber-soled ankle shoe. The riding boot is now made with a tan or maroon leg of Morocco leather and French kid or patent leather foxings.

The Oxford tie holds its own in spite of the doctors, who are proclaiming loudly that weak ankles are the direct result of much walking in low shoes. Oose calf, kid and dongola are the favored materials, and medium heels and toes, not quite so low nor so broad as for the walking shoe, are oftenest seen. On the street the tie is worn with over-galters to match the dress; when meant for indoor wear coquettish lacings of ribbon or cord and a great variety of colors appear. A pretty Oxford tie, for home use only, is made from silvery blue ooze, piped around the top and the lace front with white ooze. Rose-colored ooze piped with green, scarlet piped with black, green and purple, orange or poppy red and black are other novelties. Russet, tan, coffee or mouse and the pale gray undressed kid, with patent leather vamps are less far-fetched, and these are often beaded with different colors, steel and garnet being a well-liked combination. A bit of narrow silk braid is often used for the lacing and this may tie in a simple bow or be fastened with a tiny jewelled clasp, the stones employed being chosen to harmonize in color with the vamp and beading. All sorts of pretty ideas are carried out in the arrangement of these ties. The ribbons give the ankle a gay finish when crossed and recrossed before threading the eyelets. Or the shoe may first be laced and the cords or ribbons then brought around the ankle and tied in front. The bright tints and dainty fancies of the low shoes will add much to the picturesqueness of the Summer toilet.

For negligee wear the varieties are increasing. The absurd little "mule" slipper consisting of nothing but a sole and a toe, is idiotic outside the boudoir. The slipper of Turkish red leather is still allowed with the tea gown. All women with sensitive feet will be grateful for a novelty in foot wear which has seemless front, high back piece and no quarter, being entirely open on the sides.

Slippers are more worn than boots for evening, though women to whom slippers are not becoming wear boots of kid or satin to match the gown. The evening boot is made high of heel and pointed of toe, curved in the high arched instep. It may be of the material of the dress when that is some rich heavy fabric like brocade. In every case it must follow the leading color of the gown. A novel evening shoe is of a pale blue corded silk with rows of narrow black velvet ribbon stretched across the vamp leaving spaces between of the same width as the velvet which are feather stitched in delicate pinks and greens. The heels are high and white and highly polished, and the shoes were made to order to wear with a blue brocade figured with pink flowers, and draped with blue gauze. Black velvet ribbons were worn at the throat and about the wrists in lieu of jewels. Other evening boots are of white silk ornamented in the same way with black velvet or gold braid.

There is little change in the form of the slipper for evening. Suede gloves and Suede slippers are usual accompaniments for the evening dress, but the newer mode is to wear slippers, of satin if necessary, to match the gown. The slipper has the pointed toe and high heel and is not very low in front. Silk bows or rosettes are used in ornamentation, but they must be small ones. The buckle is silver or gilt, sometimes jewelled, and may be large and square or smaller than those hitherto seen.

OUTING SHOES.

Small pompons of gold or silver thread are occasional ornaments. Nearly all slippers are profusly beaded. Bronze slippers are worn but not extensively. Bronze or Roman gold buckles are used with them. The Centennial slipper and the Martha Washington are made in gold or silver kid beaded and tied with bright ribbon. The evening sandals gain in favor. They are made of white or the softest of dove gray kid, embroidered with cut steel and lined with flesh pink satin. The Egyptian slipper is another novelty. It is made of undressed kid of a dark serpent green with the toe beaded in dark olive green beads.

A strenuous effort is being made to bring back the white stocking for street wear, but it will not succeed. ELLEN OSBORN

Fashion Notes.

New princesse gowns for home wear have stylish jacket fronts.

Stripes promise to be a marked characteristic of dressy watering-place gowns.

The general tendency of the prevailing fashion seems to be to give an appearance of height.

Empire cloaks of lace are in a measure a substitute for the lace costumes so long in vogue.

Gray, silver and violet are again used to graduate the change from mourning to colors.

Accordion-plaited dresses of silk warp Henrietta cloth are much liked by young ladies who wear mourning.

Dressy polonaise are made with deep Louise Quatorize vests of embroidered silk, which are cut to fall low and broad below the waist.

Crepe de Venise is a popular fabric for evening wear. It resembles nun's veiling, but is lighter in texture, and comes in all the half-faded tints now so much in vogue.

On Gettysburg's Battle-Field.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 12.—The Minnesota Soldiers' Monument Commission, Maj. C. B. Heffelfinger, Hon. William Lochran and Maj. Martin Maginess yesterday located positions for two monuments to the First Infantry, the only regiment of that State in this battle. One of the monuments will cost $8,000. Both will be near the scene of Pickett's charge. The Eighth New York Cavalry veterans, forty in number, arrived from Rochester yesterday afternoon and will dedicate their monument to-day.

SULLIVAN IN COURT

HIS APPLICATION FOR BAIL.

Judge Tuley Refuses to Act Until the Special Grand Jury Has Finished.

Meantime He Will Read the Evidence as Taken Before the Coroner's Jury and Will Be Prepared for Action To-Morrow. If the Grand Jury Fails to Indict Him, Sullivan May Be Discharged—The New York Prisoners.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Lawyer Wyndes of counsel for Alexander Sullivan, made application to Judge Tuley in the Supreme Chambers yesterday afternoon for a writ of habeas corpus for Sullivan. Judge Tuley issued the writ returnable at 4 o'clock and within ten minutes the paper was served on Sheriff Matson.

When Sullivan appeared in the court-rooms hortly after 4 o'clock and made a dignified bow to the Bench he was as cool as a cucumber. To see his calm face, his self-possessed air, his spotless linen, and faultless attire, no one would have imagined that he had been taken from his bed the night before and confined in the interval in a not-over inviting cell in the county jail.

At the outset State's Attorney Longenecker filed a demurrer to the proceedings on the ground that the evidence against Sullivan had not been incorporated in the petition for the writ of habeas corpus, but it was soon developed that the opinion he cited in support of his position had been rendered twelve years before the enactment of the present habeas corpus act. Stirring arguments in behalf of Sullivan's admission to bail were then made by A. S. Trude and ex-Senators Gilbert and Duncan. They held that there was not a jot or tittle in the evidence presented at the inquest that justified the deprivation of Sullivan of his liberty; that a dog would not be judged on the mass of gossip and suspicion that went to make up the case against him and that the verdict of the jury lacked coherency or definite character.

In replying, the State's Attorney admitted that the case against Sullivan was not so strong as against some of the other prisoners, but objected to action being taken while the Grand Jury was considering the case.

Judge Tuley reviewed the situation at length. He said that on the facts presented he should be inclined to discharge the prisoner were it not for the fact that the Grand Jury had the case in hand. The verdict was exceedingly indefinite and informal. The State's Attorney, he thought, should show that there was sufficient cause to hold the prisoner.

A long discussion ensued, and finally at Mr. Sullivan's request Mr. Trude agreed to join issues with the State and let the judge read over the testimony taken at the inquest, Judge Tuley saying that he would consider it legally and without prejudice. Sullivan was then remanded to jail until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, when the Court will render the decision. If the evidence is not sufficient in the Court's opinion he can discharge the accused if no indictment is returned, and admit him to bail if there is an indictment.

The special Grand Jury selected by Sheriff Watson in obedience to the mandate of Judge Shepard, to investigate the Cronin tragedy, were impanelled in the Criminal Court at eleven o'clock yesterday morning.

There were only two Irishmen on the panel, W. J. Quan and John O'Niell. Mr. Quan is the well-known wholesale grocer and Mr. O'Niell is the ex-County Commissioner.

In addressing the jury, Judge Shepard said that he expected a full, exhaustive, impartial investigation of the murder of Dr. Cronin.

The entire resources of the country, he said, would be at the disposal of the Grand Jury, and witnesses who would not testify should be made to do so.

The Grand Jury had in its possession the power to make them do so.

This is taken as meaning that the witness who "don't know," and "don't remember," will be subjected to the operation of the sweat box, the thumbscrew, the rack and a few other such effective devices which may strengthen their memory and develop their powers of speech.

The Grand Jury was in session for three hours yesterday afternoon and listened to a repetition of some of the testimony given at the Coroner's inquest.

Hatfield, the furniture salesman, is almost positive that the photograph of Maroney, under arrest in New York, is that of the man to whom he sold the goods found in the Carlson cottage, while the expressman is absolutely certain that it was Maroney that hired his wagon and carried the articles into the cottage. The Chicago detectives with requisition papers will reach New York to-night.

Dugdale Was a Nuisance.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 13.—A. E. Dugdale, an insane patient at Dr. Jones' private hospital, at Merchantville, was arrested and locked up in the Camden jail yesterday, and afterward sent to the County asylum at Blackwood by the Court. Dugdale was arrested upon complaint of John Morton, a Merchantville citizen, backed by the residents in general of that pretty town. For some time the residents have been annoyed by Dugdale's actions while walking the streets with an attendant behind him. He has fought with his attendant in the street and has annoyed the little girls and young women by throwing kisses at them and saying obnoxious things until it was determined to stop it. Two of Dr. Jones' attendants were with Dugdale in his cell until the court ordered his incarceration in the Blackwood asylum.

Mr. Barnum's Successor.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Calvin S. Brice of Ohio has been elected Chairman of the National Democratic Committee.

THE REGISTRARS' REPORT.

Over Twelve Thousand People Yet to Be Accounted for at Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 13.—The Bureau of Registration has completed its work and hands the official report to Director Scott as follows:

Remaining survivors, 15,678.

Unidentified—Fourth Ward schoolhouse, 18; Millvale borough, 63; Morrellville, 2; Presbyterian church, 23; Prospect, 18; Pennsylvania railroad station, 73; St. Columbia church, Cambria City, 42; Kernville, Fifth and Sixth Wards, 5; Grand View chapel, 19—total unidentified 325.

Nineveh, 189 bodies recovered; also 50 recovered in Indiana county, opposite Nineveh, making the total number recovered 1,193.

Could not get an account from New Florence on account of its being in the possession of the Coroner, who is at Greensburg.

The last census of Johnstown reported 29,600 inhabitants. The above report shows that there are yet 12,730 unaccounted for.

Pennsylvania's Loan to Conemaugh.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 13.—Attorney-General Kirkpatrick will not give an opinion as to whether it would be constitutional or not to take money from the State Treasury for the flood sufferers before an appropriation has been made, as the matter has been amicably arranged between State Treasurer Hart and Governor Beaver. The amount will be obtained by the indemnity bond method, but the bondsmen must agree to be responsible for the money in the event the successor of State Treasurer Hart should refuse to accept his settlement, and further, if any of the bondsmen should die in the intervening time, the remaining bondsmen must be responsible.

Winners at Jerome Park.

JEROME PARK, N. Y., June 13.—First race, 1,400 yards—Fitzroy, 1; Carnot, 2; So So, 3. Time, 1:24½.

Second race, three-year-olds, 1 1-16 miles—Auricoma, 1; Lady Pulsifer, 2. Time, 1:56¾. Only two started.

Third race, the Westchester Handicap, one mile and three furlongs—Charley Dreux, 1; LeLogos, 2; Firenzi, 3. Time, 2:29.

Fourth race, 5½ furlongs, two-year-olds—Tormentor, 1; Frailty, 2; Bagatelle colt, 3. Time, 1:12¾.

Seventh race, two-year-olds, ¾ mile—Druidess, 1; Bill Letcher, 2; Garrison, 3. Time, 1:19¾.

A Young But Brave Escort.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 13.—Monday afternoon Frank Leopold, aged 12 years, and Katie Malden, aged 11 years, visited Robbins' circus. After the show they started to walk to Centropolis, their home. When within a mile of the place a man named Sieddons jumped from the bushes and attempted to assault the little girl. The boy attacked Sieddons with a pocket knife and slashed him across the face in a fearful manner, nearly cutting out an eye and cutting off part of his nose. Sieddons fled, but was afterwards captured.

The Berkley Strikers.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 13.—This morning only forty of the Berkley strikers appeared at the gates ready to work at the company's wages. They were directed to apply personally to Superintendent Magee, whom they had attacked as being the cause of the cut down. This was too humiliating and only three or four applied. These were told that later in the day when the looms had been changed to meet the new schedule they would be sent for. Other strikers will be given work in the same way.

Requested to Resign.

PATERSON, N. J., June 13.—Charles Ramsey, chief bookkeeper of the First National bank was requested by the directors yesterday to resign. Cashier Bell said that although the directors were loth to part with Mr. Ramsey's efficient services, yet as Mr. Ramsey had acknowledged having taken money belonging to the Guards they could not do otherwise. The committee appointed by the Guards to examine Mr. Ramsey's accounts will not finish the work for several days.

The Cuba Reservoir is Safe.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 13.—George Chambers, Assistant Superintendent of Public Works, and Division Engineer Everhed examined the Cuba reservoir dam yesterday, and say they regard it as perfectly safe. To satisfy the people of Cuba the water will be lowered five feet below the spillway, and the Superintendent will recommend that the spillway be cut down five feet. The water in the dam has not been within six feet of the top of the dam.

Secretary Rusk in Demand.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Secretary Rusk who returned to Washington yesterday, after a two weeks absence in Wisconsin, returns to find himself overwhelmed with invitations to visit and address State Agricultural organizations throughout the country during the coming season.

Gladstone's Golden Wedding.

LONDON, June 13.—Mr. Henry Gladstone, son of the ex Premier, who is a merchant in Calcutta, is coming home for his father's golden wedding celebration and will be here next week. The whole family will then be reunited for the first time in many years.

Ex-Canal Commissioner Wright Dead.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 13.—W. W. Wright, ex-Canal Commissioner and a prominent Democrat of this State, died at his home in Geneva, this morning, aged 76 years. He served under Governor Tilden during the Canal ring investigation.

Bell Telephone Dividend.

BOSTON, June 13.—The directors of the American Bell Telephone Company to-day declared a regular quarterly dividend of $3 per share and an extra dividend of $6 per share. Both are payable July 15 to stock of record June 29.

WITH A NEW BROOM

Johnstown's Wreck Being Swept Slowly Away.

GEN. HASTINGS IN COMMAND.

Only Five Hundred Men at Work on the Ruins To-Day.

The Bodies Now Being Recovered Are Decomposed Beyond Recognition and None Are Being Embalmed—Governor Beaver Meeting with Trouble in Securing His Million Dollar Loan—Prospective Suits Against the Fishing Club.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 13.—The new administration is in charge to-day and the different camps presented an animated appearance.

About 500 men were at work to-day.

Trains on the Pennsylvania railroad now arrive and depart from the regular passenger station; the broken tracks over the stone bridge have been fully repaired.

Some of the bodies recovered now are so badly decomposed that the skin breaks and hair falls off while being washed by the undertaker.

None are being embalmed now.

The bodies when first removed are saturated with disinfectants, brought to the morgue, where the clothing is cut off, valuables preserved, description taken, after which the remains are wrapped in a muslin shroud, coffined and immediately taken away for burial.

A request has been made that the Mayors of all cities and towns along the rivers between Pittsburg and New Orleans send descriptions of any bodies that they may find in the rivers, to General Hastings at Johnstown.

Permanent headquarters have been established in the Pennsylvania Railroad freight warehouse.

It is stated that Gen. Hastings is considering the advisability of ordering out the Eighteenth Regiment to act as a relief to the Fourteenth Regiment.

THE NEW ARRANGEMENT.

Already Much Complaint is Heard—Fears That the Work Will Not Be Pushed.

JOHNSTOWN, June 13.—Work throughout Johnstown, Kernville and other places in the valley is almost entirely suspended and the residents of the valley appear to have already become despondent fearing that under the new arrangement it will not be possible to secure the necessary men to do the work.

In any event they do not expect that much work will be accomplished before Saturday.

Already complaint is heard from many persons of the new arrangement for handling the supplies and the manner of distribution is severely criticized.

Several deserving applicants were compelled to go hungry this morning until they had complied with several new rules of red tapeism.

New York's Relief Fund.

NEW YORK, June 13.—At a meeting of the Finance committee of the Relief Fund for the Conemaugh valley yesterday a resolution was adopted that in view of the large amount of money in the hands of the committee unappropriated, Gen. W. F. Sherman, chairman of the Executive committee, be invited to go to Harrisburg and confer with Governor Beaver as to the situation, not only at Johnstown, but in other parts of the State where the loss of life and property has been greatest and where the most aid is required. Money is still coming in rapidly.

The Relief Fund Commission.

HARRISBURG, June 13.—The following commission has been appointed by the Governor to distribute the funds contributed for the relief of the sufferers by the recent floods in the State: Governor Beaver, Edwin H. Fitler, Thomas Dolan, John F. Huber, Robert C. Ogden, Francis B. Reeves, of Philadelphia; James B. Scott, Reubea Miller, S. S. Marvin, of Pittburg; John Fulton, of Johnstown, and H. H. Cummin, of Williamsport.

May Bring Suits for Damages.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 13.—It is reported here that a number of citizens whose property was swept away by the flood have been in Pittsburg since Monday looking up the financial condition of the members of the South Fork Fishing Club with a view to bringing suits to recover for their property destroyed. While in Pittsburg they will also consult attorneys as to the best manner of procedure in case they decide to take legal steps.

Subscriptions for the Sufferers.

BOSTON, June 13.—Subscriptions to the relief fund aggregate as follows: Newport, R. I., $2,700; Lowell, Mass., $5,414; North Easton, Mass., $3,500; New Bedford, Mass., $4,500; Portland, Me., $3,100; Providence, R. I., $32,711; with Monday nights benefit performance yet to be accounted for.

Nearly Half a Million Received.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 13.—Additional subscriptions for the flood sufferers were received by the Governor to-day from all sections of the country. The total amount received by him to date is about $465,000.

A Cave-in at Wilkesbarre.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 13.—The roof of the Hollenback mine, operated by the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company, caved in yesterday with a terrible crash. The men and mules were gotten out safely and there was no loss of life. This disaster also affected the Hillman Vein mine operated by private individuals. Both mines are badly damaged, and it will take month to repair the Hollenback mine. There are big crevices in Madison street within three squares of the Court House, and much gas is escaping, and fears of an explosion are entertained.

W. L. AND A. L. FORCE, - PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

J. A. DEMAREST. - - MANAGING EDITOR.

THE PRESS is now in its third year with a subscription list that includes all the intelligent people of the City and Borough, and with the advertising patronage of all the progressive and successful merchants of Plainfield.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—The "Young Crescents" expect to come out in their new suits, Saturday.

—Two distinct and beautiful rainbows were seen in the heavens, about sunset, last evening.

—Among the professional cards in another column, will be noticed that of Dr. M. S. Simpson of West Fifth street.

—The "personal" column of the news, last night, contained seven items, every one of which was stolen from THE PRESS, and some of them were over a week old.

—A few of the low-priced leaders at Lederer's, include silk sun-shades, gauze vests, gloves, satin parasols. To-morrow's advertisement will contain a list of interest to the ladies.

—The ladies of Friendship Rebekah Degree Lodge, No. 4, I. O. O. F., will hold a strawberry and iced cream festival in the Dunlap Building, on West Front street, during Saturday afternoon and evening of this week.

—All Christians, whatever their views, should attend the meeting for Christian conference to be held at the meeting room, No. 6 East Front street, over the Dime Savings Institution, this evening at 7:45. All are cordially invited.

—The course of Unitarian sermons now being given in Plainfield in Mr. Shepherd's music rooms will be continued in the evening hereafter. Next Sunday evening Rev. H. Price Collier of Brooklyn will preach. The services during the Summer will begin at 8 P. M.

—The "Centrals" of this city defeated the Westfield colored nine, Tuesday, by a score of 11 to 7 at the end of the fourth innings—rain stopping the game at the beginning of the fifth. Captain Jack Carey pitched, and Gamey Frank Nelson caught, for the Centrals.

—The strawberry and iced cream festival to be held in Dunlap's building corner of Front and Grove streets, this evening, is in aid of the debt fund of Trinity Reformed church. The project is a worthy one, and should be liberally supported. The festival will continue throughout to-morrow afternoon and evening.

A Scheme of Far Western Young Women.

We deem it our duty to keep our friends, the young women of Plainfield, fully informed upon all the new schemes for threshing money out of the young men, and therefore we make mention of the fact that "Onion Parties" are fashionable in Nebraska.

Six girls stand in a row, while one bites a small piece out of an onion and a young man pays ten cents for a guess as to which one it was. If he guesses right he is privileged to kiss the other five, but if he doesn't he is only allowed to kiss the one with the onion-scented breath. And it is a pretty reckless or mean sort of a man who will not pay another 10 cents to be excused from kissing the girl who bit the onion.

Saturday's Team.

The Crescent Y. M. C. A's will play the Montclair nine, on the LaGrande avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon, at 3:30 As stated before in THE PRESS, George Cadmus is expected back from Cornell for the season, and he will be heartily welcomed in the catcher's box again.

The rest of Saturday's nine will be: Condon, pitcher; McMurray, first; Hervey Doane, second; Lee, third; Cornwell, short-stop; with McLaughlin, Demarest and Townley in the field.

Get Credit for Decent Manners.

Those persons who persist in wagging their chins upon any and all occasions are thus addressed by one of our exchanges: "There is a time to talk and a time to keep still, and if some people who attend public entertainments would learn to do their talking when performers are off the stage and keep quiet when they are on, they would add much to the pleasure of those interested and get credit for having decent manners."

THE SIZE OF THE NEWS' CHARITY.

A concert and literary entertainment is to be given in Reform Hall, Wednesday evening of next week, for the benefit of the Johnstown sufferers, under the auspices of Mizpah Lodge, United Order of Independent Odd Ladies.

Those in charge of the affair found it was impossible to hold it in Music Hall, unless it was made use of as an advertisement for the news, and they emphatically refused to join with that paper in any such scheme. Application was thereupon made elsewhere, and the free use of Reform Hall was granted at once.

Manager Marsh, of Music Hall, explained his position in this way: That the Directors had decided to give as their contribution the free use of Music Hall, opened and lighted, on some one evening, for a concert in aid of the Johnstown sufferers. That one evening had been secured by the news, and Mr. Marsh recommended the ladies to see if that paper would not waive the privilege in their favor.

But the news proved how little it cared for any sufferers and how entirely its scheme was for its own benefit, by refusing to let the ladies have the Hall unless they would let the news share in the credit of the affair. This they declined to do—as have all others who have been approached by the paper with its project of self glorification—and will hold their entertainment, as stated above, in Reform Hall, next Wednesday evening.

By the way, Music Hall does not shine forth with much credit in the transaction.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Asa Collier is is at Concord, Mass.

Mr. Herbert Peck started today for a few weeks' recreation in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

Among those who graduated from the Columbia Law School, last night, was Herbert Winthrop Peck with the degree of LL. B.

The Misses Smillie, formerly of this city, are again at Asbury Park for the season. Their cottage is "La Rena," on Sewall avenue.

Beginning on Monday next, and continuing until September 15, the hardware stores in this city will close at 7 P. M., Saturdays excepted.

Mr. Benj. Moore and son of Shipman, Ill., are visiting at the residence of Mr. Moore's nephew, Mr. Wm. Colthar of Duer street, North Plainfield.

The friends of Mr. Seth Silleck, formerly a resident on College place, this city, will regret to hear that he is confined in a hospital at Denver, Colorado, suffering with smallpox.

Miss Lilian Fritts, daughter of Dr. J. T. Fritts of Park aveune, will accompany Miss Julia E. Bulkley and party on their European tour. Miss Fritts will prolong her stay and travel extensively on the Continent.

The reception which is to be tendered to Mrs. Dr. Tomlinson by the Elizabeth W. C. T. U., in Temperance Hall, that city, will take place to-morrow afternoon and not in the evening, as previously announced.

Mr. John Morton, the ice dealer, received painful injuries about the face, by jumping from the rear of an ice wagon, yesterday morning. A board from a wooden culvert flew up and struck him in the face. To-day, however, he is able to go out.

Master "Jimmy" Arnold, son of Borough Clerk James K. Arnold, is perhaps the happiest boy in the borough. He is the owner of a handsome pony and cart, of which he is very proud, and his friends will doubtless be given an opportunity to test the speed of the animal.

At the residence of the bride, on Orange street, last evening, occurred the marriage of Miss Pauline Dencklau and Mr. Jacob Beckman, the latter of Fordham, N. Y. Rev. E. M. Rodman performed the ceremony. The bridesmaid was Miss Christine Dencklau, a sister of the bride, and Mr. Charles Beckman did service as best man.

All members of the Crescent Avenue Sunday school, are invited to a reception, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Newhall, No. 20 East Seventh street, on Saturday, June 15. The Primary Class, from 3 to 5 o'clock; the younger portion of Main school from 5 to 7, and older ones from 6 to 8 o'clock. A similar reception is given by Superintendent Newhall, every Summer, but last year it was postponed because of the death of Miss Gertrude Lathrop.

Theatricals at the Seminary.

All the Hall will seat, 240 tickets at one dollar and fifty cents each, have already been sold for the entertainment of this evening at Seminary Hall, that Mrs. George Wharton Edwards has arranged for the Johnstown sufferers. There will be theatricals in which Miss Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, Mr. Perkins and others will take part.

A programme of music in addition will include the following numbers:

Piano solo—Caprice.....Anton Rubinstein
Miss Ella Haines.
Bass solo—Summer Night....A. Goring Thomas
Mr. James Metcalf.
Violoncello Soli {a. Romance.....Goltermann
{b. Berceuse.....M. Hauser
Mr. Ernest Muldener, Jr.
Soprano solo.....Scotch Song
Mrs. Augustus C. Baldwin.
Piano solo—Prelude, D flat major.....Chopin
Miss Ella Haines

There will be other features making the affair an unusual one in many ways of merit, besides particularly successful financially. No tickets will be sold at the door.

SOLOMON LEVY MULCTED.

He Must Pay Rachel the Money He Has Borrowed, Already.

Mrs. Rachel Levy, the daughter of Mrs. Samuel Drier of this city, sued Solomon Levy, from whom she was divorced absolutely by a rabbi, and afterward by the Supreme Court, in the New York City Court Tuesday for $1,500, which he borrowed from her shortly after their marriage.

He gave her a worthless check when she demanded the money. She had him put in Ludlow Street Jail, where he is still confined. The case was tried before Judge Holme and a jury, and the plaintiff was given a verdict of $1,676.25.

How it is Viewed at Home.

The Somerville Messenger blames the defeat of the "West Ends," on their own umpire and their own errors. The paper says:

"It was a kicking game Saturday, though umpired by two men—Cadmus in the field and Bradley for the battery. The first kick began when Bradley said "Play ball, gentlemen," and lasted some five minutes. The first five innings were good and only one run—by the West Ends—was secured by either club. But two errors were made up to this point. In the sixth the home club made two errors and they let in three runs. No change in the score took place until the eighth inning, when the West End got in four runs—two of them on errors. The ninth, however, completed the complement of errors, the Crescents scoring four unearned runs. The Plainfield battery were mutes and the result was a surprise, but not mute. Anyone who heard the noise would say this. There was a large crowd present, and both crowd and players showed bad taste; the former in guying the umpire, trying to rattle the pitcher and kicking on decisions, and the latter by general insubordination and leaving of places. As to the umpiring, it must be confessed that it was not good; in fact, it was rank at times, and to the work of Cadmus in the ninth inning as well as the serious errors of the home club the defeat is due."

Do You Want to Camp Out?

The usual Conference of College Students will be held at Northfield under the direction of Mr. Moody, beginning June 30 and closing July 12. If any members of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., are desirous of making up a camping party for this conference, they are requested to make the fact known to the Secretary.

It is expected that a larger number of students will be in attendance at this session than on any previous occasion. It is expected that between fifty and sixty students from Princeton College alone will attend. A number of men from the Universities of England are also expected. No provision will be made for members of local Young Men's Christian Associations, except that places will be provided on which to pitch their tents, and board provided possibly for a limited number.

"Prohibition (?) Plainfield."

Intoxicating liquors are being sold in fifty-two places in the city of Plainfield, to-day, and the proportion of whiskey (good and bad) that is sold, is much greater than the amount of beer or other less intoxicating liquor.

The Chief of Police may know of the above fact, and be aware of the location of all the places, but he is powerless to prevent the sale. The court in justice requires the testimony of a certain number of witnesses who will swear under oath that they bought, drank and paid for intoxicating liquor on the premises. It is absolutely impossible for such testimony to be obtained except by the employment of detectives who are total strangers in Plainfield. But where will the money come from to pay such employees?

Dunellen News.

The ladies of the Dunellen M. E. church held their regular monthly sociable in the Sunday school room of the church, Tuesday evening. Iced cream, strawberries and cake were served. The attendance was large and the funds of the Ladies Aid will be greatly increased. A very pleasant time was had by all.

Mrs. A. D. Pope, the organist at the M. E. church, has resigned her position. This will greatly embarrass the choir as there is no available candidate for the position at present.

He Did Not Show Up.

Fred Randolph, a colored man from this city was arrested by Marshal Conrad in North Plainfield, a few days ago, for being one of the participants in the recent disgraceful scene on Somerset street. Mayor Cooley allowed him to go on his own recognizance, to appear on Tuesday of this week for a hearing. At the appointed time Randolph failed to materialize, and his presence in the Borough is now anxiously awaited.

Under Clothing for the Hospital Wanted.

There being a great demand in the Hospital for underclothing that has been partly worn, the Ladies Auxiliary Board desire that there should be a generous contribution. They have always met with willing responses in making an appeal, and they are confident that this will not pass unnoticed. Send direct to the Hospital or leave with Mrs. T. H. SUBURBAN SAUNTERINGS.

Chiefly in an Educational Direction. The Most Important Event in Scotch Plains' Annals—The Kind of Boys They Raise There.

As the Summer approaches with its usual rapid strides and as the signs of Spring are being left behind, Scotch Plains may take one look around to see how she stands, and what advances she has made during the year that has past. In country towns the beginning of Summer is really the dividing point of the year, rather than the first of January. This is the time when the population is pretty well fixed for the year, when the new families have arrived and the old ones gone, and when reasonably safe estimates can be made of the agricultural and horticultural prospects of the year.

Pausing in this way, and looking backward and forward, there is one event which rises above all others and stands out as one of the land-marks in the history of the village. The school house question is settled. I regard the meeting of Monday, June 3, as one of the most important events in the annals of our town.

For in the life of every community there are certain periods when two opposing forces meet together and the fight must be made to the bitter end, and on the issue of these irrepressible conflicts the very life of the place depends. Such was the occasion of the fight for good roads, and if anyone will take the trouble to make a mental comparison of the Scotch Plains of ten years ago, a sleepy country village and the butt of the jokers all along the road, with the lively little town of today, he will see what a very little public spirit will do.

Last Monday's meeting was attended by one hundred and fifty voters—probably the largest meeting of the kind ever held here. Everybody seemed terribly in earnest. Mr. Hall called the meeting to order at twelve minutes past eight, and George R. Nicholl was unanimously chosen chairman. Mr. Nicholl is a man of commanding presence, well up in the rules of order, and makes a first rate presiding officer. "Fellow citizens," he said, upon taking the chair, "I feel under very great obligations for the compliment you have paid me in asking me to preside over your deliberations to-night. If there be anything of which a citizen should be proud it is that he is called upon at a large meeting of his fellow citizens to preside at their deliberations. I ask from you a liberal indulgence for whatever errors I may commit." Of course Hr. Hall was chosen secretary, and he read the call of the meeting.

Young Dr. Coles had some resolutions to offer, and he prefaced them with a brief speech, which he read from manuscript. He was closely followed throughout and several times interrupted with applause. The Doctor's remarks were exceedingly well chosen; he said that since the last meeting people had had time for reflection, many errors had been dissipated, and the voters were prepared to act calmly and dispassionately. He stated that a delegation of three gentlemen, consisting of Mr. Shepard, Mr. Ackerman and himself, had secured the refusal of a desirable lot on Park avenue between the blacksmith shop and the Episcopal church, and that the owner would allow one thousand dollars for the present school house and lot, if given in part payment, the district to have the use of the same until the new building should be completed. As the Doctor finished speaking, the people saw him in his true light—an unselfish, public spirited citizen, and any bitter feelings that might have existed on account of old misunderstandings died forever in the whirlwind of applause that followed his words as he sat down.

The details of the meeting and the speeches that were made, it is not necessary to record; we all remember them; how the resolution was offered, "Resolved, That the comfort of the children and the best interests of the district demand the erection of a new school house," and the people cheered when it was passed and laughed at the one feeble "no;" how Dr. Westcott moved that an advisory committee of three citizens be appointed to act with the Trustees, and that such committee be appointed by the chair, and how that was also carried with the same applause and the same dissenting vote; how Mr. Stanberry and Mr. Robison and Mr. Hand indulged in a friendly sparring match of words, and how everything that was proposed was carried from beginning to end; all this would take up too much room, and besides that it will be a long time before these things are forgotten by the people who were there.

Well, the upshot of it all was that it was agreed by a vote of 101 to 48 as announced in THE PRESS of the next day, to raise eighteen thousand dollars for a school building, to be built of brick or stone, and to contain not less than five rooms. The details are specified in the resolutions, which may be seen on application to the District Clerk.

There were some funny things at the meeting. Mr. Myers wasn't at all satisfied with the way things were going, but he got a little mixed in expressing himself; he made a hurried calculation of the sum of eighty and one hundred and twenty and announced the result as one hundred. Prolonged laughter.

Mr. Stanberry thought that a thousand dollars and the old school property was a thundering big price to pay for the new lot.

Lawrence Collins was in a state of kick all the evening, and expressed himself more or less coherently. Finally the chairman appointed him teller to "to keep him quiet."

But Mr. Shepard was the hero of the evening. The original resolution called for seventeen thousand dollars, and Mr. Shepard thought that it was because they were afraid to ask for eighteen. "Fellow citizens," he cried, turning to the crowd, "are you willing to trust our board with eighteen thousand dollars?" The we are that greeted him was perfectly satisfactory. Now its a funny thing, and I don't think Mr. Shepard noticed it, but the call of the meeting only asked for sixteen thousand for the building; the eighteen thousand was to include the lot.

But when Mr. Stanberry said that the school house would cost twenty thousand dollars before they were through, and then when Mr. Shepard promised to make up the difference if there should be any, Oh then you should have heard the cheering and stamping and claping of hands. Mr. Robison stood right up and sang out, "That's the kind of boys we raise."

Honor to whom Honor is due. First to the Trustees whose unremitting toil made the new school house possible, and then to our townsmen whose unselfish endeavors have made it an assured fact. Dr. J. A. Coles and Augustus D. Shepard. "That's the kind of boys we raise."

VITAL STATISTICS OF THE NATION.

The Physicians Requested to Keep a Registry for the Government.

DEPT. OF THE INTERIOR,
CENSUS OFFICE.
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 1, 1889.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The publication in your valuable paper of the accompanying letter to the medical profession will aid the Census Office in one of its most important and difficult investigations. If you should think the matter of sufficient importance to notice editorially it will be appreciated, as it is necessary to obtain the co-operation of medical men in all parts of the country to insure a successful result. This is all volunteer work on the part of the physician, and any assistance you may feel inclined to give will materially help a most important branch of statistical inquiry.

It is equally important to the country that the returns in relation to farm products and live stock should be full and correct. The enumerator in the house to house visit he will make during the month of June, 1890, is constantly met with the fact that farmers keep no books and hence returns are not infrequently guess work. The census year began June 1 and ends May 31, 1890. If farmers throughout the country would note this fact and keep account of the products of their farms during the census year it would be of material aid in securing reliable returns for the Eleventh Census.

ROBERT P. PORTER,
Supt. of Census.

To the Medical Profession:

The various medical associations and the medical profession will be glad to learn that Dr. John S. Billings, U. S. A., has consented to take charge of the Report on the Mortality and Vital Statistics of the United States as returned by the Eleventh Census.

As the United States has no system of registration of vital statistics, such as is relied upon by other civilized nations for the purpose of ascertaining the actual movement of population, our census affords the only opportunity of obtaining near an approximate estimate of the birth and death rates of much the larger part of the country, which is entirely unprovided with any satisfactory system of State and municipal registration.

In view of this, the Census Office, during the month of May this year, issued to the medical profession throughout the country "Physician's Registers" for the purpose of obtaining more accurate returns of deaths than it is possible for the enumerators to make. It is earnestly hoped that physicians in every part of the country will co-operate with the Census Office in this important work. The record should be kept from June 1, 1889, to May 31, 1890. Nearly 26,000 of these registration books were filled up and returned to the office in 1880, and nearly all of them used for statistical purposes. It is hoped that double this number will be obtained for the Eleventh Census.

Physicians not receiving Registers can obtain them by sending their names and addresses to the Census Office, and, with the Register, an official envelope which requires no stamp will be provided for their return to Washington.

If all medical and surgical practitioners throughout the country will lend their aid, the mortality and vital statistics of the Eleventh Census will be more comprehensive and complete than they have ever been. Every physician should take a personal pride in having this report as full and accurate as it is possible to make it.

It is hereby promised that all information obtained through this source shall be held strictly confidential.

ROBERT P. PORTER,
Supt. of Census.

Taken to the Asylum.

Borough Marshal Pangborn on Saturday took Julia Cuff, a colored woman, residing on Somerset street, to the Insane Asylum at Trenton. The woman has been acting strangely of late, and it was considered best for her own safety and for the safety of others, to remove her to an asylum.

—The North Plainfield authorities are considering a plan to place cells in the rear of Warren Engine house, and establish a lockup there. The present lockup is unfit for human habitation.

Nolan Goes to Trenton.

Deputy Sheriff Codington, accompanied by County Clerk Schomp of Somerville, took Maurice Nolan to the State Prison at Trenton, a few days ago. He was removed from the Somerville Jail very quietly, and but few persons in the town were aware of the fact at the time.

On the way to prison Nolan repeated his story of what he saw on the morning of the murder. He gave some details, such as seeing one of the men wash his hands in the snow, and the like. That he had never told his counsel the story, he said, was because he did not wish to implicate the persons in the murder. Evidently the story is an afterthought gotten up as a forlorn hope. Nolan goes for eighteen years.

—The "Young Crescents" and the "Busy Bees" will play ball on the "new grounds," Saturday mo ning.

—The semi-annual meeting for the election of officers of the Young Men's Auxiliary, will be held this Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield; I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

THEIR FATAL PICNIC

Terrible Ending of a Sunday-School Excursion.

A SLAUGHTER OF INNOCENTS.

Seventy-Two Children Killed in a Collision on an Irish Railroad.

The Train Broken in Two and a Number of the Cars Dashed Down a Steep Grade at the Rate of Fifty Miles an Hour, Crashing Into Another Train—The Cars Were Fitted with Old and Worn-out Brakes.

DUBLIN, June 13.—The railroad accident near Armagh yesterday is without a parallel in the history of railroading in Ireland. The train carrying the Sunday-School excursion bound to the popular little seaside resort of Warren's Point, was made up of two sections and fully 1,200 children and their relatives and teachers were on board. This train, a short distance out of Armagh, was ascending a steep grade to a bank that rises to a height of fifty feet, when the engine of the rear section gave out and was unable to draw the heavy train. In some way which is not now clearly understood several of the rear cars became detached from the balance of the train, and started down the steep grade.

In a few seconds the cars were going down hill at a terrific rate of speed, with the brakes either utterly useless, or from negligence on the part of the guard, without proper attention. Had the the track on the level just below the grade been clear for any considerable distance, the detached cars might have lost their momentum and the terrible accident that followed been averted, but unfortunately the regular train from Armagh followed just behind the rear section of the excursion train and with the locomotive of this train the detached cars came into collision with terrific force wrecking the locomotive as well as the cars themselves.

HEARTRENDING SCENES.

The scenes at the wreck immediately after the accident were heartrending in the extreme. The rear section of the excursion train from which the ill-fated cars had become detached was stopped after proceeding but a short distance and the passengers as well as those of the forward section soon ran back to render what assistance they could to those of the little children in the wrecked cars, whose maimed and mangled bodies still showed symptoms of life.

The dead and the dying little ones were scattered in inextricable confusion among the jagged timbers and twisted iron work of the wreck, and the groans of the imprisoned sufferers mingled in an awful din with the shrieks of their more fortunate companions who stood by powerless to afford assistance.

People from the surrounding country flocked to the scene and set to work to remove the victims from the wreck. Physicians were summoned by telegraph from Belfast and other points and attended to the wants of the injured, while the dead were taken from the ruins as fast as possible and placed in rows upon the grass.

The engineer, fireman and guard of the rear section of the excursion train and the Traffic Manager's clerk were arrested charged with causing the accident and remanded without bail.

THE FEELING IN LONDON.

LONDON, June 13.—The absorbing topic of conversation in London yesterday was the terrible railway disaster in Ireland. At 11 o'clock last night, the dead numbered 72 with almost a certainty that others among the large number would die. This makes the disaster the greatest railway horror that has ever been known in the United Kingdom, with the possible exception of the memorable Tay bridge disaster by which 74 persons lost their lives.

The engineer of the regular train from Armagh saw the detached cars dashing down upon him in time to stop his engine, but notwithstanding this the force of the collision was terrible, as, at the moment they struck the locomotive, the wild coaches were flying at the rate of fifty miles an hour. A man who was riding on the highway close by saw the collision and without stopping to see more dashed away at once to Armagh and returned with a company of soldiers from the barracks there. These came provided with stretchers and being the first on the ground to render assistance, did good work in extricating the living and the dead from the wreck.

The manner in which the doomed coaches came to be detached from the train of which they formed a part seems at this hour to be unexplained. It is asserted that they were deliberately uncoupled by a train hand when it was found that the engine could not pull the entire train any further, and that this was done on a piece of road that was thought to be level. It is quite likely that the engineer, on finding his engine unable to drag the heavy train up the steep ground, backed to a more level portion of the track, and there the rear cars were uncoupled and left to stand on what was supposed to be level ground. There must have been grade enough, however to set the cars in motion slowly at first, and when, with every foot of progress, the grade became stronger, a high rate of speed was soon developed.

However this may be, there is no doubt that the disaster is primarily due to obsolete appliances, the brakes being the old fashioned hand brakes with worn links.

Mrs. Maybrick's Preliminary Trial.

LIVERPOOL, June 13.—Mrs. Maybrick, who is charged by the verdict of the Coroner's jury with having poisoned her husband, was arraigned for a hearing in the Police Court this morning. Among the several witnesses examined was Doctor Hopper, who testified that Mr. Maybrick had been addicted to the use of patent medicines and that he had told the witness he was in the habit of taking arsenic as a nerve tonic. Most of the testimony was similar to that given at the inquest.

Stanley at Victoria Nyanza.

ZANZIBAR, June 13.—A letter dated December 2 at Ururi on the southeastern shore of Lake Victoria Nyanza reports the arrival there of Stanley with his party including many invalids. He had lost many of his men through sickness and famine. He had rejoined Emin Pasha and had left him again at Unyara on the northeastern shore of the lake.

The City of New York Couldn't Sail.

LIVERPOOL, June 13.—The crew of the steamer City of New York struck work and went ashore yesterday just as the vessel was about sailing for New York. Their action was the result of an order from the Seamen's union. The City of New York is anchored in the Mersey, being unable to proceed.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

Connecticut's Lower House Adopts the Substitute Bill.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 13.—The House has passed the substitute Grade Crossing bill reported by the Conference committee, after amending it by striking out the clause giving the Railroad commissioners power to close a crossing and substitute another, and also by providing that every road must change at least one crossing a year for every sixty miles of its track. The expense of the change is placed on the railroad where it petitions for a change. Where the town authorities are the petitioners and the highway existed before the road, one quarter of the expense must be paid by said town authorities. Where the highway has been constructed since the railroad was built the commissioners may order the municipality to pay not to exceed one-half the cost.

A vetoed liquor bill being before the Senate yesterday, the Lieutenant-Governor ruled that any vetoed measure must be either passed or rejected, not being amendable. This ruling was sustained by the Senate. The interest in this decision lies in the fact that the vetoed Secret Ballot bill has been amended by the House and passed by that body in its amended form. Now the amended bill cannot come before the Senate, but the original bill must be either passed or killed. Many think the bill killed by the complication.

Independence Day at Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK, Conn., June 13.—The programme for the Fourth of July celebration at Roseland Park is just announced and includes the address of welcome by Charles A. Russell, member of Congress, who will introduce Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley as the presiding officer. Other addresses will be made by Associate Justice Miller of the Supreme court, Senator Wm. B. Allison of Iowa, Senator Hawley of Connecticut, Senator Hiscock of New York, Congressman McKinley of Ohio, and President Gates of Rutgers college. A poem will be read by Will Carleton. President and Mrs. Harrison are expected to be present. Secretaries Tracy and Noble have also been invited.

They Won't Accept the New Scale.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 13.—The employes of Carnegie's Homestead mills have positively declined to accept or be governed by the scale of wages submitted by the firm, and have so reported to the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers' convention now in session here. The Amalgamated convention has resolved unanimously to sustain the mill men. The employes have also resolved that should the firm attempt to discharge the day laborers and fill their places with new men in order that they may learn something of the duties of the skilled workmen prior to July 1, the time the Carnegie scale is to go into effect they will stop work immediately.

Collegiate Oarsmen at New London

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 13.—Both crews of the University of Pennsylvania have arrived here and have gone to their quarters on the side of the river nearly opposite Yale's quarters. Both Harvard crews will arrive to-morrow, Yale and Cornell University crews Saturday and Yale Freshmen on Wednesday next. The three mile race between Columbia, Cornell and Pennsylvania University crews occurs on the 27th. The dates of the two mile Pennsylvania-Yale-Columbia and Harvard Freshman race and of the four mile Yale-Pennsylvania race are not yet fixed upon.

New Hampshire's Senator.

CONCORD, N. H., June 13.—The Republican Senatorial caucus will be held to-night. The contest lies between Hon. William E. Chandler and Hon. J. H. Gallinger. Chandler's friends claim that he will be nominated on the first ballot by from 50 to 75 majority. It is reported that a few of the Republicans including General Gilman Marston of Exeter, who was ad interim Senator, will decline to go into the caucus, but their absence will not indicate any bolt. The Democrats who will nominate Hon. Harry Bingham will also hold their caucus to-night.

Smith Is Satisfied Where He Is.

BOSTON, June 13.—Superintendent of Police Small has received a telegram from Chief Crowley of the San Francisco police saying he had been obliged to release Rev. Charles H. Smith, the missing clergyman of Dorchester. There were no charges on which he could be longer held. Mr. Smith, who has been fully identified by college friends, appears to be all right mentally and is working on one of the San Francisco newspapers. He expresses no desire to communicate with his wife and other relatives, nor with the church people.

Tried to Kill His Keeper.

AUBURN, N. Y., June 13.—John Thomas, alias John Welch, a convict serving ten years for assault, attempted to kill keeper James Hanlon at the prison yesterday. Thomas had been locked in a dungeon for bad conduct and when Hanlon unlocked the cell the convict attacked him with the iron leg of his bedstead which he had broken off. A fellow officer came to Hanlon's assistance and saved his life. Hanlon was badly hurt about the head but will recover. Welch is incorrigible and has frequently made threats to kill his keepers.

Loyal Women of America.

BOSTON, June 13.—The first annual meeting of the National Association of the Loyal Women of American Liberty was held yesterday with the president, Mrs. M. L. Sheppard, in the chair. The morning exercises included a consecration meeting, an address of welcome, an address of the president in which she called attention to the school question and annual reports by the secretary and from the branches in New York, New Jersey and New Hampshire these reports showing a flourishing condition.

Entirely Without Foundation.

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 13.—The despatch printed in a number of papers to the effect that there is excitement here over the alleged dangerous condition of the dam at Loughberry lake is entirely without foundation. The water in the lake is more than fifteen feet below the top of the dam and even if the dam should break the water would have to run up hill to reach Saratoga.

He Died from His Injuries.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., June 13.—Conductor Van Benschaten of this village, while coupling cars at Goshen, on the Erie road, had both legs cut off above the knees. He was brought to Port Jervis and taken to the hospital where he died at 2 p. m. He was about 30 years old and leaves a wife and two children.

Good-Bye to Sing Sing.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 13.—Among the bills signed by Governor Hill is that providing for the removal of the State Prison from Sing Sing, which directs the Governor to appoint a commission of five persons to select a suitable site.

A Cottage For the Summer.

Howard Fielding Hires One At Applejackhurst-by-the-Sea.

He Afterwards Burglarizes It By Mistake and Meets "Scaley, the Kid"—Points on Economical Shopping.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

A certain man owned a piece of land in New Jersey, which was entirely unfit for any human being to live on. So he determined to make a summer resort of it. He laid out several streets and hired a man to go around every morning and bail them out for the place had formerly been a swamp. He also laid out some drains to remedy this defect, but he subsequently lost them, because it was impossible to distinguish them from the street when the weather was at all damp. It is upon this that I base the suspicion that the house I hired in Applejackhurst-by-the-Sea was built by mistake on the drain instead of the sea. It was one of a line of cottages that all looked alike, and were in the Queen Anne style or some other fashion coming down from an uncomfortable time, when people knew next to nothing about building houses.

When the man who owned Applejackhurst-by-the-sea had got the place fairly started, so that he had to stay down there several days in succession to look after things and enjoy the fine scenery, he died of malaria, and his heirs formed a company to boom the locality on account of the salubriousness of the climate. My wife and I were victims of the boom. Three weeks ago yesterday, I stood in front of one of the cottages—I couldn't say which one, because one was as badly out of shape as another—and concluded the contract with the agent.

"You swear upon your sacred honor that there is no malaria here?" said I.

"I do," he replied.

"Then it's a bargain," said I. "Shake."

"Confound your skin, what made you remind me of it?" he grasped. Then he leaned up against the gate post and shook.

"I got this ague down in Texas," he explained when he revived. "But it's rapidly yielding to the beautiful climate of Applejackhurst-by-the-Sea."

I told him that I thought he would shake it off if he kept on just as he was going, and he smiled gaily at the prospect.

When I opened my eyes upon the dismal realities of life, after the first night I spent in Applejackhurst-by-the-sea, I heard my wife calling: "Come, Howdy, we must have an early breakfast. I'm going into town shopping." I asked Maude in that pleasant tone of voice which I usually employ in discussions of this sort, before I have waked up sufficiently to get a grip on my temper, why the dickens she hadn't done her shopping the day before, when she was in New York.

"That's got nothing to do with it," said Maude. "You know we came out here because the round trip tickets are twenty cents cheaper when you want to go to New York than they would have been if we had gone to Redbank, as we thought of doing, so that every time I go in shopping from here, I save twenty cents, and every day I don't go, I lose twenty cents, and we're not rich enough to afford to waste money." I have been my wife's husband long enough not to attempt to argue with her when she gets into the higher mathematics of domestic economy. But I did venture to ask her if there was anything she wanted to buy in New York.

"Why of cource there is," said Maude. "I want to buy some napkins. We need half a dozen and I saw them advertised in a new York paper for a dollar and a half. At the store down here, the same goods will cost $1.60, and I don't propose to let anybody cheat me. It's too much to pay for napkins anyway."

"Now, Maudie," said I coaxingly. "You're not going way into New York to save five cents on a half dozen napkins?" I said no more, because I saw that peculiar gleam in Maude's eye which told me that she would soon either cry or begin to break the furniture. We went into New York shopping.

Maude took me to one of those big stores where they sell everything from a toothpick to a Saratoga trunk. She appeared to want them all. She looked at a few napkins, but near them there happened to be a counter covered with dress goods. It was a "bargain counter," too. Maude couldn't stand the mental pressure. She pawed over all the dress goods, and finally bought a big roll of something she didn't want, because it was cheap. I had to pay for it, and I also had to carry it, because Applejack-hurst-by-the-Sea was outside delivery limits. Then we moved on to another counter and bought something else. I don't know what it was, but I paid for it. We went clear around the store in that way. My load grew heavier every minute. I had to hold it with both arms, and it had gradually crept up over my vest till the pile of bundles began to obscure my vision.

The last thing I remember to have seen was a blonde young saleslady who piled a big package on my arms that reached a couple of inches above the top of my head.

"Maude," said I, "let us go. Do you intend to start a store in Applejackhurst-by-the-Sea?"

But she had found something else to buy. It was a smoking jacket for her pug dog. He was supposed to wear it during the time when the head of the family smoked his after dinner cigar. It was the latest thing in society, and New York dogs of good family were getting measured for them every day.

"Oh, Howdy, we must have one of these for Claude," said Maude. "How much money have you got left?"

"Maude," said I, "if suits of clothes were ten cents apiece, I couldn't buy the arm-hole of a second-hand vest. Let's go back to Applejackhurst-by-the-Sea."

She led me to the ferry and I arrived just in time to get my legs on different sides of the chain at the stern as the genial and intelligent deck-hand strung it up tight. Of course I couldn't see it over the armful of bundles, and so I fell over it, and buried a bootblack six feet deep. I tumbled over two dogs, a Jersey City man and several others of the lower animals on the other side of the river, so that we missed our train and waited two hours for another.

By the time we reached Applejackhurst-by-the-Sea it was dark. The station agent was just putting out the lights at the depot and when he had done so the whole town was buried in a gloom as deep as the mud in its thoroughfares. We plodded up one of them, but by the time we had gone a hundred yards, I began to have serious doubts whether it was the right one. Maude was sure that it wasn't. She was never mistaken about localities. When I got where I thought our house ought to be I stopped before a front gate and took an observation. The house inside was dark. It looked just like any other house in sight because they'd all been built by contract from a single model. We expected to find our house dark, anyway, because we had let the servant go until to-morrow and there was nobody in.

"Anyway," said I, "we can tell by the key. If that fits we are all right."

Maude felt in her pocket, first confidently, then anxiously and then hysterically.

"Maude," said I, endeavoring not to swear, "if this was Chicago I'd apply for a divorce and get it, too."

She began to cry.

"You ugly, horrid thing, she said, "I wish it was Chicago."

Then a bright thought struck her. I might climb in one of the back windows and see if I could find the key. If I found it, the house was ours; if I got filled with rock salt and duck shot it was somebody else's. There was a chance, and I took it.

AN UNPLEASANT MISTAKE.

I went around through the grass plot and pried open the basement window. Then I got inside and Maude passed me the bundles, because it had begun to rain and she didn't want them to get wet. The inside of the house was just like ours, but I knew it would be, especially in the dark. I stumbled upstairs with the bundles in my arms. Then my confidence weakened. There was an odor of clay pipe in the air. I never smoke a pipe. I began to feel quite sure that I should get the duck shot. Footsteps approached stealthily through the hall. Then a big tough appeared in the doorway with a lamp in one hand and a club in the other.

I fell on my knees, and the bundles covered the floor.

"My dear, kind sir," said I, "this is the most accidental thing that ever happened to me since I was born. I—I never intended to break into your house.

"Break into my house?"

"Yes; and I'll go right away this minute, and call off my wife; you ought to spare my life for that, and I'll—"

"Well, I dunno about yez," said he, "Me opinion is that yez bad. Yez just go into this closet, do ye mind, till I call the perlice."

I went into the closet very gladly, because I knew that there was another door on the other side of it. I went through this door without losing any time and jumped out of the window. I lit very near Maude, but she escaped.

"Run, run," I whispered, "it's the wrong house."

We fell over a lawn mower and three croquet hoops, but eventually made our escape. We wandered the streets till morning and Maude knew every minute that we should be arrested. At 6 a. m. we were in front of one of the cottages as the milkman was making his rounds. He rang the bell several times but nobody answered. Then I heard him say: "I wonder where them new people the Fieldings is that they don't wake up."

"Maude," I cried, "we're saved. This is our house."

And it was. We walked up the steps and Maude pulled out the key and unlocked the door. She'd had the thing in her pocket all along.

Several days passed, but, to our surprise, we heard nothing of the burglary that I had unintentionally committed. I came to the conclusion that the man in whose house I had dropped the bundles had decided that it was a good chance to get some napkins and dress goods for nothing, and was keeping his mouth shut. I was willing to do it if he would. I accepted that explanation till I got the following note:

MR. FIELDING.

Dear Sir: We have met before. You are the man that I caught burglarizing, but it's all right. Don't say anything more about it. You would never do well in my line of business. You get scared too quick. I'm obliged for the swag, but I send this piece of red silk back, because my girls got hair that isn't exactly that shade, though it's too near to look right. If you'll get it exchanged no questions will be asked, and I give you a pointer for nothing. When you burglarize your own house again, don't be bluffed out too easy by another gent what's there on the same errand. I am yours to command,

SCADSY THE KID.

So I had been in my own house after all. I did not tell this to Maude. It would have made me a hopeless minority in the family.

HOWARD FIELDING.

NOTES OF THE FLOOD.

The Johnstown fund in Providence, R. I., now amounts to $94,055.54.

Word was received last evening that contractor William Flinn, who is still in Johnstown had been taken suddenly and seriously ill.

Competent authorities compute the destruction in the Juniata Valley at $7,000,000, fully half of which is on the Pennsylvania road.

The work of paying the workmen was completed at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. About $110,000 was distributed among them. Nearly all of the men were provided with transportation to Pittsburg.

After to-day the railroads leading to Johnstown will be relieved on the embargo placed upon them by the General Relief committee and people can come and go at pleasure without first securing the special order and a handful of passes that have been necessary.

Contributions to the Relief fund continue to come in with encouraging regularity, but the amounts are growing smaller. Fear is expressed that the action of the Governor in undertaking to take entire charge of the distribution of the fund will tend to interfere with subscriptions. Up to last night the amount received by the treasurer was $505,000.

Rev. William N. Scholl Dead.

IS YOUR BAKING POWDER PURE?

Do its Manufacturers Publish all the Ingredients Used?

IS IT FREE FROM AMMONIA?

As is well known, ammonia is unhealthful in food, and dries up the bread material.

Protection to consumers of food compounds lies in their ability to choose those made from healthful substances. Unless manufacturers publish just what their baking powder is made of, do not use their goods, but buy instead

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER.

This powder is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, and strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, with a little wheat flour to preserve it. This is attested by the official analyses of Government and State chemists, and physicians, and chemists of Boards of Health throughout the country.

STILL HARD AT WORK

The Efforts to Destroy the Ruins of Johnstown.

THE BIG RAFT AGAIN ON FIRE.

If It Doesn't Burn up This Time, Coal Oil Will Strengthen the Flames.

General Hasting's Good Work in the Conemaugh Valley—Not as Many Laborers Available as Are Desired—A Gang of Italians Refuse to Work and Are Driven from Camp at the Point of the Bayonet.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 14.—It is now the intention of General Hastings to solve the raft problem with petroleum and the torch. Yesterday for the third time the drift was fired and is burning fiercely, but if it is not destroyed fifty barrels of coal oil will be emptied on it and the whole mass will go up in a bonfire.

The citizens of Cambria passed resolutions last night asking General Hastings to furnish them lumber and nails to enable to put up temporary houses, there being only 400 houses to shelter 1,500 people now homeless.

The new contractors in charge of the State's work in clearing out the flood debris from Johnstown and vicinity did not have all the men they needed yesterday, but the number was largely increased before nightfall and some very effective work was performed.

A regular morgue corps of six men followed the workers in each district and as fast as bodies were uncovered, removed them to the nearest dead house, where they were quickly prepared for burial.

General Hastings was very much gratified last evening, with the reports received from his engineer corps of the work done during the day. Colonel Douglass, engineer in chief, said that he expected to have a channel thirty feet in width cut through the big raft by to-morrow evening.

Dynamite was used very extensively during the day to loosen up the big pile of drift.

Four steam fire engines from Philadelphia are expected to arrive to-night. The engines are needed to check any spread of fire from the burning of the debris.

By 10 o'clock this morning the town was swarming with laboring men of all types and nationalities but the conditions of "$1.50 per day and pay your own rations," under which they were to be employed, did not appear to be much of an inducement, and as a result only 100 men were engaged today in clearing away the debris.

This gang was engaged in clearing away and burning rubbish in Kenaville.

Not a solitary man was at work on the mats of ruin and putrifying flesh above the stone bridge, the stench from which is fast becoming unbearable.

The first conflict among the workmen occurred at 6 o'clock this morning when an attempt was made to dethrone the foreman of the West Alexander force.

The men refused to continue work under any other than their own foreman.

The contractor would not concede a point and the laborers returned to their tents where they quartered saying that they would return home before they would work under a strange foreman.

A gang of 200 Italians was hired to take the places of the strikers.

The laborers did not take kindly to the Italians and intimidated them at every opportunity. No open conflict occurred, however, until the Italians were at breakfast.

One of the American laborers made an insulting remark to one of the "Dagos" and the latter answered in the same manner. Hot words followed, resulting in the raid on the Italians, who were thrown bodily out of their tents.

The Italians reported the matter to Contractor McKnight, who in turn reported to Gen. Hastings.

The General expressed his determination to suppress such outbreaks at all hazards.

The assurance that all men would be thoroughly protect from violence, however, did not allay the fear of the Italians, and the majority of them returned to their tents.

Bystanders say that the conduct of Americans to the Italian laborers was outrageous.

Contractor McKnight told the Italians to prepare to go to work to-morrow and he would guarantee that they would not be molested.

During the morning a large company of laborers from Greensburg refused to go to work for $1.50 per day, claiming that they had been promised fifty cents per day extra.

On hearing this Gen. Hastings ordered a company of militia to the camp of the strikers, who again refused to go to work, whereupon the soldiers were ordered to charge upon them, running them out of the camp at the point of the bayonet.

The day was very warm and the fumes and odors from decaying flesh is becoming terrible.

This morning two small stores were opened and were soon thronged with customers.

NOTES OF THE FLOOD.

One thousand Italians are en route from New York to Johnstown to work on the wreck.

Two more bodies were recovered this afternoon and taken to the Morgue. They are not yet identified.

Drummers representing all branches of business are at Johnstown in droves making arrangements to get their former customers started in business again.

Edward Swineford of St. Louis, Mo., who has been at Johnstown searching for the bodies of his wife and mother who were lost on the express train, has been sent home a raving maniac.

The benefit in aid of the Johnstown sufferers at the Metropolitan Opera house, New York, yesterday afternoon realized $3,126.50. The benefit at the Casino realized $557. At the Mayor's office $13,072 was received during the day.

MR. BAYARD'S WEDDING.

The Ex-Secretary's Nuptials Postponed Till the Fall.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Ex-Secretary Bayard has been here for several days, and his coming revived the rumor that his marriage to Miss Clymer was to have taken place yesterday at St. John's church. It has, however, been known among their friends for several weeks that their wedding would not be solemnized until the early fall. Mr. Bayard began upon his return to Wilmington some extensive alterations upon his residence, adding a library and several rooms for his daughters, which they will have furnished in keeping with their own taste. Immediately after his engagement was announced Mr. Bayard thought there was nothing to postpone his happiness a single day, but the social importance of the wedding, of which he had thought so little, was uppermost in the thoughts of his large circle of friends, and he found it simply impossible for an ex-Secretary of State to get married in a simple and unostentatious style. His marriage in the early fall will brilliantly open the wedding season, which always precedes the official gayeties.

Mrs. and Miss Clymer will make a visit next month to the Misses Bayard, in Wilmington, before starting on their summer travels. The young ladies and their future stepmother have always been warm friends and frequent visitors at each others' homes. Next winter they will spend much of the gay season here, the guests of Mrs. Senator Hearst, at her new home on New Hampshire avenue.

Appointments by the President.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The President late yesterday afternoon made the following appointments:

Thomas F. Penman, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Twelfth District of Pennsylvania.

Guilford Parker Bray, Collector of Customs for the District of Salem and Beverly, Massachusetts.

Donald McLean, of New York, Appraiser for the Port of New York.

To Appraise Naval Vessels.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.—The Naval Inspection Board, of which Rear Admiral Jewitt is President, has been ordered to convene at Newport, R. I., on the 18th instant, to appraise the United States vessels there. The board will also go to Boston and Portsmouth on similar business. This duty is in pursuance of an order issued from the Navy Department directing that the value of all Naval property shall be ascertained.

Coal Miners' Troubles.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 14.—A committee of coal operators from Clay County visited Governor Hovey yesterday to protest against any act on the part of the Executive indicative of sympathy with the strikers. They declare that the scale offered the miners is the highest possible for them to pay, and that if they met the miners demands the mines would be operated at a loss. A committee of the miners called on the Governor to-day. The Governor will not say what he will do in the matter.

Two Desperadoes Captured.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 14.—Robert Barry, alias "Tramp," and Peter Murray, two notorious toughs, were captured at Green Brook, near here, after a fierce fight. Barry, who was terribly clubbed, has eluded the authorities for nearly a year. Both men were leaders of a gang that for six months past has terrorized the lower wards of the city, where they robbed, pillaged and beat people, escaping police pursuit by boarding coal trains.

Must Have a Physician.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 14.—The Asylum for the Insane at Blackwood, Camden county, is without medical attendance. The Board of Freeholders yesterday passed a rule that the superintendent should be a physician in charge and then immediately afterward elected unanimously Charles F. Curry, a business man, as superintendent, making no provision for medical attendance. The asylum has 110 inmates, some of whom are private.

Mrs. Lewis Wants Her Husband.

NEWARK, N. J., June 14.—Jacques Lewis, who owns a saloon at No. 102 Market street has been missing for some time, and his wife has offered $50 to anyone who will take her to her husband. Louis left his home four months ago and for some weeks was supposed to be in St. Louis. The police authorities in St. Louis have been notified to look out for Lewis, but have failed to find him.

A Tank of Benzine Explodes.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 14.—A large tank of benzine at the Bear Creek refinery, Coleman Station, Allegheny Valley railway, caught fire from some unknown cause and exploded yesterday. Charles A. Jack was instantly killed. Superintendent John Kirpatrick was fatally burned; Mike Pearsall, Ralph Simon and Charles Dunn were also terribly burned but will probably recover.

Death His Punishment.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., June 14.—Paul Keys (colored) has been convicted by a jury of an assault on the six-year-old daughter of Arthur Ballard. The jury fixed death as his punishment. Keys was sentenced to be hanged September 6 next, by Judge Wallace.

To Raise Money in the Churches.

BOSTON, June 14.—A circular has been sent to all the Catholic Churches in this Archdiocese conveying the suggestion of Archbishop Williams, that a collection for the Pennsylvania flood sufferers be taken up on Sunday next or the Sunday following.

Statesmen Off For a Fish.

BOSTON, June 14.—A Rutland, Vt., despatch says that Senator F. Edmunds and General William Wells left yesterday for a month's fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the Senator is to be joined by Senator Matt Quay and a party of gentlemen from Pennsylvania.

Killed by a Cave-in.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 14.—Joseph Laboshire, aged 25 years, was killed this morning by the caving in of a sand bank at Cartersville. Several men who were working with him were warned in time to escape death.

SIFTING THE FACTS

The Search for Dr. Cronin's Murderers.

GRAND JURY HARD AT WORK.

No Indictments Will Be Found, However, Till Next Week.

Alexander Sullivan Taking Things Very Quietly in His Cell—Governor Hill Refuses to Extradite Moroney and McDonald—The Names of the Men Who Tried and Sentenced Dr. Cronin for Treason to the Clan-na-Gael.

CHICAGO, June 14.—The Grand Jury in the Cronin case yesterday heard the testimony of a large number of witnesses, all of whom gave evidence before the Coroner's jury. It is not thought probable that the body will be ready to consider indictments before the middle of next week.

Alexander Sullivan remained quietly in his cell all day refusing to see visitors. He will be taken to the court to-day when Judge Tuley will render his decision on the question of admitting him to bail.

Luke Dillon left for Philadelphia last night on the ground that his business is suffering and that he must go home.

The State's Attorney is not at all pleased with the step and is said to have told Dillon so in forcible language. He considers that he should remain here and give the authorities all the assistance in his power.

None of the witnesses before the Grand Jury were shown the picture of the man Moroney under arrest in New York, and it is said that no evidence tending to implicate him has yet been offered.

Chief Hubbard received a despatch from Logansport, Ind., yesterday afternoon that a man answering to the description of Frank Williams, one of the men that rented the cottage had been arrested by officers who have been hunting him for some days. Witnesses left here to identify him.

Governor Hill Wants Proof.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 14.—A requisition was presented to Governor Hill yesterday from Governor Fifer of Illinois, for the surrender of John J. Moroney and Charles McDonald, charged with the murder of Dr. Cronin. The Governor denied the application without prejudice, to a renewal of the same, simply upon the grounds: 1—That the application was not accompanied by an indictment; 2—That no proof whatever was presented showing that the accused are guilty of the crime charged against them as required by the laws of this and all other states. The application was based solely upon an affidavit made upon "information and belief."

They Sentenced Dr. Cronin.

LONDON, June 14.—It has been discovered here that the members of the Clan-na-Gael committee who signed the majority report finding Dr. Cronin guilty of treason to the organization and sentencing him to be "removed" were these: James J. Rogers, Brooklyn, N. Y.; P. A. O'Boyle, Pittston, Pa.; Christopher F. Byrnes, Saxonville, Mass.; John D. McMahone, Rome, N. Y.

Senator Chandler Renominated.

CONCORD, N. H., June 14.—In the Republican caucus held last night to nominate a United States Senator there were 187 votes. Of these William E. Chandler received 125, Jacob H. Gallinger 60, and Gilman Marston 2. Mr. Chandler was declared the nominee. Before the balloting Mr. Sulloway, of Manchester, stated that he had been told that Mr. Chandler had offered $550 for one vote and $1,200 for two votes. Senator Corning, of Concord, said he was authorized by Chandler to deny the charges and say that he had never directly or indirectly offered or instructed any one to offer money or other consideration for votes. These remarks created great excitement. In the Democratic caucus Harry Bingham, of Littleton, was nominated.

New Jersey's Ticket-of-Leave Law.

TRENTON, N. J., June 14.—Attorney-General Stockton in accordance with a request of the Board of Inspectors of the State prison has rendered an opinion on the constitutionality of the "Martin parole," or ticket-of-leave law passed last winter, under which it has been found that two hundred prisoners convicted of high crimes can be released on proving a citizenship of three years in the State. The Attorney-General declares the law unconstitutional on the ground that judgment having been passed on these prisioners it is beyond the power of the Legislature to give authority to the head keeper and inspectors to interfere with the sentence, the Court of Pardons alone having jurisdiction.

Mrs. Harrison at Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., June 14.—Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. McKee, "Baby" McKee, Dr. Scott, Mrs. Harrison's father; and the two Harrison children, chaperoned by Mr. George H. Brown, brother of Mrs. Wanamaker, arrived in a special car on the 6 o'clock train last evening and were immediately taken to the cottage of Mr. Wanamaker at Cape May Point, where they will remain for two weeks. The cottage was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Not Too Old to Sin.

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 14.—Alexander C. Lawton, late postmaster at Greenfield Centre, whose term expired in April, was arrested this morning and brought to this village charged by Postoffice Inspector Riley with robbing the mails during his possession of the office. Lawton is 70 years old. During his incumbency the postoffice at Greenfield Centre was burned under suspicious circumstances and many valuable letters failed of delivery.

Made Sick by Ice Cream.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 14.—A wedding party at Mr. Garretson's residence, in Millstone were all taken sick yesterday after eating ice cream. No deaths have occurred.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—"I am an old base ball player" is the latest story told by tramps in search of a nickel for a drink.

—Well informed people say that the 17-year locusts appeared here in 1860 and again in 1877, and are therefore not due until 1894.

—Prognosticators of the weather say that when Summer begins June 21, it will continue to be warm to its conclusion, September 23.

—The New Jersey Editorial Association will occupy the week beginning June 24 in visiting Watkins' Glen, Mauch Chunk and Niagara Falls.

—The late production of the "Social Glass" at Bound Brook, by the Francis-Eder Dramatic Company of this city, was not a success financially.

—Words of sympathy do not amount to much in the face of the great Johnstown disaster. The question is, how much is your sympathy worth in cash?

—The second annual excursion of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of this city, will take place on Thursday of next week. The destination will be Lake Hopatcong.

—A meeting of all the wheelmen in Somerset county will be held at the Court House yard on Wednesday, June 19, at 7 P. M. A cordial invitation is extended to all cyclers.

—It is with pleasure that we note the improvements in the City Park. One load of dirt has been dumped in the park this Spring, but even that has not been spread around.

—An interesting account of the reception tendered to the Public School graduates, at Dunellen, last evening, together with other Dunellen notes, will appear in THE PRESS to-morrow.

—In the Johnstown disaster the Odd Fellows lost 33 members, 34 wives and 109 children; 300 members lost their household goods, and 225 owned houses and stores which were lost.

—Chief Doane of the Fire Department, has issued orders prohibiting the sale of fireworks on the sidewalk on July Fourth. Several fires occurred a year ago, by the premature discharge of fireworks on the sidewalk.

—Frank Class of Pine Brook, and Capt. Jones of Jersey City, offer to shoot a team match against any two pigeon shots in the State, John L. Brewer and partner preferred, at 100 birds each man, for $100 or $200 a side.

—The many places of attraction diminished the attendance at the regular Reform Hall meeting, last evening, but those present were stirred by burning words from Mr. N. W. Pike whose lesson was drawn from the late Conemaugh disaster.

—The members of the Columbia Social Club of this city held a reception at Maier's Hotel, Dunellen, last evening. About twenty-five young couples were present and enjoyed an evening of rare pleasure. Prof. O'Reilly furnished the music for dancing.

—The regular meeting of the Park Avenue Social Club, will be held at their rooms on East Front street, opposite Park avenue, on Monday evening, at 8:30 o'clock. The President earnestly requests all the members to be present, as business of great importance is to be transacted.

—Saturday afternoon an exciting contest at base ball will be indulged in between the young men connected with the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church and the Hayseeds of North Plainfield. As both sides are determined to win, a good game will be looked for. Game called at 3 P. M., Blatz's grounds.

St Mary's Church.

A collection will be taken up in the above-named church, on Sunday next, for the Johnstown sufferers. The names of those who contribute, together with the amount, will appear in Monday's PRESS.

FETE OF THE SEVENTH DAY BAPTISTS.

A Lawn Party at Which the Senses Were all Gratified and Financial Success Also Resulted.

Never a record is made of an entertainment by the people of the Seventh Day Baptist Society of this city, but what credit must be given for its novelty and originality in many ways and means. They are the inventors or discoverers of most of the best features that are adopted by other churches and Sunday schools as the better part of subsequent entertainments.

Yesterday's Fete on the lawn of Mr. George H. Babcock's home, was no exception in this particular. Its idea was original—the arranging of the booths to represent the senses—and the scheme was carried out in many novel ways. The willing and earnest hands, too, that always join together in bringing about the programme arranged, uniformly assures successful accomplishment among the Seventh Day Baptists.

The spacious grounds were lighted with electricity especially for the occasion, and illuminated at its boundaries with the most gorgeous lanterns manufactured in Japan. There was also a miniature lake, traversed by a fully equipped boat. The wiring of the grounds and the arrangements of the electric lights, was done by Mr. Fred S. Dunn.

Especially beautiful was the flower booth, banked with a solid back ground of ferns, draped overhead with growing ivy and smilax, and filled with rare exotics, other potted plants and the richest of cut flowers.

An Edison phonograph was a feature in great demand. The most beautiful selections played by a full orchestra, were reproduced with marvelous perfection in the ears of all. The art gallery contained 66 subjects from "Rosa Bonheur's" Horse Fare, to the "Battery of the Home Club" by the Umpire.

Mr. George H. Babcock gave the many curious visitors to his tent, a glimpse into the future. It was a stereopticon view of the new Seventh Day chapel, to be built on Fifth street between Central and Madison avenues. Architect Teale's sketch showed a handsome building of rock-faced stone from foundation to the tiled-roof of the tower at its corner. The lines were substantial yet graceful, and the building would ornament any locality. Ten thousand dollars has been raised for its erection and furnishing. It will contain thirteen class rooms for the Sabbath school, a parlor 28 by 31, "work" room and kitchen. The class rooms, including two contained in the gallery, can all be thrown open into one large auditorium. Work will be commenced at once.

In spite of the many other attractions elsewhere, last evening, the attendance at the Fete was over three hundred, and the net receipts will undoubtedly reach one hundred and fifty dollars.

Those in charge, and those to whom is due the credit of the conception, completion and consummation of the affair, were as follows:

The flower booth, typical of the sense of Smelling, was charmingly presided over by Mrs. Arthur Titsworth, assisted by her sister, Mrs. George Titsworth, Miss Florence Potter and Miss Mabel Potter.

The features of Hearing were arranged by Mr. D. E. Titsworth, and in one of the booths devoted to that sense, Mr. George Rogers led a parlor orchestra in a programme of pleasing selections.

The booth of Feeling was in charge of Mrs. J. D. Titsworth, chairman, and Mrs. Amanda Maxson, Mrs. C. H. Dunham and Miss Anna Titsworth.

Mrs. F. A. Dunham was chairman of the Committee on Seeing, but was subsequently called away by the serious illness of her father. Mrs. Robert Gorton, Miss Florence Titsworth, Miss Mary Lewis, and Messrs George H. Babcock and Robert Gorton, were in charge of the art gallery and stereopticon.

The tables of Tasting were under the auspices of Mrs. C. H. Randolph, Mrs. Thad. Smith and Mrs. J. G. Miller. The waitresses were: Mrs. J. N. VanSickle, Miss Lucy Dunham and Miss Genie Lewis. Miss May Tomlinson and Miss Grace Lewis, were the cashiers.

Mrs. G. H. Babcock served the lemonade, while Miss Bessie Titsworth and Miss Mabel Maxson had in charge the "Lady of the Lake."

—The price of strawberries has been somewhat reduced in price owing to the heavy production of the fruit in the South and a liberal supply in the North.

MUSIC AND AMATEUR THEATRICALS.

Society People Give an Entertainment in Behalf of Suffering Humanity.

The gathering that completely filled Seminary Hall, last evening, was thoroughly representative of the higher circles of Plainfield's society, and its culture, wealth and philanthropy. Tickets at one dollar and fifty cents each had been sold to the Hall's capacity, and $340 was realized from the occasion towards the relief of the survivors of the inundation at Johnstown and its vicinity.

The event had been arranged by Mrs. George Wharton Edwards assisted by Mrs. Rowland Cox, and the programme included amateur theatricals and a musical interlude under the direction of Miss Ella Haines, of Netherwood. Great credit is due also to those who took part in different ways, for their individual efforts towards the perfect success of the whole.

The audience was a brilliant one in all ways. Much handsome dress was displayed, many of the ladies being in full evening costume and their escorts also. Their appreciation was thorough and pronounced. Each number on the musical programme being encored with hearty sincerity.

Miss Haines was compelled to repeat her skilled rendition of Anton Rubinstein's Caprice; and Mrs. Augustus C. Baldwin sang "Scots Wha Hae!" as an encore to her announced selection. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Hattie Gardiner.

Mr. James Metcalf, of the New York Philharmonic, sang Goring Thomas' "Summer Night" in a grand and expressive way that captured the admiration of his hearers. He was accompanied with piano and 'cello. His encore piece was another most agreeable selection, beautifully rendered. Mr. Ernest Muldener, Jr., played the same violoncello soli as THE PRESS was called upon to praise upon the occasion of Mrs. James L. Anthony's soiree musicale at her Netherwood home, last September.

Two little farces constituted the theatricals. They were:

MY UNCLE'S WILL.

Charles Cashmere.....by Mr. James Murray
Mr. Barker.....by Mr. Edwards
Florence Marigold.....by Miss Stewart

THE LOAN OF A LOVER.

Captain Amerstort.....by Mr. Perkins
Peter Spijk.....by Mr. Titsworth
Swijzel.....by Mr Edwards
Delve.....by Mr. W. Stewart
Gertrude.....by Mrs. Edwards
Ernestine Rosendaal.....by Miss Stewart

To particularize the merits of the members of each cast is unnecessary, because an universal praise of all is just. Mrs. Edwards' interpretation of Gertrude's part was remarkably perfect—and she filled the play with life and a number of sweet songs. Mr. Titsworth as Peter was also beyond criticism from even a professional stand point. Miss Stewart was a strikingly beautiful heroine of both plays, and the others filled their parts admirably.

Each one present was given a souvenir of the occasion that had been reproduced by the photogravure process from a design by Mr. George Wharton Edwards. At the close of the programme, that orignal design as it came from the artist's pencil, framed in white and silver, was sold at auction by Mr. Alex. Gilbert. It was secured for $25 by Mr. Wm. B. Wadsworth. The plate from which the souvenirs were printed was disposed of in the same way for ten dollars, and now graces the walls of THE PRESS office, an imperishable token of the labors of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards in behalf of suffering humanity.

The net financial result after paying slight incidental expenses, was $340, which will be forwarded to the Johnstown sufferers by Mr. J. K. Myers, as "From the Ladies of Plainfield."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Kate Weaver of North Plainfield, has recently been the guest of Mrs. Edw. A. Myers, Jr., of Raritan.

Miss Susie C. Emerson, daughter of Mrs. Kate Emerson of this city, will be graduated at the Seventh Day University, Alfred Centre, N. Y., on the 27th inst.

Among those who have been granted patents during the past week is Mr. August R. Bartlau of this city, for a sheet delivery apparatus for printing machines.

Miss Cook of Auburn, a recent graduate of Pennington Seminary, was tendered an informal reception at the residence of Major Rufus K. Case on East Ninth street, last evening.

Miss Catherine R. Webster of East Second street, is now on her way home from Southern California. In a private letter she states that she expects to visit in Ohio, on her way East.

Mr. Wm. A. Conger of Manning avenue, North Plainfield, who was thrown from a horse on Park avenue recently, sustaining injuries to his head, has so far recovered as to be able to go out.

At Netherwood, Wednesday, took place the marriage by the Rev. Mr. Simpson, of Catherine A., daughter of the Dr. John A. Cummings, of Boston, Mass., and George W. Thomas, of New York.

Mr. John Rowland, the assistant at the freight house, has a curiosity in the shape of an apple blossom in full bloom, which came out after apples on the tree had grown to the size of walnuts.

At the commencement exercises of the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons, held last evening, Mr. J. A. Allis, of this city, was one of a graduating class of 168 that received diplomas.

THE BETHEL CONCERT.

What the Colored Vocalists Sang and Wore.

The concert at Bethel chapel has become one of the events of the season, and it is anxiously awaited each year with great expectations of enjoyment that are exhaustively realized. In fact no musical affair in any line that is given in this city, so thoroughly fills the bill or so overflows with money's worth.

Last evening the chapel was packed before the colored folks themselves arrived, and numbers were turned away at the door. The programme consisted of twenty selections, almost every one of which was encored, consequently the complete satisfaction of even so large a crowd, was consummated. Mr. Alfred W. Duxbury had trained the vocalists and arranged the affair, so there was not the slightest falter in the programme. It is needless to say, also, that the gratification of all present was unconfined in expression.

The "opening chorus" of the evening was by six little girls dressed in white, with garlands of daisies over their shoulders, who sang very prettily, "I'll Keep the Pledge!" for which song and sentiment they were encored.

Miss Charlotte Allen, arrayed in gray silk, demi train, and pink roses, gave that new song, "The Letter in the Candle," very effectively, and upon a recall feelingly inquired, "How can I Leave Thee?"

Mr. Benj. Sutton ably rendered in fine style, "A True Little Heart, and a True Little Home," ending with a forte flourish which was loudly appreciated. He responded with "Old Dog Tray," as promised in THE PRESS of Monday of last week.

Miss F. M. Johnson was an imported songstress who showed considerable cultivation. She sang in good time and a black silk dress, with much effect, "Saved From the Storm," and "Hearest Thou?" and as encores, "Suwanee River," and "The Song of Home Sweet Home."

Mr. James Harris gave "Nancy Lee" in an appropriate way, and was followed by Mrs. Ida Dunham, a symphony in gray and white. Mrs. Dunham has a fine voice, and sang "The Last Rose of Summer," succeeded by "The Village Maid," very well.

Mrs. Reasoner, the contralto, was never in better voice, and rendered "Had I Never, Never Known Thee," in her best style. She wore blue cashmere and white lace.

Mr. J. Wesley Smith, with the assistance of Miss Dewey, sang "Where the Rippling Waters Flow" in the key of eight flats. His encore, "Fairly Caught," was quite natural.

Miss Alice Wood, one of the favorites of old, was clad in white lace over blue. She gave "Dear Robin, I'll be True," in great shape, followed by "Gates Ajar," without climbing the bars.

There was much expression in Mr. Wm. Barrick's rendition of "My Old Village Home," but it was surpassed by Mrs. Fisher in her "Sighing For Thee." She was an etching, in pink under white lace, and warbled as an encore, "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Orlando's orchestra gave various pleasing selections. Flowers were numerous, every one receiving one or more bouquets. Mrs. Dunham was favored with two baskets and one bouquet—one of the former being completely enveloped in tissue paper, which the usher afterward removed, and revealed its splendors.

A great deal of the success is due Miss Dewey for her sympathetic playing and the manner in which she adapted herself to the ad libitum of the soloists.

In Aid of the Debt Fund.

The commendable work of a number of the ladies of Trinity Reformed church who saw an opportunity to increase the debt fund of the church, by holding a strawberry and iced cream festival, was encouraged by the large number of persons present in the Dunlap Building on West Front street, last evening, where the affair took place.

The interior of the commodious room was tastefully and artistically decorated with flags, bunting and Chinese lanterns, and there was also a profusion of choice cut flowers. The amount realized from the festival will be quite large. Messrs Jacob Brothers kindly loaned the piano, and during the evening several of the young ladies present favored the visitors with selections. Mr. B. F. LaVere also contributed several cornet solos, accompanied on the piano by Miss Emma U. King.

In convenient places tables were located for the serving of iced refreshments by the following waitresses: Mrs. F. S. Dunn, Miss Lizzie Dunn, Miss Etta Krymer, Miss Mabel Woodruff, Miss Lulu Snediker, Miss Emma U. King and Miss Lilian A. Force, all of whom were kept busy during the evening.

The flower girls were the Misses Sadie Addis, Lizzie Emmons and Lillie Zeisz. The candy table was presided over by Miss Etta Howland and the lemonade well by Miss Julia Johnson. Tier's cream was served. Mr. David Snediker acted in the capacity of cashier.

The festival will be continued this evening only.

The Carrabelle Land Company.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Carrabelle Land Improvement Company, was held at the residence of Mr. Wm. Moore on East Second street, Tuesday afternoon. Encouraging reports on the condition of the Company's land in Florida, were made by some of the stockholders, who have recently returned from there.

—The South Forks dam proved defective, but Dr. Dam's Remedy can always be depended upon.

Outranked by Superior Fielding.

The game on Saturday between the West End and Crescent Clubs was characterized by a great deal of wrangling, which had the effect of turning an otherwise exciting and interesting contest into a tiresome struggle. The Crescents brought a large crowd of "heelers," who made themselves conspicuously obnoxious by their constant shouting to the players. There is never any objection to applause on the part of the spectators, but blackguardism directed at the players of either side should not be allowed.

The game was won by the West Ends in the eighth inning and absolutely given away in the ninth by poor throwing on the part of the home team and timely hitting by the Crescents.

The following figures show the comparative batting and fielding averages of the two clubs in this game: In batting, West End .317, Crescent .268; in fielding, West End .873, Crescent .955. Thus it will be seen that heavy batting may be outranked by superior fielding. The accounts from Plainfield show that the Crescents were met on their return by a large crowd with tin horns and brooms, etc., and escorted over the city in honor of their victory.

Holy Cross Church Festival.

The annual iced cream and strawberry festival given by the Sunday school of the Holy Cross church, was enjoyed yesterday afternoon and evening by a large company. The children of the parish, with many of their young visiting friends, had everything to themselves in the afternoon, and made a merry throng as they enjoyed themselves on the church lawn and at the refreshment tables in the school building.

In the evening the festival was well patronized by the members of the church and others. A table laden with beautiful flowers was presided over by Miss Della Storm and Miss Emily Thompson, who also dispensed lemonade. The cake and strawberry table was in charge of Mrs. Spencer. The Misses Anna Murphy, Grace Brown, Agnes Smith and Maggie Long were the dispensers of confectionery. Many young hands were engaged in waiting upon the guests at the tables, among whom were the Misses Bertha Worman and Mary Thompson, and Masters Willie Townley, Henry Wells, Arthur Alburtus, Herbert Schutt, Fred Waring and Arthur First.

First News of Official "Liberal Inducements."

(From the New York World.)

The Pond Machine Tool Company of Plainfield, has decided to increase its capital to $500,000, and for this purpose has filed new articles of incorporation. The stock at present is $400.000, and its plant is one of the most valuable in Plainfield.

The company desired originally to locate at Elizabeth, but through lack of energy on the part of the Board of Trade the opportunity for securing this important acquisition to the manufacturing industries of the city was allowed to slip. Plainfield's live officials offered the company liberal inducements to locate in that city, which it promptly accepted.

A Lady Injured.

Mrs. Daniel B. Rogers, of Florida, who with her husband, is visiting at the residence of Mr. David L. Randolph at New Brooklyn, met with a painful accident while emerging from Mr. H. A. Pope's dry goods store, yesterday afternoon. The lady came into town during the afternoon ostensibly to attend the entertainment at Mr. Geo. H. Babcock's, but previous to going there she made a shopping tour. She came out of the above-named store, when her foot turned and she was thrown violently to the sidewalk, sustaining a fracture of the hip.

The unfortunate woman was carried into Shaw's drug store, where Dr. Paul attended her. Later she was removed to New Brooklyn in a carriage.

A Curious Case.

What promises to be an interesting legal case has been begun in Union county by the filing of papers with the County Clerk in a suit for the recovery of a treasure of over $1,000, found two years ago by three boys who were strolling along the Central Railroad in the suburbs of Elizabeth. One of the lads, Willie Carsman, espied a ball of rags tightly fastened with cord, lying alongside the track, and picking it up tossed it to one of his companions, who kicked it back. The lads played football with the bundle for some time until at last the string gave way and the rag ball fell apart, disclosing in its centre a roll of bank notes.—Newark Advertiser.

Wedding Bells.

At the residence of the bride's parents on East Fifth street, yesterday afternoon, occurred the marriage of Miss Anna Lucretia Krymer and Mr. Wm. F. Oliver, both of this city. Rev. Cornelius Schenck officiated. A strange incident in connection with the marriage is the fact that Prof. Oliver, of Fort Scott, Kansas, a brother of the groom, arrived in this city unexpectedly, yesterday, just in time to attend the wedding, having been detained on the road by the recent floods in Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver left for Philadelphia, and Prof. Oliver will sail for Europe to-morrow.

Tickling the Palate.

The only trouble with HAMBURG FIGS is that they are so pleasant to the palate that children are apt to eat them when not absolutely necessary, if they can get hold of them surreptitiously. They will injure no one, but medicine should not be taken unless needed. 25 cents. Dose, one fig. J. G. Miller, Agent, Plainfield.

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

WHAT IS THERE NEW

That Is the Pressing Question About Hayti.

WILL UNCLE SAM TAKE A HAND?

It Looks a Little That Way Now Although No One Will Say So.

Extreme Reticence of the Officials of the State and Navy Departments—Previous Reports of Hippolyte's Supremacy Confirmed by the Captain of the Steamer Alene Just Arrived in Port—But the Victor Is Not Popular.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.—An air of mystery pervades the State and Navy Departments to-day.

The Haytien situation and the probable attitude of the United States in the matter was the prevailing topic of conversation and the only persons that did not discuss it were the department officials who perhaps know all about it.

At the State Department a stereotyped answer to all inquiries was returned: "Yes there is something new in the Haytien situation but the circumstances are such that we can't say anything about the matter."

Walker Blaine, who seems to be acting as an intermediary between his father, the Secretary of State, and Secretary Tracy, had a long interview with the latter this morning.

Commodore Ramsey, the Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, was also closeted with the Secretary of the Navy and it is believed that instructions concerning the departure of the Kearsarge for Hayti were delivered.

There is some surprise manifested that the Kearsarge was ordered to Hayti in place of the Boston.

The latter is by far the better vessel and is ready for sea duty; but she is what navy people call "a fever ship," because yellow fever has prevailed on board, and the department did not feel justified in sending her again to tropical waters.

However, it is likely that she will be sent to the seat of the difficulties should the situation become more threatening.

HIPPOLYTE IS ON TOP.

Previous Reports Confirmed By a Captain Just Arrived from Hayti.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The steamer Alene from Kingston, Jamaica, June 6 arrived this morning and brings intelligence substantiating the London cable reports of Hippolyte's victory and Legitime's defeat in Hayti.

Chief officer Williams of the Alene says that Hippolyte is "King of the walk" and that his opponent has sought the protection of the American Consul at Port-au-Prince.

Hippolyte, officer Williams added, had entered Port-au-Prince and taken possession of the town.

The victorious warrior however, Mr. Williams said, was not popular and could probably never be President of the Black Republic by the vote of the inhabitants.

A man named Marrann, Legitime's minister of Foreign Affairs, or an expresident of the Republic, whose name Mr. Williams could not recall, would doubtless appear as the next candidate for the Presidency at Hayti.

A PRIEST'S MIRACLES.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 14.—A day sacred to the memory of St. Anthony of Padua, brought yesterday thousands of people, both Protestant and Catholic, to worship at his shrine, erected to him in the chapel bearing his name at the Church of the Most Holy Name, on Troy Hill, Allegheny, at whose altar presides as chief priest the far-famed Father Mollinger. From early morning until mass at 10 o'clock Father Mollinger ministered to the faithful, and the result in some cases was almost miraculous.

When Miss Parker, of Philadelphia, was carried into the church she was a twitching, helpless woman. Her ailment was epilepsy. Father Mollinger told her that in three days she would be entirely cured. She arose from her couch and walked away with scarcely any preceptible evidence of her sickness. A lady from New York was led into the church totally blind. She walked from the edifice alone and unaided, and could distinguish many objects. The power of speech was restored to a lady who has not spoken a word for two years. A young girl hobbled up to the rail on crutches. Mollinger prescribed for and worked with her a while, took the crutches from her and she walked away.

VULCAN ON THE SEA.

Launch of a Monster Torpedo-Depot Ship at Portsmouth.

LONDON, June 13.—The steel torpedo-depot ship Vulcan was launched at Portsmouth yesterday. She is the largest vessel the Government has ever built. It is intended that she shall accompany a fleet and carry a large equipment of torpedo boats. She will form a floating workshop. She will be supplied with floating cranes, on which torpedo boats can be twisted in and out of the water.

The Vulcan is of 6,620 tons burden and 12,000 horse-power.

Relief for the Armagh Sufferers.

ARMAGH, June 14.—The clergymen of Armagh of every religious denomination met to-day and organized a relief fund for the sufferers by Wednesday's accident. The Protestant Primate presided. The Catholic Archbishop urged the people to give liberally.

A Missile Hurled at Mr. Gladstone.

LONDON, June 14.—While Mr. Gladstone was passing through the town of Wadebridge, Cornwell, to-day a missile believed to be a live cartridge was thrown at his carriage. The missile did no harm. The police are investigating the matter.

Mataafa Will Not Be Punished.

BERLIN, June 14.—It is understood that Germany has withdrawn her insistance upon the punishment of Mataafa, and that this will smooth the path for American ratification of the Samoan agreement.

Down on Socialists and Anarchists.

LONDON, June 14.—The Governments of Russia, Germany and Austria, have sent an identical note to the Swiss Government, asking the latter to deal in a more severe manner with Anarchists and Socialists.

The Lord Provost Won't Be There.

LONDON, June 14.—The Lord Provost of Edinburgh has refused to officiate when the freedom of the city is conferred upon Mr. Parnell. The senior Magistrate will therefore act in his place.

The City of New York Gets a Crew.

LIVERPOOL, June 14.—The Inman line steamer City of New York filled out her crew and sailed for New York yesterday, leaving the striking sailors behind.

Mrs. Maybrick Committed.

LIVERPOOL, June 14.—The hearing in the Maybrick poisoning case was closed to-day. Mrs. Maybrick was committed for the Assizes.

Paris Has a Cab Strike.

PARIS, June 14.—The cab drivers of this city struck to-day in a body, and not a single cab can be seen on the streets.

A Squib Factory Wrecked.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., June 14.—An explosion of several kegs of powder in a storehouse wrecked a squib factory in St. Clair, three miles from here, yesterday. The building caught fire and Mamie Mull, aged 19, was burned to death. Henry Hayes, manager of the factory, got out of the building, but was fatally burned. Fortunately the explosion occurred while the fifty girls employed in the factory were at dinner.

Chippewas on the War-Path.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 14.—At 6 o'clock last evening Governor Merriam received a telegram from Even Michelson, of Mora, Minn., saying that the Chippewa Indians at Mille Lac Lake, in an uprising, had killed a number of Swedish settlers. It is not yet known how many were massacred. Immediate help is asked.

The Veto Sustained.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 14.—The Governor's veto of the Secret Ballot bill was sustained by the Senate yesterday. The ruling made by the Lieutenant-Governor against amending a vetoed bill is sustained on all sides, without regard to party, as being entirely in accord with the Constitution.

Another Respite for Jacob.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 14.—James H. Jacob, the Lancaster murderer, has been granted a further respite by the Board of Pardons so that his case may be investigated. Two experts testified to his insanity. The Board will hold another meeting on July 10.

The Jury Couldn't Agree.

BATH, N. Y., June 14.—The jury in the case of Martin Hogan on trial for manslaughter in the first degree in killing Geo. Horton at Savona a year ago, announced this morning that they could not agree, and were discharged. They had been out fifteen hours.

Want the Stores Discontinued.

PITTSBURG Pa., June 14.—At a delegate convention of railroad miners of western Pennsylvania, held in this city yesterday, a committee was appointed to draft resolutions demanding that the coal operators discontinue their stores.

Michiganders at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 14.—The Michigan cavalry brigade held exercises at its monument, three miles east of the town, yesterday. General Alger and General Kidd delivered addresses. The Michigan party left for home in the afternoon.

Terribly Mangled by a Train.

TAUNTON, Mass., June 14.—Wesley F. Adams, aged 50, an eye-glass peddler of Norton was run over and terribly mangled at the Central railroad station here by an outgoing train yesterday afternoon. He lived about an hour.

OUR FISHING TRIP.

What happy hours were those when Tom
And I, some monstrous whale to win,
Went fishing in the rocking-chair
Off the piazza with a pin!

Our sails were spread, our anchors weighed,
We were the captain and the crew,
Far out from land on chasing waves
Before the gale we rocked and flew.

Now schools of mackerel passed us by,
Now dolphins came in rainbow flocks,
Now, lifted on a distant wave,
A strange mermaiden combed her locks.

Cape Finisterre, and Baffin's bay,
And Crusoe's isle, and Red Sea shores
We left behind, and saw ahead
Van Diemen's Land and the Azores.

We breakfasted in Behring Strait,
And then, for the sweet sake erewhile
Of Moses and the bulrushes,
We caught our dinner in the Nile.

But for some reasons that we had,
Some memories of delightful scenes,
At nightfall we a harbor made
Always within the Philippines!

We boxed the compass as we pleased,
The winds from every side were blown,
Geography, and time, and space,
In that fine voyage were all our own.

Sometimes the storms about us burst,
And we went slipping round the deck,
Sometimes we rocked so near the edge
We narrowly escaped a wreck.

Far off we saw the huge whale spout
Just over the horizon's rim,
But though we sailed, and sailed, and sailed
We never quite caught up with him.

And never shall we steal from time
Days half so glad as those wherein
We fished in the old rocking-chair
Off the piazza with a pin!

THE TALE OF A CRIME.

Ghastly Revelation of a Photographer's Experiment.

M. Theodore, chef de surete, sat in his cabinet deeply perplexed. His two elbows on his desk, his head on his hands, he was musing.

"And was it going to last, this, which had been going on for so long awhile? And these assassins, were they going to end by beating him! Were they going to compel him by adverse public opinion to send in his resignation!

"Parbleu! it looked so, and as if they did it on purpose, passing the word from one to another to force him to get out of their way. Eight assassinations, one after another! Crimes of the worst caliber, with startling details, which peopled alike with horrifying visions the sleep of the bureaucrat and the concierge! And not an assassin, for all their skillful work, had they been able to lay their hands upon! They had fled, every man of them; they had disappeared, vanished—piff, like a puff of air. Celerity, dispatch, their motto, and to go without leaving an address behind them! Frankly, it had begun to pass the bounds of all reason.

"And now, to top off these eight other crimes, there was still another one, a ninth one, a murder, like the others, accomplished the evening before, under similar conditions, a femme-galante with her throat cut, five thousand francs' worth of jewels gone, and—not a trace of the assassins!"

Despite his robust philosophy, that had long been the admiration and emulation of his century, M. Theodore felt himself drifting into melancholy and reflection, not unmixed with anger.

"Nine murders, one after the other: nine crimes without an author; nonsense! impossible!" The chef de surete pulled himself together, threw back his head like a war horse sniffing battle, and—the door opened.

It was his secretary who presented himself, bearing a card in his fingers.

"A gentleman, monsieur, who insists upon seeing you. He declares" and the secretary smiled a little at the absurdity of the claim—"he declares himself in a position to furnish you with definite particulars regarding the crime of yesterday."

"Ah, the crime of yesterday!" The chief turned quickly. "Then bid him enter," said he, and while the secretary regained the ante-room to do his bidding M. Theodore cast his eye upon the card before him.

"Frederick Bouscal!" he read in a half voice. "Bouscal, Bouscal; it seems to me that I know that name—that I've heard it somewhere."

He scrawled a line upon a scrap of paper and handed it to the secretary who returned at the moment ushering in the visitor who had asked to see him, dismissed him with a word, and was ready for the matter in hand.

M. Theodore raised his eyes. Before him was a man simply, but neatly, clothed, and with a frank and honest countenance, though veiled, as by a cloud, with sadness. The eyes were clear and open, the mustache and goatee gray and pointed; in short, there was something in his manner, something in his whole appearance of a militaire in "retreat."

"You have particulars to give me, have you not, monsieur?" questioned the chef de surete; "particulars, I believe of the crime of yesterday."

"I hope so, monsieur," simply responded the visitor.

"Ah, hope so! You are not sure, then?"

"It rests with you, M. le Chef, whether I am sure or not. All depends, in fact, upon an operation the means of which you alone are able to furnish me."

"Explain, if you please!"

"Certainly, and at once, though doubtless you have heard it spoken of, M. le Chef, a certain scientific procedure which permits under certain conditions, better even than description can do it, a reconstitution of the portrait of an assassin. Briefly, behold my meaning. You know, of course," he continued, "that in the phenomenon called vision the object which we see throws or forms upon a screen in the eyeball itself—in plain words, upon the retina of the eye—an image which remains there until displaced by another. It has been proved also that this image persists even after death. You recognize, therefore, that if a person murdered has been struck from the front, and in a light sufficiently distinct for him to see, the last thing upon which his eyes would be fixed would in all probability be the face or form of the murderer. Naturally, the image of that face or figure would be thrown upon the retina of the eye where—and this is what I came to say—it is not only possible to refind it, but also possible to reproduce it. Ah, well, monsieur, in the case which occupies us—"

The door of the cabinet opened anew, and the secretary of M. Theodore re-entered, holding in his hand a roll of papers that he laid before his chief, then turned and was gone again as quickly as he had come. M. Theodore lifted it and ran his eye over the contents.

"You are named Frederick Bouscal, are you not, monsieur?" he demanded, presently, addressing his visitor.

"Yes, M. le Chef, Frederick Bouscal."

——"your age?"

"Fifty-eight years, M. le Chef."

"Hum-m-m." M. Theodore rapidly twirled the sheets beside him; "twenty-seven years?" he murmured, as if thinking aloud. "So it was not you then who was imprisoned two years ago, and condemned for contumacy and the theft of a thousand florins."

A sudden flush empurpled the countenance of the visitor.

"No, monsieur," he responded, with effort, in a dull voice; "no, it was not I—it was—my son."

"An employe of the Credit Agricole, was he not? And—you are ignorant of what has become of him?"

"Absolutely. It is fifteen months that his mother and I have been without news of him. That child, M. le Chef, that child has been our sorrow and our shame. He has broken our hearts, dishonored our name—"

His voice was choked. He was silent, unable, evidently, to go on.

"Pardon me, monsieur," said the chef de surete, "I have reopened a painful wound, but—I listen to you—you were saying?"

The man passed his hand across his brow and eyes to clear his vision, then resumed:

"I was saying, M. le Chef, that in the case which occupies us now the reconstitution of the assassin's portrait should be entirely possible. The victim was struck in the face, the direction of the blow and the form of the wound indicates it plainly. More than this, it must have been light enough to see the murderer, and with sufficient clearness to have stamped his likeness upon the retinal screen, for the papers assert that even in death her eyes were fixed on a 'wide and frightened stare.' Thus, monsieur, we find ourselves in the presence of a half-certainty; it is probable, if not sure, that the eye of the corpse lying now upon the slab of the morgue contains the exact reproduction of the features of the one you seek. With your permission I will draw it from them."

"Draw it; but how?"

"By photography—it is my business, M. le Chef. And this matter, this subject I speak of, I have studied it long and almost with passion, for I hold it to be, in case of success, one of the most useful and beautiful applications of modern science. I know it can be done. I have myself experimented, and in one instance have reproduced the lineaments of the physician who had leaned above the bed of the dying."

The man spoke with animation, and while speaking his voice vibrated, his eyes burned, his whole countenance was illuminated, irradiated with the light of a legitimate pride. M. Theodore regarded him, visibly moved himself by this ardent conviction.

"And you conclude!" he questioned, after a moment's thought.

"I conclude—but authorize me to attempt the experiment on the woman assassinated yesterday and I will tell you what I conclude. If I succeed it will be for us—my wife and me—a little glory, and also a little money—a ray of hope in our misery; if I fail—well, no matter—we are used to misfortune. A deception, more or less, need not be counted. In any event, M. le Chef, you lose nothing in the adventure but the chance of an unhoped for success."

"Then, so be it, monsieur," agreed the chef de surete. "Take your instruments to the morgue to-morrow morning at ten o'clock. I will see that the clerk is instructed. Later on I shall myself be there. I have the honor, monsieur, to wish you good-morning."

In the obscure nook at the morgue where he had inclosed himself in accordance with the arrangement made at the office of the surete Frederick Bouscal, his body bent, his face drawn, watched anxiously the result of his last washing. The plate was there before him in its bath of quicksilver, into which he had dropped it awhile ago with such fear and infinite precaution.

Sensitivized? Vitalized? At least it should be, and if the conditions of the crime were such as he supposed them, and the victim before dying had really seen her murderer's face, the portrait of the assassin would be there under that bed of gelatine en traine to melt away.

His throat closed as by a grip of iron, the operator held himself immovable, hearing only with painful distinctness the gurgle of the water as it dripped upon the faces of the dead in the adjoining chamber; the plunge of his blood as it throbbed and hammered through the arteries of his heart.

And at last the moment came—the moment that was to reveal to him all or nothing. He rose, that poor, trembling photographer, rose, I say, took it carefully by its dripping edges, that plate upon which his fate was hanging, half closed his eyes, held it to the single ray of light that filtered through the yellowed pane—to stagger back with a groan of anguish, to let it crash into a thousand pieces!

"His son! Great God! The face of the murderer, the face of the son!"

Five minutes later, when Frederick Bouscal, the photographer, came from his nook, and the chef de surete, awaiting him with impatience, hurried to meet him, he saw immediately by the pallor of his face, by his somber eyes, that he had nothing good to announce to him.

"Well," said he, "nothing?"

"No," responded Bouscal, "nothing."

"Allons! no matter; try it a second time; do it over again."

"Impossible! the transparency of the cornea is destroyed. I wished to wash it, and I burned it through mistake in the vials. I salute you, M. le Chef!" And Frederick Bouscal turned away.

The next morning the commissioner of the quarter of Ternes, forwarding to the prefecture his regular report, headed it with the following item:

"To-day at ten o'clock a summons to 109 Rue Laugiere. A call from the concierge, suspicions of charcoal fumes from the room of the Bouscals, man and wife, his locataires. The door, by my order, was forced. Too late—they were dead, both of them, side by side upon the bed, a brazier of lighted charcoal plainly indicating the manner of their death. A double suicide—poverty the cause.

"From —— Commissaire, quarter of Ternes, third month, 16th day, 188—."

"Bah, these inventors!" murmured M. Theodore, as his secretary concluded the reading, "they are all alike, stupid and rash! though I, too, on this occasion, have naught to boast of. But how the deuce," he added, as the memory of that pale, sad face rose up before him, "how the deuce could I think of suicide for a cause as trifling as this?"

"A cause as trifling as this!"

Ah, my worthy chef de surete, it is not every thing that is known in that prefecture of thine!—Translated from the French by E. C. Waggener.

Strange Case of Aphasia.

Aphasia in a most extraordinary form is at present under treatment by Dr. Charcot. A Frenchman, aged sixty, learned English through living seven years in North America, and then Spanish through his marriage with a Spanish woman. He lost the command of these languages in the inverse order. First he was unable to speak Spanish, then English went from him, and lastly his native tongue, French. The affliction was ascribed to the softening of the third left lobe of the brain, and, by a methodical practice in conversation, he regained his normal ability, recovering the languages in the order of French, English and Spanish.

They Want Their Cannon Back.

PITTSGROVE, N. J., June 14.—The people of this place strongly protest against the actions of the people of Bridgeton, under the direction of ex-Senator Nichols, in removing the old brass cannon to that city. A few days ago the Bridgeton men went to Mrs. Richmond, at Pole tavern, and demanded the key to the Salem County arsenal and read an order from General Perrine. They said if she refused to give up the key they would force their way to the arsenal and get the cannon. The gun, together with others in the arsenal, possess great historic value to the people of Salem county.

The Wharf Gave Way.

BANGOR, Me., June 14.—A big storehouse on the wharf collapsed yesterday afternoon through a break in the wharf which let the water under the building. A horse was burried under the wreck, but was taken out uninjured. The building was filled with feed, cooperage, lime, etc., and it is feared that the lime may take fire.

Evangelist Cecil Drowned.

PICTON, Ont., June 14.—Lord A. P. Cecil, the evangelist, was drowned about four o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Bay of Quinte, near Adolphustown, about six miles east of here. The body has not been recovered.

Ice Consumed by Fire.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., June 14.—The Knickerbocker Ice company's storage house at Tumbling Run was burned yesterday. Loss about $12,000. The fire is supposed to have been incendiary.

RAIN IN JOHNSTOWN

Impedes the Work of Removing the Wreckage.

THE FIRES REFUSE TO BURN.

The Laborers Prefer Dry Skins to the Dollar and a Half a Day.

The Delay Trying to the Patience of All Parties Interested — The Dynamiting Goes on Despite the Opposing Elements—A Lockup Needed for the Confinement of Prisoners—Several Arrests for Various Offenses.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 14.—Pouring rain with intervals of scorching sunshine greatly retarded the progress of removal of wreckage yesterday. The laborers generally refused to take a soaking for the sake of the dollar and a half they might have earned by so doing. The delay is trying to the patience of all parties interested. It is sultry and raining hard and the fires refuse to burn.

The only place that any work was done was at the raft where dynamiting was continued throughout the entire day. A large part of the big raft toward the upper end has been dislodged. Some of the shots fired were terrific both in effect and noise. Once charge contained 140 dounds of the explosive. The smell of burned and decaying flesh almost drove the dynamiters from their work. The odor emanating from this pile of debris is simply terrible.

An effort will be made to have the work at the bridge continued by night as well as by day.

The necessity for a lockup was apparent to-day and orders have been issued for the construction of a proper building. Several arrests for various offenses were made by the police and soldiers to-day. The culprits were locked in a box-car for safe keeping.

All question about the price of labor has been settled and there were to-day about 1,750 men at work at the drift at the stone bridge.

To-day the advantage to be gained from burning all that can be burned is readily apparent.

The river in places is almost clear of wreckage and the work of pulling out is comparatively easy.

Seven hoisting engines all day pulled out of the jam all that could be pulled and piled it on the river banks. To-night the drift thus accumulated was set on fire.

Nine members of the Philadelphia Fire Department arrived this morning. Four engines from Philadelphia arrived later on and will be used to pump water out of cellars, as well as protection from fire.

Dr. Miller of the State Board of Health, says that he fears that the continued wet weather will cause much sickness especially pneumonia.

He reports one case of typhoid fever in Minersville, and several new cases of chicken-pox and measles to-day.

Up to four o'clock four bodies were recovered, taken to the morgue, and afterwards buried in Prospect Cemetery.

Two were identified as the bodies of Mrs. Trawater and Miss Mary C. Coad.

The remains of a six months old female child, and a young man were unidentified.

Miss Coad's remains were discovered in her father's home. The other bodies were found in the wreck near the First Ward school house.

PENN. RAILROAD LOSSES.

The Great Flood Damaged Them to the Extent of $3,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—Pennsylvania railroad officials have not yet estimated the amount of damage done to their property by the recent flood, and will not be able to do so for some time yet.

It is stated that although it would be easy to approximate the amount necessary to replace bridges and tracks, the roadway is seriously washed in very many places, so that years will be required to place it in first-rate condition.

The loss in such respects is hard to calculate.

The loss, however, will be nothing like as great as was at first reported.

They say that $3,000,000 will cover everything that can be replaced.

It is now stated that the main line between Harrisburg and Pittsburg will be opened for freight and passenger business by to-morrow.

NO NEED OF A BOND.

Plenty of Money Offered for Johnstown Without Interest.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 15.—The $1,000,000 bond scheme of Governor Beaver has fallen through entirely, owing to the constitutional objection to it and because another way has been found to raise the necessary sum of money to abate nuisances created by the flood.

The Governor received assurances in Philadelphia that the Peoples and other banks would advance all the money needed for the purpose indicated without interest.

The Governor met the Philadelphia members of the commission appointed by him to distribute the funds for the relief of the flood sufferers, and a decision was reached to start on a tour of inspection on Monday next and ascertain where help is urgently needed.

NOTES OF THE FLOOD.

The Johnstown fund at Boston has reached $130,000.

The Mayor of Norfolk, Va., has telegraphed to Governor Beaver to draw for $2,200 contributed by the people of Norfolk for the relief of the Conemaugh sufferers.

The Mayor of Cork presided at a meeting of citizens yesterday called to raise a fund for the Johnstown sufferers. Resolutions of sympathy were passed, a committee consisting of the most influential citizens of Cork was appointed to solicit subscriptions and £250 was subscribed on the spot.

The amount of money donated for the relief of the sufferers by the Pennsylvania floods through Mayor Grant of New York now amounts to $339,374. At the suggestion of Governor Beaver the Mayor to-day appointed a committee who will accompany the commissioner recently appointed by the Governor on a visit to the flooded districts.

PLUNGED INTO NIAGARA.

A Richly Dressed Woman Seeks Death in the Great Cataract.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 15.—A richly dressed woman deliberately plunged into the rapids yesterday afternoon and was carried over the American falls. The body was recovered almost immediately after in the river below and was towed to the Canada side. All the clothing below the waist excepting the shoes and stockings had been torn off. On her head was a deep gash made by the rocks.

The body was identified as that of a woman who arrived here on the 3:10 p. m. train from Buffalo. She went direct to the park, after stopping to buy a tumbler, and seated herself near the water's edge. A few minutes later she was seen to rise and plunge into the rapids, after wading some distance through the shallow water. On the grass near the bench where she sat were found a flask containing a few drops of whisky, the tumbler she had bought, a cape trimmed with heavy fringe, a new silk umbrella and a white handkerchief. She was a woman of large build, about forty years old, with black, wavy hair and a plain gold ring on her left hand. Her name has not yet been learned.

The Lutheran Ministerium.

LEBANON, Pa., June 15.—The Pennsylvania Lutheran Ministerium have elected the following officers: President, Rev. Dr. G. F. Krotel, New York; English Secretary, Rev. J. M. Auspach, Easton; German Secretary, Rev. L. Lindenstruth, Mauch Chunk; Treasurer, Rev. J. K. Platt, Philadelphia. Eighteen students were recommended for ordination. During the year forty missions were aided, thirty-nine pastoral changes occurred within the bounds of the Ministerium, four corner-stones of new churches were laid, seven new churches dedicated. Five new congregations were organized and received into the Ministerium.

Wendell Phillips Club.

BOSTON, June 1.—At its quarterly meeting the Wendell Phillips Club adopted resolutions denouncing the proposed reorganization on color lines of the Republican party in the South, asserting the fidelity, courage and character of the negro support of the Republican party, and imploring the President to refuse to countenance the new organization by the appointment of its sympathizers to positions representing a government of men who are free and equal without regard to color.

Arrested for Embezzlement.

BOSTON, June 15.—Frederick A. Eddy was arrested to-day charged with embezzling $2,760 from Wm. C. Nicholson & Co., glassware, Market street, whose bookkeeper he was for nineteen years. His peculation was discovered in March, 1888, when he left his place and since then the firm has been working to determine the amount of their loss. Eddy is 42 years of age, married, has four children, and lives in Somerville.

Fire in a Crowded Tenement.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Fire broke out in a tenement house containing twenty-two families at 82 Norfolk street last night. All of the inmates escaped to the street without serious injury, except an old woman named Kirshbaum and her two-year-old granddaughter, Esther Goldberg, whose bodies were burned to a crisp. The building was damaged to the extent of $10,000.

For Beating an Ice Cream Dealer.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 15.—George MacGregor, a Philadelphian, was held in $600 bail for court by Mayor Pratt, for beating terribly an Italian ice cream peddler named Costella Fugaro. MacGregor with several others who are implicated in the assault ate several plates of ice cream and offered Fugaro nine cents, and then beat him when he refused to accept it.

Oarsmen at New London.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 15.—The Harvard University and Freshmen crews arrived here yesterday afternoon and the Yale and Cornell crews and possibly the Yale Freshmen will arrive to-day making nine crews from five colleges, namely: Yale, 2; Harvard, 2; Columbia, 2; University of Pennsylvania, 2; Cornell, 1. Bob Cook, the Yale coacher is here.

The Steamer Pomona Wrecked.

NEW YORK, June 15.—A despatch to J. E. Kerr & Co., of this city, announces the wreck of the firm's steamer Pomona, on June 5. The steamer was bound for Montiqua Bay for a cargo of fruit. Her crew of thirteen men were saved.

Hard Labor for Life.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 15.—James H. Graham, the colored bootblack, who stabbed and killed Bartender John Moeller, about three months ago, was to-day sentenced to hard labor for life at Sing Sing prison.

Want Freight Discrimination Removed.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 15.—At a meeting of the Board of Trade numerous signatures were given to a communication to the Interstate Commerce Commission earnestly favoring the petition of the Toledo Produce and other Western Exchanges for the removal of the discrimination of 5 cents per 100 pounds in Western freights rates in favor of New York City.

THE TREATY SIGNED

Samoa's Future Decided Upon at Last.

CLOSE OF THE CONFERENCE.

The Agreement Subject Only to Ratification by Our Senate.

The American Commissioners Waive Their Objections to the Protocol, Yielding to the United Opposition of Germany and England—Mr. Phelps Sails from Bremen To-Day with a Copy of the Treaty—What It Provides.

BERLIN, June 15.—The Samoan Conference met again to-day. It is reported that the American delegates withdrew their objections to certain portions of the protocol, and that this will be the final meeting of the conference. Mr. Phelps sailed on the Fulda for New York to-day from Bremen.

LATER—The treaty has been signed by the Commissioners.

The American delegates having withdrawn the principal objections they had raised to the agreement previously reached, it was only necessary for the Plenipotentiaries to make some important modifications in the wording of the draft of the treaty, before it was ready to receive the signatures of the delegates of the contracting nations.

The treaty guarantees an autonomous administration to the Samoan Islands under the joint control of Germany and America with England acting as arbitrator in the event of differences arising between the joint controlling powers.

The Samoans are to elect their own King and Viceroy and are to be represented in a Senate composed of the principal chiefs and a Chamber of Representatives to be elected by all the people. The Government so constituted will have the right of levying duties of every kind. The treaty also provides that the Germans whose property was destroyed during the recent conflicts on the islands shall be indemnified by the Samoan Government for their losses.

A special court is to be appointed to take cognizance of the land question on the islands.

The American adhesion to the agreement just signed is made conditionally and will only become absolute upon the ratification of the treaty by the United States Senate. In view of this necessary delay, the Plenipotentiaries have reached an understanding that until December next the status quo shall be maintained.

The importation of liquor and fire-arms is to be restricted.

Paris' Cab Strike.

PARIS, June 15.—The striking cabmen held a meeting to day at which M. Constens, Minister of the Interior, was present. The cabmen could not arrive at any agreement with the authorities and the strike will probably be a general one. The French and Italian Navvies in the Department of Haute Harne are quarrelling among themselves. Troops have been sent to quell the disturbance.

Manchester Meeting.

LONDON, June 15.—This was the third day of the Manchester Whitsuntide meeting. The race for the Manchester Cup, valued at 200 sovereigns, and 2,000 sovereigns added to a handicap sweepstakes of 25 sovereigns for each entry, was won by Cotillion, Indian Prince was second and Lord Lorn third.

Armagh in Mourning.

DUBLIN, June 15.—Business still remains at a standstill at Armagh. A girl named Margaret Hustom, one of the victims of the accident, died to-day making the number of deaths resulting from the disaster seventy-six. The whole town is in mourning and frequent funerals are taking place.

Sunk in the North Sea.

LONDON, June 15.—The North German Lloyd Steamer Trave from Bremen to New York, this morning sank the Russian schooner David in the North Sea. The Trave rescued the schooner's crew and landed them at Southampton.

Condensed Cablegrams.

The Czar will leave St. Petersburg so as to arrive at Copenhagen on the 20th of August.

The doctors have ordered Emperor William to take a holiday in Norway prior to his departure on his trip to England.

News has just been received from Brazil that smallpox and yellow fever are raging in a violent form, not alone in Rio Janeiro, but through all the states within two hundred miles of that city.

Enormous silver deposits have just been discovered in an old and long since abandoned mine in the mining district of Schneeberg in Saxony. A company has been formed to work the deposits which are claimed to be unusually rich.

Winners and Losers.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Yesterday's ball games resulted as follows: League—Cleveland 5, Chicago 4; Indianapolis 9, Pittsburg 13; New York 14, Philadelphia 4; Boston 9, Washington 3. Association—Brooklyn 7, Cincinnati 4; Athletic 8, St. Louis 5; Louisville game at Baltimore called at the end of the first inning on account of rain; Kansas City game at Columbus postponed on account of rain. Atlantic Association—Jersey City 5, New Haven 6; Wilkesbarre 19 Lowell 5; Easton 3, Worcester 12.

Passed Over the Veto.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 15.—The House has passed the bill creating a criminal court of common pleas in Fairfield County over the Governor's veto by a vote of 153 to 31.

Charged With Murder.

BOSTON, June 15.—Thomas Horgan, Edward Fortier and William Twigg were held without bail yesterday for the murder of Charles F. Gebbard last monday night.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Mr. E. L. Bonney will conduct the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A., Monday evening, at 8 o'clock.

—One year ago today, the Emperor Frederick III, of Germany, died, after a reign of three months and six days.

—The petition for an increase of the liquor license fee in North Plainfield, will be presented to Judge Magie at Somerville next Monday.

—The "Young Arlington's" defeated the "Young Boston's" on the Arlington avenue grounds, in a game of ball, this morning, by a score of 24 to 4.

—Anyone finding a small purse with contents as described in another column, will be doing a good deed to a poor woman by returning it to this office.

—W. W. Kennerson writes from Plainfield, says the Bound Brook Chronicle, that his boy has found a seven-leaf clover in that city. Good luck to the boy.

—Three games in succession, the High School team has won from the Leal nine. Yesterday's match was finished in seven innings by a score of 8 to 7 in favor of the High School.

—The converted Catholic priest, Bishop McNamara, will preach in the grove near the Grove street bridge, to-morrow afternoon, at four o'clock. Protestants and Catholics invited.

—Dr. Kimball, the celebrated chiropodist, is meeting with great success at the City Hotel, and to give all a chance to be cured he will operate to-morrow, (Sunday) from 10 A. M. until 4 P. M.

—Next Thursday the first excursion of the season will leave Plainfield. It will take you all the way to Hopatcong and back for $1.25. Particulars will be found in the advertisement elsewhere.

—Mr. Halsey Compton of West Front street, presented THE PRESS Thursday with a plate of twenty strawberries that couldn't be crowded into a big quart measure. Some measured six inches in circumference, and every one was over five.

—A strawberry and iced cream festival will be held in the store formerly occupied by Mr. S. C. Peck, in the Dunlap Building on West Front street, this afternoon and evening, the proceeds of which is in aid of Rebekah Lodge, No. 4, I. O. O. F., of this city.

—The festival in aid of the Trinity Reformed church Debt Fund, closed in the Dunlap Building, last evening. The attendance on the closing night was very large, many persons being unable to gain admission. The net receipts will be about $100.

—Wm. Lacey, who was at work on the new building at North avenue and Peace street, fell through the floor of one story to the next, this afternoon, and considerably bruised himself. Contractor Hurlbut took him into Moy's pharmacy adjoining, where he was fixed up.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

One hundred and twenty-three different people of this city and North Plainfield, were mentioned in THE PRESS of yesterday. That is our "high-water mark" as a newspaper, but we shan't stop there. Yet what a marvelous record for a daily in Plainfield—over one hundred of your friends and neighbors mentioned by name and something told about each, in one single issue of THE PRESS.

The Rev. Wm. O. Embury, son of the Rev. Edmund Embury of North Plainfield, will officiate in Grace church, to-morrow.

Dr. M. B. Long lectured before pupils of Rodman Seminary at his residence on Park avenue last evening. Subject: "Physiology."

Miss May Rodman was unintentionally omitted from the list of prize winners among the pupils of Rodman Seminary, yesterday. Miss Rodman won the prize for composition.

Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur of East Third street, has so far recovered from her protracted sickness as to be able to leave her house and is now visiting at the home of her mother in Piscataway.

The serious illness of Miss Burt, of the Bryant School, has compelled her temporary resignation from professional duties. Her many friends will unite in a sincere wish for her permanent recovery.

A son of Mr. S. A. Davis of Park avenue, caught the little finger of his right hand in a pump on Thursday afternoon, and seriously injured the finger. Medical attendance was necessary to dress the wound.

The wedding of Miss Alice Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sering P. Hoffman of West Front street, and Mr. James Love, son of ex-Councilman Love, will take place next Wednesday evening at the home of the bride.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck contemplates seeking a rest and entire change this Summer by spending his vacation in a trip to Europe. His earnest labors during the past season have accomplished so much in the growth of the church and the lightening of its debt, it is natural to assume that the consistory would be glad to extend this Summer's vacation another month.

An Interesting Thing to Know.

It is announced that in Reform Hall, tomorrow morning, the Rev. Mr. J. B. Cleaver will speak of "the difference between the Baptist religion and the Christian religion."

EXTRA!

LIGHTNING'S WORK.

The Presbyterian Church Struck. Also a House Near the Pond Tool Works—A Bolt Strikes Mr. B. D. Newell.

The heaviest thunder shower thus far this season, occurred about one o'clock today. During the shower, lightning struck the crown on the spire of the First Presbyterian church, tearing away the woodwork and some of the slating. Men were at work in the church at the time, but they were uninjured.

Mr. B. D. Newell, the grocer at Front and Washington streets, attempted to raise the awning in front of his store, while the storm was most severe, and a bolt of lightning passed along his left side, burning his arm, leg and foot. Mr. Newell says for a time his entire left side was paralyzed. Dr. Titsworth dressed the wounds.

One of the houses near the Pond Tool Works, belonging to the Company and occupied by Stephen Moore, was also struck and fifty feet of the siding from the chimney down, was torn off.

The residence of Mr. Wm. C. Smith on Grandview avenue, North Plainfield, was also struck by the lightning, and the members of Mr. Smith's family were knocked down. The chimney was demolished, and a portion of the weather-boarding torn away.

Smith and daughters.

Reception to the Pupils.

The Dunellen school reception was held on Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. A. E. Marlow, who kindly allowed the school the full control of her house. At 8:30 the parlors and reception rooms were filled with smiling faces of the scholars and their friends. Prof. Oley and his corps of efficient teachers were present to dignify the occasion and repress the small boy who was present in all his glory.

At nine o'clock the dancing was commenced by a grand march led by Miss Maggie Swackhamer and escort. Prof. Smith, of Somerville, as pianist, led the orchestra, and dancing, which continued until twelve o'clock was only interrupted by the refreshments served by the teachers, to which all did justice.

Every one enjoyed themselves to the utmost, the only cloud of disappointment which appeared was the sickness of the hostess, Mrs. Marlow, who was taken suddenly ill, but was able after a short rest to return to the parlors, where the guests were anxiously awaiting her.

At twelve o'clock the orchestra played "Home Sweet Home," and all departed well satisfied with their evening's enjoyment.

Plainfielders to Speak.

LEGAL NOTICE.

BEFORE HON. WILLIAM J. MAGIE, CIRCUIT Judge, in and for the County of Somerset.

In matter of application for election to fix license fee at $700 in the borough of North Plainfield.

Application by a petition signed by at least one-fifth of the legal voters, voting at the last previous gubernatorial election for governor, of the borough of North Plainfield in the county of Somerset, wherein licenses are required to be granted by the court of Common Pleas of the said county, being made to me, William J. Magie, Circuit Judge in and for said county of Somerset, setting forth the desire of such petitioners that not less than a certain sum of money named and specified in such petition, to wit, the sum of seven hundred dollars, ($700) be charged and paid for licenses hereafter to be granted to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors or any of them, by less measure than one quart within such borough of North Plainfield; and it appearing that no newspaper is published in such borough of North Plainfield, but that two daily newspapers, to wit, "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," are printed and published in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and circulated extensively in said borough of North Plainfield: I do hereby on this twenty-seventh day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, order that the seventeenth day of June next at ten o'clock in the forenoon be fixed as the time, and the court house of the county of Somerset at Somerville as the place, when and where I will consider said application, and that public notice of said application, and of the time and place when and where the same will be heard be given by publication of this order in said two daily newspapers, viz., "The Plainfield Evening News" and "THE DAILY PRESS," for two weeks next preceding the said time fixed for the hearing of said application, at least four times in each week, and also by posting copies of this order in five of the most public places in the said borough of North Plainfield at least two weeks prior to the said seventeenth day of June next, which methods I deem proper and necessary.

IS PLAINFIELD HEALTHIER WITHOUT SEWERAGE?

A Review of the Case From One Who Has Made a Study of "Water Works in Plainfield."

The following letter, which is the only one that covers the ground in a complete, substantial and grammatical way, and which was recently sent by ex-Mayor Randolph to the Common Council's Committee on Water, the readers of THE PRESS will be glad of an opportunity of reading in full:

To the Committee on Water Supply and Sewerage:

From time to time for a dozen years past, efforts have been made to induce the City of Plainfield, through its authorities, to adopt a system of artificial water supply. For good reasons the subject has each time been postponed. But the advocates of schemes of this sort continue to urge them. I am informed that at present the discussion is already so far advanced that a report of your committee is ready to be submitted to the Common Council, and that the report will favor the introduction of water through conduits, and other plans incident to such a scheme.

Your committee has invited communications from citizens on this subject, and, whilst apologizing for having deferred the expression of my views until this late hour, I feel it a duty, even now, to place them before you. I had not really supposed that anything approaching a decision in favor of this scheme would be reached this Summer; and, in common with many well-informed citizens, I believe it would be a serious mistake for the Council to take precipitate action. Whilst it is true that the subject itself is an old one, no well considered plan has ever been presented, certainly none that has met the approval of the citizens and tax-payers. And these, as they must bear the burdens and take the consequences attendant upon this movement, must surely be heard before the city is committed.

When I entered upon the duties of the Mayoralty about eight years ago, I was partially impressed with the idea that a system of water-works would be beneficial to Plainfield. I made as careful a study of the subject as possible during the two years of my service, noted with some care the probable advantages and disadvantages of adopting such a system, examined questions of health connected therewith, ascertained the trend and grade of the territory to be covered, procured (without cost to the city) the opinions and advice of some of the most distinguished engineers on the subject; computed as nearly as possible the cost of such an undertaking, and reached the conclusion in my own mind that the adoption of any such scheme as had been proposed would be prejudicial to the best interests of our city.

Among the facts and arguments as they then appeared to me, and as they now appear, are the following:

I. First and most important, the health of the City of Plainfield has been, and is now, better than it is likely to be after the introduction of a water supply, with, or without, a system of sewerage. I have known this settlement for upwards of forty years. During all of that period it has been an exceptionally healthy town. It is as much so today as it ever was. Meanwhile it has grown from a village of 1,500 people to a city (with borough adjoining) of about ten times that population. Statistics, carefully gathered for a score of years, have regularly shown the remarkable fact of which we are proud, and for which we should be thankful, that Plainfield is the healthiest city of its size, if not indeed the healthiest city of any size, in New Jersey. The death rate with us is at a minimum, notwithstanding the fact that many invalids, afflicted with chronic complaints, come here for their health. This favorable condition of things we owe, under Providence, to two circumstances—the first of which is the peculiar and most healthful soil on which we live; the other is the absence of artificial water systems. As to the soil itself, its character is at once our salvation and our assurance. We live over a deep bed of uncontaminated and well-nigh uncontaminable gravel. Our settlement is more than a century old, and the members of your committee can find at any time door-yards in Plainfield in which wells and out-houses have stood near each other from the days of the earliest settlers, without the shadow of danger or injury to any family, many of the inhabitants having grown to old age in the houses built upon the same lots.

Any one who has had the soil beneath the worst neglected cesspool in Plainfield examined, will know that he has found there absolutely nothing but clean, fresh gravel. If he were to drive a well pipe (as our venerable Mayor Male once did), right down through that gravel, he would find good potable water. He might have a sentiment against using it, but if he used it he would find it perfectly innocuous. No more significant fact could be stated than this to show that we do not need artificial water supply to protect us from contamination from vaults or cesspools.

During the period of my public service I had examinations and analyses made by our State geologist, Prof. Cook, of water taken from a number of different wells situated in different parts of Plainfield, including some from central portions of the city, where residences were closest together. Some of these were taken from the upper lake, or stream, beneath our homes, that which is found just below the upper stratum of gravel. Some of the water was taken from the supply which we find stored away below the hard-pan that underlies this gravel. In every case Prof. Cook found that the water was pure and healthy to drink.

When we reflect on the fact that in every town in New England, New York and New Jersey, into which an artificial water supply has been brought, malarial and other disorders have subsequently prevailed, it should surely make us pause before courting a change so injurious.

Irresponsible and anonymous statements have recently been published to the effect that reputable and distinguished physicians have ceased to recommend Plainfield as a sanitarium because it is in danger from lack of water and sewage systems. There is not the slightest ground for such a statement, much less for such a medical opinion. Notwithstanding the croakers' prophecies the town is healthy, and is still a health resort. It will continue to be so until, or unless, it fall into the grip of the speculators.

II. Plainfield ought not to be delivered over to the mercy of any water company or of any water and sewerage company. Even a privilege to buy out such a company at some future time is only a delusion and snare. The estimates made by and for me indicated very clearly that a system adapted to the use of even the most thickly settled part of the city alone, would cost not far from $400,000, if well and thoroughly constructed, and with a suitable outlet for sewerage provided. It would be a particularly great misfortune to permit a cheaply constructed system to take possession of the ground. In this connection it might also be observed that, sooner or later, the cost and loss (if any) of any system adopted must fall upon the city. Whenever it does become necessary, therefore, to take up such an enterprise, it should be done in a manful way by the city itself and not turned over to speculators. But at this period in our history, it would, in my judgment, and in that of many others, be a most unwise proceeding to bond the city for the cost of water works. Our taxes have in various ways been increased from year to year until they are already too high, though not yet so high in some respects as those in some of our sister cities. We have seen the disaster brought about by extravagant and unnecessary municipal "improvements," and the warning furnished by the experience of others should be sufficient.

III. At present, no system of distributing the cost of such an enterprise as has been proposed is practicable, such as would be fair to the residents of the different portions of our much scattered town. Perhaps the projectors do not care for this, but the Council ought to care, and the people will. For example, it would not be fair for Netherwood or Evona to be held in responsibility for such a plan as might be designed chiefly or exclusively for the more crowded central portion of the city. This remark is by no means comprehensive, but will serve as an illustration of this point. Some day, if the town is allowed to grow naturally instead of being abnormally "boomed," we shall have a pretty solid settlement of three or four miles square, and can then, with much more equity and reason, give attention to this subject.

IV. Those of us who for many years have been permitted to enjoy our healthy and pleasant homes in Plainfield are reluctant to see a change attempted, which, as the closest observation and calculation shows us, must be detrimental alike to health and prosperity. We may indeed dismiss with contempt any endeavor to injure by falsehood the reputation of our city. But it is a more serious matter when it becomes possible that such falsehood, combined with a spirit of reckless speculation, may succeed either in injuring our public health or in enlarging our public burdens.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH.

Plainfield, June 7, 1889.

A CAUSTIC PROPERTY OWNER.

He Accuses Ex-Mayor Randolph of Sarcasm, and Past Councilmen of "Silly Twaddle."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The Central Times, in its issue of the 12th inst., publishes a letter written by ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, for which the Plainfield public ought to thank that gentleman heartily. He has no doubt found out, long before now, that it is of but little use to bring the Water Works problem before the public seriously, if anything is to be gained thereby, and hence Mr. Randolph writes a very sarcastic letter wherein he pleasantly refers to all the time-honored "chestnuts," in regard to the water question, which have appeared in print from time to time. It is true that he hits out pretty hard, but we must forgive him, because no doubt he has been much provoked by the silly twaddle to which we all have been obliged to listen for years, and which has been the cause of our city today being very far behind the times, so far as its improvements are concerned.

Mr. Randolph has evidently a fine sense of humor. This is shown in the very first paragraph of his letter, when he says that he "has been informed that at present the discussion is already so far advanced that a report is ready to be submitted," etc. A little further on he says that the water works problem was started eight years ago, and thus he draws attention to the fact that it has taken eight long years to get to the point of submitting a report. Of course, the inference is that it will take much longer to build the works, if the preparation of the mere report takes eight years.

Note again his bitter sarcasm when he says in the third paragraph that after years of consultation and study he has come to the conclusion that a system of Water Works and Sewerage would be "prejudicial to the best interests of our City."

Again he refers to that pleasing fiction of the "deep bed of uncontaminated and well-nigh uncontaminable gravel," which underlies Plainfield, and that where "formerly outhouses stood" in the days of the early settlers, there are now fine residences right over those very spots and people live and thrive there. But the funniest hit he makes is in the next paragraph, where he states that Mr. Male drove a well right through a cesspool and found "good potable water."

Mr. Randolph continues that some people might have a "sentiment against this," but the water is perfectly good all the same. This is clearly aimed at those foolish people, who object to drink water which has a slight admixture of sewerage quite unmindful of the fact that on this very same kind of water our oldest inhabitants have existed and flourished. If people don't like this, why don't they stay away from our healthy city?

All this and much more Mr. Randolph relates in his funny epistle, and I trust that the same will have the effect which I have no doubt he intended it should have, viz: to show the folly of listening to all these old, foolish arguments of the mossbacks, instead of making Plainfield what it ought to be—a town with all proper modern and sanitary improvements, such as everyone now-a-days expects, and has a right to look for in our beautiful city.

An Example of Good Breeding and Politeness?

(From the Somerville Democrat.)

In connection with the Plainfield game it becomes our duty to speak of the crowd, or a certain part of it, that accompanied the visitors. Without casting any reflections on the visiting team, we must say that a more disgraceful, unruly, boisterous and insulting gang has never made its appearance on the West End grounds. Numerous complaints were made during the game about the behavior of the crowd, but all appeals to the Plainfielders to behave like gentlemen were useless. The actions of these "roughs" were strongly condemned by some prominent Plainfield gentlemen who accompanied the team, expecting to enjoy the game, but who had their pleasure marred by their fellow townsmen. It does seem that a club playing under the Y. M. C. A. standard might bring up a set of gentlemanly followers, not a set of half-drunken hoodlums.

The Plainfield Press, in commenting on the game, refers to Somerville as the "jumping off place." It may be the jumping off place, but we hope that such a crowd as jumped off here Saturday will never do so again. A more disorderly and ungentlemanly set have never visited our town, and our citizens were heartily glad when they went back to that "World" where they belong and which is evidently proud of them.

One young man, who was particularly noisy on the grounds, and who is well known to some of our citizens, was quieted down when some of the boys called him "Piggy." We do not know what they meant by this appellation, but he evidently understood, for he immediately subsided upon hearing it.

The newspapers published at Pinchgut (the name by which Plainfield was known for years), should study up their past history before slurring other places. They should also convert their "buckwheats" before sending them away from home—especially if they intend to call those whom they visit "hayseeds" when they return home. We may be "buckwheats" and "hayseeds," but our citizens are well bred and polite, and are always called gentlemen when away from home. They are not called "toughs," like a large number of those from Plainfield last Saturday were spoken of by some ladies and gentlemen from New York who witnessed the game.

LACK OF EVIDENCE

Not Enough to Keep Sullivan in Jail.

THE ACCUSED NOW OUT ON BAIL.

The Bond of $20,000 Promptly Furnished by His Friends.

Judge Tuley Thinks No Jury Would Convict Sullivan on the Testimony That Has Been Given Thus Far—New Facts Said to Have Been Developed Against Maroney—The Now Famous Carlson Cottage Placed on Exhibition.

CHICAGO, June 15.—Alexander Sullivan is at liberty again, under bail of $20,000. His bondsmen are Hon. Fernando Jones, one of the oldest and wealthiest settlers of Chicago and who celebrated his seventieth birthday last week; J. W. Tuohy, the extensive dry goods merchant; Michael W. Kerwin, a real estate operator, and Daniel Corkery, coal merchant. The combined fortunes of the four men probably exceed a million and a half. The scene around the court was intensely dramatic. Inside every seat and every foot of space was occupied, and even the Bench was invaded. Outside in the corridor a great crowd made up of men whose countenances denoted their Celtic origin, struggled and tore and beat in vain against the barred doors. Sullivan, escorted by Sheriff Matson and two deputies, was brought in through a private entrance. He was a shade paler than usual and at the audible commotion caused by his appearance his eyes swept the crowd with a hunted look as if in apprehension of a hostile demonstration. Then he took a seat among his array of counsel.

Three o'clock was the time fixed by Judge Tuley for rendering the decision, but that hour came and went by and still His Honor was absent. As the minutes went by Sullivan became perceptibly nervous and his agitation was communicated to the spectators. All sorts of rumors went round the room concerning the delay, but the hum of conversation stopped when at 3:45 the Judge made his appearance. Without any delay he plunged into the case.

Having explained the petition and the law upon which it was based he proceeded to briefly review the testimony taken at the coroner's inquest. He quoted especially from the evidence of the witnesses to Cronin had said that Alexander Sullivan would be the cause of his death and that the latter had instigated a conspiracy to kill him. None of this evidence he said would be admitted in a court of law. This excluded, there was practically no evidence against him.

It was conceded that Sullivan was an enemy of Cronin's. It was also conceded Cronin was a bitter enemy of Sullivan's. There were several theories of the murder. One was that he was murdered by people for revenge, growing out of the secret trouble. Assuming this to be so, what evidence was there identifying Sullivan with the crime. He was not shown to be connected with the renting of the cottage, or the hiring of the horse and buggy. It was not shown that he knew O'Sullivan or had met any of the other prisoners. No act could be traced home to him. The theory that he was killed to prevent the exposure of the secrets of the "triangle" was unreasonable. He, therefore, admitted Sullivan to bail.

The bonds were quickly made out and signed and Sullivan walked out of the room a free man.

The Grand Jury spent several hours in hearing the witnesses that testified before the Coroner, but little progress was made.

Officer Dan Brown, who preferred the charges of treason against Cronin, was on the stand five hours, but it is understood that he did not vary much from his previous testimony.

Since the arrest of Maroney new facts have been developed, going to show that he was not so continuously in New York and attentive to his business there as his friends would have it understood.

It is understood here, although it has not been verified, that Maroney has already admitted that he was in this city on April 6 and that he registered at McCoy's Hotel as W. C. Melville. He denies, however, that he remained here later than April 21.

An examination of the hotel register has been made and it has been found that the name "W. A. Melville and wife" appears under the date of May 5, the day after the murder. The two signatures are the same in every respect, except the middle initial, and resemble each other so closely that there seems to be no doubt that they were written by the same person.

There is also another signature of W. A. Melville and wife on May 3, but it is in a different handwriting from the other two.

Maroney will be given an opportunity to explain these queer circumstances if he is brought to Chicago.

The Chief of Police has several people in this city under surveillance who may be arrested at any moment that the authorities see fit.

It is also said that Michael Boland, the Kansas City police magistrate and one of the famous Clan-na-Gael triangle, is being shadowed by Chief Hubbard's detectives.

That Boland has not been arrested before this, on the ground of his implication in the conspiracy to murder Dr. Cronin, is regarded here with considerable surprise. They say there is just as much reason for holding him as Alexander Sullivan.

The Carlson cottage, now famous in Lake View, was opened yesterday as a sort of a museum for the gratification of morbid curiosity. At the suggestion of W. J. Lukes, agent of the property, a sign was hung out which read as follows:

"CARLSON COTTAGE,
OPEN FOR EXHIBITION,
Admission 10 cents."

All day yesterday the sensation loving public thronged to the place, and old Mr. Carlson was tolerably busy in taking in the dimes. His wife and daughter stood within and pointed out blood spots on the paper, the bad job of painting on the floor, position of the furniture—which has been removed by the police—when the murder took place, and the crowd looked on in a state of wonder that appeared rediculous. The spots made by the police with their tobacco juice were all taken for blood spots, and every little movable chip, stick or match, was pocketed and carried off as a relic.

They Can Go Armed and Equipped.

BOSTON, June 15.—Major Frost has received a despatch from London stating that Lord Salisbury had granted to the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia Rifle team permission to visit England armed and equipped as a military body. The team will leave for London from New York next Wednesday.

AN ITALIAN OUTRAGE.

A Woman Lured to New York and Imprisoned in a Tenement.

NEWARK, N. J., June 15.—Through the recent arrest of Joseph Gerratelli for assault and battery a peculiar and remarkable story was disclosed in Justice Van Ness' court yesterday. On Tuesday night Gerratelli was arrested for assaulting Mrs. Donato Malfebe in Cross street. Yesterday a dozen Italian and English witnesses were examined and Gerratelli was held for trial.

In the afternoon the cause of the trouble was revealed in Justice Dean's court, when Mrs. Gerratelli and Lawyer James M. Trimble applied for a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Malfebe on a serious charge. Mrs. Gerratelli related the particulars of a terrible outrage which she claims was afflicted upon her by the woman who caused Gerratelli's arrest.

Mrs. Malfebe, she said, invited her to New York some time ago and took her to a Mulberry street house, where she was kept a prisoner with her two young children for eight days. During that time she was subjected to many indignities in the tenement, which is inhabited by droves of Italians of the lowest class. She was finally rescued by her father and husband. Mrs. Gerratelli is a beautifully formed young woman of medium height.

GENERAL SCHOFIELD ILL.

The War Department Practically Without a Chief.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—General Schofield, now acting as Secretary of War, sent word to the department this morning that he was not feeling well and consequently would remain at home. The department was therefore practically without a head, though a few matters requiring immediate attention were taken to the General at his rooms. He has been pretty hard worked of late, having not only his own duties and to a larger extent those of the Secretary, but also the meetings and work of the Fortification Board to attend to. The Board has about finished its June labors and the officers will probably return to their stations early next week.

The President's Pleasure Trip.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—President Harrison, accompanied by several members of his Cabinet, and some friends, made another short trip down the Potomac to-day. Mr. Singerly's yacht Restless was again brought into requisition. The Presidential party left in the forenoon and will return to-morrow night or Monday morning.

Fourth-Class Postmasters Chosen.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The following fourth-class postmasters have been appointed in New York: C. W. Baker, East Chester; G. W. Rowley, Richmond Mills; B. A. James, Stockton; W. H. Stokes, Union Hill.

The Hollenback Vein Mine Squeeze.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 15.—There appears to be no material change in the Hollenback vein mine squeeze. The settling seems to have reached its limit. The cracks at Beaumont street have widened a trifle, some of the house doors refuse to work, and in one or two instances water pipes were wrenched off. Much less gas is now issuing, in fact, hardly any. The Hillman vein workings were entered, but they were not in shape to allow anything to be done. The squeeze in the Hollenback is said to be extending westwardly towards the Lehigh Valley depot.

Baranowiski Again Reprieved.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., June 15.—Pietro Baranowiski, the murderer of Mrs. Putlavitch and Agnes Katch, at "Bushy Tract," on May 12, 1878, and who was to have been hanged here on the 25th inst., has again been reprieved by Governor Beaver to October 23. The probability of Baranowiski's execution is very dubious. It is the general belief of the prison officials and others that he has become insane since his incarceration, though at this stage of the case there appears to be no legal procedure for the determination of that question.

There Are Other Claimants.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Mary A. Plunkett, who claims to be the assignee of two policies of the Berkshire Life Insurance company on the life of Moses W. Field, late of Detroit, Mich., is suing that company for $8,263 in the Supreme court. Notification has been received from Detroit that the assignment is fraudulent. Mary Field and Alice Woodbridge are suing for the same policies in Michigan.

Something in a Name.

BOSTON, June 15.—Judge Knowlton of the Supreme court has granted an injunction restraining the Order of Scottish Clans from doing an assessment insurance business in this State, its name being too much like that of its rival the American Order of Scottish Clans, whose charter antedates that of the former organization. The case will probably go to the full court.

The Kearsarge Getting Ready.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 15.—The preparation of the old war sloop Kearsarge for service in Haytian waters, is causing more than usual activity at the Navy Yard. The Kearsarge will go to Hayti as the flagship of Rear-Admiral Gherardi, commanding the North Atlantic squadron. The Admiral said to-day: "We shall go to sea to-morrow morning."

Consolidation Without Legislation.

CONCORD, N. H., June 15.—It is reported that the Boston, Concord and Montreal railroads have consolidated without asking for further legislation under the terms of the "Colby Act" of 1883. The Boston and Maine Railroad company contends that the consolidation cannot be effected without a further act of the Legislature.

Excitement in the Coffee Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Some excitement was created in the Coffee exchange yesterday by the announcement of a big decline in the Havre market. The market here declined 70 to 75 points below Thursday's close. About 123,000 bags changed hands, the largest day's sales for many months.

A Clergyman Killed by a Train.

LEBANON, Pa., June 15.—Rev. W. F. Kramer, pastor of the Reformed church of this city was struck by a Reading railroad locomotive yesterday and instantly killed. He was riding at the head of a funeral procession at the time of the accident.

An Immense Purchase of Sugar.

BOSTON, June 15.—The Standard Sugar refinery of this city has effected what is believed to be the largest purchase of sugar ever made, having secured 25,000 tons in Cuba at five cents, calling for some $2,500,000.

His Fast Ended in Death.

GARDINER, Me., June 15.—The East Pittston, Me., imitator of Dr. Tanner, named Watson Goodspeed, who had fasted thirty-nine days, died this morning.

SOME NEW OUTING GOWNS.

How to Dress for the Rapidly Approaching Vacation Days.

Riding Fashions For 1889—Something About the Much-Abused Bathing Gowns—Water Rigs for Yachting Girls—Some Tennis Gowns.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

Now that the young Summer is with us, the perennial sailor hat appears again on the promenades, the lawn tennis racket is taken down from the hook on which it is has hung in winter obscurity, the alpenstock is knotted with fresh ribbons, the bathing cap and stockings are laid out in readiness, the long double canoe paddles are excused from further service as portiere poles, the bright colored sun umbrella prepares to act as beacon light in the matter of beach flirtations, and the sweet girls of the select "400," such of them as are not already off to Europe, button themselves in the natties of riding habits and spend their afternoons cantering through the long blossomy bridle paths of Central and Prospect Parks or over the country roads, where the sunshine is filtered through the June leafage of oaks and chestnuts, and where the bobolinks are carolling joyously.

Nearly all of the fair equestrienne wear a few flowers fastened in the bodices of their severe dark habits—a clover head, a sprig of mountain laurel, a wild rose—and one young girl with a velvet jockey cap has her corset thrust full of buttercups and daisies. One by one or in pairs or groups they dash by in mounted procession, and the habit of number thirty-seven is as like in cut and finish to the habit of number two as a couple of peas in a peascod or two editions of the almond-eyed Chinese baby. One hundred riding habits of one hundred girls of fashion are in all essential particulars identical. Every seam, every fold, every hem is the same, every cross cut, every curve, every device to the exact number of buttons on the sleeve and the queer long coat tails shaped squarely behind.

Even in color there is little variety. Sixty per cent. of the riders wear black and eighty per cent. of the remainder are habited in dark blue or green. A young girl in a claret habit and cap, who canters about with the zest of extreme youth, is brightly conspicuous, and a strong handsome woman, whose eager, quivering horse tosses his silky mane and curves his glossy neck in impatience for a burst of speed, wears a light gray habit with braided front after the fashion worn by foreign ladies and affected by the Spanish donna in particular. One dark-eyed woman rides very badly; she has never been away from her teacher's guidance in the tan bark rink of the academy before. Her black habit turns back in the revers at the throat, from beneath which peeps a fold of an English "pink" handkerchief worn over the regulation linen bosom. The beautiful glowing face of a woman who sits as if she and her horse were one rises above a bottle-green habit whose stand-up collar and bodice revers are embroidered with gold braid. Here a habit buttons up to the throat and fastens with a whip pin over a white linen collar, there a bodice turns back and away from a starched shirt front with small gold studs and a very manish cravat in a very conventional tie. One sweet girl with a mass of fair curly hair in a soft Psyche knot under the stiff-brimmed hat paces by in a double-breasted bodice with frock coat front and a double row of buttons, always a becoming addition. A girl with moist red roses on her breast shining like a star wears a bodice with roll collar and without basque, but shaped over the hips and with square-cut corners.

Some women wear the high English silk hats and others the more youthful jockey caps cut from the material of the costume. A sweet voiced girl pulls up by a hawthorne bush and begs her groom to restore the crop which has fallen from her hand. She has a handful of carnations under her chin and on her head a hat with sweeping plumes, a dashing Di Vernon hat which the other riders frown on and which recalls the silk and velvet skirts of the past and gone riding regime.

But if there is little diversity in the hue of the costumes there is less in the fitting. Always the cloth is of medium weight and fine but exquisitely firm in texture. Always the skirt is scant and short but long enough to cover the stirrup foot well, longer appreciably than last year. Always the bodice is plain and tight, slightly shorter than last season, a faint, far off reflection of the Directory fashions. Always, whatever the color or pattern, always the habit fits like a wet Long Branch bathing suit, clinging to every line of the figure, smooth as the peel of an apple, close as the rider's own skin.

Under the habit are worn long trousers which take place of petticoats. These are made of the same cloth as the habit and are set into a yoke of dark satin at the waist. They are turned up with a hem at the bottom and finished in the seat with chamois skin. They are cut like men's trousers, except that a little fullness is allowed on the inside seam of the right leg where it goes over the pummel. Some of the riders no doubt are wearing trousers of elastic jersey webbing and some of those who take fences in the hunts on Long Island wear knee breeches of the Knickerbocker pattern. All the best costumed of the riders have had their habits draped on their own saddles. To insure the graceful fall of the skirts one V is taken out of the forepart oer the knee and one extending from the waist almost to the knee; this relieves the lap of surplus stuff and shapes the body part of the skirt easily.

See that pink-cheeked damsel bend in mock saluation till her yellow roses mingle with the horse's mane. She is riding without corset, as all the best tailors recommend this season. A shaped corded band is the new substitute which supports the loins, and there is far greater freedom of seat and action. Safety is greatly increased, if such a paltry matter is to be considered. Stout women continue to brace themselves with corsets, but no great number of stout women ride. The stirrup strap has at last ousted the awkward and unwieldy bags of shot or lead with which the hem of the skirt has so long been weighted, and which frequently irritated and frightened the horse. Some good riders wear buttoned gaiters of dark cloth, but boots are more correct and the conventional riding boots are made of Morocco and patent leather, two materials always, and reach to the knee.

Some few women who are going on western vacations are having riding habits made on the Jenness Miller divided skirt principles, for in the Valley of the Yosemite and among the Colorado canyons women must use all the advantages which nature originally gave them and ride astride or leave the chief glories of mile high precipices unseen.

It is hard to turn from the tramping of hoofs and the tossing of silky manes and the arching of curved necks, but in June the bathers always begin to demand attention. The bathing gown about as urgently as any character in the country demands vindication. Allowing for exceptions, it is a much abused article of attire. An amateur photographer has an interesting Brighton Beach picture. Two young girls emerging from the water and an indefinite number of men are crowded close to the edge of the breakers to observe the spectacle. One girl's head is turned toward the sea, the other looks straight in front of her, and if a photograph recorded colors, her cheeks would probably show crimson. As a rule the trouble is not with a garment which in these days of athletics when women learn swimming, can't, for safety's sake, afford much length or bulkiness of drapery, and which, when wet, can only be hindered by the cramping expedient of wearing corsets in the water from making some revelations as to figure. Occasional instances to the contrary, notwithstanding, the bathing suit needs reform much less than do the beach loungers, whose conduct is making the most healthful of summer sports unfashionable among fastidious women.

The bathing outfits thus far exhibited show nothing to alarm the fishes. The skirts are short and girdled. Most of the modish suits have elbow sleeves, and are matched by coquettish bathing caps of oiled silk or bright colored kerchiefs. Black stockings and sandals are preferred. A fair proportion of the suits are sleeveless and a new bathing corset is in the market.

The fishing gown is something new. The pole and basket will be fashionable this summer. All the summer girls are devoting their energies to trouting gowns. A pretty example has a full gown front of fine yellow serge, tied at the waist by a girdle, and a redingote of gray green in the same material—the only stuff that will honestly endure water. Anchors are embroidered ad libitum and a sailor hat or helmet completes the costume.

A picturesque yachting dress is of silver grey surah with wide collar of blue turning away at the throat, blue cuffs and blue girdle, gray yachting cap with blue cord.

Day by day the tennis gowns multiply. They are made this year with full skirts laid in accordion plaits or more rarely tucked. They have seldom any draperies, a ribbon sash or girdle supplying all the finish necessary. Plaited skirt of scarlet surah and blouse of white surah, jockey cap of scarlet makes a bright costume which would be equally effective carried out in serge. Blue silk blouse with white silk kerchief and cuffs, white felt hat and tucked skirt of white flannel is another successful toilet. Pinkish grey serge accordion skirt is the basis of a third trimly simple tennis gown. With it is worn a blouse of white crepe and a small pearl grey straw hat trimmed with folds of white crepe and pink carnations. Cool yellow with lettuce green sash and green stockings and hat is perhaps the most fashionable combination.

OUTING GOWNS

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

THEIR DAY OF REST

A Quiet Sunday for the Johnstown Laborers.

THEY GATHER AT THE PULPITS.

Clergymen of Six Denominations Conduct the Services.

The Present Cool Weather Saves Many Lives in the Conemaugh Valley—The Pennsylvania State Board of Health Begins a Systematic Sanitary Survey—Six Bodies Recovered Yesterday—Burning the Debris of the Great Raft.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 17.—Sunday quiet reigned here yesterday and instead of the booming of dynamite the sound of sacred hymns was heard. In the few churches remaining services were held, but the largest meetings of the day took place in the open air. The weather was fair and the men seemed glad of an opportunity to turn from hard labor to religion. They gathered about the rough pulpits by the hundreds, and the blue coats of the militia were freely distributed among the jeans. Six denominations were represented by the clergymen who conducted the services.

Adjutant-General Hastings took his first vacation since he arrived in Johnstown, accompanying a party of newspaper correspondents up the Pennsylvania road to South Fork by special train.

COOL WEATHER SAVES MANY LIVES.

The wonderful cold weather has saved this valley from horrors too dreadful to think of.

The most sanguine calculators have reduced the population of the flooded district prior to May 31 to 28,500. They say about 15,000 bona fide registrations have been made and 1,200 bodies found. This leaves over 12,000 people to be accounted for.

Engineer Phillips states that the his blast at the bridge Saturday contained 500 pounds of dynamite, and in the future the same amount will be used.

SANITARY MEASURES.

The State Board of Health have begun a systematic sanitary survey of the flooded district, taking everything from South Fork to Nineveh. The survey will be a thorough one, and when completed will give the Board a detailed history of the sanitory condition of every house and family now remaining in this vicinity. It will be conducted exclusively by physicians, if competent ones can be obtained. If not, the best men obtainable outside the medical profession will be used. Each house in the district will be visited and a blank filled out giving the name of the occupant, the number of rooms, the location, number of people in the family present health of the family, condition of the cellar, condition of the living rooms and of the yard, source and condition of the water supply, and a statement of the sanitary condition of the house. The Board will have little trouble in getting directly at the most dangerous points. There are now something like two hundred and fifty men in the employ of the Board of Health at this place. The majority of them are laborers employed in getting out and burning the bodies of animals, disinfecting the houses and cellars and cleaning up generally. The others are physicians who are making the survey and attending the sick.

BURNING THE DEBRIS.

Six bodies were recovered yesterday. They were in an advanced stage of decomposition, and were buried without further identification.

The channel in the drift was open twenty feet yesterday afternoon. Last night 150 barrels of oil were emptied on the drift and ignited. The wreckage is burning fiercely for two hundred yards, and the entire valley is illuminated. The debris was searched previous to being fired, but no bodies were found.

A CITY WITH A SCOURGE.

Diphtheria Raging and No Attempt Being Made to Stamp It Out.

LONG ISLAND CITY, June 17.—The alarm among the residents in the Fifth Ward, caused by the appearance of black diphtheria in that section, remains unabated. New cases are reported daily and the situation is becoming serious.

Dr. Neal O. Fith of Astoria, had six new cases yesterday, making a total of twenty-three cases that he has been called in to attend since the disease made its appearance. Four of his patients died to date. The other physicians in that section each have from three to ten cases.

The city is without a Health Beard, owing to the political differences existing in the local government, and consequently there is no authorized body to fight the epidemic.

Very few cases have been reported to Health Inspector Diestle, owing to the loose manner in which the health laws are enforced. There have been several deaths from the disease in other sections of the city during the past few days.

A Well-Known Sport Dead.

BOSTON, June 17.—Jim Keenan, the well-known sporting man, died here last evening. Keenan occupied a high place in sporting circles, and was considered one of the squarest men in that large community. He backed all the leading athletes in the country from time to time. He was a strong friend and supporter of John L. Sullivan, and he staked large sums on the champion. He also backed Teemer, "The Spider" and other members of the sporting fraternity.

The Head is Still Missing.

LONDON, June 17.—The police for the past week have been searching for the undiscovered portons of the remains of the Fisher woman. They dragged the Thames at Battersea Park and had with them the dog that rendered such valuable service in finding those portions of the remains that were discovered in Whitehall. The week's search has not been successful and the head of the unfortunate woman is still missing.

GOSSIP OF THE RUNNERS.

McLaughlin Arrives With the Great Terra Cotta from St. Louis.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Before 5 o'clock to-morrow afternoon the thousands who go to Sheepshead Bay race track will know what horse has won the great Suburban of 1889, and some persons will be richer and happier, while others will be in the dumps, and entertain a pretty poor opinion of their merits as judges of winning race horses.

Terra Cotta, the pride of the Chicago stable, who finished only an eyelash behind Elkwood for the race last year, and whom many thought would not be numbered among those that will sport silk to-morrow, is here, having come all the way from St. Louis by special express with his gallant rider, Jimmy McLaughlin, to struggle once more for the coveted trophy.

The chestnut horse was seen at the Gravesend track yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, cooling off in the shade of one of the Dwyers' stables, which had been placed at Mr. Hankins' disposal. McLaughlin was in the house but a few yards away, and after shaking hands with your representative, remarked that he had enjoyed a very quick and pleasant trip.

"We reached New York at 8 o'clock this morning," he said, "and walked down, arriving here at 12:30. I have just changed my clothes after giving Cotta a gallop. How does he feel? In splendid condition, and the trip doesn't appear to have hurt him a bit."

"How much do you weigh now?" inquired the reporter.

"About 120 pounds," was the reply, "although I was down to 117½ at St. Louis last week."

There is no fast work done at either Gravesend or Sheepshead Bay yesterday by any of the Suburban candidates, the track at both places being quite heavy from Saturday night's rain. The trial mile and a quarter in 2:10 by Badge, and Raceland's mile and a half in 2:40, as told yesterday, were the chief morsels of gossip. They were commented upon by many trainers, who now declare that should the track be in good condition neither one of the horses named will win the race. Badge pulled up very tired after his trial, but his followers do not view that symptom with alarm. Gorgo is said to have gone a lightning mile, and she is in high favor in certain quarters, while Bella B., the Dwyers' grand young mare, is said by the knowing ones to be positively dangerous. It was intimated that Inspector B., the brother to Bella B., would not start, his weight, with penalties, footing up 124 pounds, but friends of the Dwyers are of the opinion that they will let both brother and sister try for the trophy. The Inspector is so fast and good just now that 124 pounds will hardly stop him. Charley Dreux will not go, the colt being scratched because of a suspicious leg during the Gravesend meeting, before he beat Marauder and Firenzi at Jerome Park. Taragon represents Chesterbrook if the day is fine and the track dries out well, but if not old Eurus and his blinkers will bear the tricolor. Both are in splendid fettle. Elkwood's admirers think that he will acquit himself creditably. His victory last year was a surprise, and should he win again to-morrow he would be the sensational horse of the decade.

A HIDEOUS OFFENSE.

A Man Charged by His Daughter with Criminal Assault.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Menzo W. Griffith, an electrician, who came here with his 19 year-old daughter from Battle Creek, Mich., last November was arraigned in court yesteaday on a charge of assaulting the girl. By her own statement she inveigled her father into her room and arranged a signal by which persons placed in an adjoining room might burst in and catch her father in the act of attempting to assault her. The signal did not work and she declares that her father accomplished his purpose. Her boarding mistress and a detective broke in the door and found the girl on the floor with her clothing disarranged and her father rising from the floor with his clothing in disorder.

The man denies the whole story. He says the girl hates him and to get him out of the way pulled him down over her and held him there, that the watchers she had stationed in ambush might at a given signal rush in and find him in a criminating position.

Griffin left his wife in Battle Creek, claiming she was unfaithful. The woman will be subpœnaed here to testify as to several statements of her husband and daughter respecting the character of each and of another child who, it is alleged, was ruined by her father in Battle Creek.

On His Way to Birmingham.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 17.—John Jarrett left on the Philadelphia express at 4:30 o'clock last evening for New York, en route to Birmingham, England, where he has been appointed United States Consul. He was accompanied by his wife and two sons. They will sail from New York to-day on the Cunarder Alaska. Nearly two hundred friends of the family were at the depot to bid them farewell. Among them was Mr. Jarrett's sunday school class, which filled Mr. Jarrett's section in the sleeping car with fragrant flowers.

Stanley Meets Tippoo Tib.

ZANZIBAR, June 17.—A letter has just been received dated Ujiji, March 10, in which it is stated that Stanley met Tippoo Tib and joined forces with him. He sent his own sick followers back by way of the Congo river, and intended to proceed, together with Emin Pasha and Tippoo Tib, to the east coast. The letter states that they expect to arrive in Zanzibar some time in July.

Converts to Catholicism.

LONDON, June 17.—Amid great pomp and ceremony yesterday. Cardinal Manning received into the Catholic church the Rev. Mr. Townsend, who was until recently the principal of the Oxford mission at Calcutta. Among the other converts to the Catholic faith received at the same time were six Anglican clergymen.

Baseball Changes in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 17.—Pitcher "Billy" Bishop, of the Syracuse Stars, has been signed and pitchers Fanning and Gilmore been released by the Buffalo club. Shortstop Lufberry will be released this week.

The Navy Department Embarrassed by the Dilatory Tactics of the Contractors Engaged in Constructing the New Cruisers—The Petrel and Baltimore Months Behind Hand—William Walter Phelps and the German Mission.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The President made the following appointments Saturday: Wakefield G. Frye, of Maine, Consul General of the United States at Halifax.

Joseph A. Leonard, of Minnesota, Consul General of United States at Shanghai.

Zachary T. Sweeney, of Indiana, Consul General of United States at Constantinople.

Oliver H. Dockery, of North Carolina, Consul General of United States at Rio de Janeiro.

Oliver H. Simons, of Colorado, Consul General of United States at St. Petersburg.

George M. Roosevelt, of Pennsylvania, U. S. Consul at Brussels.

Levi W. Brown, of Ohio, U. S. Consul at Glasgow.

One of the greatest trials which the Navy department has to encounter is the remarkable manner in which the contractors for the new ships are acting. The Petrel and Baltimore are months behind hand, and the Government is exacting from each a daily penalty.

It was expected that the Baltimore would have been completed in every respect by this time, but the contractors now announce that a private trial of the vessel's machinery will be made this week for their exclusive use. The official trial is a matter of the dim future, as it is almost certain that a number of defects will be discovered, which will have to be remedied.

In regard to the Petrel, the Columbia Iron works, of Baltimore, Md., which had the contract for this ship found it more advantageous for them to furnish a fleet of ferryboats for the railroad company than fulfil their contract with the United States. They could make more money by paying the Government penalty of $100 per day and working on the ferry-boats than they could had they finished the Petrel. Of course this state of affairs could not last for ever, and lately the Navy department has received word that the ship is ready for her official trial.

The accident to the Charleston will delay her second trial at least two months as it has become necessary to procure new slides for those damaged in the recent trial in Santa Barbara channel. While the contractors look upon the accident as one of the most trivial in character and importance, the fact that it takes such a length of time to repair it looks to the average layman that the accident is more extended than was given out. At any rate, it will be welcome news when one of the ships is ready to be turned over to the Government to be utilized for effective services.

Though the State Department is reticent about it, as it was concerning the Samoan and Haytian controversies, the impression hourly grows more prevalent that William Walter Phelps will, on his return, be tendered the German mission. Mr. Phelps' diplomatic skill, as exhibited at the Berlin conference, has improved his chances in no little degree. In fact, since the treaty was ordered signed, no name has been mentioned for the post at Emperor William's court. Mr. Phelps' haste to return to this country is interpreted to be in answer to a summons from Secretary Blaine. On his arrival, it is understood, he will come to Washington without delay and talk the matter over with the President and Secretary Blaine. Friends of Field Marshal Murat Halstead appear to have abandoned all hope that his nomination can ever be confirmed. Little doubt is expressed that Mr. Phelps would receive the vote of every Republican Senator.

Major William S. Collier, retired, died here Saturday, aged 49 years. His body will be taken to Pittsburg for burial.

TEETH FOR A CORKSCREW.

Maggie Belonwick's Manner of Uncorking a Bottle May Prove Fatal.

NEWARK, N. J., June 17.—Maggie Belonwick, a domestic employed in the family of Mrs. William Taylor, at 138 Bank street, lies in a critical condition in St. Barnabas Hospital from the effects of a dose of corrosive sublimate.

The girl was taken violently ill on Saturday evening and Dr. J. H. Haydon was summoned. He found the girl suffering terribly, and after giving her the usual antidotes had her removed to the hospital. The girl told the family and the physician that she was using her teeth to draw the cork of the bottle containing the poison; that it came out suddenly and a portion of the poison slipped down her throat.

Miss Belonwick is about 19 years old, and it is believed attempted suicide, although no cause is known for such an act.

Shot by His Brother.

NEWARK, N. J., June 17.—Bertie Williamson of 33 William street, a lad of 14 years was accidentally shot by his seventeen-year-old brother Saturday night while the latter was carelessly examining a revolver. A bullet pierced the younger boy's jaw and left a deep ridge on the neck. The wound however, is not considered dangerous.

A Fatal Matrimonial Jar.

CANISTEO, N. Y., June 17.—The seventeen year-old wife of Henry T. McGunigal, a farmer, of West Union, committed suicide by taking morphine. She leaves a child about a year old. No cause can be assigned for the deed other than a trivial quarrel with her husband.

THE PRESS is now in its third year with a subscription list that includes all the intelligent people of the City and Borough, and with the advertising patronage of all the progressive and successful merchants of Plainfield.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Dr. J. T. Fritts is erecting a brick barn in the rear of his Park avenue residence.

—A Mother's Meeting will be held as usual in Reform Hall, to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock. All are cordially invited to be present.

—The electrical current will be turned on for the first time in the new First Presbyterian church this evening, to test the lighting facilities of the church.

—Young People's meeting to-night, at 8 o'clock, in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church. Subject, "Our Saviour" John 19—31-42. Strangers always welcome.

—During Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week, an iced cream festival and entertainment will be held in Hope chapel, in aid of the Sunday School library fund.

—The Daft Motor Company, that has strung wires along the Bloomfield line of horse cars, Newark, for the purpose of running the cars by electricity, is about ready to make a trial.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association will be held in the office of Jackson & Codington, this evening, at 8 o'clock.

—Bishop McNamara, the converted Catholic priest, conducted out door services in the grove in the rear of the Schepflin Building, yesterday afternoon. The attendance was large.

—The "Young Crescents" and the "Busy Bees" played ball on the Madison Avenue grounds, Saturday morning, and the score stood at the end of the fifth inning 18 to 9 in favor of the former.

—Special Officer Kriney on Thursday last arrested Eugene Shaw, on a charge of assault and disorderly conduct, preferred by Mrs. Sullivan. This morning City Judge Stillman fined the accused $30.

—Mr. E. L. Bonney leads the Young Men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. to-night, subject, "Hold Fast," Job. 27: 2-6; 1st Thess 5:21; 2 Tim. 1:13. All men are invited to be present and to join heartily in the singing.

—The rain on Saturday evening materially decreased the attendance at the festival held in the Dunlap building, by the members of Rebekah Lodge, No. 4, I. O. O. F. It is gratifying to know, however, that the ladies came out about even in their undertaking.

—Conductor John Archer who runs the 3:29 A. M. train to New York, has been subpœnæd to appear before the United States Grand Jury at Trenton on Wednesday of this week, to give evidence in the matter of the Plainfield post office robbery. The United States Grand Jury will doubtless indict "Pig" McDonald, the man arrested by Inspector Byrnes' men in New York recently.

A Reception to Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson.

A reception was given on Friday afternoon by the Elizabeth W. C. T. U., No. 2, at No. 206 Broad street, that city, to Mrs. Dr. T. H. Tomlinson of this city, President of the County W. C. T. U. There was a good audience and Mrs. Tomlinson entertained the Union for half an hour with a delightful and instructive address. Following the reception a luxurious supper was served by the ladies.

An Independent Bishop.

Catholics and Protestants in great numbers answered the advertisement of Bishop McNamara, the converted priest, yesterday afternoon, and held with him an enthusiastic out-door religious meeting. Mr. Geo. P. Morrison offered prayer. A collection was taken up for the Bishop's work, and many are desirous that he prolong his stay in our city.

—The season's here when bracing up accords with half mankind,
And every searcher after health some high-priced haven courts;
But wisdom whispers some of us, that we will surely find
The Olympia Bowling alley quite the best of health-resorts.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. Robert Skinner has resigned his position as driver of No. 2 Engine Company's truck.

The engagement is announced of Mr. H. W. Stover of this city, and Miss Clara Stone of New York.

Mr. W. A. Conger, of the firm of C. Schepflin & Co., leaves for Maine on Thursday, for a month's vacation.

Mr. Eames, of Brooklyn, and Mr. Herbert Kenaston of New York, were visiting Miss Kate Potter of Mount Pleasant, yesterday.

Mr. Al. Dunn, son of the Rev. Elston Dunn, is visiting friends in this city. Mr. Dunn is now connected with a large railway corporation at Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Hegeman of Sycamore avenue, Washington Park, start for Boston and Cottage City, to-morrow, to be absent the remainder of this week.

The fence in front of Mr. S. O. Staats' residence adjoining the Trinity Reformed church, has been set back two and one-half feet, thus widening the sidewalk and improving the same.

Miss Hazel E. Westervelt, of East Second street, started on Saturday for Anthony, New Mexico, to be absent for six months or a year, during which time she will be the guest of her brother.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich preached in the Trinity Reformed church last evening, and notwithstanding the intense heat a good-sized audience greeted him. His discourse was "Peace," his text being from Isaiah, 48; 18th verse.

The death is announced at Haddonfield, N. J., on the 16th instant, of Mary C., widow of the late John Harris, formerly of this city. The funeral will take place at the residence of the deceased's daughter, Mrs. Geo. W. Appleton, at Haddonfield, on Wednesday and interment will be made in the Methodist Cemetery in this city.

Manager Chas. Runyon of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, is entitled to great credit for extinguishing the fire in the cupalo over the company's office in the Stelle Building, during the shower on Saturday. Mr. Runyon and his men worked all of Saturday night and yesterday repairing the telephone circuit.

Right Eminent, Albert D. Winfield, of the Grand Commandery of the State of New Jersey, will visit Plainfield, on the evening of June 26, with other officers of the Grand Commandery, for the purpose of constituting Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., of this city. In all probability officers and members of other Commanderies of the State will be present and participate in the interesting ceremonies.

Saturday's Storm.

The thunder storm on Saturday afternoon was the heaviest experienced in this vicinity for many years. In addition to the damage done by the lightning, as reported in Saturday's PRESS, the Telephone Company's office was damaged to the extent of about $500, and several other residences were also struck. Among them were the houses on West Fifth street owned by Mr. Wm. V. Mundy and a house on West Third street, owned by Mr. James Brand. Both houses were considerably damaged.

Mrs. Walter Coon of East Second street, was standing in front of the kitchen stove while the storm was raging most fiercely, and a bolt of lightning struck the chimney, descending to the kitchen, severely burning Mrs. Coon on the feet.

During the storm a son of Mr. Solomon Flaig of East Front street, is reported to have been knocked down by a bolt of lightning, while attempting to close a window. In other parts of the city trees were struck.

A timely shower and the efforts of neighbors, saved the house of Mr. Charles McCutchen in Washington Park, from serious damage if not total destruction, during Saturday's storm.

A chimney at one corner was struck and shattered, and a few minutes after the sheathing of the roof of an adjoining tower began to smoke. Mr. H. P. Reynolds, with a friend who was visiting him, and Mr. Wm. H. Griffen, another neighbor, hurried to the assistance of Mr. McCutchen's servants. A ladder was secured by which they could reach the dangerous spot, and a few pails of water augmented by a fierce shower that just then set in, quenched the fire. The electric wires in the house were all burned out.

A Boom in Coal.

The Central Railroad Company is about to make great improvements in Elizabeth and Port Johnson, for the purpose of bringing up the coal traffic in the above-named localities. It is the purpose of the company to illuminate their tracks at night, from Spring street to the coal docks at Elizabethport and to Port Johnson, so that two gangs of men will be kept employed and the work continued without interruption, night and day. The yards for switches and side tracks will also be opened and enlarged from Spring street down. When all arrangements have been completed, the coal which has heretofore been handled four different times in coming from the mines until it finally reaching tide-water, will come through direct.

—The Rev. Mr. Skellenger of Dunellen, will conduct the devotional exercises at the Warren Mission chapel, to-morrow evening, under the auspices of the Society of Christian Endeavor. A song service will commence at 7:45. All are invited, especially the young people.

"CERTAINLY BETTER."

Thirteen Hotels and Saloons Paying $6,000 to the City, Preferable to Fifty-Two Unlicensed Drinking Places.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

The Plainfield Press says that "intoxicating liquors are being sold in fifty-two places" in that city, and "the proportion of whiskey (good and bad) that is sold is much greater than the amount of beer or other intoxicating liquor." This is certainly a very different story from that told about Plainfield a few short months ago. Then it was shown, and quite conclusively, that high license had—to say the least—kept the number of saloons down to thirteen, notwithstanding the fact that the city had grown rapidly and had received a large accession of factory employes through the building of new machine shops. It must be taken into account that the Press does not look at this matter from the standpoint of either Prohibitionists or Republicans, but it certainly could not make the statement, giving actual number of drinking places, unless it had some ground. If this surreptitious business is the result of shutting up all hotels and "respectable" places, and refusing licenses to any, then it is time that the original thirteen drinking places were licensed. It is certainly better to have thirteen hotels and saloons and $6,500 per annum in the city treasury, from license fees, than to have four times that number of drinking places and not a dollar of revenue.

[We do not look at the above, nor any question so vitally affecting the city's interest, from a Prohibitionist's, a Republican's, nor any other biased or irrational standpoint. We view it with an unprejudiced eye from the heights of a mountain of common sense. Every man who has an ounce of honesty and judgment in his composition, will agree with the Journal and THE PRESS—it is better to have thirteen respectable hotels and saloons licensed and paying the city a revenue of $700 each, besides helping to suppress illegal traffic, than that 52 illegitimate places should be selling it without restriction.—ED.]

The Sweet Girl Graduates.

The question has been brought up at this time, as in former years, as to the most appropriate costume for the young ladies who have successfully passed examination at High School, and will receive their diplomas at the hands of the committee, on the 27th inst.

It has been said that too much money has been spent upon dresses to be worn at commencements. Naturally every young lady wishes to appear at her best upon such momentous occasions in her life as the one in question, and no doubt has pleaded that a brilliant mind, like a sparkling gem, is all the fairer for a rich setting.

It has been argued that so much display of finery by those who are fully equal to the expenditure, must naturally embarrass others who are quite as anxious to appear well dressed, but whose means may not admit of the outlay.

Fashion has issued its decree, however, and it is understood that the young ladies of the graduating class of 1889 will wear white costumes, made simply in "First Empire" style, with broad sashes. These costumes in themselves are not particularly expensive, while they are very pretty, and, moreover, are judged to be, (by those who should know), the truly appropriate dress for the "sweet girl graduate."

St. Mary's Congregation's Subscription.

The collection taken up in St. Mary's church for the Johnstown sufferers, yesterday, amounted to $150. The sum would be larger only a good many members of the congregation had already subscribed to the various committees here and in New York. A check for the above amount was sent to the Treasurer of the City fund, J. K. Myers, Esq. It was announced that the names of the contributors would be published in the local papers, but THE PRESS was able to obtain only the following names:

And Mr. Richard Stevens' Birds Won.

(From the Lexington, Va., Examiner, June 14.)

Postmaster Stephenson released at 7 o'clock A. M., on Saturday last, eleven homing pigeons from Plainfield, N. J. Six of the birds got home at 2 P. M., that day, having made the flight of 309 miles in exactly seven hours, or at the rate of 44 1-7 miles per hour. Of the other five, three straggled in on Saturday afternoon, one arrived on Sunday morning, and one was still missing late on Sunday afternoon.

The Other Side of the Case.

To the Editor of The Press:—In the daily papers of the city Mr. C. Place has given us some parlimentary law to sustain him in his rulings at the North Plainfield school meeting. By the authority as given by him, it seems that the motion "to indefinitely postpone" is "much used in the United States" which I have always supposed that the township of North Plainfield was situated in, and not in England. I have a faint recollection that there was such a thing as the Declaration of Independance once on a time, and I believe that as far as this country is concerned that the English parliamentary law does not govern it. I suppose that it is also English law to deny the right of appeal from the decision of the chair, as he did at that meeting. Now Mr. Place I will give you some American parliamentary law in regard to the matter:

Cushing's Manual, chapter 5: The assembly may look upon the proposition as useless or inexpedient and may therefore desire to suppress it either for a time or altogether. The subsiding motions for this purpose are the previous questions and indefinite postponement.

Also Cushing's, chapter 6: When a proposition is moved which it is supposed may be regarded by the assembly as useless or inexpedient and which it may therefore be desirous to get rid of, such proposition may be suppressed for a time by means of the previous question or altogether by a motion for indefinite postponement.

Also chapter 6, section 2d: In order to suppress a question altogether without coming to a direct vote upon it in such a manner that it cannot be renewed the proper motion is for indefinite postponement, that is a postponement or adjournment of the question without fixing any day for resuming it. The effect of this motion if decided in the affirmative is to quash the proposition entirely as an indefinite adjournment is equivalent to a dissolution, or the continuance of a suit without day is a discontinuance of it. A negative decision has no effect whatever. Also from the rules of the Assembly of the State of New Jersey Legislative Manual of 1889, page 68: On motion, when a question is under debate, no motion shall be received, but, 1st to adjourn. 2d a call of the house. 3d to lay on the table. 4th the previous question. 5th to postpone indefinitely.

Now sir this is all common American parliamentary law. It is not, "English donch you know." I would like also to call Mr. Place's attention to the question of appeal so that the next time he may preside at a meeting he may know the rights of any member of it.

Cushing's Manual, chapter 10: If the decision of the presiding officer is not satisfactory any one member may object to it and have the question decided by the assembly. This is called appealing from the decision of the chair. The question is then stated by the presiding officer on the appeal. Namely, shall the decision of the chair stand as the decision of the assembly, and it is thereupon debated and decided by the assembly in the same manner as any other question, except that the presiding officer is allowed to take a part in the debate which on ordinary occasions he is prohibited from doing.

Now, sir, do you call it due consideration when you refuse a member the right of appeal? It may be right under English law, but I have been taught that the right of appeal was an inherited right of every American citizen, which had it not been for my desire for order and not to be the cause of any trouble, I should have insisted on that right. Mr. Editor were it not for occupying too much of your valuable space, I could quote to sustain the question from Jefferson's, White's and Mathia's manual, and Collier's Cyclopædia.

Yours,
E. C. Morse.

Mr. Cleaver Speaks of the Scandal Mongers.

Notwithstanding the very high temperature last evening, a fair sized audience met in Reform Hall. The chair was filled by President French, and Mr. Vanderbeek and a full choir were present. Rev. J. B. Cleaver conducted the devotional services reading from the wise sayings of Solomon and offering an appropriate prayer.

Mr. Cleaver was the speaker and fully sustained his well earned reputation for logical argument and oratorical ability. He justly reviewed the good work done by the club and predicted its future usefulness. Referring to the base falsehoods circulated for the evident purpose of injuring President French, he bore down with justifiable severity upon slander mongers of all grades and professions. After ably advocating the continuance of no license in Plainfield, and evidencing the good results of prohibition in Kansas, as realized by the people of that State, he closed with a touching incident of the terrible effects of strong drink and appealed for the aid of all to suppress the evil. Mr. Cleaver was listened to with great interest. President French followed with a few but stirring remarks, and after two men came forward and took the pledge, the meeting adjourned in usual form.

For a New Church Organ.

A special meeting will be held in the lecture room of the First Baptist church, this evening, at 8 o'clock, to discuss and put in operation a plan for securing a new church organ. The success of the enterprise will depend upon a large attendance. After the business of the meeting, strawberries and iced cream will be served.

HILLSIDE CEMETERY.

The Recent Monuments Erected in the "Home of the Dead."

Mr. Peleg S. Tefft, representing the Smith Granite Company of Westerly, R. I., has just completed the setting up, after two weeks' work of two more handsome and costly monuments in Hillside Cemetery, making five in all which the Smith Company has erected in the "home of the dead" in this city.

The first of the two latter monuments which are now located in the cemetery, was erected for Mr. Wm. G. Anderson of No. 16 Franklin place, and includes the enclosure of granite posts and bronze rails. The monument represents a cottage, and cost upwards of $2,000.

The second monument was erected for Mr. J. L. VanNest of East Second Street. This monument is rustic in design, consists of two stones, one side being polished and lettered, and the other side rough. The cost of the monument was considerable.

In conversation with a Press reporter Mr. Tefft said that years ago, he used to go to school with Mr. Geo. H. Babcock, and his present partner Mr. Stephen Wilcox, the latter now Summering at Westerly, R I. He has been with the firm for 33 years, he says.

It may be interesting to state that the Smith Granite Company, of which Mr. Geo. H. Babcock of this city is one of the wealthy and influential members, employs 350 men, eight of whom are on the road "setting" stones. The company also has agents in the larger cities, and monuments have been sent by this firm as far as SanFrancisco and Cuba.

Upon Mr. Tefft's authority it is stated that Mr. Geo. H. Babcock of Plainfield, started the Westerly Echo, the first paper printed in Westerly, R. I., which eventually merged into the "Westerly Narragansett Weekly," a paper of big proportion and large circulation. Mr. Tefft says he used to go to the office, wherein the paper was published, and help the proprietor "run off" the edition on a hand press. Mr. Babcock is the owner of a handsome monument in Riverland Cemetery, R. I., which cost in the neighborhood of $8,000.

Mr. Place's Ruling Sustained by High Authority.

To the Editor of The Press.—As Chairman of the North Plainfield School Meeting, held at the school house, last Tuesday evening, I declared out of order a motion to "indefinitely postpone the resolution before the house," appropriating money. Such ruling at the time was criticised and has been since. I felt that I was right in so deciding, and since have taken trouble to look the matter up. In Crocker's "Parliamentary Procedure," chapter XII, the question of "Indefinite postponement," is discussed as follows:

"The motion to indefinitely postpone, though much used in the United States, is unknown in English parliamentary practice. Its effect, if carried in the affirmative is to dispose of the pending question permanently, being equivalent in its results to a negative vote on the main question * * * This motion, therefore, is a motion of rejection rather than a motion of postponement, and its form is not properly indicative of its use. It is permissible only when authorized by special rule. As, therefore, the motion to postpone indefinitely is cumulative and unnecessary, and as its use disturbs the even balance of justice, it has no place in a scientific system of assembly procedure."

The author of the book from which the forgoing has been taken, was President of the Massachusetts Senate, for some years, I believe, and the principles as set forth by Mr. Crocker in his book were adopted by the Massachusetts Senate, to govern the proceedings of that body, and so far as I know are in force today. It is my aim in presiding over deliberative bodies to deal impartially with any question arising, and to give to the mover of every motion that due consideration which belongs to him. The authority I here quote from, sustains me in the ruling I made at that meeting.

Respectfully yours,
June 12, '89. Chas. Place.

'89's Reception by '87 and '88.

The classes of '87 and '88 will tender a reception to the graduating class of '89 at Assembly Hall, on the evening of commencement day, June 27. The classes extend a most cordial invitation to the alumni of the High school to be present.

The newly filled science room and cabinets will be open for inspection. Every member of the alumni will be entitled to two tickets, which may be obtained of the chairman of the committee, W. N. Chamberlin, 70 Madison avenue. Early application should be made and applicants should state the class in which they graduated.

Prohibition (?) Plainfield.

(From The Central Times.)

Charles Bock couldn't get a license to run a saloon in Plainfield. So he went into North Plainfield and get the Somerset Courts to give him a license to bottle beer and such, and to fill orders for thirsty Plainfielders who consume the beverages on their own premises.

So the City of Plainfield loses Mr. Bock's $700 license fee, yet he carries on just a big a business here as he chooses as his sale within the City's limits is absolutely unrestricted.

The Rainy Weather.

The Signal Service at Washington reports that the Spring of 1889 will go down in local weather annals as one which has broken all records since the Signal Office was established, so far as the amount of rainfall is concerned. The months of April and May especially, have been marked by a succession of heavy rains which generally lasted for several days at a time.

Base Ball Among the Potter Men.

The first and second nines of the Potter Press Works, played an interesting game of ball on the grounds opposite the Works, Saturday morning. The features of the game were the battery work of Lee and Townley, the fielding of Overbaugh and Babcock for the first nine, and the catching of Andrews for the second nine. Hawkins made a fine running catch in centre field for which he was loudly applauded. Zeisz was knocked out of the box in three innings. Randall, taking his place was more effective. The score was as follows:

A Silver Wedding at Hillside Cottage, Scotch Plains.

To the Editor of The Press:—We were among a numerous assemblage of delighted friends who Thursday evening, assisted in celebrating the 25th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller, an event long anticipated by them. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and vines. Outside among the trees were two canopies from which were suspended Chinese lanterns. The scene was very beautiful both from far and near. To add additional beauty to the surroundings, myriads of fire flies flashed their little lanterns as if they, too, enjoyed the occasion and wished to do their part toward making it a brilliant success.

A string band from Elizabeth gave forth sweet music, and all were welcomed to the wedding feast. Everyone present enjoyed the happy occasion, and many kind reminders were left behind to be enjoyed by the recipients—who so richly deserve them. May the golden succeed the silver, and the future bring them continued health and happiness.

A Guest.

THIS WAS THE PLOT

Woodruff Makes a Full Confession.

MANY OTHERS IMPLICATED.

Sullivan, Coughlin, McDougal and Melville, All Had a Hand.

The Imprisoned Horse-Thief Tells of His Connection with the Assassination of Dr. Cronin—The Fearful Details Carefully Recited—It Was Intended to Have Had Cronin's Body Found in England, His Clothes Now There.

CHICAGO, June 17.—Woodruff, the horse-thief, who is implicated in the Cronin murder, has made a full confession of his connection with the assassination, and, in substance, it is as follows:

"I arrived in Chicago on March 26 last and soon after made the acquaintance of P. O'Sullivan, the iceman. I met Detective Coughlin, whom I had known by reputation as a "fence," a few days later. The man Melville, who is supposed to be Moroney, arrived in Chicago about this time and I saw him drinking with Coughlin in a saloon. Just as we separated Melville told me he wanted to see me again and gave me a few dollars and added 'You need not be broke as long as I am in town.'

"On the day following I met Mike McDougall in company with Coughlin. I was introduced to McDougall, who, I found went by the name of Williams. After a talk which I did not hear, Coughlin left saying he had some business. As soon as Coughlin was out of sight, Williams said to me: 'How are you fixed?' I said: 'I am nearly busted.' He said: 'You are a d——d fool.' Then he said: 'Why don't you go down and see Alexander Sullivan? He is our banker and he may give you something to do.'

"I saw Sullivan and he said he could do nothing for me until he learned who I was.

"The Wednesday before the murder, I met Dan Coughlin on South State street. He asked me what I was doing and where I was living. I told him I was living at Dean's livery stable. Coughlin asked me how I was fixed, and told me he would see me again. He called at the stable the Saturday following. He then asked me to take a note over to Alexander Sullivan. He wrote a note in alphabetical cipher. I understood the cipher, as it was the same that was used by the Fenians when I was stationed at Niagara. The principle was the employment of every seventh letter from the one intended. The letter read:

"'Going up to P. O'Sullivans.'

"To come down to the night of the murder. After meeting Coughlin we walked toward Lincoln Park. He asked me if I could get a horse and wagon that night, something that would carry a trunk. I informed him that I could and at about half-past 12 that night I hitched up and drove up Lincoln avenue.

"On arriving near Ashland avenue and Lincoln two men jumped into the wagon without a word. I recognized one of them as a man by the name of O'Shea, alias Mike McDougall, who was a machinist or blacksmith from Philadelphia. The other man was Melville.

"They ordered me to turn to the right on Ashland avenue and directed me to drive right up to the cottage. The two men there jumped out went in. After waiting a few minutes—I think it must have been nearly 2 o'clock—P. O'Sullivan, Melville and Williams came out of the door carrying a trunk between them. They lifted the trunk into the wagon and Melville and Williams jumped into the seat with me. I drove across Fullerton avenue. We went down to Lincoln Park and across it, a little north of the animals' cages, to a little hill there, on the top of which are a number of trees. They ordered me to stop there, and at that time it was intended to take the trunk out into the lake as I heard them say that they had spotted a boat for that purpose during the day. They took the trunk out but Melville became frightened thinking that a policeman was perhaps following. They lifted the trunk back into the wagon and ordered me to drive on. I asked, 'Where shall I go?' Melville said, 'Anywhere. Just keep moving; I am afraid we are being followed.' Williams turned to Melville and said, 'Good God, the sewer is just as good a place as any.'

"The first sewer we came to Melville said 'This will do.' Melville and Williams jumped out. I went to the horse's head. Melville took hold of the trunk but could not lift it and called to Williams to help him. Williams grabbed it, gave it a jerk and threw it to the ground. The weight of the body raised the lid. The trunk was not turned over, nor was the body thrown out They carried the trunk to the sewer and tried to crowd it all down. Williams said, 'We can't dump it in.'

"The next thing I saw they had lifted the trunk lengthwise and let the body drop head foremost into the sewer. They then tried to crowd the trunk in, but finding they could not do this Melville said, 'We can take this back and burn it.'

"At this time I called out, 'Get in for God's sake and let's get back.' We drove back to Edgewater, where Williams and Melville got out and started for the lake, carrying a little medicine case which had been lying at our feet. When they came back, we turned toward the city, and on our way threw the trunk over a fence.

"When we had nearly reached the stable from which I took the rig, they got out. I told them I would see them the next day. Melville said he might not be in town. 'You have as good a scheme as you want now,' he said. I asked what that was, and he replied: 'You won't need any training to work Alek.' I said: 'Well, I suppose I stand in with you.' He replied: 'No, you don't stand in one bit. It is every man for himself now.' As they left me Williams said: 'Don't strike him too heavy. There is a good many of us.' I replied: 'Yes, the man would have to be a millionaire to take care of this crowd. I will hunt you up to-morrow.'

"The following Tuesday night I went to McCoy's hotel to find Melville but was unable to do so. Wednesday morning I took the horse and buggy over to the South Side intending to see Mellville and Alex. Sullivan and get some money but could see neither of them. Then I drove to Foley's stable and offered to trade the horse and was arrested.

"This is the first true and only statement I have made since my arrest. It contains substantially all the facts in my knowledge and I have determined to make a clean breast of this matter now."

Dr. Cronin's blood-stained clothes are probably in London, England. They were shipped, it is claimed, from Chicago to London and consigned to some unknown conspirator on the other side of the Atlantic. This remarkable statement was made to the police yesterday by a man who claims to have a full knowledge of what he is talking about.

According to this unknown informant Dr. Cronin's clothes were taken from his dead body and placed in a box which had been provided for the purpose. In this box were placed all the clothes worn by the doctor at the time of his death, his watch and chain and in fact every article of wearing apparel found on his person. This box was expressed to a man in New York city, and by him sent to London. It was first sent to New York as a precautionary measure in the event that any question should arise or an attempt be made to trace the clothes outside of Chicago.

In a few weeks, at an opportune moment, Dr. Cronin's body was to have been found on the banks of the Thames river, England. The body which was to have been found would have been in an advanced stage of decomposition. In every material particular this body would have corresponded exactly with that of P. H. Cronin, who suddenly disappeared from Chicago on the night of May 4, 1889, who was in Toronto a few days later, and who several weeks after that was interviewed in Paris. Upon his person papers were to be found which would have revealed the motive of his murder and branded him as a British spy and Irish traitor. Such was to have been the denouement of the Cronin mystery.

Ready to Identify Them.

NEW YORK, June 17.—The detectives who came from Chicago to identify Moroney and McDonald arrived at Police Headquarters yesterday. The Detective bureau telephoned to the Tombs asking for permission for the Chicago men to identify the men yesterday, but the Tombs officials refused, stating that the identification must be made upon the order of the District Attorney. It was arranged for the identification to take place to-day, when Moroney and McDonald with eight other men will stand on one tier of the Tombs and the Chicago detectives will take places on the tier opposite and pick out their men.

Hunting for a Cronin Suspect.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 17.—Pinkerton detectives are scouring the coal region for James Ferry, a Clan-na-Gael man who first warned Dr. Cronin of his impending fate. Ferry is a book agent.

DID HE COMMIT SUICIDE?

Cashier Williams' Mysterious Disappearance Causes Talk.

WASHINGTON, N. J., June 17.—This busy little city is excited over the disappearance of John Williams, secretary and cashier of the Washington Shoe company.

A few days ago Wilhams went to Philadelphia to transact business for the company. As far as can be learned he fulfilled his mission, but did not return. Subsequently his coat and hat were found in the park on what was formerly known as Smith's Island, and it was believed that Williams drowned himself while laboring under a temporary fit of insanity.

It is now said that Williams had, for some time, led a fast life and spent large sums of money. Since his disappearance expert accountants have been at work on his books, and it is alleged that they have discovered deficiencies, but to what amount has not yet been made public.

Williams was highly respected by the people of Washington, as he was considered a model citizen and husband. Much sympathy is expressed for his family.

The alleged discovery of a shortage in Williams' accounts has created a suspicion that he did not commit suicide, as supposed, especially as his body has not yet been found. By many it is thought probable that, anticipating the disgrace of exposure, he left his hat and coat on the island with the deliberate purpose of creating a belief in his death, and so averting pursuit.

Barnes Hall Dedicated.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 17.—Barnes Hall, the new Christian Association building at Cornell University, the gift of the late A. S. Barnes, of Brooklyn, was dedicated last evening. The building is the largest and finest of its kind in the country, costing upwards of $60,000 when completely equipped. President Adams, of the university, gave a history of the buildings and unveiled a valuable portrait of the founder, presented by Mrs. Barnes. The dedicatory prayer was offered by Rev. Charles M. Tyler, of Ithaca, and an address, "The Significance of the Gift," was given by Col. A. C. Barnes, the eldest son of the founder.

The Kearsarge Off for Hayti.

NEW YORK, June 17.—The United States man-of-war Kearsarge sailed from the Brooklyn Navy yard yesterday for Port-au-Prince. Admiral Gherardi was on board. In speaking of the trip the Admiral said: "There is nothing extraordinary in this trip considering the disturbed state of affairs at Hayti, and the fact that we have but one vessel there. The Secretary of the Navy thinks that the interests of the American residents would be better guarded by two vessels than one. I do not anticipate any trouble whatever."

Once an Actress, Now a Thief.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 17.—Mrs. Emily Clark was arrested yesterday for stealing a large quantity of household goods from Mrs. White of Franklin street, and Mrs. H. E. Perrine of North Pearl street, where she was employed as a domestic. She was an actress at one time in New York and took a prominent part in Jim Fisk's spectacular "The Twelve Temptations," which had a long run at the Grand Opera House in 1871. Her maiden name and the name she used on the stage was Emile Ritzler.

She Eloped with a Bank Clerk.

NEWARK, N. J., June 17.—Miss Margaret Young, sister of Surveyor Young, and one of the bright young teachers in the Eighth Street school, left her home on Sunday night last and failed to return. It has been learned that the young lady eloped with Henry Dwyer, a clerk in the Chester bank at Chester, Pa.

Followed the Thief to Canada.

MONTREAL, June 17.—The chief cook of the Hollywood hotel, Long Branch, N. J., a few days ago was robbed of $1,000. He followed the thief to this city, where he located him yesterday and made him return all he had left, which was $600. He returned home this morning.

Mother and Child Burned to Death.

BALTIMORE, June 17. — Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, aged 25 years, and her baby, Benjamin Harrison Tyler, were burned to death last night by the explosion of a coal oil lamp at their home in Raynersville, in Anne Arundel county.

Arrested in Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 17.—David May of Philadelphia was arrested here last night by Detective Kellert on a charge of having stolen $21,000 from a brick-making firm in Philadelphia.

MRS. TANNER'S RHYMES.

She is the Poet Laureate of the Administration.

Mrs. Ingalls Talks About Her Husband's Many Accomplishments—His Tussle With Trunks and Packing Boxes. Industrial Palsy in Washington.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

The administration is to have a poet laureate—Mrs. "Corporal Tanner," the wife of the sturdy and widely known Commissioner of Pensions. Ever since she graduated at Charlotteville, New York, she has written verse, but during the last year this has bourgeoned into a stately and ambitious form that may be said to be unique. She has now three finished lectures written in verse, which she has delivered since inauguration day—one as her husband's substitute in Connecticut, when, in the middle of his campaign in Washington, she telegraphed him:

"James Tanner: Do not come. I will take your place."

And she did, reading a new lecture in verse on soldiers, and especially the duty of the government towards them. Mrs. Tanner has four children, ranging from ten years old to twice ten, but she finds some time to give to the G. A. R., and to her other friends, the Woman Suffragists.

I heard her lecture this week on this latter question—it was a rhythmical and rhymed argument, in the dialect of an old fashioned New England farmer, a controversy between John and Betsy, after the fashion of Lowell or Carlton. Betsy's grammar was sometimes out of joint, but she had lots of facts and a shrewd wit and sarcasm that turned to derision John's ridiculous claims to superiority.

I have heard her lecture to the G. A. R., too. It is a heroic didactic verse, and the memories of war time are emphasized by the scream of the old eagle. Corporal and Mrs. Tanner seem exact counterparts like their predecessors, Gen. and Mrs. Black. Gen. Black is one of the most eloquent of orators, and his wife an accomplished reciter and each is proud of the attainments and ability of the other. Corporal Tanner is an eloquent man, facile and vigorous of speech. Careful and precise of articulation, and with a rich and ringing voice capable of pathetic modulations; and Mrs. Tanner seems likely to win distinction in current polemics and dialectics. Mrs. Tanner has a comely and attractive personality, a large head firmly poised upon ample shoulders, and a square face in which strength of purpose and decision of character are conspicuously marked. She wears her iron-grey hair brushed back from a high forehead in a style of which Madame Pompadore's Coiffure was an illustrious example.

Commissioner and Mrs. Tanner have gone to Georgetown to live, and there they will take the boys and girls and household pets and penates—to a great, stately old mansion in the middle of two acres of lawn.

One of the prominent figures in the vernal hegira was that of Senator Ingalls, who has at last pulled up his lares, etc., and gone to Kansas with his wife and seven children.

I made a neighbor's call and spent a pleasant hour the other evening at their castelated home opposite the Capitol. The Senator was away making the last arrangements, and the pretty little girls swarmed over the house, exhilerated over the homeward journey.

"Now, Mrs. Ingalls," said a lady of the party, "we must not stay a minute, but say a hasty good-by for you are doing your last packing."

"No, I am not hurried," she said, "and have next to nothing to pack. Everything is packed. Mr. Ingalls did it. I tell you it is a great thing to have a husband who is so helpful and effective as mine is."

"How does he get time for everything," I asked.

"It puzzles me," said Mrs. Ingalls, "but he does. I am glad, every day of my life, that I married a good packer and a good buyer," and she laughed with us at this characterization of the leader of American legislation.

She went on: "Mr. Ingalls has fairly spoilt me by his universal usefulness. He can do just anything. He can buy a house shrewdly, and he can build a house as it should be built, and he superintends the cutting and sale of our wood at home and the running of a farm. To be an editor and a lawyer is commonplace, but James can be trusted to select buttons and match a ribbon! What do you think of that? He buys our carpets and curtains and portieres, and they harmonize. He can do the marketing. Now and then he picks out a bonnet down town and fetches it home to me. He can select the girls' clothes as well as I can.

"One day when I was home at Atchison, a big box came to me by express from Washington. I opened it and found two dresses—handsome dresses, brand new. I saw at once that a mistake had been made, for I had not ordered any costumes, and I began to pack them away again and wait till the address was corrected. When Mr. Ingalls came up from town I told him about it and wondered whose they were. I got them and exhibited them to him—one a rich gray silk and the other a lovely lace robe. He acted puzzled about it, but said I had better try them on and if they fitted me, keep them till called for. I did. They fitted like a glove. The outcome of the inquiry was that he had voluntarily got them for me when he was in Washington a month before. He selected the silk and the lace and all the materials, and carried them to the modiste who had my measure and there they were! This lace dress I have on this minute is one of the trophies of that occasion. I tell you a man who can do such a thing is a poet. I have arrived at that pitch that I wouldn't give a cent for a mere statesman."

Few cities in the world can boast a larger number of public parks, than Washington; in fact, it is said to lead them all. But many of these parks are mere small triangles of green at the junction of streets and avenues. These, of course, all belong to the United States, and are cared for at Government expense, and the expense is expensive.

Passing one of these diminutive parks the other day, where eight men were ostensibly mowing, I halted and spoke to one of them who was leaning on his swath, and looking at the sparrows in the trees.

"I shouldn't think it would need so many of you to mow one little spot of ground that scarcely needs mowing, any how," I ventured.

"Deed, it do sorr!" he said, "what else wud we be doin?"

About twice as many unskilled people are hired by the Government as the work requires. I have often seen one man pushing a little lawn-mower on a public park, and another drawing it with a string; and I do not doubt that two supernumaries may be found sweeping with one broom.

Now remember that there are thousands of these unskilled clerks, messengers and laborers in all parts of this city, paid at least twice as much as similar service commands anywhere else in the country, and then imagine what effect the spectacle must have on the population of a city.

The result is palsy. Every trade in the district is demoralized and paralyzed by it. Everybody is waiting to be employed by the Government, and private industry is almost at a standstill. Thousands of mechanics are made loafers by the fact that they do not earn as much as Government employes. John does not want to work for $1 a day, when his brother James, "who has got influence," receives $2.50 a day for doing half as much.

I know a poor family, named Burrows, on one of the back streets. They all worked when and as they could, and managed to keep together the souls and bodies of father, mother and eight children. In a hapless moment I took one of the daughters out of a candy factory where she was earning $3 a week standing before a roaring furnace all day, and got Benedict to give her a place at $2 a day in the Government printing office. From that moment every member of the family knocked off work and sat down to be supported by her—father, brothers and sisters. She stood it for two years, but when they had all settled thoroughly down to indolence, she resigned her position as bread-winner and ran away and got married, and the indignant family of loafers execrated and abused her.

I sent for a tinker to repair my roof. He promised to come next day. He failed and I went after him. He promised again. Again he did not come. I sent once more to know the reason, and got the following note:

"MR CROWFEARD i ges i doo not care for the roof gob i hev a Bout giv up setch gobs i am a wating for a gob in the Intear depotmt"

So on all sides. Everybody is waiting for a Government job and neglecting work.

The life of an office-holder in Washington who has the power of appointment, is scarcely worth living. Public Printer Benedict says to me "When unsuccessful at my office they called at my house. They waylaid me when I went home, and I found them sitting on my doorsteps in the morning. They made my sister miserable, and finally they lay in wait for the little girl often, poured their griefs into her ear and induced her to pray to me. The importunity became intolerable. It was a pleasure to get out of the reach of it at last, and now I know how to pity Mr. Palmer." W. A. CROFFUT.

Job's Abused Wife.

Job was a wonderfully afflicted man, but as a partial compensation for it, he has had the sympathy of the human race for 4,000 years. But it has not been so with Job's wife. Nobody has ever spoken a kind word of her. On the contrary, she has been held up for forty centuries as a horrible example. But for all that, we are confident the poor woman deserves a better place in history than she has ever occupied. If she was sour tempered, she had enough to give an acid tinge to her disposition. She was made to drink the dregs from a very bitter cup, and it is possible that she bore her troubles with about as much equanimity as the average woman would do.

In the first place, she was suddenly reduced from luxury to penury. Any unfortunate woman who has suffered this ordeal knows just the frame of mind poor Mrs. Job was in.

In the next place she was bereft of her children. There is no grief so burdensome as that which falls on a mother's heart when the grave hides her children from her sight.

In addition to this accumulation of sorrows, she was left with an invalid husband on her hands. Job was covered with boils, and experience has taught us that there is no more exasperating patient than a man with a boil on him. There are wives, and good wives, too, in this Christian land of ours, whose lives have been made most miserable for days and weeks at a time by a husband and one boil. Just think, then, what this poor woman had to endure with with perhaps from 500 to 1,000 boils on him! Is it any wonder that the woman encouraged her husband to terminate his existence? The only wonder is that she didn't cut her own throat in despair.

They Want to Unload.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 17.—An official of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad said to-day with reference to the stories sent out from Boston and New York that the boom in the New England railroad was due to heavy purchases of stock by the former company said: "Any statement that the Consolidated road is trying to buy stock in the New England road or that any purchase of such stock has been made in the Consolidated roads' interest is wholly untrue. Such stories have been started in New York and Boston during the last week by a pool of men who are carrying 50,000 shares of New England stock at a high figure and hope to unload it on the lambs."

Vasistas Wins the Grand Prix.

PARIS, June 17.—The great race for the Grand Prix de Paris was run yesterday. Vasistas won, Pourtent second and Aerolithe third. There were thirteen starters. Maypole, the favorite in the betting, was very nervous and did not take part in the preliminary canter. She came in sixth, with Kazan and Minthe just ahead of her in the order named. The betting just before the race was 50 to 1 against Vasistas, 30 to 1 against Pourtent, 15 to 1 against Aerolithe and 2 to 1 each against Maypole and Minthe.

Sunday Baseball in Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., June 17.—The first Sunday championship game ever played in Newark took place between the home team and the Hartfords yesterday in the presence of 5,000 people. There was no interference and Sunday games will hereafter be played regularly.

IN THE RUINED CITY

Altogether Too Much Dynamite in Johnstown.

TERROR-STRICKEN CITIZENS.

Tremendous Concussions Threaten the Few Remaining Buildings.

General Hastings Is Appealed to and Orders the Explosions Stopped—Ten Bodies Recovered This Morning—Fire-Engines Pumping Out the Pools of Water—Remains Found Under the Clark Mansion—Affecting Scenes.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 18.—The zeal of the contractors in breaking up the gorge of drift by the use of dynamite this morning ran away with their better judgment. The quantity of the explosive was largely increased with each successive shot until the citizens ran terror-stricken from their homes, fearing that the few houses remaining would be razed to the ground by the tremendous jar and concussion.

Manager Fulton, of the Cambria Iron company, who on account of the explosion was compelled to move his family and effects to the mountain side for safety, sent a note to Gen. Hastings demanding that the dynamiting cease. Gen. Hastings replied that the dynamiting would cease at once, since which time no shots have been fired.

Up to noon ten bodies have been recovered and removed to the morgue.

SENTIMENT GIVES WAY TO BUSINESS.

Sentiment has been permanently supplanted by business men here. It began this morning and the most heavily stricken citizen both in family and fortune, has brought himself face to face with the inevitable and in a meeting of a committee of business men asked Gen. Hastings to erect one hundred two-story business buildings on the public square for immediate occupancy. Gen. Hastings promptly replied that he would rush the work night and day and give them every facility that was in the power of the State and himself to confer.

The City Council will meet this afternoon to grant the right to rebuild and work will begin to-morrow. The buildings will last until the business men are able to rebuild at their own expense.

THE TOWN ILLUMINATED.

The town was illuminated for the first time last night by the flames from the furnaces of the Cambria Iron company. This concern is rapidly getting into full blast.

The Philadelphia fire engines, which arrived last evening, are engaged in pumping out several large pools of water in different parts of the city in which many bodies are expected to be found.

It was reported that two workmen were burned to death by the fire last night and that one had been blown to death by dynamite this morning. The report however lacks confirmation.

This morning the workmen removing the debris from the rear of Wood, Morrell & Co.'s store and found the body of a woman in an advanced state of decomposition.

Her clothing bore traces of elegance. It was at first stated that the remains were those of Miss Paulson of Pittsburg.

Careful comparison however with the description left by the friends of Miss Paulson was made but they do not tally in any particular and the corpse lies at the morgue marked "unknown."

The face was entirely gone, only the lower jaws and one tooth remaining. It is almost certain that the dead woman was one of the passengers on the day express.

Last night the remains of a woman were recovered in Cambria City. The remains were buried unidentified.

It is stated that arrangements have been perfected whereby the Children's Aid Society will send about two hundred persons to Atlantic City for a few weeks. They will probably leave to-morrow.

This morning Mrs. McVey and Jennie McClaran visited the room in the Alma Hall, where the valuables of unidentified bodies are kept, discovered the wedding ring and other jewelry belonging to their sister, Mrs. Clark. The ladies were overcome with grief. Yesterday the body of her son, Willie Clark, was found near the family residence on Main street. This afternoon the workmen engaged in clearing the rubbish from the Clark mansion discovered the remains of Stella and Mary Clark, aged 8 and 4. Three other bodies were found on Main street this morning, but it was impossible to identify them. They are now at the morgue being prepared for burial.

Paris' Aid to the Flood Sufferers.

NEW YORK, June 18.—John Monroe & Co. have received cable instructions to pay to the Johnstown Relief committee an additional sum of $2,266.67, collected in Paris for the relief of the flood sufferers. Of this sum $1,055 are the proceeds of a special performance by the Wild West show. The total received from Paris now amounts to $14,766.67.

Mrs. Dibert Home Again.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., June 18.—Mrs. John Dibert, who was injured at the Johnstown disaster, arrived here yesterday in a special car, Her husband, Banker Dibert, was drowned at Johnstown. The lady is the mother-in-law of Assistant Engineer R. P. Snowden, of the Amboy Division of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Contributions for Flood Sufferers.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Mayor to-day received $1,843 for the Conemaugh Valley Relief Fund.

Jersey City contributions to Johnstown amounted to $13,213.18 at noon to-day.

Class Day at Rutgers.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 18.—The Class Day exercises of Rutgers college were held yesterday, and the ivy was planted at the south end of Kirkpatrick Chapel. The ceremony of cremation was observed last night after a concert by the Glee club. About 2,000 people attended the celebration.

KASSON FOR CHINA.

The Iowan Likely to Be Sent to the Flowery Kingdom.

WASHINTON, June 18.—Close upon the announcement that President Harrison was seriously considering the idea of making William Walter Phelps Minister to Berlin, the intelligence leaks out that John A. Kasson, of Iowa, is the most likely man to go to China.

Li Hung Chang, the Chinese premier, has repeatedly asked that this mission be made first-class. Secretary Blaine is known to be in favor of it, and the question will probably be submitted to Congress at its next session. Mr. Kasson achieved distinction while a member of Congress, exhibited rare diplomatic qualities while Minister to Austria, and more recently shared upon the American Commissioners who participated in the Samoan Conference at the German capital.

The Unknown Dead.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The body of a beautiful young woman floated down the Hudson to-day and was taken out near the Battery. It had apparently been in the water but a day or two. The clothing was of very fine materials consisting of black silk skirt, white silk waist, white linen underwaer, black silk stockings, black kid gloves and dress slippers. There were no rings or other ornaments, nor anything in the pockets to assist in identification. The hair was very long and of a rich brown color. The girl was possibly about 23 years old.

Commencement Week at Cornell.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 18.—On account of the storm the Cornell regatta arranged for yesterday was postponed until to-morrow morning. To-morrow afternoon there will be a game of baseball between the University nine and a nine composed of the members of the Faculty, the proceeds to go to the athletic fund. Among the other incidents of commencement week, one of the most notable, will be the reception which ex-Governor Cornell has tendered to the trustees and friends of the university's honored founder.

Larceny and Bigamy.

OXFORD, N. J., June 18.—Geo. Matthews, of this place, charges his wife with larceny and bigamy. While ill recently, he says, he told her where he had $780 in gold in the cellar. She appropriated the hidden treasure and refused to return it. He says, further, that during the twenty years he has been living with her she has had a husband living in Scotland.

The Thief Was Captured.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 18.—Joseph Hess, who entered Scudder & Son's counting-room at their mill on Federal street, and got away with $48 in cash, over $500 in notes, is in the hands of Sheriff Baird. Officer Armour Shannon, who captured Hess, secured the money and papers, which were concealed on his person.

The Dancing Masters.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The National Association of Teachers of Dancing finished a three day's session in this city yesterday, after electing E. Woodworth Masters, of Boston, as President for the ensuing year, Jules E. Haywood, of Cleveland, Vice-President; E. L. Hunt, of New York, Secretary, and J. W. Baugert, of Baltimore, Treasurer.

Their Boat Was Capsized.

BOSTON, June 18.—Sarah N. Holt, a native of Yorkshire, England, aged 23, and a spinner, and Timothy Crowley, aged 19, a machinist, were drowned in the Charles river, at Newton Upper Falls, by the upsetting of their small row boat in a strong current. John Ford, who was with them, jumped from the boat to a rock and was saved.

He Can Now Have a Vacation.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 18.—Governor Hill on Saturday night completed his labors on the four hundred and fifty-one bills left on his hands at the time of the adjournment of the Legislature. Of this number he withheld his approval from 166. The total number of laws which met his approval this year was 570, as against 585 last year.

Killed at Cynwyd.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., June 18.—A woman, whose name has not yet been obtained, was struck while crossing the tracks at Cynwyd, on the Pennsylvania Schuylkill Valley railroad, by the express train. She is said to live at Green Lane, Roxborough. The Coroner of Montgomery county will hold an inquest.

Accused of Embezzlement.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 18.—Wm. M. Mason, a middle-aged man, living at No. 315 Front street, was arraigned at the Central station yesterday afternoon charged by James D. Crowley, a collection agent, with withholding upwards of $40 collected by him. Magistrate Smith held him in $600 bail for court.

Struck by Lightning.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., June 18.—The dwelling of T. R. White, in Plymouth township, was struck by lightning during the heavy storm. The lightning-rod was torn from the walls and the house shook perceptibly. The flash was bright red; a strong smell of phosphorus filled the house. Nobody was hurt.

A Yale Student Arrested.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 18.—Reginal Foster, of New York, Yale '91, was arrested last night charged with defrauding a boarding house keeper. Foster ran up a bill of $134 and is unable to settle.

Maine's Monument at Gettysburg.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 18.—The Maine monument at Gettysburg will be dedicated October 3. About five hundred excursionists will go from Portland.

The Ella F. Bartlett Wrecked.

ROCKLAND, Me., June 18.—The fishing schooner Ella F. Bartlett of Gloucester is a total wreck on Hay Island. The crew were saved.

Death of John Gilbert.

BOSTON, June 18.—John Gilbert, the veteran actor, died yesterday afternoon.

ANOTHER BIG FLOOD

A Town in Kansas Swept Out of Existence.

SEVERAL PEOPLE DROWNED.

The Wires Are Down and Further Information Is Meagre.

The Storm Came Late at Night and Played Great Havoc—It Assumed the Form of a Cloud Burst—Several Houses and a Bridge Carried Away—One Railroad Under Water for About Nine Miles—The Hardest Rain in Years.

FORT SCOTT, Kansas, June 18.—A report was received here early this morning to the effect that Uniontown on the Wichita and Western Railroad had been swept away by a storm Saturday night and that two women and four children had been drowned.

Uniontown which is a place of 600 inhabitants is in the midst of a thickly settled country and it is feared that the loss of life is even heavier than reported.

As the wires are down for fifteen miles on either side nothing definite can be secured.

The storm struck the Western part of Bourbon county late at night, coming from the west, where it had played great havoc.

At Augusta it assumed the form of a cloud burst, and though everything possible has been done to obtain details by the railroads, all is uncertainty at present.

The part of Fort Scott known as Belltown is entirely under water, and people are being taken out with boats.

The southbound Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train is tied up here and the northbound St. Louis passenger train is tied up about two miles south of the city.

The Kansas, Nebraska & Dakota track is under water for about nine miles south. Serious damage to the main line of the Memphis route is confined to one place about 1,000 feet in length about ten miles north of Fort Scott.

The rain began falling in Fort Scott about 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Old residents say it was the hardest rain in thirty years.

At Brick Run, the water began to raise, at 8 a. m. Lamb and Meads ice dam on Sixth street burst about 10 a. m., causing the water in Break Run to raise at the rate of about three feet an hour.

Several houses and the bridge across Sixth street were carried away.

Sixth race, one mile—King Crab, 1; Carnegie, 2; Battersby, 3. Time, 1:41¾.

High Prices for Thoroughbreds.

NEW YORK, June 18.—At the sale of yearlings at Hunt's Point yesterday 53 animals from the famous Belle Meade farms brought $36,175, 11 from Cliff Lawn $4,000 and 23 from Fair View $6,000. Of the Belle Meade yearlings, the bay colt, own brother to Miss Ford, by Enquirer, was sold to Dwyer Brothers for $3,500, the best price of the day. Other prices were $3,200 for the brown colt by Iroquois, out of Bric-a-Brac; $2,500 for the bay colt by Luke Blackburn, out of Touch Me Not; $1,600 for the chestnut colt by Enquirer, out of Tassel: $1,200 for bay colt, full brother to Young Luke, by Luke Blackburn, out of Silver Maid.

Death of a Very Big Man.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 18.—John Lewes, the phenomenal fat man, who weighed 640 pounds, died at his home to-day from erysipelas. He was born in England and was about forty years old. He was a blacksmith and worked at his trade up to about three years ago. At that time he weighed but little more than 200 pounds, but began rapidly gaining in flesh at the rate of about five pounds per week until he became a veritable mountain of fat. Everything known to medical science was tried in his case, but it baffled the skill of the best physicians.

Winners and Losers.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Yesterday's ball games resulted as follows: League—Boston 2, Washington 6, (first game); Boston 11, Washington 6, (second game); Philadelphia-New York game postponed on account of rain; Cleveland 7, Chicago 4; Indianapolis 7, Pittsburg 8; Brooklyn-Cincinnati game postponed on account of rain; Athletic 11, St. Louis 2; Baltimore 10, Louisville 6, (first game); Baltimore 10, Louisville 0, (second game); New Haven and Newark were to play a postponed game at New Haven, but were prevented by the rain.

Amateur Oarsmen at Worcester.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 18.—In the Amateur regatta on Lake Quinsigamond, Fred Haas won the single scull race, beating Nagle of the Metropolitans, by a length and a half in 14 minutes 16 seconds. Shea, of the Crescents, was third. McPhee, of the Bradfords, won the intermediate race, Bergen, of the Shawmuts, second. Bergen kept the lead throughout, but stopped thinking he had the race, and McPhee captured it.

An Asylum Declared a Nuisance.

MERCHANTVILLE, N. J., June 18.—Dr Preston Jones, proprietor of a private insane asylum, was arrested yesterday and held in $1,000 bail on the charge of maintaining a nuisance. The asylum is in the centre of the town and it is alleged that there is no fence around it and that the patients roam the streets and frighten the people.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Officer McCue gathered in a man who was evidently deranged, at the depot, yesterday afternoon.

—Dogs innumerable still run at large and no effort is made by the deputed officers to finish their careers.

—The City Council will meet in adjourned session on Friday evening, to consider the Water Works question.

—There is a good deal of kicking about the way express charges are made, and a good many people are sending goods by freight.

—Why is it that our business men don't have some system as to closing their places of business at night? Let them agree upon a certain hour, then stand to it.

—The annual reunion of the survivors of the Eleventh Regiment, N. J. Volunteers, is taking place at Belvidere today. Several Grand Army men from this city are in attendance.

—Judge Magie at Somerville, yesterday, heard the petition asking for an increase in the liquor license fee in North Plainfield to $700, and reserved his decision until the 26th instant.

—At a meeting of the Young People's League of the First Baptist church, held last evening, it was decided to purchase a new organ for the church, and a committee was appointed to receive subscriptions.

—Chief of Police T. J. Carey, Officers Flannigan and Giesse, together with two of the post office clerks, have been subpoenaed to appear before the United States Grand Jury at Trenton, to-morrow, to be heard with reference to the Plainfield post office robbery.

—At Reform Hall, to-morrow evening, the members of Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, U. O. of I. O. L., will give a musical and literary entertainment for the benefit of the Johnstown sufferers. Admission will be but 25 cents, and the ladies should be encouraged in their undertaking.

—At the Hall, No. 6 East Front street, over the Dime Savings Institution, to-night, at 7:45, Mr. F. W. Grant will lecture on "Clergy and Laity, the Doctrine of the Nicolaitans." Rev. 2:15. Admission free. All are cordially invited to attend these lectures on inspired church history.

Over $3,000 and Still Growing.

To the Editor of The Press:—I have duly received the $6.25, and the $13 from the Young Ladies Seminary, and as requested, forwarded to Miss Clara Barton, Johnstown, Pa., $19.25 this P. M. The fund is now as follows:

Plainfield, June 17, 1889.

To Lake Hopatcong.

A fine opportunity to visit the beautiful Lake Hopatcong, and return the same day at a moderate cost, will be given on Thursday of this week, when Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps, of this city, will go on their annual excursion. The full particulars are given in the advertisement elsewhere.

Dissolved by Mutual Consent.

The well-known clothing firm heretofore existing under the name of Messrs C. Schepflin and Co., of this city, was yesterday dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. Wm. A. Conger, the junior member of the firm, retires, and Mr. Edward Winter associates himself with the firm. The name of the firm will remain the same as before.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Alberti are at Norwood Inn, Key-East beach, for the season.

Mr. Cook of Brooklyn, was the guest of Miss Currie of Arlington avenue on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Rockhill Potts with their family have gone to their Summer home at North Long Branch.

Miss Grace Howard of East Ninth street, will sail for Antwerp, per steamer Westernland on Wednesday next.

Rev. Mr. Morehouse of Brooklyn, will preach the next few in the series of Unitarian sermons, which are being delivered in this city.

Mrs. David King and family of North Plainfield, accompanied by Miss Minnie Ammerman, are visiting friends at Peapack and Pluckamin.

Ex-Councilman and Mrs. B. O. Bowers returned yesterday from a week's trip in upper New York state, visiting Albany, Amsterdam and other cities.

Gertrude, the youngest daughter of Mr. Joseph Odam of North Plainfield, died yesterday, aged three months. See notice of funeral in another column.

A grand concert in which Messrs Henry Eyre Brown and Frank Taft will take part, will inaugurate the new organ in the First Presbyterian church, next Monday evening.

The marriage of Mr. Louis Melville Evans, youngest son of the late ex-Mayor Evans, will take place at the home of the bride in Scranton, Thursday. The ceremony will be a very quiet one.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Rev. J. H. Parks, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, by Shurtleff College, of Alton, Ill., at its recent commencement, June 6, 1889.

Among the many attractive features of the Hope chapel entertainment and festival, to-morrow and Thursday evenings, will be solos by Miss Alice Holmes and Mr. Elmer Runyon, and recitations by Mr. John Carney.

Mr. Charles F. Powlison of North Plainfield, having finished his course in the Y. M. C. A. training school at Springfield, Mass., has received and accepted a call to the Secretaryship of a Young Men's Christian Association in Philadelphia.

The ladies of the Crescent Avenue church choir will hold a bazaar in the Fall, the proceeds of which will go towards the $1,500 the choir pledged themselves to raise, besides their individual subscriptions, for the extension and alteration fund.

Walter L. Hetfield, Esq., of this city, left today for Worcester, Mass., where, at the bride's home, to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock, he will be married to Miss Mary G. Regan. No cards have been issued. Mr. and Mrs. Hetfield will reside on East Second street.

Mr. L. Kayser and family of New York city, have taken possession of one of Mayor Male's new residences on Kensington avenue near Putnam street, where they will permanently reside. Mr. Kayser is a son-in-law of Mr. James Lyon, President of the Third avenue surface railroad of New York city.

Captain Wygant, of the U. S. A., with his wife and family, arrived from New Orleans, Thursday of last week, just in time to be present at the silver anniversary of the wedding of his sister, Mrs. Edward Miller, at Scotch Plains, as reported in The Press. The Captain is on his way to a new post, at Arizona.

Mr. F. X. Schoonmaker, one of the most pleasing orators of the day, is a resident of this city and a member of the State Board of Education. As Governor Green writes that it will be impossible for him to address the people at the High school commencement of next week, The Press would, in all modesty, suggest Mr. Schoonmaker as a fitting substitute.

Public School Notes.

The school census just completed by Assessor Hubbard, gives the total number of children in Plainfield between the ages of five and eighteen, as 2,674. Last year the number was 2,549.

State Superintendent E. O. Chapman will be invited to be present at the P. H. S. Commencement, Thursday evening of next week, at Music Hall. Governor Robert Stockton Green, has written Secretary L. F. Wadsworth of the Board of Education, that he much regrets his inability to be there and make an address.

The teachers have all been excused the days they have been absent during the past term, and will receive their salaries in full.

The Trustees have given their consent that the Stillman building may be lighted during the reception to be tendered the graduating class, by the classes of '87 and '88.

It is the decision of the Board that scholars who "go home" on Fridays and stay over Sunday with their parents in another county, are non-residents and must pay for their tution as such although they may board in Plainfield during the whole week.

The Committees of Award appointed for the prizes in English Composition, Penmanship and Mathematics, have all accepted and will soon be hard at work.

Fifteenth Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Vail of West Fourth street, celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage, last evening. A number of invited guests were present and spent the evening in various social ways. Refreshments added to the enjoyment. Mr. and Mrs. Vail were the recipients of many handsome gifts.

200TH ANNIVERSARY TO-MORROW.

History of One of the Smalley Families.

Johnathan Smalley, the first from England, was one of the first settlers in Piscataway Township, Middlesex county, in the year 1679, as recorded in Benedict's History. He was married to Sarah Bird. Their children were John, Isaac, Johnathan, Andrew and Hannah.

Andrew Smalley, the youngest son of Johnathan, was born Dec. 20, 1726. Married to Agnes Coriell, who was born May 8, 1728. Their children were, First, Abraham, born May 2, 1748; Second, Abner, born August 20, 1750; Third, Elizabeth, born Jan. 15, 1753; Fourth, Rachel, date missed; Fifth, Elsey, born Jan. 24, 1758; Sixth, Johnathan, born April 5, 1760; Seventh, Sarah, date missed; Eighth, David, born April 5, 1766; Ninth, Andrew, born August 1, 1769.

David Smalley, son of Andrew Smalley, was married to Margaret Compton. David and Margaret's children were: First, Andrew, born Sept. 25, 1787; Second, William, born March 13, 1789; Third, Anna, born Jan. 31, 1791; Fourth, Agnes, born February, 1793. David Smalley married the second time Hannah Bush, April 23, 1833. She was born May 18, 1792.

William Smalley, son of David Smalley, married Mary Langstalb, their children were, First, James; Second, Mary; Third, Ann; Fourth, David; Fifth William L.; Sixth, Elsey; Seventh, Andrew; Eighth, John; Ninth, Margaret; Tenth, Harriet; Eleventh, Lewis.

William L. Smalley married Phebe Jane Irving; their children were, First, Anna; Second, Harriet; Third, John; Fourth, Martha: Fifth, Daniel; Sixth, David; Seventh, Alfred; Eighth, Newton; Ninth, Amanda; Tenth, Lizzie; Eleventh, William; Twelfth, Jedediah.

Piscataway was purchased from the Indians in the year 1663, and settled by a succession of families. The family of Johnathan Smalley settled in the year 1679, his son John being one of the first six constitutional members of the First Baptist church of Piscataway, organized in the Spring of 1689, which church will hold its 200th anniversary, to-morrow.

A Deserved and Heartfelt Tribute.

Of that noble man and venerable actor John Gilbert, who died in Boston yesterday afternoon, and whose widow is the sister of Mr. Wm. L. Gavett, of this city, a New York paper of last night, has the following to say:

"A man of countless friends, who has done much to increase the World's stock of pleasure, and always along legitimate and innocent lines, now lies at the point of death. Unless an unexpected turn for the better occurs we shall soon have to follow to the grave that accomplished and honorable actor, Mr. John Gilbert. His advanced years prepare us for the end, and yet his was the light heart that keeps young and his death, at nearly four score, will seem like an untimely interruption.

"What a silent and dignified rebuke such a career as that of John Gilbert gives to the cheap and vulgar cross-cuts to success, or, at least, to a lucrative notoriety, which are now so much in vogue on the stage. Would that the admiration which his genuine art forces from even the most frivolous would inspire them to adopt his lofty ideals and thorough methods!

"The temptation to humbug is so strong just now upon the stage that we can ill afford to lose from the boards such true artists as Lester Wallack and John Gilbert."

Mr. Gilbert died at 1:30 P. M., yesterday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, in Boston. Mrs. Bartlett is also a sister of Mr. Wm. L. Gavett's, and her husband is Mr. Gilbert's half-brother.

Impressions of a Citizen.

Bishop McNamara's lectures in Reform Hall have, for the present, come to and end. Last evening there was a very large audience. He has had but one object—to reach the people. He called for them through the papers. They came in large numbers both Catholics and Protestants. He had but one thing to give them—the pure light of God's Word. He spared abuses among Protestants no more than among Catholics, with a courage rare indeed in these days. The words were needed. Young and old have received impressions never to be forgotten. They were refreshing and inspiring. Many are glad he came, and trust to see him here again.

A Double Surprise

party was tendered to Miss Elma Runyon and Miss Hattie Currie, at the home of the latter on Arlington avenue, last evening, the occasion being the birthday anniversary of the two ladies. The evening was pleasantly spent in dancing, playing games and the rendering of vocal and instrumental music. Refreshments were also served. The house and adjoining lawn were brilliantly illuminated with Japanese lanterns. Both of the young ladies were the recipients of numerous gifts.

Thanks to Carney Bros.

At a business meeting held yesterday of the Kitchen Garden, it was unanimously agreed to tender a hearty vote of thanks to Messrs Carney Bros., for furnishing footlights gratuitously, which contributed largely toward the beauty of the entertainment.

WARNING THE PEOPLE IN TIME.

A Somerville Man Predicts a Terrible Storm on the Fourth of July.

To the Editor of The World—On the coming Fourth of July (1889) we are to experience the worst storm, the worst destruction of property and the worst destruction of life if we do not raise up Paul Reveres to let the people know about it. It is to be another storm on the same principle as experienced by the Johnstown people. Its centre lies near New York City. In the morning the weather will appear in its natural condition, appearing as if it would be an ordinary fair day, but as the day advances the humidity of the atmosphere will advance with it, and from 12:43 up to 4:48 o'clock the humidity will increase so rapidly as to be almost unendurable. The time mentioned here is New York standard time. At the expiration of above interval of time the atmosphere will at once become cyclonic in its nature, and great destruction of property will follow its course, together with great destruction of life if the people do not prepare for it. The formation of the cyclonic nature of this storm will take place in the Northwest, and every eye should be directed to that point of the compass without fail on that day. The line of travel cannot be determined with such storm nature, but its area will include New York State, New Jersey, Connecticut and part of Pennsylvania.

P. DUMONT WHITENACK.

Somerville, June 11.

The "New York World" Says.

"You don't know what prohibition means until you come over my way," said a Plainfielder, of New Jersey, yesterday. "Everything about our town is closed tighter than a drum. No, we haven't voted on local option, but the Council is divided on the subject and so evenly that licenses cannot be obtained for love or money. A majority would favor hotel licenses, but the saloon men refuse to grant them, expecting that some of the hotel men will come over to their views and make licenses general.

"Quite a number of New Yorkers come over to the big Netherwood Hotel to see about engaging rooms for the Summer. They are naturally warm and thirsty and you can imagine their surprise when even the luxury of a 'small bottle' in a private room is refused them. The bar is corked up tight and you can't even get wine at your meals. It is rough on the landlords and if something doesn't happen soon they will all be left."

[The first half of the above, is the words of a fool or a falsifier. Liquor of all kinds is sold without restriction all over the city and in all kinds of shops, except at the saloons and hotels that have in past years conducted the business in a respectable way and paid thousands of dollars into the city's treasury for the privilege. The latter paragraph, however, is true—alas, too true. The intemperate Councilmen have already driven from The Netherwood wealthy families who would spend their money among the Plainfield merchants, and in some cases permanently locate here. But they won't stay where a half-dozen short-sighted men interfere with their privilege of having a glass of claret with their dinner. —ED.]

Missionary Work Among the Indians.

Rev. Mr. Austin of Sitka, Alaska, delivered an interesting address before a large audience in the Crescent Avenue church on Sunday evening, on the remarkable work accomplished among the Indians there. The reverend gentleman said among other things that the sea coast of Alaska is about 25,000 miles in length, which distance would encircle the globe. He also spoke of the climate and the beautiful glaciers, the latter the greatest in the World. Tourists to Alaska, he said, were so numerous that the steamships were unable to carry them.

The speaker went on to illustrate how young girls from twelve to fourteen years of age were sold like slaves, adding that blood atonement, witchcraft and the slavery system were the greatest difficulties experienced among the Indians. Blankets are offered in exchange for merchandise. Rev. Mr. Austin stated that an Indian school had been organized with 25 members. The total number of pupils now enrolled is 108. A church has also been established with a total membership of 325.

New School House at Westfield.

Westfield, which is by no means behind in educational advantages, is to have a new school house, and the trustees, F. R. Pennington, E. L. Embree and Ira C. Lambert advertise that proposals will be received by them until Tuesday, 25th inst., for the erection of a school house. Estimates will be received for the various branches of the work, masonry, carpentry, painting and plumbing, separately, or any contractor may bid for the entire work.

For the Johnstown Sufferers.

The box for nickel contributions for the Johnstown sufferers, which has been located at the post office entrance for the past ten days, was opened yesterday afternoon, and was found to contain $16.35. This amount was turned over to the fund in the hands of Councilman J. K. Myers.

N. J. Central Railroad.

It is reported the New Jersey Central will issue $5,000,000 of new stock to retire the first mortgage bonds for that amount which mature next year. Stockholders will be given the right to subscribe for the new issue at par.

THEY DISOBEYED THE BISHOP.

Showing that While the Members of the Scotch Plains Episcopal Church May be Nearly All Saints, They Are Not all Wise; and That the Mammon of Unrighteousness is Sometimes a Very Useful Thing in its Way.

The Ladies' Aid Society of All Saints Episcopal church is not, as you might imagine from its title, an association for the relief of aged or indigent females. Perhaps it would be well to slightly transpose the words of their name and call it "The Ladies' Society for the Aid of All Saints Episcopal church." (They are not all saints, by any manner of means, but we will let that pass.) You see, this church of the sanctified membership is usually in a hole—financially speaking—for it carries on its shoulders—also financially speaking—that customary load which churches generally have to bear, a large, heavily built bonded debt.

Bonded debts come high, but we must have them. At least, that is the custom of the country. And yet, I remember, years ago, how Bishop Scarborough stood in that very pulpit, with all the sanctified congregation before him, and with burning words endeavored to dissuade them from mortgaging the church; but they did it.

Heigho! that was years ago, and since then the seasons have come and gone, and the people that sat in the church that far away Autumn Sunday have been growing older, and some of them have been burried from it, and some of their children have since joined the church and some have moved away, and the church looks hardly older than the day it was built. I wonder how many of the present congregation were sitting in those pews that day; I wonder if there ever comes over any of them a kind of vague, undefined doubt whether the real objects of the church have been very much further advanced than they would have been if the people had followed the Bishop's homely advice.

But dear me! we musn't be so cynical No one could have any feelings of that kind after seeing an affair like that of last Wednesday, where everyone was working just as hard as she possibly could and putting herself to no end of inconvenience, just in order that the thing should be a success, and solely because it was "for the benefit of the church."

I have been a dreadfully long time in coming to the point, haven't I? I assure you that when I started out I had no intention of wandering off in that way, but meant to record the simple fact that the Ladies' Aid Society of All Saints Episcopal church gave a garden party on the eleventh of June, from three to nine P. M., and that in spite of the rain and disagreeable day it was a success; that the Elizabeth Glee Club came down with a large contingent of ladies, which was a very gentlemanly thing to do; that the band played a waltz and everybody felt like dancing; that they kept perfectly still and didn't dance; that there was a magnificent rainbow, which Paul Tuzo and Harry Carter tried to make people pay for looking at; that they found they couldn't do it; that Mr. Sam Oliver made himself generally useful and worked like a trooper; that he looks for all the World like his brother and that we had to tie a blue ribbon around his arm so that people could tell them apart; that Mrs. George Kyte and Mrs. Rare Tom Nicholl had a table with no end of good things on it; that Miss Sykes and Miss Carrie Hall sold flowers; that Mrs. Hall had another table and Mrs. Sayre another and Miss Tuzo another and Mrs. Thomae another and Miss Maud Kyte and Mrs. Clarence W. Smith another; that Miss Carter and Miss Blanche Sayres were waitresses; that I really can't remember half the folks that did take part; that an overflow meeting was held the next day; that the total receipts were $——.

There, there, there! Didn't Miss Kyte tell me that I wasn't to "make any splurge ?" and here I've been splurging for ever so many lines! Oh! fair ladies who aid the church of the sanctified membership, you forget, you forget that ADVERTISING is the true secret of success, and when you have an opportunity for free advertising such as that that I've been giving you, don't reject it, but take the advice of a friend, and WORK IT FOR ALL IT'S WORTH. And if you ever want any real advertising, or tickets printed, or programmes, or anything of that sort, why, you know where to come.

And now, if I have made any mistakes, I most humbly ask your pardon, and am with most profound respect and esteem, very, very respectfully yours,

SUBURBAN SAUNTERER.

It Shows a Progressive Town.

The standard of a country community can usually be gauged both in an intellectual and business sense, by its local newspaper. The merchant in a progressive town who advertises by means of a sixteenth sheet "dodger" tacked to a telegraph pole, is usually the man who has drifted to the outskirts of the business centre and who has a constantly increasing stock of shop-worn goods to dispose of at slightly reduced rates. The man who patronizes the local newspaper with a column advertisement is the merchant in the big building on the main street, with a row of electric lights in his show windows and a squad of busy clerks behind his counters. The most successful business men, both in the country and city, are the ones who appreciate the benefits of newspaper advertising.

A Passenger Coach Off the Track.

The 5:38 train from this city yesterday morning, took the siding near Cranford to let the Washington express pass. When running back on the main track, the brakeman turned the switch before the last car was over, and the hind trucks were thrown off. A delay of thirty minutes resulted.

BIG GAME OF BLUFF

Played by the Chicago Police Authorities.

FOOLING THE NEW YORKERS.

An Ingenious Excuse for the Failure to Identify the Two Suspects.

While Apparently Laboring for the Extradition of Moroney and McDonald, They Say They Were Only Trying to Lay Hold of Burke, the Winnipeg Suspect. He Is the Man They Wanted All the Time.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Interest in the Cronin murder is now centered upon Winnipeg, where the suspect Burke is under arrest. Up to yesterday the authorities of the State's Attorney's and Police departments were confident that in Moroney and McDonald they had two of the principals to the crime, and no sooner, however, had the despatches chronicled the fact that the Chicago witnesses had failed to identify the suspects and that the court had ordered their unconditional release than the lyre of the departments began upon another tune.

A GAME OF BLUFF.

It was boldly stated that the authorities had been playing a bluff game with the New Yorkers; that the picture identified by the real estate agent, expressman and others was not that of either of the New York prisoners, but of Burke, the Winnipeg suspect; that in short the extradition of Moroney and McDonald had been demanded and the witnesses sent on to identify them all as a part of a bluff game, a detective being all the time on the track of Burke and the fact that he was the mysterious Williams being all the time patent to those in charge of the case. In the effort to justify this position it was stated with equal gravity that the steps referred to had been taken simply to satisfy Luke Dillon and the Pinkertons, both of whom, according to this ingenious theory were just as satisfied that Moroney and McDonald were the men wanted as the regular police officials according to their present position, were satisfied that they were not.

BURKE, THE "ONLY ORIGINAL."

Outside of those now in New York every witness that positively identified Moroney's picture as that of Frank Williams has now recognized the photograph of Burke as that of the "only original." But in one of the Central station a man named Mulcahey is under lock and key, and it is reported among a section of the police that this man too, is the one sought for. As to the grounds upon which his arrest is based no information is forthcoming. The appearances indicate however that the authorities are utterly at sea and that, as in the Tascott case, they are willing to send detectives to the farthest ends ot the Continent upon the mere suggestion that a probable clue may be developed.

CONFESSIONS AD LIBITUM.

Woodruff, alias Black, is said to have made two more confessions to-day and to be hard at work to-night upon a third. The State's Attorney's office is inclined to pin its faith to everything he says. The police, on the contrary, regard him as an unmitigated liar. He has full access to the newspapers and is allowed to talk with whomever he may please. Hence the fact that in every new confession he brings in names that he has never mentioned before. Experienced detectives say that had New York methods been adopted with him the true story of his connection with the tragedy would long ago have been known.

WORK OF THE GRAND JURY.

The bulk of the evidence given before the Grand Jury yesterday was of a routine character. The most important witnesses were Desk Sergeant Montgomery of the Chicago Avenue station, and James D. Tuohy, the latter one of Alexander Sullivan's sureties. Under strong pressure Montgomery testified that the numerous telephone calls for Detective Coughlin which he answered in the latter's absence at the station, came not from Iceman Sullivan, as had been testified at the Coroner's inquest, but from "Telephone 970." This is the number of the instrument in the law office of Windes & Sullivan, indicating that the latter was in frequent communication with the detective.

Tuohy, who was a fellow-passenger with Le Caron on the steamer that carried the informer to Liverpool under the name of Beach, was summoned to testify regarding the conversation he had with the spy during the passage. After his examination was concluded he emphatically refused to state what had transpired, and the Grand Jurors were correspondingly non-communicative.

AN INTERVIEW WITH BURKE.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 18.—Martin Burke, the man arrested here for complicity in the Cronin murder, was seen in his cell by your representative. He is an athletic-looking fellow and has a scar on the front part and left side of his head. His face expresses great determination and he looks like a fellow with sufficient nerve to assist in carrying out the details of the foul deed of which he is suspected.

In reply to questions, he gave his name as Martin Burke, and said he was from Chicago and on his way to the old country. On it being pointed out to him that this was not the way to the old country Burke seemed confused and said he was just taking a look around before going. He further stated he had left Ireland four years ago, proceeding straight to Chicago where he was employed by the corporation. He knew Cronin to see him but was not personally acquainted with him.

NOT A MEMBER OF THE CLAN-NA-GAEL.

Burke further stated that he was not a member of the Clan-na Gael and would claim British protection and refuse to go back with the Chicago officer. Burke in purchasing a ticket to Liverpool gave his name as W. J. Cooper. He does not look like an innocent man who was outraged over his arrest, but takes it as a matter of chance. He arrived here on Saturday night and put up at a second class hotel. He did not register.

In his valise was found a felt hat supposed to have belonged to Dr. Cronin. The name inside of the hat appeared to be blotted out with the aid of chemicals. The Chief of Police sought to restore the letters and characters to correspond with Cronin's name which were clearly distinguished. The prisoner admitted that he has a brother in Chicago, so that there is now little doubt he is one of the famous Williams brothers.

Burke's solicitor, in response to a question, said the intention was to resist to the bitter end any effort to extradite the prisoner.

The Chicago officer is expected to arrive this afternoon.

HE IS INNOCENT.

What Alexander Sullivan's Wife Says of Her Husband.

LONDON, June 18.—In an interview today Mrs. Margaret F. Sullivan, wife of Alexander Sullivan, who is now in London, said that she was absolutely certain of her husband's innocence, and that the Chicago newspapers were retailing a mass of old stories and calumnies rehearsed by Mr. Sullivan's personal and political enemies. She deplores the death of Dr. Cronin and says the suspicion of her husband's complicity in the crime is founded on error which will shortly be removed.

The Prince of Wales Presided.

LONDON, June 18.—The Prince of Wales presided at a meeting held to-day at the Marlborough House by the sympathizers of the late Father Damien, the leper priest of the Sandwich Islands. Resolutions were adopted to erect a memorial to the brave priest on the Island of Molokai the scene of Father Damien's labors and to construct a leper ward in connection with a London hospital to encourage a study of the dread disease.

Switzerland's Retort.

BERLIN, June 18.—The note recently sent by Germany to the Swiss Government on the subject of Herr Wohlgemuth's expulsion and which closed with the significant statement that Germany reserves the right to take action, has brought a reply from the Swiss Government. This reply reaffirms the neutrality of Switzerland and boldly disputes the right of any state to question it or violate it.

To Shoot Enemies a Mile Away.

LONDON, June 18.—The Russian army is shortly to be rearmed with a new breach-loader, carrying two thousand yards, and supplied at great expense with a peculiar kind of gunpowder said to be entirely noiseless.

Gladstone Returns From a Tour.

LONDON, June 18.—Mr. Gladstone returned to-day from his tour through the west of England.

Berkely Strikers.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 18.—Dissensions are reported among the strikers at Berkely. A meeting was held to declare the strike off. At the meeting Secretary Tennyson, of the strikers union, charged the arbitrators appointed to settle the strike with having betrayed the men. The arbitrators announced that they had reached an agreement with the employers some time ago, and about half the men went back. The men claim that they have since been working at reduced wages. The accusation of the Secretary caused considerable confusion. It is probable that those who returned to work will come out again.

Bunker Hill Day.

BOSTON, June 18.—Heavy rain for a while interfered considerably with the celebration of Bunker Hill Day but the weather cleared up by noon. The day was observed as a general holiday; the banks and public buildings and business houses generally were closed, and the newspapers suspended the publication of evening editions. The chief interest centered in the Bunker Hill district Charlestown where the principal exercises of the celebration were held.

Burgess Says Volunteer Is All Right.

BOSTON, June 18.—The statement telegraphed from here to New York that the Volunteer was crippled and unfitted for racing without an expenditure of money nearly equal to her cost is pronounced by Edward Burgess as absolutely untrue. He says the old cup-defender is just as good as new and, moreover, is in perfect order.

Death of an Old Town Clerk.

NORWALK, Conn., June 18.—Othniel Gager, the old Town Clerk of Norwich, who died Saturday, aged 96, was first elected Town Clerk in 1839 and with the the exception of 1853 was annually elected to the office until 1883. At the time of his death he was Town Treasurer. He leaves two children.

President Adams' Wife Ill.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 18.—Mrs. Adams, wife of President Charles R. Adams, of the Cornell University, has been critically ill for several weeks with a gastric difficulty. She is very low to-day, and Dr. Pepper, of Philadelphia, has been called for consultation, and is in attendance to-day.

Ladies Drowned While Bathing.

BANGOR, Me., June 18.—A Kingman special says: "Mrs. Charles Cleaves and Erdine Cole, a young woman of sixteen, were drowned at Springfield Saturday while bathing. Mrs. Cleaves leaves four children and a husband in the west. The bodies were recovered."

The English Brewing Syndicate.

BOSTON, Mass., June 18.—It is learned that the New York broker Untermeyer, acting as the authorized agent of the English Syndicate, was in Boston lately and made a proposition to all the great Roxbury brewers which, if accepted, will give the Englishmen possession.

A Friend of Daniel Webster Dead.

NEW YORK, June 18.—George Hillier, for many years custodian of the Custom House building died this morning at his residence. He was formerly a page on the floor of the United States Senate and was appointed to the Custom House at the request of Daniel Webster in 1844.

Commissioner Fink Resigns.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Albert Fink, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Trunk Lines Association, has resigned on account of ill health. The resignation takes effect July 10. Mr. Fink intends to sojourn in Europe, in the hope of regaining his health.

A Gas Explosion at Plymouth.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 18.—An explosion of gas occurred in the Nottingham mine at Plymouth, operated by the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company. Three Polish mine laborers were severely burned. Their names could not be learned.

Indians Simply on a Big Drunk.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 18.—Robert C. Dunn telegraphs from Mille, Lacs County, Utah that the reports of Indian troubles there have been greatly exaggerrated and that it is simply a case of a big drunk on the pat of the Indians.

Ten Years for Murder.

DOVER, N. H., June 18.—Holton E. Wells, who was found guilty March 9th of the murder of Charlies H. Eastman of Great Falls, September 15th, was this morning sentenced to 10 years at hard labor.

Burned to Death in His House.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18.—Thomas Corrigan, aged 62 years, a carpenter, was burned to death while putting out a fire in his house caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp.

AN AWFUL WARNING.

A wide Shakespearean sweep of brow,
A dome of thought Titanic;
A quick, magnetic nature his,
A spirit strong, galvanic.
He had the wit of Hudibras,
The intellect of Plato,
And every one perceived at once
He was no small potato;
But yet he asked, alas! 'tis true:
"Well, is this hot enough for you?"

And he had deep Websterian eyes
Beneath his brows o'erarching,
His mind kept step to that great tune
To which the world is marching.
Along fame's track we prophesied
He'd be the fastest sprinter—
His intellectual lightning gleamed
Like Northern lights in winter;
But yet, he asked the summer thro':
"Well, is this hot enough for you?"

And so his high Shakespearean thought
Was step by step arrested,
His elephantine intellect
Was gradually congested;
His lofty, intellectual dome
From day to day grew flatter,
His head so shrank and shriveled up
It terrorized his hatter;
But still he said: "How do you do?
Well, is th's hot enough for you?"

And now his thoughts are very crude,
Inane and embryotic,
He mouths and jabbers all the day
In manner idiotic.
The poor, old, hopeless imbecile,
The jest of all creation,
Lives as a warning to those folks
Who make this salutation:
"Good morning, friend, how do you do;
Well, is this hot enough for you?"

—S. W. Foss, in Yankee Blade.

PHEBE'S PRESCRIPTION.

In Her Search for Health She Found a Husband.

"I always foresaw how it would turn out," said Mrs. Mynton. "You can bear witness, girls, that I prophesied this from the beginning. She isn't strong enough to work in a store. She's no sort of use about the house; and here she is sick on our hands, and no telling how long it is going to last, with every prospect of a doctor's bill, and an account at the drug store, and Mynton's salary just cut down on account of the dull season coming on and business being slack, and"—

"Hush, mamma!" said Angelina Mynton, lifting her finger with a gesture which denoted caution. "She hears you."

It was true. The black mist was floating away from Phebe Clissold's obscured vision; the words, which at first sounded like the distant buzzing from a bee-hive, now assumed form and distinctness.

"I am very sorry, Aunt Mynton," said she. "I will try not to be a burden on you, indeed," with a faint smile flickering around her white lips, "I did not faint away on purpose; but the store was so hot, and the ventilation so poor—if I could have a few drops of water to drink"—

Phebe Clissold had been left an orphan at nineteen. Her nearest relative—a brother of her deceased mother—was a bank clerk in New York, and to him she had naturally directed her footsteps. He had succeeded in obtaining for her a situation in a great fancy store; and in this, the first quarter, she had ignominiously broken down.

"She can not endure long hours and close confinement," said Dr. Falkney. "She must have plenty of exercise and fresh air. This store business won't do."

"Exercise!" bitterly repeated Mrs. Mynton, in whose heart years of privation and toil had well nigh soured the milk of human kindness. "But we don't keep a carriage and pair, Dr. Falkney, neither do we have time to walk in the park. Fresh air! We live in a flat, and the bed-rooms are lighted by gas and ventilated through the shaft, and things can't be helped, so far as I can see."

Dr. Falkney shook his head.

"Slow poison," said he, "for a girl of her temperament."

Phebe, lying on the lounge in the adjoining room, and slowly knitting on a pair of socks for the last Mynton baby, heard all this. She put two and two together in her mind.

"They don't want me here," thought she sadly. "I am a useless boarder, and Dr. Falkney says I am not to go back to the store. The question is, what am I to do? Exercise! Fresh air! Aunt Mynton is right; there seems to be no prospect of my attaining any such luxuries."

As she lay there she watched Angelina Mynton trying to trim her last season's hat with three yards of crushed-strawberry-colored ribbon, and a bunch of yellow primroses. Evidently, Angelina was no milliner. She twitched the ribbon this way and that; she pinned the primroses first on one side, then on another, and ended by flinging down the bonnet with an exclamation of despair.

"Hateful old thing!" she cried, "I can't do any thing with it."

Phebe laid down her knitting needles. "Give it to me!" said she.

A few dextrous folds and turnings of the ribbons, a dainty adjustment of the much-abused primroses, and Phebe held up the bonnet to Angelina's admiring glance.

"How do you like it now!" said she.

Angelina clasped her needle-pricked fingers in admiration.

"Oh, it's lovely!" cried she. "It isn't like the same hat. How did you do it, Phebe?"

"I don't know," said Phebe. "I always used to trim my own hats and my mother's. I like to do it."

"You ought to be a milliner," said Angelina. "Only," with a sudden recollection, "Dr. Falkney says you can't be shut up in a store, and a milliner's trade is about as confining as any there is."

"Yes," assented Phebe, with a sigh.

Dr. Falkney was a quiet, brief-spoken man of forty, and a bachelor at that. He had practiced medicine in the same location for ten years, and never felt that any element was lacking in his life until now. But on this brisk spring morning he sat thoughtfully in his office, looking at the great skeleton that hung behind a baize curtain in the corner, and tapping his ruler on the table.

"She has eyes like a startled deer," he said to himself. "And such a soft, sweet voice! She doesn't chatter like those cousins of hers. She speaks in a slow, gentle way, that seems to rest one's hearing. And she is so utterly friendless and alone. Yes, I'll marry her, if she will have me."

When Dr. Falkney once made up his mind, he was not long in acting upon it. He went that self-same afternoon to Mrs. Mynton's and asked to see Miss Clissold.

"La!" said Mrs. Mynton, who sat at her everlasting mending-basket. "Didn't you know? She's gone away."

"Gone!" Dr. Falkney looked surprised. "Gone where?"

"Well, it's the queerest thing," said Mrs. Mynton. "We don't know. And I don't fairly believe she knows herself. She said she was going to follow out your prescription, doctor."

"My prescription!"

"Exercise and fresh air, you know. She said she'd be back at the end of a few weeks and let us know how it worked."

Dr. Falkney's jet-black brows contracted.

"And you let her go away like this!" said he. "So young, so lovely and so inexperienced! Where were your maternal instincts, Mrs. Mynton!"

Mrs. Mynton bridled a little.

"I don't see what maternal instincts have to do with it," said she. "She's no kin to me. Only Mynton's sister's child. And I've got four girls of my own to look after. And when all's come and gone, I've got no authority over Phebe Clissold to stay or stop her."

"Yes, I see," said the doctor, with a disturbed look. "I dare say it is as you say. But I hope she will soon come home again."

Phebe had made up her mind what to do.

"I'll be a traveling peddler," she told herself. "Part of my stock I'll carry in my brains, and part on my arm."

That day, just as Mrs. Perkins, at Flock Center, was setting her table for dinner, Phebe Clissold knocked at the door.

"Bless me!" cried the farmer's wife, nearly dropping her biggest blue-edged plate in her surprise. "Is that you, Phebe?"

"Yes," nodded Phebe. "How good your dinner smells, Mrs. Perkins! Chicken pot-pie? I thought so! And an Indian pudding! Mrs. Perkins, I think I shall stay and take dinner with you."

"And welcome," said the good woman. "But I thought, Phebe, you had gone to your New York relations. You hain't quarreled with them, I hope?"

"Oh, no," said Phebe. "I never quarrel with anybody, Mrs. Perkins. But I've got my living to earn. Uncle Mynton isn't a rich man, and I can't be a drag on him. I tried life in a store, but it seems I wasn't strong enough for that sort of thing. So I'm going to strike out on a new tack. I'm a traveling milliner at present."

"What!" said Mrs. Perkins, holding the tea-caddy high above the shining plated teapot.

Phebe pointed to the light basket that she carried on her arm.

"In that basket," said she, laughing, "here are three compartments. One is full of the latest style of spring frames, packed closely, one within another; the second contains flowers and wreaths; the third is full of ribbons of every color of the rainbow. You'll get your spring bonnet of me, Mrs. Perkins, won't you!"

"Well, if that ain't providential!" said Mrs. Perkins. "I was just going to Linley arter it to-morrow—I was, just as sure as you're born!"

"I'll suit you better than any of the Linley milliners, Mrs. Perkins," said Phebe. "And I'll work cheap, too. Give me a trial, that's all I ask."

"Well, I'll do that," said the good dame. "I remember, now, you was always handy with the needle. Dinner's ready, an' I'm goin' to blow the horn for Perkins and the hired man. Sit down, Phebe, and take pot-luck with us."

After dinner Phebe set herself diligently to work to suit Mrs. Perkins with a new bonnet. Scarlet field-poppies, black satin ribbon and a frame covered with puffed black silk took the worthy woman's fancy completely.

"I never had a handsomer bunnit," said she. "There's real style to it. Eight dollars! Of course I'll pay you eight dollars, Phebe! I expected to pay ten in Linley, and this is prettier than I'd have got there."

This bit of success took the edge off from the criticisms and carpings of Mrs. Deacon Root, who lived in the next house with her three daughters, who had none of them, to use her own expression, "any faculty fur fixin' up bunnits." And Phebe was compelled to "wholesale" the family for twenty-six dollars, which hardly more than covered expenses.

Then she repacked her basket and once more set forth, under the blossoming trees and along the shady lanes, where dandelions sprinkled all the grass like drops of sunshine.

"Dr. Falkney was right," she said to herself. "Air and exercise are what I needed. I feel like another woman, only it does make me feel bad to think of never seeing Dr. Falkney's kind face again!" And for a moment the far-away blue of the April sky glimmered through a mist of unshed tears. "How foolish I am!" said Phebe to herself.

Then she knocked at Mrs. Parthan's door, and asked leave to show her the new spring shapes in hats and bonnets.

The fresh, glistening rolls of ribbon, the crisp roses and jonquils, the tempting "shapes" in straw and lace and buckram, and Phebe's own natural-born skill in combining them—all these proved irresistible to the country folk, and before long Phebe had sold out all her stock and returned to the city with a considerable sum over and above her expenses.

"This," she said gleefully to herself, "I shall give to Aunt Mynton toward the cost I have been to her."

As she crossed the street toward the dreary, red brick walls of the "Ontario Flats," where the Myntons dwelt, with about a dozen other families, some one reined up a horse, with a quick cry of: "Do you want to be run over, Phebe?"

She looked up. It was Dr. Falkney.

"O! doctor," she cried, radiantly, "I have taken your prescription, and you can't think how much good it has done me!"

The doctor looked as bright as she did herself. "I shall call to see you to-night," said he.

"Another prescription!" cried Phebe. And then she remembered, with a sudden crimsoning of the cheeks, that she had not yet paid his bill.

"But I can pay him now!" she thought, as she stood there and watched his carriage roll down the street. "Just as soon as his office hours begin I'll go there. I won't wait for him to present his bill."

To Dr. Falkney's great surprise his first patient that afternoon was Phebe Clissold.

"Doctor," said she, "I've come to pay your bill out of money that I've earned myself."

"Have I sent it in?" said he.

"No, but—"

"Nor do I intend to do so!" he declared. "Phebe, I'm thinking of going into partnership."

"Then your partner will certainly want all the old debts paid up," nodded she.

"I don't know about that. I am thinking of a life-partnership, Phebe—not a medical one—and the partner I want, dear little girl, is you!"

It was, perhaps, a little vague, but she understood it in an instant. Her cheeks flushed; her long brown eyelashes drooped.

"Dearest," said he, taking her hand, "is it to be Dr. Falkney and wife!"

Some other patients came in just then, and after that one look into her hazel eyes Dr. Falkney was troubled with no misgivings.

So there came an end to the bonnet-trimming business—"the itinerant millinery," as Phebe's husband called it.

"But I shall always feel happier and more independent," said she, "for knowing that I am able to earn my own living."—Saturday night.

An Austrian Pompeii.

An Austrian Pompeii has just been unearthed near Zara. Zara is the capital of the Austrian province of Dalamatia. Thousands of coins of the Diocletian period and of other early times, rare specimens of Grecian and Roman sculpture and Byzantine architecture were discovered along the Dalmatian shores. Amphitheaters, temples, catacombs and other evidences of a busy and highly civilized community were unearthed.

IS YOUR BAKING POWDER PURE?

Do its Manufacturers Publish all the Ingredients Used?

IS IT FREE FROM AMMONIA?

As is well known, ammonia is unhealthful in food, and dries up the bread material.

Protection to consumers of food compounds lies in their ability to choose those made from healthful substances. Unless manufacturers publish just what their baking powder is made of, do not use their goods, but buy instead

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER.

This powder is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, and strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, with a little wheat flour to preserve it. This is attested by the official analyses of Government and State chemists, and physicians, and chemists of Boards of Health throughout the country.

BIG BUILDING BOOM

Johnstown Slowly Rising from Its Ruins.

MANY HOUSES TO BE ERECTED.

One Hundred Structures to Be Ready Within Thirty Days.

Railroads Asked Not to Get up Excursions to Visit Johnstown During the Present Condition of Affairs—General Hastings to Turn Over the Relief Measures to the Citizens Themselves—A Flood Victim Goes Raving Mad.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 19.—The City Council has granted the Lumber committee the right to use the public square for the erection of business houses and workmen will commence the erection of one hundred buildings to-morrow morning. These structures will be ready for occupancy in thirty days and are to revert to the city at the end of eighteen months, when the holders are expected to have their own houses ready for business.

NO EXCURSIONS WANTED.

The Council unanimously adopted resolutions requesting railroads not to get up excursions to visit Johnstown during the present condition of affairs. Eight hundred people came in on the Baltimore and Ohio to-day, very much to the annoyance of the officials and workmen.

The Council was re-organized to-day. W. C. Lewis was elected Borough Treasurer and J. M. Rea President of the Council.

CITIZENS TO TAKE CHARGE.

General Hastings is arranging to turn over the relief measures to the citizens themselves. This transfer will probably occur this evening.

SHE WAS RAVING MAD.

A woman whose name could not be learned was taken to the Bedford Street hospital last evening raving mad. She had lost all of her family, and when her son's body was recovered at noon to-day her brain failed her. She will be removed to Dixmont to-morrow. A man who went insane to-day was taken to the Warren, Pa., asylum.

A LADY'S BODY FOUND.

The remains of a lady about twenty years of age were taken from Stony creek last evening. The body is supposed to be that of Miss Jennie Paulson of Pittsburg.

BRIDGES TO BE BUILT.

It was determined this morning to erect two wagon bridges over Stoney Creek opposite Kernville, and one across the Conemaugh near the Pennsylvania railroad.

When this is done the detail from the regular army engineer corps now here, will return to West Point, taking their ponteon bridges with them.

DOGS DEVOURING BODIES.

It is reported to-day that last night a pack of about 100 dogs invaded Prospect Hill Cemetery where about 500 victims of the flood are buried, dug up a number of the bodies and were tearing them limb from limb when they were discovered by the militiamen and chased away.

Four bodies were blown from the debris above the bridge this morning with the first shot of dynamite.

They were burned and decompose to such an extent that they could not be recognized.

The stench was so bad that the bodies were ordered to be burned without being taken to the morgue.

SECOND JUNE FLOOD.

Considerable Damage to Railroads in the Vicinity of Elmira.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 19.—The second June flood did considerable damage to railroads in the vicinity of Elmira.

Trains on the Erie, Delaware, Lackawana and Western, Northern Central, Tioga and Elmira Central and Northern roads were delayed by washouts and land slides.

Large forces of men were put to work on all the roads and trains are running to-day. The Chemung river rose rapidly last night, but did not overflow.

Newtown creek in the eastern part fo the city, rose to within three inches of the big flood mark of June 1. The high water carried away an iron bridge at Johns street. The houses of residents in the lower part of the city were surrounded by water.

More Floods at Williamsport.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 19.—Heavy rains prevailed again in this section yesterday afternoon and last night, causing the streams to rise rapidly. An eight foot flood in Lycoming Creek swept away the trestling of bridges Nos. 9 and 18 at Bodine and Ralston, on the Northern Central Road, completely cutting off communication on that road between this city and Elmira. All trains on the Northern Central between these two points are again tied up and will be for several days until the gaps can be closed.

Reducing the Loss.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 19.—The Lost Log committee has informed the Lumbermen's Exchange that about 125,000,000 feet of logs have been found below Clark's Ferry, including those in Chesapeake Bay, and more will yet be recovered. These can be sold for at least $10 per thousand feet, thus materially reducing the total loss by the flood.

Plattsburg's Contribution.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., June 19.—Hon. Smith M. Weed, president of this village, sent to Gov. Beaver to-day $2,092 the amount of the Plattsburg relief fund for the Conemaugh valley sufferers.

Three Hundred Miners Strike.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 19.—Three hundred miners employed by Linderman & Sheer struck yesterday against a reduction of three cents on a car.

SONS OF AMERICA.

The Patriotic Order Opens Its Camp at Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The national convention of the Patriotic Sons of America opened here yesterday in Elks' hall with about 150 delegates present. After the convention was called to order by President George P. Smith, of Chicago, District Commissioner Douglass delivered a short address of welcome.

President Smith then delivered his annual address. He reviewed the history of the organization and spoke eloquently of its aims and the work it has already accomplished. He said it should be the object of the members to instill in the minds of their children and friends the true American spirit, and above all to see that the schools should be kept free from any contaminating foreign influence. Recent events in the West hinted that the time had come for action; that the Order had been lying comparatively idle long enough and that it should show a more aggressive spirit. Its mission had only commenced. A few more Haymarket riots and Cronin murders would give the Order an opportunity to support its principles. There would not be enough lamp, telegraph and telephone poles in the country to hang the miscreants who care not how much reproach and odium they bring upon the name of America, so long as their personal ends are gained.

In conclusion, President Smith said that during the year just ended, the Order had exhibited a wonderful increase, both in membership and the number of camps instituted. It had been one of the most encouraging and notable years the order had ever seen. Over 200 new commanderies had been organized and the membership of the old had increased wonderfully.

The convention then went into secret session. Among the subjects to be discussed is the admission of colored people in the order and how it can best be made to prosper in the South.

NEW POSTMASTERS.

President Harrison Signs Forty-Two Commissions.

WASHINTTON, June 19.—The President to-day appointed forty-two postmasters, among them the following:

MASSACHUSETTS—John Whitehead, Fall River; Adoniram E. Vining, South Weymouth.

CONNECTICUT—G. W. Anthony, New Milford.

NEW YORK—Ward J. Fancher, Glencove; F. M. Snook, Waverly; A. E. Hawkins, Babylon; W. M. Marvin, Walton; Fred Bennet, Fulton.

NEW JERSEY—Charles Burrows, Rutherford; W. J. Browning, Camden.

PENNSYLVANIA—James H. Hagerty, Ridgeway; A. W. Randenbush, Lehighton; C. Falkenburg, Susquehanna; John A. Mentzer, Ephrata.

To Give Us Good Tea.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The Treasury department has authorized the Collector of Customs at New York to have the tea inspectors take samples of any importation of teas made at that port and to test the same in connection with the samples which may be submitted by the inspectors. This step is taken to prevent the importation of spurious and adulterated teas.

Capt. Meredith Wants the Place.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Captain Meredith, of Chicago, had an interview with Secretary Windom to-day about his candidacy for the position of Chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The interview was satisfactory to Captain Meredith and it is understood that his appointment will be made this week.

Fourth-Class Postmasters Chosen.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The following named fourth-class postmasters were appointed in New York to-day: R. O. Cook, Bridgeport; R. N. McKinley, Manlius Station; M. M. Perkins, South Otselic.

Exercises at Rutgers.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 19.—The trustees of Rutgers college held a business meeting yesterday, and afterward with the alumni listened to an address on "Public Opinion," by Charles H. Winfield, of Jersey City, at the alumni dinner. The corner stone of the new dormitory was laid by the donor, Garrett Winants, of Bergen Point, with appropriate ceremonies. The building will cost $75,000. Gen. Clinton B. Fisk this afternoon addressed the College societies. He advocated a government school for education of blacks and whites. The Junior exhibition last night was largely attended and the students acquitted themselves well.

Pennsylvania's New Railroad.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 19.—The Pennsylvania, Lehigh and Eastern railroad company was organized here yesterday. Samuel F. Pierson, of Pennsylvania, was elected President and among the directors are leading New York and Pennsylvania capitalists. The organization is the outcome of the purchase under foreclosure of a first mortgage on the rights of way of the Lehigh and Eastern railway. The franchise authorizes the building of a road from Pomhickon to Port Jervis. It will form a short line to New England via Poughkeepsie.

Undertakers in Session.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 19.—The annual session of the New York State Undertakers association was begun yesterday at the new Osborn house. About one hundred and fifty members are present. The meeting was opened with prayer and after some formal business the President delivered an address on the progress of the Association. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were submitted and showed a favorable state of affairs.

Flames in Natick.

NATICK, Mass., June 19.—The two upper stories of a large three story building in Cochituate street owned by Merrill & Bruce and used as a grist mill, box manufactory and moulding mill were burned yesterday. Total loss on building and contents estimated at $15,000. The building and machinery were insured for $6,000. Doon & Bowers' grist mill carried $2,000 insurance, and D. W. Moulton's planing and moulding mill, on which the loss was $500, was uninsured.

RACELAND WINS IT

The Suburban of 1889 Run Yesterday.

IT WAS A RATTLING CONTEST.

Terra Cotta Came in Second and Gorgo Was Third.

A Tremendous Crowd on the Coney Island Race-Track—No Such Gathering Ever Known Before—"Snapper" Garrison Rides Banker Belmont's Gelding and Wins with Ease—The Greatest Enthusiasm Prevails at the End of the Race.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Over thirty thousand persons went to Sheepshead Bay race track yesterday to witness the race for the SuburbanH andicap. A northwest wind blew a quarter gale over the course and the spectators found light overcoats and wraps very useful and comfortable.

The gathering was a wonderful one. Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Washington, Baltimore and all the intermediate towns of note sent representatives to swell the throng. China sent its diplomats and Chili some of its oldest and most enterprising statesmen. Judges were there jostling elbows with able attorneys and with many who have often occasion to employ these attorneys' services. Hundreds of ladies attired in their bright spring costumes made the grand stand resemble a huge kaleidoscope.

The number of vehicles in attendance more than doubled that on any other occasion. Everything in the shape of a private conveyance to be found in Brooklyn was pressed into service, from the stylish four-in-hand to the commonest sort of a buggy.

A TREMENDOUS CROWD.

The lawn was so closely packed that it was only with difficulty that progress could be made along a narrow lane in the throng near the steps of the grand stand. No such crowd was ever before seen on the course and it is doubtful if so many persons were ever assembled on a race course in America before.

The great race was the fourth of the day and was fixed for 4:20. As soon as the preceding race was run there was a rush to the betting stand to invest on it. Soon the crowd became so great that it was only by pushing and shoving that the betters could get near enough to the bookmakers to hand them their money. Most of the betters acted like crazy men in their anxiety to back their favorites.

The track by this time had dried out finely and though damp underneath was dusty on top. It was a trifle lumpy, but it was in far better condition than the average Suburban track.

TERRA COTTA FIRST TO SHOW.

The first of the great contestants to parade was Terra Cotta with McLaughlin up. He was recognized with plaudits as he gave the famous racer his preliminary canter.

After one breakaway Starter Caldwell sent the horses off to a good start with Eurus and Elkwood in front and on even terms, with Gorgo, Badge, Volunteer, Bella B., Raceland, Terra Cotta and Brian Boru in a bunch and well up. Coming to the stand Volunteer led by a nose, with Gorgo two lengths before Eurus, who was two lengths before Badge, who had Bella B., Raceland, Brian Boru and Terra Cotta next.

VOLUNTEER IN THE LEAD.

At the quarter post Volunteer led by a length, Gorgo was second, a length and a half before Bella B., with Badge, Eurus, Brian Boru, Terra Cotta and Elkwood next. Going up the stretch Gorgo went to the front and soon had a lead of two lengths from Eurus, second. Then came Bella B., Raceland, Volunteer, Brian Boru, Badge, Terra Cotta, under the whip, and Elkwood.

Gorgo led until they were well into the home-stretch with Raceland next, on whom "Snapper" Garrison was sitting like a marble statue. As they entered the home-stretch Garrison gazed right and left, and pleased with the survey kept Raceland to his work as steady as a clock.

On they came like a whirlwind. McLaughlin was making desperate efforts to overhaul the leaders and under whip and spur Terra Cotta came with a grand rush. The crowd yelled: "Now watch the 'Snapper' draw the whip", but he did not. With a confidence grand in itself, but almost heart-breaking to his backers Garrison merely sat down and urged Raceland the slightest bit.

RACELAND FIRST HOME.

Terra Cotta had overhauled Gorgo, but was too far back to win from Raceland who dashed pased the judge, a stand an easy winner by a length and a half in 2:09 4-5. Terra Cotta, second, was half a length before Gorgo, third. Eurus, Bolan Baru, Badge Elkwood, Volunteer, and Bella B., followed as named. Elkwood pulled up very lame. The fractional time was 0:34 1-5, 0:50, 1:17, 1:43 2-5 and 2:09 4-5.

The winner's neck was encircled on his return to the weighing stand with a gigantic floral horseshoe, on which the legend "Suburban" was worked with flowers.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM.

The greatest enthusiasm prevailed at the conclusion of the race. The ladies waved their handkerchiefs to the victorious jockey and the cheers of 25,000 men were given both horse and rider as they returned to the stable.

Raceland is a bay gelding 4 years old and is owned by August Belmont, the well known banker.

The Massachusetts Rifle Team.

BOSTON, June 19.—The Massachusetts Rifle team, which is to compete with the English Rifle volunteers, left yesterday for Liverpool via New York. The Adjutant-General of the State, Mayor Hart and other officials took part in the felicitations attending their departure.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Services in St. Mary's church every Friday evening during June at 8 o'clock.

—The public school at Westfield will close for the Summer vacation on Friday next.

—Dog-catcher Babbitt reports a total catch of four dogs on Monday and two yesterday.

—The Union County Board of Freeholders will meet at Elizabeth to-morrow afternoon.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has issued an order to convey free as baggage, bicycles, etc.

—A party of young people from Scotch Plains, spent the day, yesterday, very pleasantly on the mountain, in search of wild flowers.

—A very pungent reply to ex-Mayor Randolph's communication published in THE PRESS of last Saturday, will appear in these columns to-morrow.

—An entertainment will be given in the W. C. T. U. rooms on West Front street, to-morrow evening, under the auspices of the Loyal Temperance Legion.

—Ruralites should remind their road overseers of the law requiring the removal of the loose stones, etc., from the highways. It was passed in 1888, and should be enforced.

—The 31st annual excursion of the N. J. Editorial Association has been fixed for the last week in the present month. Its route will be to Niagara Falls, Watkins' Glen and Mauch Chunk.

—The extensive array of talent on the programme at Reform Hall, this evening, is all contributed, the use of the Hall has also been freely given, and, in consequence, the entire proceeds will go to the Johnstown sufferers.

—The "Young Crescents" of the city, are to play Master Woolston's nine of North Plainfield, on the ball ground opposite Blatz's Hotel. Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock. A very interesting game is looked for, as both teams will do their best to win.

—Complaint is made by expressmen and others, that during the Summer time when screen doors are placed in front of residences, in many instances, the number on the house is hidden from view. Some little delay in receiving packages, etc., may occur on this account.

—The United States Grand Jury and the Court of Pardons met at Trenton yesterday. There are already forty-four applications for pardons ready for the consideration of the Court, and the number will be greatly increased during the term. This is an unusually large number.

—A large and attentive audience gathered in Warren Mission chapel, last evening, to attend the meeting held under the auspices of the Society of Christian Endeavor. A short service of song, beginning at 7:45 o'clock preceded the devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. Mr. Skellinger of Dunellen.

—The brutal barbed wire fence has marked its course across the country by a trail of blood. It has stretched out its deadly, dagger like lines, and with voracious impartiality torn and maimed and ruined horses, cattle, sheep and children. And yet with all this bloody and costly account against it, we are told that its use is increasing.

School Prizes.

Miss Rocap's select school closed today for three months. There were devotional exercises and singing, and the year's reports were read. Each pupil received a pretty souvenir, and the following prizes were awarded:

Prize in Attendance	Miss Nellie Train
" " Spelling	Miss Florence Serrell
" " "	Master Bryant G. Harman
" " Deportment	Master Reeve Stockton
" " Spelling	Master Ferd Dorman
" " Scholarship	Master Charles Fountain

Refreshments were served, and all went home with light hearts and many pleasant remembrances. Miss Rocap will open a primary school for boys in the Fall.

Out On Strike.

A strike of miniature dimensions occurred in a butcher shop in North Plainfield last evening, when two of the four men employed in the shop quit work because their employer refused to accede to their demand for shorter hours. At last accounts the men were still out, but no trouble is apprehended. The two men who refused to go out, had their wages raised today.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Eva Graham of East Ninth street, started last evening for a six months' trip to Denver, Colorado.

Mrs. W. J. Shaw of Chicago, Ill., is visiting her sister, Mrs. P. M. Demarest of Craig place, North Plainfield.

A reception will be tendered to Mr. and Mrs. William B. Mosher, at their home on East Fourth street, to-morrow evening.

The Rev. Mr. Webb, of Lincoln University, will address this evening's prayer meeting in the Crescent Avenue chapel.

Miss Ada Marsh, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Marsh of East Ninth street, is expected to arrive from Paris, today.

Miss Hattie Searing of West Third street, left today for a three weeks' visit with relatives at Bernardsville, in Somerset county.

The Boy's Mission Band held its regular monthly meeting, yesterday afternoon, at the residence of Mrs. C. M. Goddard, on Third place.

The engagement is announced of Dr. A. Willis Anderson, of this city, and a charming and accomplished young woman of Elizabeth.

The Misses Rocap of Central avenue leave today for Asbury Park, where they will join Mrs. J. R. Truell in the management of the "Kernwood."

Mrs. Peter Sutphen and family of North Branch, made a short visit with relatives in Dunellen, this city and North Plainfield, returning home today.

Assemblyman Ulrich and Dr. A. S. Titsworth, the latter of Dunellen, were in attendance at the Eleventh Regiment reunion at Belvidere, yesterday.

Mr. John M. Hetfield of No. 44 Central avenue, is the happy father of a bouncing baby boy. The little one arrived last week, and weighs twelve pounds.

Miss Burt's friends will be glad to learn that she is very comfortable and steadily recovering after the successful surgical operation through which she passed, last Thursday.

Chief T. O. Doane, Capt. William Hand and Mr. John Goodwin were present from this city, yesterday, at Belvidere, at the annual reunion of the Eleventh Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers.

The beauties of our city would appear to better advantage if the trees on some of our streets were trimmed. The foliage is so dense in some cases that handsome residences are obscured.

Mrs. W. L. Jones of Park avenue and Seventh street, will spend the months of July, August and September at Long Branch. Her residence will be occupied during the Summer by Mr. N. T. Ayers and family, formerly of Crescent avenue.

Mr. Thomas S. Armstrong, the affable and efficient managing clerk of Reynolds' pharmacy, is rapidly recovering after a severe sickness from fever. In a week or so he will undoubtedly be able to take a vacation trip amid other scenes, where he will regain entirely his past good health.

Mr. Wm. M. Smith of Elm street, who recently drew up the engrossed set of resolutions presented by the City Council to ex-Chief of Police, Chas. W. Dodd, has designed the diplomas for the graduating class of the High School. The work on the diplomas shows the skill of an artist, and is certainly very pretty.

Nearly Lost His Life.

Just after the heavy shower on Saturday afternoon, a four-year-old son of Mr. Jacob Gaub of West Sixth street, nearly lost his life by drowning. During a heavy rain the New street sewer fills up, and being inadequate to carry off the supply the water backs up at the intersection of New and Sixth streets, to a considerable depth. This was the case on Saturday, when the roadbed on West Sixth street was entirely submerged, and the little fellow inadvertently stepped from the sidewalk into the gutter, in water over his head. Assistance arrived just in time to prevent the boy from drowning.

Another Store Building South of the Railroad.

Ground was broken yesterday for a handsome building at Park avenue and Fourth street, that the Miller Bros., are to erect from plans by Architect Oscar Teale. It will be of Philadelphia brick and terra cotta, costing about $15,000.

There will be two stores on Park avenue, and one on Fourth street. The two stories above will contain four apartment flats, heated by steam, lighted with electricity, and containing all the modern improvements and conveniences. Work will be pushed forward towards completion by Fall.

No Loss to the Church.

The insurance policies on the new First Presbyterian church building, contained "Lightning clauses," and, in consequence, the companies will make good the damage to the peak of the spire during Saturday's storm.

Adjusters were here yesterday, and with powerful field-glasses endeavored to appraise the loss from the street below. The damage is slight but the erection of a scaffold to repair it, will be rather costly.

Will Play the West End Jr's of Somerville.

The Diamonds of this city and the West End Jr., will play a match game on the Crescent's grounds, to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock. The game promises to be an interesting one, and a large number of persons will doubtless be present to witness it.

PLAINFIELD'S STREET RAILWAY.

When it Will be Exhibited—Its Route, Its Cost, and Its Time of Construction.

Unexpected delays still occur at the Philadelphia factory where is being constructed the street railway car that Mr. Daft has ordered for a public exhibition and test of his proposed ways and means of transportation for this city. The car is being built upon the latest models for the purpose, and fitted with the most improved appurtenances and conveniences, consequently vexatious hinderances have arisen and the car will not be finished before July.

The piece of trial track that is to be laid on the Martine property, just off of Broadway and between Carlton and Kensington avenues, is not begun yet, but will be ready in time. After the car is sent from the shops to the Daft works where it will be fitted with its motive power and storage batteries, the track can be constructed. If upon a thorough test in every way—ease of starting; speed; running power when loaded, ascending grades and turning curves; quickness of stopping or reversing, etc.—the service proves satisfactory, the franchise will be granted Mr. Daft for the exclusive right to construct and maintain a street railway in Plainfield.

The route is not yet definitely fixed upon, but will probably be through Front, Peace, Sixth and Seventh streets and Clinton avenue. Maps were given a number of citizens of judgment for their marking as to the most practicable route through that part of the city, that would serve the greatest number of people. The result of this deliberation by many minds was a labyrinth, the traversing of which, if possible, would have resulted in the car colliding with itself at every street corner, and eventually reaching its destination about once in six months.

Every cent of the money necessary to construct the road and plant, and equip them, is ready. The contractor who is again going over the ground today, will put himself under a forfeit to complete the road and restore the streets to their former, or better, condition, within sixty days from the time he first breaks the earth. The road will cost $31,000, and the entire plant, equipments, and rolling stock as much more. That everything will be of the very best is proven by those figures. Surely Plainfield is to be congratulated upon its Mr. Daft.

No Lack of Music and Mirth, There.

The Broadway Theatre in New York, is probably the coolest theatre for Summer performances in this country. Lighted throughout by electricity, it has a system of natural ventilation, unsurpassed. This is one of the many features which favor the Summer run of Francis Wilson and Company in "The Oolah" at that house. People know they can go and see this most comical of comic operas with some degree of comfort and satisfaction.

"The Oolah" is now in its second month at the Broadway. The business continues as large as ever. Miss Lena Merville, who was engaged by Manager Canby some time ago, made her first appearance with the Francis Wilson Company Monday night of last week, and she had quite a reeception. She gave a capital performance of Bampoora, the betrothed of The Oolah, and she will no doubt became a permanent member of the organization. There is no lack of fun in "The Oolah" now. It is one constant wave of merriment from beginning to end.

A Exciting Bowling Contest.

This evening on the Olympia alleys, there will be a bowling contest between twenty of the most expert gentlemen bowlers of the city, for three prizes valued at twenty dollars. The public is welcome to attend.

These are the competitors, any one of whom may be the winner of the first prize:

S. G. Smith,	H. B. Brooks.

This is the Latest.

The "progressive dinner" is the latest society fad. There are as many courses served as guests, and between each course the entire party change places at the table, thus passing entirely around it. At one of these dinners given by a young lady at Morristown, recently, the hostess painted on the invitation of each gentleman the portrait of the lady expected to accompany him, and upon each lady's invitation the portrait of her escort.

Protection From Fires.

The fire department arrangements for protection from fire on the Fourth of July have been completed by the Board of Engineers, but the appointments have not yet been announced. Beginning at midnight on the the third, there will be a man on duty in the tower for thirty-six consecutive hours, and all the fire department horses, engineers and tillermen will also be on duty during that time.

BETTER WATER WORKS THAN THE CESSPOOL MAN.

He Comes Slow Yet We Must Have Him—He Tears Up Tennis Courts and is Otherwise Playful, But is Worse Than a Conflagration.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Considerable comment has been elicited, I believe, by a letter of ex-Mayor Randolph's, published in THE PRESS, on the subject of water works. Opinions good, bad, and indifferent have been advanced, but no very strong point has been made. If there is any one reason, more than another, why the works are demanded, it is because they may to a great degree, do away with the cesspool cleaning nuisance.

I have never entertained an admiration for the business of a cesspool cleaner and fear that, being possessed of a certain regard for the happiness of my fellowmen, I am forever disqualified from following the weird pleasures of the profession. The cesspool man is a curious combination, and his haughty bearing, as well as the peculiarity of his occupation, keep people at a respectful distance. He exercises a sort of petty tyranny over us, for well does he know that, until water works appear, though he comes high, we must have him. He is slow, too, very slow. If your cesspool will in all probability require his attentions sometime next Fall, notify him immediately and there will be a chance of getting the work done by Spring.

However, with all his terribleness, the cesspool man is often playful. One of his favorite pastimes is to drive his whole outfit on the property of his client's next door neighbor and to demoralize the same in such a manner that it could not be recognized by its own proprietor. A while ago one of these alleged "odorless" caravans laid siege to an ill-starred tennis court over in the Borough, and hacked it up in a truly terrific style. Their heavy engine of war was backed upon the court, while a smaller vehicle was driven up and down and across it, without any excuse or provocation whatever, spreading destruction and ruin in its path. Whether this plowing and harrowing of adjoining property is necessary to the successful performance of the work in the client's cesspool, I strongly doubt, and as the party who suggested the undertaking has not ventured an explanation, or an apology, I am as yet uncertain The "excavators" after excavating the court to their hearts' content, set sail for parts unknown, only to return a night or two afterwards and attempt to tear up a fence and perform further upon the court. They were luckily prevented by the intervention of law abiding citizens.

It is not easy to discover the motive of the maliciousness, or to find whether it was prompted by inspiration or by the suggestion of certain parties who may possess an aversion to tennis courts. At any rate the legitimate business of the cesspool cleaner is cleaning cesspools, not destroying property and pulling down fences. When he departs from his regular occupation and indulges in these diversions he makes himself amenable to the law. Two moves are said to be worse than a fire and one cesspool cleaning is probably worse than a dozen moves and any number of fires.

If the water works will kill the cesspool nuisance, then, I say, let us have water works.

CRITIQUE.

A Plainfield Woman Will Open the Discussion.

The Union County Christian Endeavor Union will hold a conference on Friday evening, June 21, in the First Baptist church at Elizabeth. The societies of the First Presbyterian, Trinity Reformed and Congregational churches of this city became members of the County Union last Fall and will be in attendance at the coming conference. Since the last meeting societies have been organized in various parts of the county, and all are invited to be present. If the Secretary has not sent invitations, any society will please regard the public notice as an invitation.

The conference promises to be of much interest. The discussions on methods of work will be opened by Miss E. J. Bainbridge of this city, who will read a paper on "Committee Work." There will also be a paper on "The Pledge," and an address by F. B. Everitt, Secretary of the N. J. State Union Y. P. S. C. E. Presidents of local societies will read their minute reports, and are asked to send statistics. The musical programme will be very attractive.

An Attractive Array.

The Washingtonville Chapel people will give a grand concert at Reform Hall, corner of Second street and Central avenue, Monday evening, June 24, the proceeds to be used for the new chapel soon to be erected. The following artists will appear:

The eminent elocutionist, Mr. J. R. La Forrest, of New York; Mr. Stringer, the bass soloist of the Orpheus Society of Newark, N. J.; the Crescent Quartette Club of Plainfield; the Misses Totten, Baxter and Smith, soprano soloists, of Newark, N. J., and Mrs. VanDegrift, soprano soloist, of New York. Also, Mrs. Leuerssen of North Plainfield, instrumentalist.

Plainfield People in the Court of Appeals.

The Court of Errors and Appeals opened yesterday. In its list of causes are: John Collins et ux., and Isaac R. Collins, Messrs Jackson & Codington for the defendant; Mulford Cole et al., and Sarah House and Wm. Hetfield, ex'rs., Messrs Jackson & Codington for the defendants; Eleanor B. Jones et al., ex'rs., and Marie Davenport, et al., Charles A. Reed, Esq., for the plaintiff.

FINEST DEPOT IN THE STATE.

The Central's New Station at Communipaw Is Very Near Completion.

The carpenter and mason work on the mammoth new depot of the Central Railroad at Communipaw, has been practically completed, and within one or two weeks the great waiting room will be thrown open to the patrons of the road. The immense 700 foot shed of the depot building has been in use for several weeks.

The building is the finest of its kind in the State. The big waiting-room occupies half the building. Its vaulted ceiling is the roof of the depot, beneath which the three tiers of offices open upon as many balconies. The walls are entirely of English glazed brick with blue and gray sandstone trimmings, and the floors are heavily tiled. The woodwork is polished oak and the fittings brass. The air of brightness about everything gives the big room a most inviting aspect.

The restaurant adjoins it on the left of the entrance from the ferry. The ladies' rooms and ticket and baggage offices are elegant in appointment, and the thirty offices of the officials of the road in the upper stories are models of convenience. Electric lights and steam-heating apparatuses are everywhere, and the furniture, now being placed in position, is in tone with the handsome surroundings.

The building is entirely fire-proof, only brick, iron and glass being used. Two great clocks, with six-foot dials, one facing the river and the other the trains, have been placed in position and started. Four of the ferry slips have now been completed and are in use, while the fifth is nearly finished. The interior of the shed has been completed, and as the smaller details of work are accomplished, the great terminal building makes a splendid appearance.

The Directors of the road will celebrate the formal opening by giving a grand dinner in the new building.

GOOD ENOUGH!

Mayor Hyer of Rahway, Re-elected.

The special charter election for Mayor in Rahway, yesterday, resulted in the re-election of Lewis S. Hyer, Democrat, by 100 majority. Under the new law, which took effect last April, Hyer's term of office will be two years.

The election was hotly contested. W. P. Esterbrook was the Republican candidate. Last Spring with the same candidates, the vote was a tie owing to a Prohibition movement. The city government is now Democratic. Hyer's majority is the largest ever given to a candidate for Mayor.

No Reference to Postmaster Wanamaker?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS: It has been said that men carry on a kind of coasting trade with religion. In the voyage of life they profess to be in search of Heaven, but take good care not to venture so far in their approximations to it as to entirely lose sight of the earth; and should their frail vessel be in danger of shipwreck, they will gladly throw their darling vices overboard, (as other mariners do their treasures) only to fish them up again when the storm is over.

To steer a course that shall secure both Worlds, is still, I fear, a desideratum in ethics—a thing unattained as yet, either by the divine or the philosopher, for the track is discoverable only by the shipwrecks that have been made in the attempt. John Wesley quaintly observed, that the road to Heaven is a narrow path, and not intended for wheels, and that to ride in a coach here, and to go to Heaven hereafter, was a happiness too much for man.

Now, Mr. Editor, I don't wish you to understand I have any reference to any of the high officials in our land, because you know honest John rode in his coach before he died, but I don't remember of his having a yacht.

Yours,
G. W. B.

Chief Doane Visits Easton.

On his return from Belvidere, last evening, Chief Doane stopped over in Easton and in company with Chief Smith of that place, inspected the fire department apparatus. Chief Doane speaks well of the Easton Fire Department. He says that seven men are kept on duty at all times in the city proper, with a reserve of fifteen call men. On College Hill, a suburb, there is a company of twelve call men. The horses are used for street sprinkling purposes, a duty which the Fire Department horses of this city should be engaged to do.

A Few Days Longer.

Dr. Kimbell, the well-known chiropodist, is still at the City Hotel, where he will remain for a few days longer. Those who are troubled with corns, moles, etc., can have them specifically removed without pain, by calling upon Dr. Kimbell. The Doctor's visit to Plainfield a year ago, and his return this season is a guarantee of his worth as a chiropodist, and we cheerfully recommend him to our readers.

Of Interest to Tenants.

According to the tenant and landlord act, a tenant can remove from the premises any fixtures or structures put up for his own use in trade at any time before the expiration of the lease, but not afterward. If he leaves them unremoved after termination of his lease they become his landlord's and he cannot go back and take them.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Emil Ebert, of Waterbury, Conn., shot himself dead in Central Park, New York, last night.

Benjamin Foster and Robert Smiley were drowned in New York Bay by their rowboat coming in collision with a sailboat.

Antonio Riccio, an Italian, of 49 Bayard street, New York, shot and killed his wife during a quarrel at their home Tuesday.

The recent report of the loss of the French bark Lecoq was erroneous. She has been spoken of at sea since the report.

Huyler's candy manufactory, Irving Place, New York, was burned yesterday morning. Loss on stock and building, $40,000.

Mrs. John Maple and her two children were drowned by the upsetting of a wagon while attempting to ford a swollen stream near Wabash, Ind.

Nicholas Pert, aged 71, of Cincinnati, killed his wife by cutting her throat with a razor and then slashed his own throat. He is insane and will die.

W. H. Sullivan, Harry Usner and William Wood, while sailing on Great Salt lake, Utah, yesterday, were drowned, their boat being capsized by a gale.

Scaley Perry, a prospector, fatally shot William McCoy and slightly wounded Edward Baxter and J. Trevell at a horse race at Silver Lake, Montana, yesterday.

George Reyer, Secretary of the Western Shooting Association, which meets at Indianapolis, to-day, while out hunting yesterday, accidentally shot and killed himself.

The Emperor William will probably sail from Kiel on the 30th of June. His voyage will extend as far as Hammerfest and may reach to the North Cape before his return.

Lieutenant Archer, of the United States ship Constellation, arrived in Norfolk, Va., yesterday and brought the intelligence that the Constellation had gone ashore one mile below Cape Henry.

The Report Untrue.

BOSTON, June 19.—The report that Page's wharf in Charlestown had caved in, and that several men were killed, proves to be untrue. It arose from the caving in of a cellar in Charlestown, in which Patrick Carr received a fracture of the right leg below the knee.

Reading Club Disbands.

READING, Pa., June 19.—On account of a lack of patronage the Reading Baseball club disbanded this morning. The players have only had two weeks pay since their organization. Only from twenty-five to fifty persons attending the games played here of late.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be extended to the Ladies who so kindly assisted us at the convention of the State Exempt Association, held at Plainfield, May 10, 1889, thereby enabling us to make the entertainment and collation a grand success; also to the G. A. R. Post No. 73 for the use of dishes, and to all others who so kindly gave us aid and assistance on that occasion.

In behalf of the Exempt Firemen's Association of Plainfield, N. J.,

FEW DAYS LONGER.

Every form of disease of the Feet are cured by him. HOURS—9 A. M. till 6 P. M.

Special favors shown people in moderate circumstances.

Servants will be in waiting to conduct ladies and gentlemen to the Doctor's parlors at the CITY HOTEL, Plainfield, for a FEW DAYS LONGER.

People who desire the services of a skillful CHIROPODIST, had better improve the opportunity and call at once, as his stay in Plainfield is limited.

DR. KIMBELL'S charges are moderate and invariably known after examinations, which are always free.

Ladies often make up parties of from two to six and call upon Dr. Kimbell together. The most timid lady, aged person or child can have the most aggravating feet troubles radically and permanently cured and suffer nothing from the treatment.

MOLES AND WARTS OF THE FACE, NECK, OR ANY PART OF THE BODY, are removed without pain, and without cutting.

During the past six years Dr. Kimbell has treated 15,000 persons, ladies and gentlemen.

From many thousand Testimonials in Dr. Kimbell's possession, he begs to submit the following

Plainfield Testimonials:

From J. B. Probasco, M. D.: "I have had personal experience with DR. KIMBELL'S skill in removing corns, and heartily recommend him to the afflicted.

DEEP IN THE PLOT

The Arrest of Burke Is Most Important.

LIGHT ON THE CRONIN MURDER.

Important Evidence to Be Submitted to the Grand Jury.

Burke Said that LeCaron Ought to Be Killed and Boasted that Another Man, Presumably Dr. Cronin, Would Soon Be Put Out of the Way—An Officer to Leave for Winnipeg as Soon as the Papers Are Ready.

CHICAGO, June 19.—"The arrest of Martin Burke, at Winnipeg, is the most important yet effected. He is deeper in the plot than any of the men now in jail," said Chief of Police Hubbard, to-day.

From other sources a summary of the evidence affecting the suspect and which will be submitted to the Grand Jury within forty-eight hours has been obtained.

A prominent North Side Irishman will testify that a few weeks before the murder Burke remarked in a public place that Le Caron should have been killed before he had a chance of leaving for England, and that there was another fellow who would get it before he was many weeks older.

BURKE AND COUGHLIN SEEN TOGETHER.

It will be shown that Burke and ex-Detective Coughlin were frequently seen together in saloons on the North Side and that the former was a frequent visitor at the cottage of Iceman Sullivan.

But the most important witness will be old Mrs. Philbin, Burke's aunt, and in whose house on Sedgwick streets he boarded. By her it will be shown that he lost his position in the City Sewer department last December, and has since had no employment. Up to February he was short of funds, ran in debt for his board and borrowed an occasional dollar whenever he could get it. From that time on to his sudden flight from the city he had plenty of money, more in fact than when he was working.

MYSTERIOUS ABSENCE FROM HOME.

On the day of Dr. Cronin's disappearance he was absent from home. He did not return all night. Sunday morning at 8 o'clock he put in an appearance heavy and sleepy, and in reply to questions said that he had slept all night at the iceman's house.

It will also be shown that he was an active member of the inner circle of Camp 20, of the Clan-na-Gael.

AN OFFICER GOING TO WINNIPEG.

An officer will leave for Winnipeg as soon as the necessary papers can be procured.

The Grand Jury spent over an hour yesterday in going through the twenty or more telegraphic and cable despatches produced by the Western Union officials, and supposed to have a bearing on the case. All the members of the body, however, had taken a special injunction of secrecy regarding the documents, and not a hint of what had been developed could be obtained.

BURKE BEFNR A MAGISTRATE.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 19.—Burke was arraigned before a Police Magistrate to-day and remanded for ten days at the request of Chief McRae who submitted telegrams from the Dhicago authorities to the effect that papers and copies of photographs tending to show that he is the mysterious Williams were on their way here.

Burke was very nervous and urged his lawyer to institute habeas corpus proceedings without delay. The latter however after looking over the despatches concluded that it would be useless to comply with the request and the prisoner went back to jail.

Railway Master Mechanics.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 16.—The annual meeting of the American Railway Master Mechanic's association began in the Park Theatre yesterday. From an early hour the building was crowded with master mechanics, railway supply men and representatives of the railway press. The first floor of the theatre was an exhibition hall and the floor was covered with exhibits of various railway appliances and supplies. The technical newspapers and journals are well represented. The Northwestern Railroader has leased the Gazette job office for the convention and will issue a daily record of the proceedings.

A Boston Schooner Seized.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 19.—The schooner Warrior, which arrived here Sunday from Boston, has been seized by the Customs authorities for having on board one barrel of oil not on her manifest. She brought fifty barrels of oil for Lawson, Harrington and Company, but when an officer went to gauge them he found an odd barrel aboard. A penalty of $400 can be imposed, and in lieu of this the vessel and oil can be confiscated.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

London Shocked by the Presence of a Leper in the Meat Market.

LONDON, June 19.—All London received an electric shock to-day by the publication of the statement that in the great Central Meat Market there is a man employed afflicted with leprosy. The gentleman who made the discovery quietly sent a note to the clerk of the Common Council, and to avoid unnecessary alarm this communication was considered at a meeting of that body intended to be private.

An attache of the Fortnightly Review however, got hold of the facts and sent the note to the newspapers.

Such a howl of rage and terror as this has stirred up London has not heard for many a day. The authorities are catching it right and left and if a conspiracy on their part had been discovered to infect England with the dread scourge, their treatment could scarcely be more severe.

In the meantime there is no certainty that there is any truth in the report. The Health Officer of London, Mr. Saunders, denies it, and the Common Council contents itself with a mild protest against the prevailing excitement.

Doubts are cast to-day upon the story from Belgrade about the Russo-Servian military convention.

The Cologne Gazette has a despatch from Vienna which asserts that the whole story is the fabrication of a prominent Servian Radical, whose object it was to involve his government in a quarrel.

Two miners of Dortmund, in Westphalia, have just been sentenced to seven years penal servitude each for using revolvers on the occasion of disturbances growing out of the recent strike.

The Princess Stephanie, widow of the Crown Prince Rudolph, of Austria, is now free to leave Austrian territory if she so desires. This she could not have done before as there was a possibility that she might give birth to an heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne and serious complications could scarcely be avoided if the heir first saw the light elsewhere than on his own dominions.

The Court Doctors have now decided that the Princess is not enciente and the ladies of the royal household and the officials who have been in constant attendance upon her have been withdrawn.

TO ADVANCE WAGES.

Weavers Make a Request Which They Say Is Justifiable.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 19.—Secretary Rounseville, of the Manufacturers Board of Trade, received a letter yesterday from Secretary Connolly, of the Weavers Protective association, in which the Board is asked to advance wages on the ground that the condition of business warrants better pay.

The same arguments used at the time of the last strike are now put forth.

The request is now in the hands of the Executive Committee of the manufacturers, and it is not yet known what disposition will be made of it.

Agents who have been interviewed on the subject state that the objections which they have always had to recognizing the Association still hold good, and have not been removed by any change which has taken place in the composition of the alliance. The meeting at which the vote on the wage question was taken was, it is claimed, slimly attended, and therefore its expression does not represent the views of the operatives. Furthermore the fact that another union has been organized justifies the belief that the Protective association is no longer a representative body.

New Haven's Yacht Race.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 19.—In the races of the New Haven Yacht club the Flora, Sea Belle and Stranger won their respective divisions. The Mariota, Vixen and Acme were the only other boats covering the full course. The water was very rough and the boats had a hard experience. The Dare Devil capsized but her crew were rescued by a tug. The Mariota lost her jib, the Gypsy broke her rudder, and there were several minor accidents. The passengers on the steamer Elm City, who went out to see the race, were nearly all sea sick.

Commencement at Swarthmore.

CHESTER, Pa., June 19.—The seventeenth annual commencement of Swarthmore college yesterday was attended by a large number of visitors. Eighteen graduates received degrees, including Miss Clara Haydock, of New York city, Bachelor of Letters, and Horace B. Forman, Jr., of New York city, Bachelor of Engineering. The degrees were conferred by President Magill.

Was Harrison Drowned?

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 19.—John H. Harrison, who left here Friday in a sail boat for a cruise, intending to return Sunday, is supposed to have been drowned. His boat, with articles of his clothing in it, has been found floating near Portsmouth, R. I.

The Coffee Market Excited.

NEW YORK, June 19.—The coffee market was excited yesterday on account of lower quotations from Havre and Hamburg. Prices declined 40 to 50 points, but reacted and closed 25 points lower than Monday, on sales of 143,750 bags.

AT THE JUNE WEDDINGS.

Some Points For the Benefit of Early Summer Brides.

The New Generation Taking Up Old Marriage Superstitions—The Details of a Beautiful Trousseau for a Wealthy Young Woman.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

One result of the Winter campaign promises to be an unusually large crop of June weddings, and several of the more notable which have already been celebrated have a touch of quaintness to break their formalism in a revival of some of the picturesque old marriage customs. On a recent occasion the bride wore her name flower, the lily of the valley, wreathed with vines. When the sound of carriage wheels was heard outside the windows and it was time for her to put on her traveling gown, she pulled, before withdrawing from the company, the posies from her hair. Twisting the stems into a garland she motioned to a group of her girl friends to join hands in a ring, first allowing the maid of honor to draw a fold of the veil across her eyes. So blinded she held the garland at arm's length while the unwedded damsels circled about her, each one passing in turn beneath the bridal crown, the maiden on whose head it was finally allowed to rest being regarded as she whose turn would come next in order to wear wreath and veil.

At a second swell wedding within the ranks of the 400 the bride's veil of old lace was fastened by a dozen pearl pins. When she went to change her dress word was passed to her twelve bridesmaids to follow her, and these favored young women withdrew each a jewel, following out the superstition that all pins must be removed from a bride's toilet to insure her amiability and freedom from small worries, and adding a newer idea that such gifts bring luck to the receiver.

Other old ceremonies in high favor at fashionable weddings this Season are the theft by an agile bridesmaid of the left slipper of the bride—warranted to act as a charm to bring about a second wedding within a year—the scrmble of the ushers for the brides boquet—which will make a man a Benedict certainly—the sprinkling of rice in quantities greater than formerly, and the obligation newly put upon the bridesmaid that they, or one of them, must embroider for the bride a blue garter, since if her marriage is not to be a failure, and she is not to bring up in a Chicago divorce-court, the sun must shine on her and she must take all the precautions of wearing something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue.

With the revival of such a multitude of old ceremonials it is not strange that the wedding gown should suggest the days of auld lang syne. A very pretty bridal robe that I have just seen is destined for a maid in dressy and gay little Orange. It is made of white Indian muslin, cut in fashion of the period of 1835, with balloon-like leg o'mutton sleeves, a little surplice bodice with a wide waistband and sash ends tied in a bow and brought to the middle of the back just below the shoulder blades. The skirt is fully gathered at the waist and is short enough to show the satin slippers laced sandal-wise about the ankles. It is, of course, very narrow and is finished with scallops of white silk floss. From the waist line down is studded all over with embroidered white rosebuds, and in front the hem has a vine pattern with roses intertwined. A frill of old lace at the neck falls on the shoulders. The brown hair of the slim little bride will be drawn high on her head with little bunches of soft curls hanging over the temples. Her veil is to be of old lace that was worn a hundred years ago.

This is to be a flower wedding in honor of the June sunshine, as well as an old-time ceremonial, and the ten bridesmaids, who will wear gowns exactly like those assumed by their grandmothers when they were young, will walk in pairs and carry roses, the first two in short-waisted gowns and scant skirts of the most delicate shade of pink China silk, with sashes like that of the bride, with trails of the pale sweet briar hanging from their wide Leghorn hats down on their shoulders and escaping from the baskets tied with broad pink ribbons carried in the hand. The next couple will wear pink silk of the shade next deeper and crown themselves with the five-petalled wild rose with blossoms sweet and bright on every hillside. After these will come two vivid brunettes in yellow to match their yellow roses and then two others in the warm pink of the Gloire de Paris roses and the last two in the deep glowing red of the Jacqueminots.

As a wedding silk there can be little doubt that white armure is fast displacing the traditional white satin. It has not the sheen of the classic fabric, but to the average woman, who is renowned for failing to look her best when dressed for wedding, it is far more becoming. It has a softness that the satin lacks, and a delicate grain over which light and shadow play prettily. A very complete trousseau prepared for a well-known girl of considerable wealth whose future husband has received an important appointment abroad might be looked on as an epitome of the Summer fashions of 1889. The wedding gown is particularly rich and and beautiful, being composed of white armure silk brocaded with orange flowers and myrtle and cut in a long princesse redingote opening over a front of lace wrought in patterns of the same bridal blossoms. Clusters of orange flowers fasten the skirt to the redingote and more orange flowers are worn at the throat. The bodice opens over a draped lace plastern. There are long sash ends of white ribbon. The veil is of point lace, also showing the myrtle and orange designs.

One of the most charming dresses in this trousseau is a dinner dress of pearl-white Japanese crepe, which is unlike the Chinese crepe, in that it is heavier, coarser in mesh and without lustre. Bernhardt likes to wear it because it falls in beautiful statuesque folds. This dinner gown is made with a princess redingote of laurel green armure embroidered in different shades of green. The redingote is outlined with a soft border of white lace ruching. The neck is cut out in front in a small V and into this is shirred the fullness of the white crepe, which hangs in straight folds to the floor. The skirt is composed entirely of the crepe, and a scarf of the same material is fastened at one side with a large jeweled pin. The embroidered sleeve is edged with lace ruching.

One of the carriage dresses is also extremely fresh and brilliant, being of the most exquisitely fine India camel's hair in pale green tones. It has a bodice and Greek draperies over a skirt of armure, which is in stripes of two shades of green. A tiny Spanish Toreador jacket of green velvet bordered with silk ball fringe and a narrow band of silk embroidery constitutes the bodice finishing.

Two or three visiting dressing dresses are exquisitely French examples of the use of the French woman's color, gray. One of dark gray velvet and light gray silk is extremely graceful. The drapery of the silk hangs straight from throat to feet, slightly caught up on both sides, to show the velvet underskirt and confined below the waist by a wide band of silk embroidery in light and dark gray. A short and natty roundcut gray velvet jacket is worn with this costume.

The second is of the gray glorioea that has the same effect as poplin, silk worp Henrietta and many other of the silk and wool fabrics. The skirt is laid in accordion plaits, with a wide border of steel blue satin. The waist is laid in plaits also, the somewhat wiry nature of the material prohibiting the softer drapings. A wide sash of steel blue satin lends a finishing touch to the whole.

The third gray gown has a petticoat of smoke gray water velvet; over this comes a smoke gray watered silk Directory waist coat and sash heavily embroidered in four-leaved clovers in silver and steel. The gloves and shoes are of gray suede to match the petticoat, and the wide Directory hat is of gray straw covered with gray plumes and knots of white ribbon.

Two pretty tea gowns are not the least charming items, one indeed being Greek enough to have belonged in Athens. Embroidered pale green crepe de chine is the material striped with ribbon of the same color. It is patterned somewhat after the gowns worn in the Greek play at the Lyceum a month or two ago, and its loose draperies fall in sweeping, unconventional but most artistic folds.

The other tea gown is delicately radiant with rose color and white, most summer-like in its opalescent shades, suggestive of the grace and picturesqueness of Watteau. The overdress is of soft white crepon, with wide sleeves slashed with Valenciennes lace, and opening over a skirt of rose colored surah laid in fine narrow plaitings which cling about the figure. The pink sash fastens in front and loops of pink ribbon are knotted on the shoulders, the long ends hanging down.

A simple dress, which is especially becoming to the slight figure of the bride, is a redingote of black surah, with the jauntiest of revers. The wide sleeves are gathered into deep wristbands, there is a soft sash of blaack watered silk and the skirt is of black guipure.

There is no space left in which to speak of the delicate under-linen sheer as cobweb's, daintly white, embroidered and edged with Valenciennes. Say what one will, the colored silk underwear will never make its way with really refined women. It is pretty enough but too emphatic and decidedly outre. The bridemaids' gowns at this wedding will be rather new both in design and combination of colors. The dresses will be made with underskirts of corn colored silk, over which fall full straight skirts of white lace, the vieux rose moire Directory coats opening over lace waistcoats and trimmed with large gold buttons. The hats are of white Leghorn with vieux rose and gold plumes and the gloves of vieux rose.

The bride's mother seldom finds it easy to fix on a becoming and appropriate gown. In this instance she will wear green armure and white moire.

ELLEN OSBORN.

Fashion Notes.

Pink and cream color is a favorite combination in dancing dresses.

"Alderney" is the suggestive name of a rich cream tint now in high favor for bridal toilets.

The newest accordion-plaited skirts are bordered with many rows of very narrow watered ribbon.

Velvet ribbons in many rows are used upon tulle and gauze gowns to give the effect of stripes.

Rich velvet bodices are trimmed with fine gold passementerie, with Empire vests of gold-wrought net.

The Greek bonnet is a recent introduction, and when worn with the Empire gown the effect is decidedly classic.

Among the artistic corsage draperies are the "Martha Washington" kerchiefs, which are folded and crossed over the bust after the fashion of a century ago.

Winners at Island Park.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 19.—Yesterday was the opening day of the circuit races at Island Park. The weather was fine but the track a little sticky. The attendance was fair.

2:40 trotting class, purse $1,000, divided—Walkill Boy, 1; Stephanie, 2; Stamford, 3; Administrator Wilkes, 4. Best time, 2:28, made by Walkill Boy.

2:22 trotting class, purse $1,000, divided—Yorktown Belle won in three straight heats; W. K., 2; Crescinda, 3; Elastic Starch, 4. Best time, 2:23.

No Transfer of the Stock.

ALBANY, June 19.—J. H. Manning, chief owner of the Argus, denies the report that Col. Lamont, recently transfered his stock in the Argus to Gov. Hill, who would control the editorial columns. Mr. Maaning says no transfer of stock has been made since the the settlement of his father's estate, when all of it owned by Daniel Manning was retained in the family.

Rescued Sailors Brought to Port.

BOSTON, June 16.—The Italian bark Chioggion, which arrived at this port yesterday, brought John Shaughnessy, not Shancy, and Eugene Burden, of the fishing schooner Elmer P. Wright, reported from Provincetown as having been lost in a dory. The men were picked up one hundred miles south from Chatham having been in the boat thirty hours.

Discussing the Division of the Million Dollar Loan for the Flood Sufferers.

Johnstown Wanted It All but Will Have to Share the Benefits of the Fund with the Unfortunates in Other Parts of Pennsylvania—Houses Conceded to Be the First Want of the People—They Will Be Supplied.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 20.—At the conference yesterday of Governor Beaver's Relief commission which lasted about three hours the Pittsburg members of the commission wanted the million dollar loan expended upon measures of sole-relief for Johnstown, while the Eastern members were of the opinion that the Susquehanna and Juniata valley sufferers were also entitled to recognition.

After a great deal of talk Governor Beaver decided that Johnstown should have 70 or 80 per cent. of the million dollars.

The next question was, how the money should be distributed? Houses were conceded the first want of the people and 500 Chicago ready-made houses will be put up and furnished as soon as they can be got upon the ground.

It was also decided to use every means possible to make the stricken people of the community self-supporting and induce them to get to work as soon as possible.

Dynamiting continued at the stone bridge to-day, and the numerous blasts were somewhat heavier than those of yesterday, but did not cause any damage.

The mass of gorged drift is gradually disappearing and the streams will soon be cleared of wreckage.

Work will then be commenced clearing out the cellars.

Great improvement is being wrought in the condition of affairs at Kernville, and that place will soon be restored, as it is found that many of the wrecked houses are not damaged beyond repair.

The Pennsylvania Children's Aid Society began work on a house costing $500, to be used as general headquarters so long as the Society may require it, after which the building will be turned over to the Cambria Aid Society.

Dr. Lee, of the State Board of Health, published bulletin No. 5 this morning, the first since last Thursday, of the sanitary condition of Johnstown and surrounding boroughs: "Coopersdale is still difficult of access on account of high water in the Conemaugh and it has been a matter of great difficulty to keep people there supplied with the necessaries of life, hence from that place is reported slight increase in affections of stomach and bowels.

"No new cases at Bedford street hospital. Twenty-one dispensary cases had been treated during the day, twelve of which are slight injuries.

"There are no contagious diseases.

"Red Cross hospital reports one case of diphtheria discharged well and one terminated fatally. At present there is one patient in the hospital from the result of a wound. Health of military excellent, not one soldier off duty.

"Death—four-year-old child, Morrellville, cause not stated; also death child, East Conemaugh, from accidental poisoning.

"Measles diminishing, collectors at work collecting carcasses of animals along different steams and cremating them with rosin.

"Quninbell Bros, of Newark, England, have donated $9,500 worth of their world famous disinfectants which will arrive by first steamer."

Dangerous to Navigation.

BOSTON, June 20.—Steamer Venetian at this port to-day from Liverpool reports 6:30 a. m. one hundred miles south of Halifax passed the derelict bark Ottawa before reported. The bulwarks were washed away, the cabin gutted and the sea was making a clean breach over her. The bark is directly in the path of European steamers and is very dangerous to navigation. The Venetian passed an iceberg June 17 in latitude 44.10, longitude 48.10.

A SQUEERS IN MASSACHUSETTS.

He Brutally Flogs a Pupil, but Will Be Prosecuted for It.

BOSTON, June 20.—The fierce flogging of a public school boy in Hingham by his teacher has stirred up a great deal of indignation in that town. The boy is a son of J. E. Trelfell, and the other day was sent to the principal to be whipped. Young Trelfell, it is said, had pushed one of the boys against a little girl hard enough to hurt her.

Harry Winslow, the head-master, gave him a flogging and exceeded not only his authority, so it is claimed, but also whipped the boy far beyond what he deserved. He was brought into Lincoln's drug store. His back showed thirteen black and blue stripes, big as a man's finger, his throat had an ugly red mark and on the back of his legs were two swellings of the size of an egg. The boy's parents will prosecute the school-master, who is credited with possessing a hot temper.

English Brewing Syndicate.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Samuel Mutermyer, the agent of the English syndicate which is purchasing American breweries, denies the truth of the report that the syndicate has made a proposition to purchase all of the breweries at Roxbury, Mass. They do not want them.

No Need for Help.

BROOKLYN, June 20.—The United States steamer Boston which had been ordered to Norfolk to assist the Constellation was intercepted at Sandy Hook and returned to the Navy Yard, the Constellation not requiring her assistance.

A GLOUCESTER MYSTERY.

George W. Holmes Supposed to Have Committed Suicide.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—George W. Holmes, a resident of this city, died yesterday in a police cell at Gloucester. A policeman found him nodding at one of the tables near the Buena Vista house, and thinking him drunk took him on a stretcher to the lock-up. Shortly afterwards he was found lying on the floor of the cell, dead. His identity was established by marks on his linen and papers in his pockets. He had a plug of tobacco, a return ferry ticket to Philadelphia, and $2.70 about him.

Holmes was well known in West Philadelphia, and at one time was well to do. A passion for drink mastered him, however. He was at one time Superintendent of the Philadelphia Warehousing company and later he was in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad.

For two years he had been without any occupation, and since last year he has not been able to live with his family. About a year ago his mother died and left $34,000 in trust for him and his wife, and upon the income of one-third of this amount, which fell to his share, he subsisted, spending most of the money for drink.

His friends incline to the belief that he committed suicide, as he had been very despondent of late.

Trotting at Island Park.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 20.—There was a large crowd in attendance at the second day of the circuit races at Island Park. Track fast. The first event was for the Clay Stakes of $3,000, divided, for 2:30 trotters' class. Gillig won in straight heats, Aline second, Farmer Boy third, Kentucky Blanch fourth. Best time, 2:23¾. Second race, 2:20 class, pacers, purse $1,000, divided. Mirends won after seven heats had been paced. Billy Stuart second, Mambria Hannis third, Harry B. fourth. Best time, 2:18¼, made by Gray Harry in the second heat. Gray Harry was distanced in the following heats.

A Protest to Gov. Hill.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 20.—The former employes of the Capitol held a meeting last night to protest against the action of Gov. Hill in vetoing the Capitol Appropriation bill. The meeting was largely attended by workingmen and a committee was appointed to draw up resolutions requesting the Governor to call an extra session of the Legislature to pass another appropriation bill. Several speeches were made condemning the Governor for keeping 500 or 600 men out of work to gratify personal spite against individual members of the proposed Capitol commission.

The Air-Ship Didn't Fly.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The air-ship invented by Mr. Campbell, of Brooklyn, was to have made an ascension to-day at the Manhattan Athletic club grounds, but owing to an accident affecting the gas tanks, from which the balloon portion of the machine was to be supplied, the exhibition had to be indefinitely postponed.

Death of a Wealthy Ship Owner.

EDGARTOWN, Mass., June 20.—Grafton N. Collins, one of the original six members of the Oak Bluffs Land Company, which founded Cottage City, is dead, leaving a widow and three sons. He was a wealthy ship owner and for many years a director of the Marthas Vineyard bank.

He Was Tired of Life.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 20.—Dr. Johnson, residing at 106 Wilkeson street, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself in the head. He was unmarried and about sixty years of age. He left a letter saying he was tired of life.

The Kemmler Case.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 20.—Hon. Bourke Cockran has telegraphed to District Attorney Quimby of this city asking that the argument of the Kemmler habeas corpus case be adjourned from next Thursday till the following Tuesday. Mr. Quimby will consent if the Auburn Judge is agreeable.

Another Embezzler Arrested.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Edward B. Cox, a well known Brooklyn politician, and bookkeeper for Stevenson, Wood & Co., bookbinders of this city, was committed to the Tombs this morning to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of embezzling $4,000 from the firm.

Will Adjourn June 21.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 20.—The Senate passed a resolution to adjourn sine die on Friday, June 21st at noon.

BURKE IS INDICTED

For the Murder of Dr. Cronin in Chicago.

TO BE BROUGHT FROM WINNIPEG

An Officer Has Gone to Manitoba to Identify and Secure Him.

His Photograph Recognized as "Williams" by Martinsen—No More Indictments Will Be Returned Before the Special Report of the Grand Jury Is Ready—A Large Number of Witnesses Examined Yesterday.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The Grand Jury filed down stairs and into Judge Shepard's room about 12 o'clock to-day and presented an indictment against Marshal Delancy alias Martin Burke, charging him with the murder of Dr. Cronin.

The indictment is in two counts, the first being for the unqualified charge of murder; the second alleges conspiracy to do murder, and names Frank Woodruff, Dan Coughlin P. O'Sullivan, and other unknown persons as the conspirators.

When the indictment was handed to Judge Shepard he glanced at it and then handed it to a clerk, who at once repaired to Clerk Gilbert's office to make out the final papers necessary for taking proceedings to extradite Burke, who is now in jail in Winnipeg.

Officer John Collins of the Central detail left here last night for Winnipeg for the purpose of identifying Burke.

Throckmorton, Martinsen and Hatfield arrived from New York on the 10 o'clock train. Martinsen was at once taken before the Grand Jury, where he identified the photograph of Burke as that of the man who hired him to haul the furniture from Clark street to Carlson cottage.

Throckmorton, speaking of his experience in New York said: "We did not know Moroney or McDonald from any of the other prisoners ranged before us, but we took a good look at all the men. I examined every man separately and carefully. Simons wasn't among them; there can be no mistake about that. Martinen and Hatfield were equally as positive as I."

The Grand Jury this afternoon heard the testimony of a large number of witnesses that were called during the Coroner's investigation. Most of the evidence bore upon Cronin's fear that his life would be taken as the result of the machinations of Alexander Sullivan.

It is officially given out that no more indictments will be returned before the final report is ready. The indictment against Burke was brought into court at the earnest solicitation of Chief Hubbard, who said that it would take two weeks for the special messenger to make the circuit from Chicago to Winnipeg by way of Washington and Ottawa.

The Catholic Church May Take a Hand.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 2.—It is given out from a source that has always been regarded as very close to Archbishop Gibbons that the developments concerning the Clan-na-Gael that have been brought out by the murder of Dr. Cronin in Chicago will, without delay, receive the very serious consideration of the highest authority of the Catholic Church in the United States. It is a matter of record that the Church, as a Church, is opposed to secret societies.

A Chance for the Drummers.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 20.—The Commercial Travellers' Protective association, at yesterday's meeting, received reports showing a quite general disposition among railroads to accede to the wishes of the association in respect to the issue of 5,000-mile tickets. It was also reported that an amendment benefitting commercial travellers would probably be made to the Inter-State Commerce law at the next session of Congress.

A Freight Train Wrecked.

NEWARK, N. J., June 20.—A freight train ran off the track on the Pennsylvania railroad at South Newark last night. Two brakemen and the conductor were badly injured. Two cars laden with fine leaf tobacco were broken open and thieves carried away part of the tobacco. Two of the thieves were arrested.

Nominations in New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N. H., June 20.—The Republican Legislative caucus last night nominated A. B. Thomson of Concord for Secretary of State, Solon Carter of Concord for State Treasurer, John B. Clark of Manchester for State Printer, and Sylvester Little of Antrim for Commissary General.

Downie Connived at the Suicide.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 20.—The coroner's jury in the case of Mrs. Jessie Duff, who eloped from Glasgow, Scotland, with Dr. James Downie, found last night that her death was due to arsenic placed in her reach by connivance of Downie. Downie was remanded for the Grand Jury.

The Constitutional Amendments.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Official and estimated returns from every county in the State show a majority of 188,449 against the proposed prohibition amendment. The amendment providing for the repeal of the poll tax qualification is lost by about 150,000 majority.

Say the New Yorker Is a Forger.

TROY, N. Y., June 20.—A warrant was issued this morning for the arrest of Henry Mass, of New York, for passing a forged check at the Mansion house. Mass registered under an assumed name and presented a check for $35 in payment of his bill.

The River Is Falling.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 20.—The river is falling, and alarm over the possibility of another flood has subsided. The loss from from the flood in this city is estimated at ten million dollars.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Huckleberries have made their appearance in the market.

—Don't forget the entertainment by the Loyal Temperance Legion at the W. C. T. U. rooms, this evening.

—We shall soon be having peripatetic callers in the men who "left Johnstown just before the flood came down."

—A short but important meeting of the Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. will be held this evening at 8 o'clock.

—Parties should remember that all insectivorous birds are protected by law, and there is a heavy fine for shooting them.

—A special service for the institution of the surpliced choir of Grace church, will be held on Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock.

—Newspaper advertising promotes trade, for even in the dullest times advertisers secure by far the largest share of what is being done.

—If you have not done so, gentle reader, you will feel a good deal better by going at once and contributing your mite to the Johnstown relief fund.

—If there is one subject, more than any other, which should engage the attention of our people, it is the welfare of the young men and women of our city.

—There is no excuse for wearing a wilted collar these warm days, when you can buy them at 75 cents a dozen at Pope's, as per advertisement in another column.

—The ruralite who tried to purchase a hoe in Mr. A. C. Horton's hat store, on Front street, this morning, was evidently not aware of the fact that Mr. Horton did not deal in farming implements.

—An account of the Mizpah Lodge entertainment in Reform Hall, last evening, together with several other items of local interest, are crowded out of to-day's issue and will appear to-morrow.

—From June 5 up to date dog catcher Babbitt has gathered in thirteen unmuzzled canines. There are plenty more worthless dogs running the streets, and in some sections of the city "Jim" has a broad field for labor.

—The Board of Education will receive sealed proposals up to the 29th inst., for the delivery of 230 tons of furnace coal at the various school houses in this city. All proposals should be addressed to Louis F. Wadsworth, Secretary of the Board.

—In another column Miss C. D. Squier announces that, beginning today and continuing for a few days only, at her millinery parlor, No. 6 West Second street, she will dispose of trimmed bonnets and hats regardless of cost, so as to close the season.

—Mr. Fred. Caspar has transformed his hotel on East Front street into an eating and iced cream saloon. Tier's cream is now dispensed there by the plate, quart or gallon. The yard in the rear of the hotel will be fitted up for use in hot weather.

—"Is annihilation true?" This is the subject for discussion at the conference to be held this evening at 7:45 at the hall, No. 6 East Front street, over the Dime Savings Institution. All are cordially invited to attend, whatever their views; especially those who are not clear concerning this subject.

—The lunatic who was arrested by Officer McCue at the depot, on Monday, as told in Tuesday's PRESS, was this morning transported to Philadelphia on the 10:20 o'clock train. The man appeared to be all right when he left the station house, and it is the opinion of the officers that he was recovering from a protracted drunk.

To Be Carried Free.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company have issued a circular to the effect that bicycles, velocipedes, tricycles and baby carriages will hereafter be checked and carried free of charge, at owners' risk, to points on the lines of that company and on the Atlantic City railroad, Central railroad of New Jersey and Lehigh Valley railroad.

Postponed.

It has been decided to postpone the Young People's meeting, that was to be held next Wednesday evening in connection with the dedication services of the First Presbyterian church, until later in the season.

ONE CLUB TAKES ALL.

Members of the "Plainfield" Bowling Club Capture the Three Prizes at the First Match for the Local Championship of the Olympia Alley.

The first prize match for the local Championship of the Olympia Alley, took place last evening, and was a hotly contested one. Members of the "Plainfield," "Crescent" and "Cyclone" clubs were entered in the competition, but the three prizes were all captured by the Plainfield club—Captain Bert Stover of the Crescents, however, being fourth man.

Everyone of the contestents mentioned in THE PRESS of yesterday, was present, and all bowled except Charles Rogers, who first entered Warry Squires as his substitute but subsequently named Al. Vail. The latter finished among the lowest.

Before the match began, two teams of ten each were selected by Captain Jim Davis of the Plainfields, and Mr. Dick Stevens of the Crescents. Captain Davis' team consisted of Reed, Day, Thiers, C. Teel, H. Stover, W. R. Codington, Smith, Adams, Lowry and Davis. Their total score was 1336, the highest ever made on the alleys by any local team.

Captain Stevens' team consisted of H. Teel, Murray, Vail, VanWinkle, Carey, VanAlstyne, L. Stover, Brooks, W. A. Coddington and Stevens. Although in his selection Stevens had picked two of the three winners, the unusually low scores of Carey, Brooks, L. Stover and Vail, handicapped this team, and its total was only 1247.

A neutral umpire was chosen in the person of Ike Seely, Captain of the Monday Nights of Westfield. He was a most satisfactory referee, and the match went along smoothly and without a kick. The only foul called was on VanWinkle. It was the first ball he rolled, and undoubtedly lost him the first prize.

The match was rolled on two alleys, the two teams changing at the close of each frame. Reed opened with 10 all, and H. Teel with a spare. There was a large crowd in attendance, but during the first frame hardly a sound was heard but the falling pins, except the loud laughs that went up when Seymour Smith's first ball took the gutter, and Coddington's followed suit. No one made a strike in the opening frame, and Captain Stevens closed it for his side with one pin on his first ball and the second in the gutter. He finished with 6 all, but Captain Davis only got 7.

The first strike of the game was made by Reed at the beginning of the second frame, and H. Stover, Codington, Lowry, Davis and VanAlstyne did likewise. Stover's and VanAlstyne's, were strikes on spares, and these two tied with Coddington for second place up to the fifth frame, with C. Teel, first. But on that frame Stover drew away from all, and led to the seventh frame when he tied for first place with VanWinkle, at 116.

In the second frame Chief Carey made one on his spare, and the crowd gave him a good-natured laugh. Lawyer Coddington's strike tied Lawyer Reed, but the latter went six points ahead in the next frame and the former never caught him again. The other Coddington, however, passed Reed in the third frame and led him up to the ninth. Murray's hard luck in the start continued until the fourth frame when he pluckily pulled out and finished with a score but four points behind the winner. Captain Davis closed the second frame with a strike, and Captain Stevens with 8 all.

Every man who had made a strike in his second frame, broke in the third excepting Reed and Codington who both got spares. Smith finished his third frame with a total score of 20, and thousands of dollars were offered at odds, that he would not make 100. To confute these scoffers, he made a strike in the next frame and finished eighth man of the twenty.

In the fourth frame, H. Teel, without a strike, opened by tying Reed and Day who had each a strike and a spare. Hard luck struck H. Stover in this frame. He should have had a spare instead of a break, and would have won first prize had a tottering pin fell over instead of standing up again. VanAlstyne, also, suffered from a hoodooed pin, and Coddington only succeeded in getting one on his spare. The other Coddington missed a chance for a spare that would have placed him high man, and it was a bad frame too, for most of the others, except Captain Stevens who saw his first chance to pass Captain Davis, and made a strike on his spare. But the latter made a strike, also, followed by another in the next frame that put him forever beyond the reach of the rival Captain. In this frame VanWinkle went up top bowling his second successive strike—one with the left and the other with the right hand.

Both H. Stover and VanAlstyne took a new grip in the fifth frame, and with Davis led for the three prizes. Brooks made his first spare in this frame, and Coddington lost his place among the probable winners; while Captain Jim closed with the rankest strike of the evening, of which he was very much ashamed himself.

The sixth frame opened with Day only seventh on the list. But right there was where he made his last break of the match. In this frame H. Stover led with 106, and VanWinkle and H. Teal tied again for second place with 96 each. In the seventh, Murray's first ball took the gutter and he only secured a spare on his strike. H. Stover should have had another strike, his third in succession, but got only nine on his first ball and none on his second. That lost him all chance for a prize, and VanWinkle passed him and took first place. But H. Teel led the latter one pin in the eighth.

In both the ninth and tenth frames, however, VanWinkle broke, and so did H. Teel, but the former got 10 all in each frame while the latter got only 9 in his tenth. This tied them for second place. Day in his last frame made his third spare in succession, following a strike, and finished high man. Smith closed with his fourth spare in succession.

In the roll off of the tie between H. Teel and VanWinkle, the latter showed great nerve. The excitement was quite intense. The crowd gathered around the two bowlers so close, they had hardly room to move in. In spite of all these circumstances VanWinkle scored a total in the four frames that was the highest of the evening. The third prize went to H. Teel.

The score in detail, was:

	Strikes	Spares	Breaks	Total.
M. L. Day	2	5	3	153
C. B. VanWinkle	3	2	5	152
H. Teel	1	5	4	152

THE CRESCENTS' NEXT VICTORY.

Condon Will Show the "Dauntless" Some Original Shoots—Cadmus Back Again.

Saturday's game on the LaGrande avenue grounds, promises to be a good one and another victory for the Crescents. The contesting team—if it does not rain—will be the "Dauntless." They are considered the best nine in Elizabeth, and have defeated the "Alerts" of that city, who gave the Crescents such a good game on Decoration Day, two to one.

Gately and Condon will try a reversal of positions, as Dave has a number of original shoots he wants to spring on the visitors.

Mr. George Cadmus has returned and the home nine will be additionally strengthened by his fine playing, Saturday. The game will be called at 3:30.

The nine will be: Condon, Gately, Mc Murray, Cadmus, Babcock, Lee, Demarest, McLaughlin and Townley.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Among the recently appointed postmasters for New Jersey, is Mr. A. Mundy at Martinsville.

Chief of Police Carey and Constable Moffett accompanied the G. A. R. excursion to Lake Hopatcong, this morning.

A New Brunswick paper says: "Mr. J. Griffin, of Plainfield, an employee of the Potter Press Works, has been visiting relatives and friends in this city."

Mr. Wm. M. Runyon and family, who recently resided at No. 256 W. 21st street, New York city, have returned to this city and taken possession of house at No 70 East Fifth street.

At the bride's home in Peapack, this afternoon at three o'clock, will take place the marriage of Jacob Voehl, Jr., of North Plainfield, and Emily A. Perry. The Rev. Mr. Fowler of Gladstone, N. J., will officiate.

Mr. "Jack" Williams of this city will soon sever his connection with the Mount Morris Electric Light Company of Harlem, and will thereafter take charge of the engineering department in Addis & Du bois Electric Motor Works in West 30th street, New York city.

Festival at Hope Chapel.

Hope chapel was the scene of much enjoyment, last evening, the occasion being the first strawberry and iced cream festival under the auspices of the Hope Chapel Temperance Club. The Committee of Arrangements, consisting of Messrs Evans, Andrews, Hawkins and Smith, are entitled to great credit for the successful manner in which they conducted the affair, which was a pronounced success, both from a financial and social point of view.

The Entertainment Committee was composed of Messrs Fountain, Duckworth and Rankin. Mrs. Smith and her daughter, Miss Sophia, presided at the flower stand, ably assisted by Laura Maddis, Flora Marsh and Lizzie Gulick.

During the evening there was music by the cornet band and Carpenter's orchestra. Messrs E. E. Runyon, Farley, Vail, Williams and Rankin contributed vocal selections, and Mr. and Mrs. Hillman also rendered a duet to the evident delight of those present. Mr. John Carney's recitations were a feature of the evening's entertainment.

The festival will be continued this evening, when an entire change of programme will be presented. The proceeds will be devoted to purchasing a new library for the Sunday school.

Pernicious Effects of Tobacco.

DR. FLINT'S REMEDY is the only antidote against the influence of tobacco which the smoker or chewer of the weed has, and it should be taken regularly to prevent the heart from becoming diseased. Descriptive treatise with each bottle. J. G. Miller, Agent, Plainfield.

PEERLESS DYES Are the BEST. SOLDBY DRUGGISTS

IN ANSWER TO EX-MAYOR RANDOLPH.

His Communication Said to be Fallacious, Mendacious and Incongruous.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS.—The recent remarkable communication on water works and sewers sent to the Common Council from the pen of ex-Mayor Randolph, calls for more than a passing notice. Instead of covering the ground in a complete and substantial way, as you observe, it does neither. On the contrary the writer betrays an unfamiliarity with his subject which is positively astounding in one who makes a pretence of having given it careful thought and study.

The communication is simply a mass of incongruities, the reasoning being fallacious, where there is any reasoning, and there is besides a fair sprinkling of mendacity through it all. Intelligent and far-seeing plains for the advancement of this City's interests, have suffered incalculably in the past from the distribution of just such senseless statements as are therein displayed. The design being apparently to work upon the credulity of the uninformed with a view of obtaining their opposition to plans which are actually in many senses projected for their everlasting benefit. On the practical and well-informed mind, however, Mr. Randolph's discoveries will have as much influence perhaps as did the researches of the Rev. Mr. Jasper of Virginia fame, who electrified the scientific World some years ago, with his startling theory of "The Sun do Move."

To dispose of all of the ex-mayor's peculiar ideas, if such a course were deemed worth the while, would necessitate a deal of preliminary, or what is technically termed dead work, and call for more space in your journal than well could be spared. Any one who has the temerity to attempt to illustrate what the ex-Mayor does not know concerning water works, must necessarily assume a very large contract, and therefore, this communication will be confined to pointing out a few defects which might otherwise readily pass for facts.

A great many of our old-time residents love to dwell on the belief that Plainfield has grown from a hamlet of 1,500 souls forty years ago, to a city of 15,000 people today, and, with Mr. Randolph, attribute this growth to the absence of water works, sewers and street railways. The fact is, however, that this city has become what it is in spite of opposition and the obstructions placed in the way of its more rapid development. Would-be residents are turned away annually by the shortsightedness which fails to provide the ordinary facilities for comfortable and economical living. A go-ahead spirit in the right direction would, it is fairly safe to predict, give us a population of say 25,000, within the next ten years.

We cannot linger upon Mr. Randolph's researches for pure water, as his investigations cannot be accepted. If Prof. Cook made the analyses stated we must have the proof of it, and also a comparison with water from sources not in close proximity to those delightful spots of the ex-mayor's selection. It may be well to call to mind also in this connection, that during the past Winter the physicians of this City united in condemning the present method of procuring drinking water, and recommended action in the matter of a sewer system. This rather refutes the charge that irresponsible people are suggesting other places for country homes.

We will go a trifle further in this course, remembering that Plainfield has grown considerably since the ex-mayor obtained his so-called information. We are told by eminent sanitary engineers that one of the first results of the massing of the people together, is an increase in the degree of fertilization of the land of their neighborhood, and thus the lands over and through which their waters flow, are mixed with concentrated, decomposing vegetable and animal products, and also—most foul and fearful of all the artificial pollutions which ignorant and careless humanity permits to reach the wells or streams—the drainage or percolations of cesspools, pig-stys and stable-yards. Once more, the man who permits his family to use waters impregnated with fecal substances, etc., etc., etc., opens the gates to chronic diseases and epidemics, shortens the average of life, and also degenerates the entire existence of the generation he is rearing to succeed him, and whom it is his duty to cherish and protect. A little of this kind of information is just what the ex-mayor and the present Council ought to absorb, before any more money is spent in finding out what not to do.

Now let us look at this bed of "uncontaminated and well nigh uncontaminable gravel," whatever that means. It is apparently just the character of soil to convey disease because its porosity admits of the free percolations of cesspools and other pest places; and if it be true that underneath us lies a lake of water flowing from Northwest to Southwest, the inhabitants of the last named quarter are liable, some day, to derive the full benefit of the concentrated impurities of this City.

As a proof of his remarks as to cesspools, the ex-mayor offers this absurd statement: "Anyone who has had the "soil beneath the worst neglected cess-"pool in Plainfield examined, will know "that he has found there absolutely "nothing but clean fresh gravel." Is not this supremely ridiculous? Has anyone ever made this examination? Has the ex-mayor? And where is the worst neglected cesspool; and how are we to know that it is the worst neglected? Are we to make subterranean trips to the soil beneath numberless cesspools? If so, how many? The ex-mayor finally assumes in his communication that the City is to be turned over to the tender mercies of a water company, who contemplate "introducing water through conduits," and then he launches out in two paragraphs until he loses himself completely.

His idea of distributing water and the expense of so-doing, is purely original, and his theory that Evona and Netherwood can be placed at a disadvantage is on a pace with other of his fancies. It is useless to persue his reasonings in this direction any further, for he himself says that his arrangments are "by no means "comprehensive, but will serve as an illus-"tration of this point." The facts of course are that no part of the City's suburbs can be at a disadvantage, unless like the City today, it is willing to be. The City of Plainfield, as every well-informed person is aware, under a franchise plan has the authority to order the extension of water mains wherever they are required, providing through its common Council it orders also hydrants at regular distance for the protection of its inhabitants against fire; the property owners and taxpayers contributing their proportion in taxes for the payment of hydrant rentals. No one is compelled to imbibe water taken from pure springs or streams, unless they have an inclination that way, but can go on absorbing his sewage impregnated beverage to his heart's content and hence no cost. Aside from the comparative purity of stream or spring water over well water, the introduction of a supply into the City and the homes of its citizens, would, as has been written previously, in a great measure reduce the cost of living, and this is an attraction which is rarely overlooked by people of moderate incomes desiring to locate here. The incessant tank filling, street sprinkling, etc., call for the expenditure of no inconsiderable sum annually. Besides great inconvenience is experinced by those who have previously had an unlimited supply of water always at hand. Then the benefits that would insure to property owners through lower insurance premiums based on the almost absolute guarantee of protection against conflagrations, is alone a consideration which should have great weight in the discussion of this important question of water supply. Agreeing with the ex-mayor in just one instance, but differing with him in the application of the word, the writer wishes to add that the City should be allowed to grow naturally. These improvements are conducive to the growth of any community and naturally illustrate the foresight, enterprise and wisdom of its people.

AN OBSERVER.

Some Doubt About the North Plainfield Election.

Monday morning Judge Magie heard the application for an election in the borough of North Plainfield to fix license fees at $700. Chas. A. Reed, Esq., appeared for the applicants. No one appeared in opposition. The Court asked if a borough that is part of a township can hold such election, when the inhabitants of the township and borough vote at the same election.

Mr. Reed claimed that the fees went into the hands of the borough collector and not to the township collector; therefore, it was a matter for the people of the borough to act upon.

Judge Magie said it is still township money. The Court had studied the law with great care and only regretted that he had not done so before granting the order for this hearing. The Legislature, evidently, never meant that the population should be counted twice, once in the borough and again in the township. The question involved in this case is now before the Supreme Court, as to whether the license fee is to be paid to the township, town, borough or city. Voters cannot vote twice, once to set the minimum fee in the borough and again in the township. Where there is a dual government it must look to the larger—to that which covers the greater territory and most inhabitants. If anyone was present to ask for a certiorari the order would be granted and the writ at the same time. As it is, the Court will hold decision until June 26.—Somerville Messenger.

Boys, Try This Experiment.

Boys who smoke cigarettes, a word with you. Hold your linen handkerchief in your hand, draw a mouthful of smoke and then blow it thrqugh the handkerchief. What do you find on the surface of the linen? A nasty black spot of nicotine, a spot of black poison—none less so because it is tardy in its effects. And yet that is the deposit which the cigarette smoke leaves in your throat and lungs. Do you wonder that boys die from the habit?

Today's Excursion.

The excursion today under the auspices of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of this city, to Lake Hopatcong, was not so largely patronized as was anticipated. The excursion consisted of five well-filled passenger coaches. The day is a delightful one for boating, fishing, etc., and those who went along will doubtless find plenty of amusement at the Lake.

At the W. C. T. U. Rooms To-night.

An unusually interesting programme has been arranged for the entertainment which is to be given in the W. C. T. U. rooms, this evening, under the auspices of the Loyal Temperance Legion. The project is a worthy one, and will doubtless be well patronized.

—The South Forks dam proved defective, but Dr. Dam's Remedy can always be depended upon.

A Narrow Escape All Around.

As Dr. E. W. Rushmore went to step into his buggy on GrandView avenue, this morning, the impatient broncho attached to the vehicle started and in a few minutes was going down the street at a rapid gait beyond the control of the gentleman who held the reins.

The Doctor looking anxiously after the runaway, saw the buggy upset as it turned a corner near the Children's Home, and his anxiety increased as he saw his friend thrown out into the road. The horse was stopped by some painters at work for Mayor Cooley, and Dr. Rushmore found that his riding companion was able to walk, although much bruised. The buggy, also, was but little damaged.

Before Mayor Cooley.

Fred Randolph, the young colored man whom it is alleged was implicated in the disgraceful row on Somerset street, one evening recently, and who Mayor Cooley allowed to go on his own recognizance, but who failed to appear for a hearing at the appointed time, was apprehended in the Borough yesterday afternoon, and arraigned before Mayor Cooley in Warren Engine house, last evening.

Randolph was adjudged guilty and was fined $12.60.

Run Over by a Coal Wagon.

Wm. Perrine, a gardener, who resides near the gravel pit, was run over by a coal wagon at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and sutained painful injuries to his left foot. The injured man attempted to climb into the wagon in which his brother was seated, when he slipped and fell, the hind wheels passing over his foot. Officer Lynch accompanied him home in a carriage.

To Retire From Business.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dreier of West Front street, are soon to retire from business, and spend the remainder of their days in quietude. Mrs. Dreier states that she intends to remodel the building at the corner of Front street and Madison avenue, by adding another story and fitting up the same in flats with all the modern appointments. Mr. and Mrs. Dreier will reside there permanently.

Dr. Yerkes and O. B. Leonard Attending a 200th Anniversary.

Today the Piscataway Baptist church of Stelton is celebrating its 200th anniversary, having been founded in 1689.

The First Baptist church of this city is a grandchild of that venerable church, and very properly its pastor, Rev. Dr. Yerkes, and its clerk, O. B. Leonard, will present historical papers on this interesting occasion.

The Coming Fair.

The Board of Directors of the Somerset County Agricultural Society met at the TenEyck House, Somerville, on Saturday, and arranged the premium list for the coming Fair, which will be held Oct. 8, 9 and 10. The Committee on Grounds were authorized to make all necessary repairs to grounds and buildings. The list of premiums will be published in a few weeks.

Elizabeth's Council Threatened.

A creditor named Moran of Philadelphia has served a peremptory mandamus on the city authorities of Elizabeth for $80,000. Moran declares that if the City Council does not appoint the requisite number of assessors, so that his judgment can be inserted in this year's tax levy, he will have the Councilmen incarcerated for contempt of court.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

WASHINGTON NEWS

Commotion in the Government Printing Office.

MANY EMPLOYES DISCHARGED.

The Reduction Made Necessary by a Limited Appropriation.

The Appropriation for the Next Fiscal Year Cannot Be Touched Until July 1, Although There Is Plenty of Work to Do—In the Dismissals the Widows and Orphans of Soldiers Were Excepted, So Says the Public Printer.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—No little commotion has been created by the discharge of over eighty employes in the Government Printing office. Public Printer Palmer explained the case to your correspondent thus:

"The reduction of the force is made necessary by the limit of the appropriation for the close of the fiscal year. I can not touch a cent of the appropriation for the next fiscal year until the 1st of July, and as I did not have the money to carry the present force of the office I am compelled, therefore, much as I regret it, to make a few dismissals. The discharges were scattered all over the building. I dropped off all whose services will be least detrimental to the work. We have also cut down our requisition for material needed to the lowest notch until the 1st. There is plenty of work to do, and I am happy to state that the office is turning it out in a most satisfactory manner. In the dismissals the widows and orphans of our soldiers were excepted. None of them were dropped to my knowledge."

Fourth-Class Postmasters Chosen.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The following named fourth-class postmasters were appointed in New York to-day: I. D. Odell, Ardsley; J. M. Parmelee, Dayton; Isaac Wilmot, Glenora; M. Austin, Machias; W. A. Elliott, New Kingston; Mortimer J. Hoyt, Potter; Azarius Winskell, Shokan; W. H. Richardson, Strykersville; J. C. Eckert, Walkerialley; H. McElhon, Walkill.

Wanamaker Wasn't Surprised.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—In speaking of the vote on the Prohibition amendment in Pennsylvania, Postmaster-General Wanamaker said, to-day that he was not surprised that the amendment had been defeated. He had expected the result. He was surprised however, at the magnitude of the vote, and had not anticipated that the majority against the amendment would be so large.

She Was Conscience Stricken.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—A conscience contribution amounting to $130 was received at the Treasury department to-day from a baby in Philadelphia. Her letter, accompanying the remittance stated that the money was for the payment of customs duties on dress goods which she had smuggled into the country.

Gen. Fairchild Will Accept.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Gen. Lucius Fairchild, of Wisconsin, has notified the President that he will accept the vacant place on the Cherokee Commission. He will meet the other members of the Commission in this city in a few days.

The President Going to Cape May.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The President will go to Cape May on Friday to visit Mrs. Harrison. He will probably return on Monday.

WRECK ON THE P. C. & ST. L. R. R.

The West Bound Mail Jumps the Track Coaches Wrecked—Two People Killed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 20.—The second section of train No. 9, mail, westbound on the Pittsburg, Cincinnatti and St. Louis Railway, jumped the track across the river from Steubenville, O., about eleven o'clock this morning.

The train was manned by one engineer, one fireman, one conductor and one brakeman and fifteen postal clerks.

Postal Clerks J. P. Payne and E. B. Rhinehart were instantly killed. The seriously injured are Conductor Burris, Brakeman McFarland, Postal Clerks W. S. Bolton and J. E. Matthews. The less seriously injured are Postal Clerks T. D. Armstrong, E. E. Benner, C. J. Minor and Frank Shook. The injured were taken to the hospital at Steubenville, Ohio.

Brakeman John McFarland died at 3 o'clock.

The hospital physicians say that conductor Burris' injuries are fatal, and that he cannot live much longer. The others injured are resting comfortably and will probably recover.

A collision of freight trains occurred at the scene of the wreck a short time afterward. Three sections of a freight train, following the mail, pulled up and stopped. The engine of the first section was detached from its train and used to assist in clearing the track in front. A fourth section of the freight came up under full speed and crashed into the rear of the third section, smashing the engine and wrecking several cars of merchandise. The trainmen jumped and escaped serious injury.

NEARLY COMPLETED.

The Labors of the Convention of the Amalgamated Association.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 20.—The convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel workers has about completed its work. The new scale will be handed to the manufacturers to-day. The revised constitution was adopted and the name of the Association changed to the National Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers of the United States.

For the first time the journeymen roll turners will have a scale which presents some radical changes from the old rules governing that department of work. Hereafter all workers around iron and steel mills will be admitted to membership, except metal pilers and laborers.

The convention voted adversely on the proposition of attaching a beneficial feature to the Association.

To-day a committee from the convention met in consultation with the management of the Carnegie Homestead mills, with reference to the wage scale. The Amalgamated Committee conceded several points in their rules, hoping thereby to bring about a settlement. The firm insisted that the company's scale be adopted, stating that they would consider no other proposition. The committee withdrew and a strike at these works will in all probability occur July 1.

Near Being a Strike.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 20.—An attempt to reduce the wages to a basis of uniformity on the part of the contractors met with a general threat to strike by the workmen. Some of the men who have been working in the drifts have been getting a day and a half's pay for a day's work, and all classes of workmen have been paying a half dollar a day board, and they are also murmuring on this account or rather because of the quality of their food, and this emphasized their threat. Gen. Hastings told them he had nothing to do with the wage question, and they left murmuring. Laborers are very plentiful, and if there is a strike others will replace the strikers.

There Was No Collision.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Considerable excitement was caused by a report that the Inman line steamship City of Chicago, which sailed from this port yesterday for Liverpool, had been in collision with some unknown craft while passing out the lower bay. The report was a vague one and no information could be obtained of a definite character until a reporter called on General Manager Hennessy, of the Inman company. That gentleman stated that he had received a message from Sandy Hook stating that the vessel had passed the bar all right, and there was no mention of a mishap of any kind.

Notes from Wilkesbarre.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 20.—Arrangements are partially completed for Scranton to take Easton's place in the Atlantic League.

George Nascode, a well-to-do citizen, hanged himself at Plains to-day. He imagined that his neighbors wanted to hang him, and said he would head them off.

Phineas Joyce, who went to Johnstown to see the sights and was made crazy, has been sent to the Danville asylum.

Church Won't Resign.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Consulting Engineer Church of the new aqueduct was recently asked to resign, on grounds of economy. He replied to-day questioning the authority of the Aqueduct commission to dismiss him unless a majority of them without General Duane voted do so, as the General is a United States officer and has no right, Mr. Church thinks, to hold his Commissionership. The letter was laid over for consideration.

James L. Little Dead.

BOSTON, June 20.—James L. Little, a large real estate owner, and for the forty years ending June 1, 1883, was the head of the firm of James L. Little & Co., importers of foreign goods and selling agents for the Pacific mills, died in Swampscott. For a number of years he was the treasurer of the Pacific mills.

Swarthmore's New President.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., June 20.—Prof. Wm. Hyde Appleton has been elected temporary president of Swarthmore college, vice Dr. Magill, who has resigned after serving eighteen years. Mr. Appleton has been Professor of Greek at Swarthmore seventeen years. He is a graduate of Harvard.

Damages Against a Railroad.

GOSHEN, N. Y., June 20.—The jury this morning in the Supreme Court, before Judge Bartlett, of Brooklyn, awarded Patrick Brennan, of Newburg, $3,300, for the loss of an arm, against the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad.

Yellow Fever in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, June 20.—The health authorities assert positively that Dr. Duncan, who arrived on the Colon, has yellow fever. Police are guarding the house where Duncan lies.

No Yellow Fever on Board.

NEW YORK June 20.—Captain Henderson, of the steamship Colon denies the report that there was yellow fever on board the vessel during her trip from Aspinwall.

A SPECIAL ON MILK.

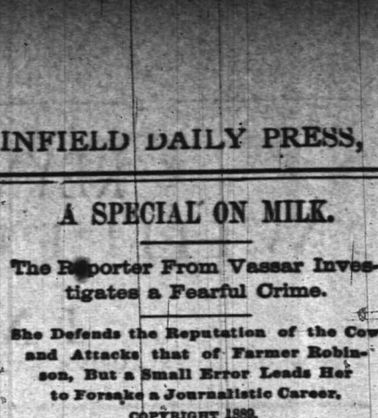
The Reporter From Vassar Investigates a Fearful Crime.

She Defends the Reputation of the Cow and Attacks that of Farmer Robinson, But a Small Error Leads Her to Forsake a Journalistic Career.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

Dan Harding was the son of the New York, Omaha and San Francisco railroad company. That company was financially the father of the New York Daily Argus. It will thus be perceived that the relationship between Dan and the Argus was close. That was why Dan got a job as reporter when he came out of college.

The only journalistic work that Dan had done before the Argus secured his services was writing a protest against the practice of compulsory players before 9 a. m. This was printed in a college paper and its pathetic sincerity atoned for its literary defects. Dan had a head full of ideas but they were too personal to be of interest t the public.



THE ONLY COW WITHIN FIVE MILES.

I am not kicking about Dan. He was a good looking, and good natured fellow, and he had money enough not to care whether he got ten columns or five lines into the paper during a week. He was reporting for the sake of experience.

Dan's best girl was in Vassar. He showed me her photograph one day, with a burst of confidence, and told me that he was in a peck of trouble about her.

"It's all my own fault," said he. "You see she's one of those girls that think about things and have all sorts of confounded ideas. She likes me well enough but she won't marry me because she believes that woman should be industrially independent of man. How's that for an answer to a fellow after he's been down on his knees over fifteen minutes talking eternal devotion with a fervency that bordered on profanity? I expected her to say she'd be a sister to me, and that would have been bad enough, but when she said she'd be 'industrially independent' of me it broke my back."

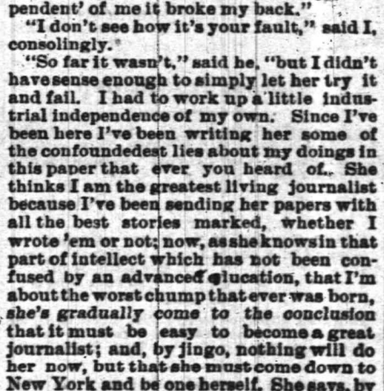
"I don't see how it's your fault," said I, consolingly.

"So far it wasn't," said he, "but I didn't have sense enough to simply let her try it and fail. I had to work up a little industrial independence of my own. Since I've been here I've been writing her some of the confoundedest lies about my doings in this paper that ever you heard of. She thinks I am the greatest living journalist because I've been sending her papers with all the best stories marked, whether I wrote 'em or not; now, as she knows in that part of intellect which has not been confused by an advanced education, that I'm about the worst chump that ever was born, she's gradually come to the conclusion that it must be easy to become a great journalist; and, by jingo, nothing will do her now, but that she must come down to New York and be one herself. She says, by way of consolation, that when we've both made ourselves immortal, and won the control of the destinies of two or three leading dailies, she will be mine. She's coming down to begin the immortalizing act in about three weeks. What do you think of that for a brilliant matrimonial prospect?"

"Young man," said I, "do not despair. In my capacity as city editor of this paper I will think up a job that no woman can do and keep out of the hospital. Then in my capacity as your friend I will assign this young woman to do it. You make love to her some more when she gets convalescent and marry her before she's well enough to yearn for any more industrial independence."

We made an unholy bargain on the spot with the above scheme for its basis; and three weeks later, when Miss W. Daisy Howells approached the field of journalism we were ready to let down the bars.

"Miss Howells," I said, on the second day after she became connected with the Argus, "I have a story here which has been waiting a long time for somebody to do it justice. It needs the broad and noble sympathy of woman, and the high intellectual attainments of a college graduate. I have had considerable of the latter at ten dollars a week but the former has hitherto eluded me. It is an important task and I do not conceal from you that there is dead loads of work in it."



DAISY MEETS WITH A SWELL ACQUAINTANCE.

"It is woman's place to work," said she. "The industrial independence, ——"

"Exactly," said I, "but this is a story about milk. You are doubtless aware that the supply now being sent to this city from the immediate vicinity is not what it should be. It is so blue that it breeds melancholia among the children of the poor. But this is not the fault of the cow. Let us be just to her if only for the sake of her sex. The blame rests with the farmer and the old oaken bucket. Now what I want you to do is this: Go out and write a special on the home life of the suburban cow. Clear her good name and cast the approbrium upon the proper party. Pick out a few of the farmers by name and call them murderous things in such a manner as to avoid a libel suit."

"Is there any particular locality where this nefarious practice is more common than elsewhere?" she asked.

"Well," said I, "perhaps you'd better try Sandy Point. It's a suburb of Brooklyn. It is reached by two lines of horse railroads which connects with each other, but neither of which runs to Sandy Point. If you get the right road it lands you under a board fence on the south side of a cemetery. In Brooklyn all roads lead to the cemetery. Professional cemeteries and amateur theatricals are almost the only things which keep Brooklyn alive. You will crawl through a hole in the fence and pass through the cemetery. If it happens to be the right one you will find on the other side of it a place where six roads intersect so as to form nineteen corners with a saloon on every one of them. Then you will know that you are in Sandy Point. Ask anybody you meet if he knows where the Grassy Slope Milk Farm is? It's out on the sandlots somewhere, about ninety miles from pasturage. If a cow that had been brought up in the place saw a blade of grass she would faint away. He has recently added two cows and an artesian well to his stock farm, and is supplying about half the East Side of New York with milk. He sells to the woman I board with. You may call him a murderous thing, but don't say anything libellous. Then hustle around and find some more farms and give us a couple of columns for Sunday."

Miss Howells accepted this work as if it had been a mere problem in quadratic equations. She said that it was the proud privilege of the press to expose fraud, and she proposed to get right out and do it. I hadn't scared her a bit. This was a disappointment for I had expected her to resign at the mention of a cow. However, I was still confident that Sandy Point would do the business, if she ever got there. I was gratified, therefore, to observe that she look tired when she came back to the office late that afternoon.

She was somewhat reluctant about relating the events of the day, but I finally learned the principal facts. She had been to Sandy Point, or some place answering to the most invidious description of that locality. The only person of whom she dared to ask her way to Grassy Slope Farm was a small boy who was driving a goat harnessed to a cart; and he didn't know where it was. Then she asked, on a venture, if his father sold milk, and the boy replied that he did. Miss Howells then followed him and the goat and the cart about four miles across lots to a one-story shanty in the lea of a sand hill, and in the back yard thereof she found a cow so thin that she looked like a piece of faded red carpet spread over a saw horse. The boy said proudly that that was the only cow within five miles of the place. Miss Howells couldn't find her way back to Sandy Point, and the boy, being offended at her contempt for his cow, refused to show her, so she wandered around till she came to a cemetery from which there was a means of transportation back to town.

"But I think I am on the trail of a sensation," she said, "and I will try again to-morrow."

The next day, accordingly, she set out again, but this time she hired an escort. It was rather a brilliant idea. She went to a milk dealer in Brooklyn and procured the services of a young man from the country. She did not tell him what she was looking for, but simply said that she wanted to find a place where they kept cattle out in Sandy Point.

SHE FAINTED AWAY IN DAVIS' ARMS.

She had to promenade through about half of Brooklyn with him on the way to Sandy Point, and in the course of that walk she met about two dozen swell acquaintances of hers who lived in the city. It was a cheering reflection, she said, that they probably took the young man to be a relation from the rural districts.

The next day she brought in her story, and when I read it I came to the conclusion that my scheme to scare her out of journalism had failed. It was a lurid and sensational tale. She had discovered a place where 200 cows were kept in the back yard of a distillery. They were fed, she asserted, upon the waste product of the distillery, and altogether led a dissolute life. They were frequently intoxicated. Their milk had a strong flavor of coffin varnish, and was sold in the neighboring saloons for milk punch. Then she had an interview with a physician (alleged) who said that the infant mortality from delirium tremens had increased 79 per cent. No other conclusion was possible except that this milk had done it. She related that John Robinson owned the cows, and she gave a brief but rasping sketch of his family history, after which she called him a murderous thug as directed; and wound up with an appeal to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the S. P. C. A., the Sons of Temperance, General Fish of New Jersey, the Legislature of the State of New York and the enlightened public sentiment of Long Island.

It struck me as a good story, and I let it run.

The day following its appearance John Robinson called at the office. He was induced to let the office boy hold his club, after which I admitted him. Miss Howells was present, and ready to back up her statements. She was eager to confront Robinson and crush him to the earth. I let her confront. Dan Harding sat in the background.

"So you're the critter that called me a murderous thug?" said he to Miss Howells.

"Yes, I am," said she, "and I think a man who would willfully lead innocent cows to the vice of intemperance deserves the name."

"And I'm the man that sows the seeds of delirium tremens among babes?"

"You are the man. I saw your depraved cows."

"Well, sir," said he turning to me, "I don't own any cows; I never owned any cows; I never sold any milk. The animals this young lady investigated are not that kind of critters. No, sir; not by a darn sight. They're all steers!"

"All what?" gasped Miss Howells.

"All steers. Masculine, not a cow among 'em."

There was a howl of laughter from the other side of the partition where the reporters had been listening to the dialogue. Then Miss Howells fainted away in Dan's arms, and when she opened her eyes a few minutes later and looked up into his face I saw that my plot had succeeded and that she would hide her mortification under the veil of matrimony.

EDWARD FIELDING.

Remarkable Escape From Death.

LYNN, Mass., June 20.—Edwin T. Wiley, a mason, at work on the Lenox building fell a distance of sixty-five feet from where he was at work to the ground. He started head first with a pile of bricks but in his descent turned completely several times and landed on his feet in a pile of sand and soft mortar. He received a broken leg, a bad shoulder sprain and several cuts, but the physicians expect his recovery.

His Resignation Causes No Surprise.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—The resignation of Commissioner Albert Fink, of the Trunk Line Association, is received without much excitement in railroad circles in this city. Mr. Fink has resigned serveral times before and on each occasion he was persuaded to withdraw his resignation in consideration of a long vacation and an increase in salary.

Big Fire at Ballston Springs.

BALLSTON SPA, N. Y., June 20.—Four stores and two barns were burned here at an early hour this morning, involving a loss of $20,000. The burned buildings included the following; Grumater's fruit store, Paddock's paint store, Finley's furniture store and barn, the Hackett House stable and the tobacco store of L. Garlich.

Italian Laborers on Strike.

DEXTER, Me., June 20.—The Italian laborers on the Dexter and Piscataque Railroad extension, struck yesterday for $1.50 per day. Work is suspended.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

THE MEN STOP WORK

Laborers at Johnstown Demand More Pay.

THEY COMPLAIN OF THE FOOD.

All of the Discontented Paid Off and Made to Leave Town.

The Absence of the Strikers Will Not Affect the Work, as It Was Intended to Cut Down the Force of Laborers. One Workman's Exciting Experience. Preparing to Put Up the New Houses. Fourteen Bodies Found.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 21.—There was a strike among the laborers yesterday, the men demanding $1.50 a day and better rations.

All of the discontented workmen were paid off last night and got rid of. A few of them are still in the tents, but they will be forced to leave town.

The Fourteenth Regiment was in readiness all day to suppress any demonstration that might occur, and guards were multiplied all over the city. Nothing but incendiary speeches were made, however, and no overt acts attempted.

The contractors claim that the flood has been abundant except where the provisions ordered from Pittsburg had not arrived in time, and in one or two cases the cars containing the provisions had been robbed.

General Hastings informed the contractors that if they requested it, Col. Patton, one of his aides, would furnish all of the men with an army ration each per day, which the contractors would have to pay.

Each contractor has been ordered to reduce his force so as to not exceed 450 men, so the absence of the strikers will not embarrass the contractors.

General Hastings has directed that 50 men commence cleaning out the cellars to-morrow preparatory to the erection of new houses.

Joseph Trunzer, while at work in the bridge gorge last evening, noticed three suspicious looking fellows loitering around and several times ordered them off. Finally one of them lunged at him with a knife but missed. Trunzer felled the man with a bucket.

At this juncture another of the gang jumped toward Trunzer and fired a pistol at him, the ball just missing him. Seeing the man preparing to shoot, Trunzer stooped and picking up the man he had knocked down he held him out in front of himself and started after the man with the revolver. He kept up the chase for a minute or two but the man he was carrying becoming heavy he dropped him. Again the fellow fired and missed.

The chase continued clear down the Conemaugh to Cambria City where the fellow ran into a house and into a dark room where Trunzer attacked him with a hammer and dealt him two blows on the head, almost crushing his skull.

The fellow was then arrested together with his two companions and after a hearing committed to jail at Ebensburg.

This affair has been the most exciting of all that have taken place here. It was witnessed by a large crowd.

The Cambria Iron company has offered to furnish all the sites that may be claimed, either in the Conemaugh Valley near its mills or on the slope north of Cambria City, for the erection of the new Chicago houses that will begin to arrive to-morrow.

The authorities at Moxham have also offered the same privileges. The Cambria company says not a cent will be charged for the first year and a very low ground rent thereafter.

John Slagle, representing the Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce, says five hundred of these houses have been contracted for, including a cook stove, furniture, bed clothing, etc., for each house.

Fourteen bodies were taken out of the bridge gorge yesterday.

The State Board of Health report that only a few cases of illness were reported this morning, and none of those reported are at all serious.

ROBBED THE FUND.

A Norristown Photographer is Now in a Jersey Jail.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., June 21.—A week ago L. J. Dewsnop, a photographic retoucher, employed in Saurman's copying gallery, disappeared with $60, part of the proceeds of a Johnstown benefit, of which he was one of the managers. The tickets had been on sale in stores, and on the day after the entertainment Dewsnop hurried around, collected all he could and got away.

Yesterday an Atlantic City photographer named Geisinger, who had heard of the matter, recognized Dewsnop on the beach, telegraphed to Norristown, and the recreant young man is now in custody.

He was very vain and had arranged to have presented to him on the stage a medal which he bought himself, inscribed in recognition of services in aid of the Johnstown sufferers. The rest of the committee refused to allow the presentation to take place, and he threatened to get even with them.

His Wife and Neighbors Fear Him.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 21.—Lawrence Abernesius was committed to jail yesterday for wife-beating. His neighbors believe him to be insane, as a few nights ago he threw a lighted lamp at his wife while she was asleep and set fire to the house. He has repeatedly sworn to kill his wife or somebody else, and raves like a maniac every few days. A medical examination of him is asked for by the people who live near him, who are afraid he will commit a desperate crime if allowed to be at large.

To the Big Fight.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Dominick McCaffrey has been appointed a special agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad company to book tourists for the Sullivan-Kilrain fight near New Orleans, July 8, at special rates.

GRIMES HANGED.

The New Jersey Murderer Pays the Penalty of His Crime.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., June 21.—Andrew Grimes, the colored murderer of John Martin, mate of the schooner Annie Carl, at Atlantic City, on last Christmas, was hanged here yesterday afternoon. There was no unusual scene.

The scaffold used for the execution of Robert Elder on January 3 was again brought into requisition for the execution of Grimes.

Grimes was convicted and sentenced at the April term of court. Since his incarceration he has preserved outwardly a perfectly calm demeanor and to all appearances was indifferent as to his fate. He claimed to have a wife and child in North Carolina, but no word has been received from them.

Wednesday night he was extremely nervous and did not close his eyes in sleep. His death-watch, Deputy Sheriff Moore and Officer Conover, kept strict vigil over him.

During the reading of the death-warrant Grimes preceptibly weakened. The usual scene occurred attending a hanging in this State.

Under the New Jersey statute no one was allowed to witness the execution except the jury drawn by Judge Reed, the Sheriff's special deputies and the representative provided by law. The condemned man walked firmly to the scaffold preceded by the Sheriff and his spiritual adviser, Rev. Elijah Hammett.

The rope and cap were quickly adjusted by Deputy Anderson and the rope cut by Sheriff Johnson.

Death was instantaneous. The body, after hanging twenty-two minutes, was cut down and delivered to the care of the county physicians. The body will be buried in the Potter's field at the County Almshouse.

Mother and Widow Opposed.

NEW YORK, June 21.—In the Surrogate's Court to-day the mother of Minedreader Bishop applied for letters of administration upon his estate, and a counter application was made by his widow. Decision was reserved. The mother claims that Mrs. Bishop is not a widow in New York, though she is in Minnesota, and that she has no legal claims on Bishop's property in this State. She was a second wife, and Bishop's divorce from his first wife prevented his marrying again according to New York laws.

Married His Mother-in-Law.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—George W. Golindo, of 2332 Oxford street, married his mother-in-law, Ella A. Walsh, in direct violation of the laws of Pennsylvania. Mr. Golindo appeared at the marriage license office and told Clerk Bird that he desired a license. After the usual formula Golindo swore that he was not related to Mrs. Walsh by either "blood or marriage" and upon this affidavit was granted a license. A day or so later the pair were married.

Has to Answer for His Vote.

BEVERLY, N. J., June 21.—L. Q. C. Elmer, a prominent busines man of this place and a member of the Presbyterian church of that town, is on trial before the church session for voting for two licenses. Mr. Elmer had been notified that if he voted for the licenses he would be expelled from the church. He contended that there was nothing in the church manual which prohibited him from so doing, and says he will carry the matter to the Supreme court.

Boston Capitalists Prospecting.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 21.—Two Boston gentlemen have passed through Pictou on their way home from the Magdalen Islands. They represent a syndicate of American capitalists who propose to buy the islands and build on them a second Gloucester. Large fishing works will be started there including a number of canning establishments. Pictou is to be made the port of transshipment, and a steamer will ply between that port and the Magdalen.

He Came Back Too Soon.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 21.—Milton Jackson, who escaped nine months ago after robbing some freight cars on the Central railroad in this city, was caught yesterday by Chief Austin on his return to the city and pleaded guilty. Judge McCormick sent him to States prison for three years, to keep company with his confederate, who received the same punishment at the January term of court.

Poole Will Go to Prison.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Jim Poole, the ex-convict who shot and wounded Tom Burns and attemped to shoot a policeman on June 9, was yesterday found guilty of assault in the second degree. Burns refused to testify against Poole, so that the verdict had to be a light one. Burn's motive was to keep Poole out of prison so that he could "do him up" himself, but the attempt failed. Sentence was deferred.

Farther Martens Dead.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 21.—Word has been received that Father Henri Martens, of the Catholic church of St. John the Baptist, who went to Florida two weeks ago to recuperate his health is dead. William T. Rice, Massachusetts, Consul to Leghorn; Lyell T. Adams, New York, Consul to Horgen, Switzerland; Roland J. Hemmick, Pennsylvania, Consul to Geneva.

William T. Rice was Consul at Leghorn from 1880 to 1882. He is now sent back to his old post at Leghorn.

Lyell T. Adams was appointed to Geneva, March 3, 1873, and is now transferred to Horgen.

Roland J. Hemmick is a prominent business man of Pittsburg and is recommended by a majority of the leading business men at that city.

B. & O.'s Theatrical Rates.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Judge Cooley, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission says that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. had not received permission to make the theatrical cut of two cents which they recently announced. He said that the company had possibly made the cut with a view to making a test case. No complaint had been made against them, and until complaint was made the Commission would take no official cognizance of the matter.

She Wants a Place in the Pension Office.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Mrs. M. J. Blaisdel, "a Johnstown sufferer," as her card said, was one of the callers at the President's Mansion. She carried with her a small brown satchel, which she said was all she saved. She was on the same train with Mrs. and Miss Halford and lost her baggage. Now she wants a place in the Pension Office.

Secretary Proctor at Work Again.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Secretary Proctor returned from Proctor, Vermont, yesterday and was at his desk in the Navy department to-day. He says his son is much improved, and on the rapid road to recovery.

Hartranft Gets a Place.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Ex-Gov. Hartranft, of Pennsylvania, has been appointed by the President a member of the Cherokee Indian Commission.

Accused and Bondsman Missing.

BOSTON, June 21.—The case of W. Edgar Phillips, Superintendent of Letter Carriers and a candidate for Postmaster at Fall River, who is charged with robbing the mails, came before United Commissioner Hallett here to-day. Phillips did not appear and Commissioner Hallet ruled that his bail was defaulted. John D. Crowley, who is said to be a Fall River junk dealer is Phillips' bondsman in the sum of $1,500. It is stated that Phillips has absconded.

Belt May Have to Remain in Jail.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 21.—William E. Belt, the Wheeler and Wilson Sewing Machine agent charged with shooting Jeremiah Sullivan, while Sullivan was resisting the removal of a machine bought on installments, has been surrendered by his bondsmen. Unless he can give new bail Belt must remain in jail until the September term.

No Offence to King Kalakaua.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 21.—Henry W. Severance, who is visiting his old home here, denies the story that his appointment as Consul-General to the Hawaiian Islands has given great offence to King Kalakaua. He says he has been on exceedingly friendly terms with the King, and understands the King is pleased with his appointment.

Fish Hatchers Busy at Work.

WOODS HALL, Mass., June 21.—The United States Fish Commission here is actively engaged in hatching and planting lobsters, scup, and sea bass in the Vineyard Sound, Buzzard's Bay and contiguous waters. Many millions of the different varieties have been set at liberty.

Murdered a Fourteen Year Old Girl.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 21.—This morning Alvin Park, a cook in the Noank fishing smack Maria Louise, murdered a fourteen year old girl named Littlefield. Park is a widower aged 40 and was in love with the girl, but was recently jilted. He shot her four times.

—Bids were opened at the State House, Trenton, yesterday, for printing and binding the Senate Journal, binding the Assembly minutes of the past session, and the Legislative documents and State officers' reports for the present fiscal year. Several days will be required to examine the bids.

Mizpah Lodge Entertainment.

The entertainment given in Reform Hall, for the benefit of the Johnstown sufferers, on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, United Order of Independent Odd Ladies, was a pronounced success, although the affair was not so largely patronized, as was anticipated. Mrs. Westphal presided and announced the following numbers on the informal programme:

Overture	Orchestra.
Recitation	Master Voehl.
Song—Medley	Glee Club.
Recitation	Mr. Carney.
Vocal Duett	The Misses Morse
Comic Dialogue	"How She Made Him Propose."
Song	Mr. Haskard.
Recitation	Mr. Davis.
Character Song	Mr. Chilvars.
Recitation	Miss Runyon.
Tipsy Pudding	Eight Characters.
Recitation	Mr. Davis.
Cornet Solo	Prof. Bartow.
Character Song	Mr. Chilvars.
Katie's Letter	Three Characters.

Respectfully Referred to the Proper Authorities.

It is a shame and an outrage to clean cess pools or out-houses in the day time, as was done yesterday afternoon about 6 o'clock in the rear of some buildings on Park avenue. The numerous guests of Force's Hotel were obliged to leave the dining room in consequence of the odor arising. Should not such work be done at night?

THE JUNIORS DID IT.

The Young West Ends of Somerville Rattle the Diamonds of Plainfield, and Turn a Defeat Into Victory.

The West End Juniors of Somerville, are as plucky and gentlemanly a set of young fellows as ever run round the bases of a ball field. They came to Plainfield yesterday hoping with all their hearts to regain the lost honor of Harkins and his team, but when their eighth inning opened and the score stood 14 to 11 in favor of the Diamonds of this city, the visitors were naturally disappointed.

They did not give up, however, even after two men went out without a run, and there were none on bases. It would take three runs to tie, and four to beat. Dietz went to the bat and lined out a base hit. Major followed and was given his base on balls by Townley. Quick succeeded him with a high fly to Trust and all supposed the game was over, but Gus failed to get it and the Juniors began to race round the bases. After that it was "all day" with the Diamonds. Ten runs were rolled up for the Somerville boys by the lofty throwing, fumbling and general razzle dazzle playing of the home team. Ten runs before the third man was out, and not one of them earned.

That settled it. The Diamonds were unable to score another run, and the Juniors accepted the victory that had been presented them without playing their ninth inning. They were so full of pride that the stage that brought them down in comfort, had not room enough going home, and some were obliged to ride outside on the steps.

The score was as follows:

John Gilbert Laid to Rest.

The funeral of the late John G. Gilbert, the veteran actor, took place yesterday afternoon from the Church of the Unity in Boston. Rev. Minot J. Savage conducted the ceremonies, which were brief and simple.

A large number of relatives and friends of the dead actor were present, including Joseph Jefferson, Harry McGlennen, Geo. Wilson and many well-known ladies and gentlemen of the theatrical profession. Mr. Wm. L. Gavett, of this city, whose sister is the wife of the dead man, was present, and also another sister who married Mr. Gilbert's half-brother.

The pallbearers were Colonel Lee Curtis Guild, Colonel Samuel Hatch, Joseph Proctor, Dr. Gustavus S. Winston and Colonel W. W. Clapp. The interment was at Forest Hill Cemetery.

A Tennis Tournament of Both Sexes.

Two weeks ago the "Ys" held a tennis tournament of young ladies only—the contestants in which were published exclusively in THE PRESS—on the grounds of Mr. I. W. Rushmore, in aid of the building fund of the Y. M. C. A. Not only was the affair a success financially, but socially it was extremely enjoyable.

It was suggested at that time that a tournament of both ladies and gentlemen would be still more enjoyable, and so one has been arranged for the afternoon of Saturday, June 29, at the Tennis Club grounds, near the corner of Eighth street on Central avenue.

Gentlemen from the club and young ladies from the "Y" will participate, the receipts being for the Y. M. C. A., fund. All lovers of tennis and friends of the "Ys" are invited.

Base Ball To-morrow.

Manager Gavett, of the Y. M. C. A., ball nine, will put the strongest team in the field, to-morrow, that has ever yet played under the Crescents' banners. THE PRESS published the list yesterday.

The visiting club will be the "Dauntless" of Elizabeth, and a close game with victory for Plainfield is promised. Everybody in attendance will get the worth of their money, ten times over.

The stands now hold 500, and it is expected—if it does not rain—that every seat will be occupied. Don't be seen holding on to the ropes, and lining the field, when you can have a seat for 15 cents and help support a nine for Plainfield's credit.

Must Go Early.

Persons without admission tickets who intend to be present at the graduating exercises of the High School in Music Hall, next Thursday evening, will be obliged to go early in order to secure seats. A limited number of seats will be reserved for the parents and friends of the graduates.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. R. MacDonald are at Asbury Park, for the season.

Mrs. F. Willetts Runyon is at Liberty Falls, Sullivan county, New York, for the Summer.

Mrs. J. Erskine and family, or Third place, will Summer at Maple Farm, Chelfield, Mass.

Mr. Geo. C. Mahon and family, of this city, will leave Plainfield to-morrow to spend the Summer at Asbury Park.

Mr. H. G. Hibbard, head wireman in this city for the F. E. Kinsman Electrical Supply company, has been indisposed for the past few days.

Mr. P. B. Hodge, for the past two years in the employ of R. M. Stelle, the druggist is now the courteous and obliging clerk in Mr. J. G. Miller's pharmacy.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Buckelew are back again after a long absence, and are staying at the home of Mrs. Buckelew's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Dunn at Fifth and Sycamore streets.

The picture already described in THE PRESS, entitled "A Bud in the Apple Tree," by Mr. Charles H. Davis of the Plainfield Camera Club, is being used by the New York Tribune as a decoration for one cover of its Summer books.

Sailor Jack Powers captured a big woodchuck under the stoop of Mr. Halsey Megie's house on East Front street, this morning, and exhibited it around town in a cage on a wheelbarrow to the delight of the small boy and the agitation of the timid maid.

Mr. George H. Graham who designed and constructed Mr. Alexander Gilbert's home on West Eighth street, has drawn plans for the entire alteration of Mr. Pliny Fisk's residence, and the work has already been begun. Among the improvements will be the setting back of the house, about 60 feet.

Wm. H. Sebring, Eminent Commander of Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar, this city, has called a special conclave for next Wednesday evening, when Sir. A. D. Winfield, Grand Commander of New Jersey, will be present for the purpose of constituting the Plainfield Commandery, and installing its officers.

Mr. A. L. C. Marsh is back from Denver and San Francisco, as brown and rugged as can be, yet thoroughly convinced that there is no place like the East in which to live, and move, and have a being. Mr. Marsh is the architect of the Bicycle Club house, and the residences of Dr. T. W. Davis, Mayor J. H. Cooley, Mr. D. C. Adams and others.

Last evening at the residence of Mr. E. J. Waring in North Plainfield, occurred the marriage of Miss Mary Fletcher Jackson and Mr. Frank Scott. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell, pastor of the Mount Olive Baptist church, officiated. A few friends were present, and a very enjoyable time was had by all. The bride and groom were the recipients of many pretty presents.

Mr. George Hill, aged eighteen years, son of Mr. Peter Hill, of Roseville, N. J., formerly of this city, died at the home of his father on Monday, from hasty consumption, after an illness of about six weeks. Interment was made at that place on Wednesday. Mr. Hill won several medals for fancy roller skating while the skating craze was in progress. Mr. Hill gave several exhibitions of his skill at the Casino in this city.

At the home of the bride's father in Scranton, Pa., yesterday, at noon, took place the marriage of Jessie Marriweather and Lewis Melville Evans, youngest son of the late ex-Mayor Evans of this city. On account of the recent bereavement of the groom's family, only the immediate relatives were present. The Rev. K. P. Ketcham, D. D., of this city, assisted in the ceremony. After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Evans expect to make a visit at "Oakwood," early in July.

Reception to Mr. and Mrs. Mosher.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Mosher have returned from their wedding trip and were last evening tendered a reception at the residence of the groom's father, Mr. Elias J. Mosher on East Fourth street. Guests were present to the extent of about thirty, and all wished the bride and groom many years of health and happiness. The bride was the recipient of many rich and costly gifts.

A strange coincidence in connection with the reception was the fact that while the guests were enjoying themselves a nephew was born to the groom, Mrs. Edward Mosher of West Seventh street, having given birth to a son. Thus Mr. Elias Mosher has acquired a daughter and grandson within the past few days, the former by marriage and the latter by birth.

Bowling by the Ladies.

A bowling club has recently been organized among the lady friends of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein, and regular practice games are now held on the alleys in the Gesang and Turner Hall on Somerset street.

In a recent match the ladies beat the score made by their male escorts. The alley in the new building has been remodeled and improved.

The Singing and Turning sections of the Society will bowl on Thursday evening of next week.

A Difficulty Surmounted.

It is often very difficult to tell what kind of a laxative to give a very young child who is suffering from pain. The only medicine which is at the same time perfectly safe, effective, and pleasant to take, is HAMBURG FIGS. 25 cents. Dose, one fig. Mack Drug Co., N. Y. J. G Miller, Agent, Plainfield.

The Stereopticon Show.

The unpopularity of the news was again demonstrated by the fact that only 125 persons, including ushers, deadheads and all, assembled in Music Hall, last evening, to witness the stereopticon exhibition gotten up by Mr. T. W. Morrison, editor of the news, assisted by Architect Oscar S. Teale of North Plainfield. The object of the entertainment, as the editor stated, in a swallow-tail coat, was to increase the fund for the Johnstown sufferers. It is unfortunate for the sufferers that the affair was not under different auspices.

Some excellent views of the dilapidated condition of Johnstown, Cambria, Woodvale and other places visited by the flood, were exhibited on the canvas, together with scenes at and around the South Fork dam. Several maps were also displayed "for the edification of scientific men," and the debris and wreckage piled up on the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and in some of the principal streets of Johnstown, so the spectators were told, was forty feet high.

The views in the Conemaugh Valley were followed by a series of miscellaneous pictures, presented and described by Mr. Teale, and also a number of excellent views taken at different points along the line of the recent Centennial parade in New York.

A feature of the entertainment was the delightful rendition of "Home, Sweet Home," by the Holy Cross choir, while a panoramic view of Johnstown was being exhibited on the canvas.

The originators of the scheme lost money by the entertainment, partly because it was brought out after the Conemaugh Valley sufferers had been relieved.

A Temperance Cantata.

The Loyal Temperance Legion gave a very interesting entertainment, last evening, at their rooms on West Front street. The title of the play was the "Old Woman in the Shoe," and the parts taken were principally by the small children in Mrs. P. H. Bennett's class. The success of the entertainment was largely due to Mrs. Bennett and her able corps of assistants. The audience was not as large as was anticipated.

The play was in the form of a Temperance Cantata, in which, as usual, the evils of strong drink were shown in a very forcible manner, the children all taking their parts very well.

An interesting feature of the entertainment was the singing by Miss Mary Lewis, and the reading of "Marguerite" by Miss Cool.

The principal characters and those who took them were as follows:

Uncle Sam........................Emil Droll
Miss W. C. T. U...............Etta Raybert
King Alcohol...................Clarence Vail
Georgia..................Florence Williams
Dolores, the Drunkard's daughter...Miss Mary Lewis
Senator Money Bags...Edward Jennings.
Chorus—Try Mattox, Florence Carver, Lina Seargent, Edith Vail, Sadie Rockafellow, Minnie Farley and several others.

Rockwell will enter the Lehigh University; A. B. Wadsworth enters the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; S. P. Hall goes to Harvard; R. S. Tracy goes to Yale; Thos. Hale, Jr., will enter Trinity College at Hartford, and Howard Opdyke will enter Stevens Institute of Technology.

They Never Speak as They Pass By.

The strike which was organized in a North Plainfield butcher shop a day or two ago, is reported to have taken a new form yesterday. It appears that one of the men employed in the shop, occupies rooms in the employer's house. The man threw up his position and started out to solicit trade on his own account. This so angered his former employer, that the latter met him in the house at noon yesterday. It is alleged that a skirmish resulted from the meeting, during which one of the participants received a black eye and the other a swelled cheek.

—If there is one subject, more than any other, which should engage the attention of our people, it is the welfare of the young men and women of our city.

Ocean Grove Programme.

For the benefit of the many Plainfielders who anticipate Summering at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, the programme of the special services to be held at the latter place, beginning on the 30th instant, may be of interest. It is reproduced from the Newark Daily Advertiser.

I. O. O. F. Statistics.

Lewis Parker, Grand Secretary and Grand Scribe of New Jersey, has forwarded to the Sovereign Grand Lodge the summary of records from subordinate lodges and encampments for the year ending Dec. 31, 1888, viz:

Number of lodges, 214; number of members, 20,907; increase, 739; number of brothers relieved by benefits, 2,236; number of widowed families relieved, 120; number of brothers buried, 264; total amount paid for relief, $103,074.50; number of weeks for which benefits were paid, 17,833; total amount of lodge receipts, $224,234.73; number of Rebekah lodges, 19; number of members—brothers, 796; sisters, 759—1,554; increase—brothers, 133; sisters, 138—271; amount paid for relief, $2,389.88; number of encampments, 54; number of members, 2,951; increase, 64; number of patriarchs buried, 41; total amount paid for relief, $8,100.17; number of weeks for which benefits were paid, 2.617; amount of annual receipts, $16,460.52.

Wanted to Run the Game to Suit Themselves.

The "Centrals," Plainfield's colored nine, went to Westfield, yesterday, to play the colored team of that town, and came home disgusted. The score stood 18 to 13 in favor of the Westfield kickers, but as they refused to abide by the decision of the umpire, the Centrals threw up the game.

The Plainfield nine consisted of Kline, pitcher, Nelson, catcher; and D. Martin, Cuff, E. Martin, T. Martin, Randolph, M. Carey and J. Carey. The umpire was Lew Lowry. In the last inning that was played, a Westfielder knocked a long fly which the umpire declared was foul, but the Westfield team would not allow it and insisted on scoring four runs on the hit. Of course Gamey couldn't have anything like that, you know, and the game was declared forfeited to the Centrals by a score of 9 to 0.

The Correct Time.

The railroad authorities have recently changed the hour of giving correct time over the wires. Formerly it was given at noon; now it is sent at 4 P. M. in the following manner:

At 3:58 all the wires are quiet. The operator at Jersey City calls "time" at intervals until twenty seconds to 4, and then makes dots until five seconds to 4, when the circuit is thrown open, and at exactly 4 o'clock he makes one dot; at 15 seconds past 4, two dots; 30 seconds past, three dots, 45 seconds past, 4 dots, and one minute past, five dots.

Concerning the Firebugs.

Officers Giesse and Flannigan, who were summoned before the United States Grand Jury at Trenton on Wednesday, spent an hour or so in making a tour of the State Prison. They report having seen some of the Plainfield firebugs at work in the prison, and also the negro, Jonhson, who shot Sam Williams in this city and was sentenced, eight years ago, to twenty years imprisonment.

"Social Club" Drinking a Failure.

A decision of the Ohio Supreme Court virtually kills the "Social Club" scheme to evade the Local-Option law. The Attorney-General filed motions to take away the charters of several of these clubs on the ground that they were formed for the purpose of evading the law. To these motions demurrers were filed, and these the Court overruled.

Gubernatorial Appointments.

Gov. Green yesterday appointed Mulford Ludlow as Clerk of the County of Cumberland, in the place of Francis L. Godfrey, deceased.

Francis Sayre of Elizabeth; Joseph S. Winthal of Hoboken, and Thos. Cogan of Passaic, were appointed as Deputy Inspectors of Factories and Workshops.

—Dr. Kimball, the chiropodist, will remain at the City Hotel for a few days longer, where he would be pleased to meet all persons who are suffering from corns, and other feet troubles. The doctor shows special favors to persons in moderate circumstances.

—The South Forks dam proved defective, but Dr. Dam's Remedy can always be depended upon.

On New Haven's Trotting Track.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—Yesterday's races at the Derby Driving park resulted as follows:

First race—2:30 class. Dan Jenkins won, with Rocket second, and Electra third. Best time 2:28.

Second race—2:50 class. John H. won, with Yonker second, and John M. third. Best time 2:33¾.

Riverside Girl won the road race purse of $100. Time 2.49¼.

JEM SMITH'S PIG.

Senator Sawyer Tells a Story with a Tangible Moral to It.

Senator Philetus Sawyer is back in Washington, and has been moved to tell one of his stories with a moral to it to the correspondent of the New York Tribune. A well-known politician was ostensibly backing a friend for an office which it was believed he wanted for himself. He was also advising the friend to do certain indiscreet things which would surely cause him to lose the coveted appointment.

"It was up in Wisconsin," said Senator Sawyer, "when neighbors on the farms used to lend one another a helping hand. There was one fellow named Jem Smith, who was pretty lazy—too lazy to provide fodder for his own stock. He had one pig that was a beauty. Lord only knows how he got it, but it was his. He used to borrow feed from the neighbors by promising that when butchering time came he would share the animal with them. When butchering time did come he found that he had promised more pork than a dozen animals would provide. He went to a friend who was a sort of lawyer and asked him what to do. Now this man had wanted Jem Smith's pig for a long time. 'You can fix it easy enough,' he said, 'just go ahead with your butchering and let all your neighbors see you at it. Then you'll want to hang the carcass out over night. In the morning you can tell the people who want a share in it that somebody stole the pig during the night. They only had a share in that particular pig, and if it is stolen they can't hold you for their share.'

"Jem thought this was mighty shrewd advice. He did just as he was told, invited the neighbors in to the butchering and left the carcass hanging out over night. The next day he went to his adviser's house with an awful long face.

"'It's gone,' he said; 'somebody took the pig last night. Didn't even leave me a slice!'

"'That's pretty well done,' said his friend; 'did you tell that story to the neighbors as straight as you have to me?'

"'But it's gone,' roared Smith. 'I tell you somebody did steal it last night!'

"'Keep it up that way,' replied the friend, 'and they'll never suspect you.'

"It didn't do any good for poor Smith to explain that he was in dead earnest. The man who had advised him to leave the carcass out over night kept insisting that he was acting first rate, and the neighbors would never catch on. But as he left the house he caught the odor of spareribs. He came back for a parting word. 'By the blankety-blank,' he said to his friend, 'I believe you've got my pork, now!' But he couldn't prove it. I suspect," said Senator Sawyer, in concluding the story, "that a good many people who are advising other people to do certain things are looking out for those other people's pork."

Kindness Rewarded.

It sometimes pays to be kind to strangers. An Eastern drummer while traveling in Kentucky was taken ill and stopped at a farmer's house. The farmer cared for his unknown guest, but the drummer got worse, and just before he died he bequeathed all his property, amounting to $8,000, to his host.

FEW DAYS LONGER.

Every form of disease of the Feet are cured by him. HOURS—9 A. M. till 6 P. M.

Special favors shown people in moderate circumstances.

Servants will be in waiting to conduct ladies and gentlemen to the Doctor's parlors at the CITY HOTEL, Plainfield, for a FEW DAYS LONGER.

People who desire the services of a skillful CHIROPODIST, had better improve the opportunity and call at once, as his stay in Plainfield is limited.

DR. KIMBELL'S charges are moderate and invariably known after examinations, which are always free.

Ladies often make up parties of from two to six and call upon Dr. Kimbell together. The most timid lady, aged person or child can have the most aggravating feet troubles radically and permanently cured and suffer nothing from the treatment.

MOLES AND WARTS OF THE FACE, NECK, OR ANY PART OF THE BODY, are removed without pain, and without cutting.

During the past six years Dr. Kimbell has treated 15,000 persons, ladies and gentlemen.

From many thousand Testimonials in Dr. Kimbell's possession, he begs to submit the following

Plainfield Testimonials:

From J. B. Probasco, M. D.: "I have had personal experience with DR. KIMBELL'S skill in removing corns, and heartily recommend him to the afflicted.
J. B. PROBASCO, M. D., 41 East Front street.

From J. T. Fritts, M. D.: I with pleasure recommend DR. KIMBELL as a skillful Chiropodist.
J. T. FRITTS, M. D., 33 Park avenue.

To whom it may concern: DR. KIMBELL has successfully removed two moles from my face.
Plainfield, May 30. MRS. R. TENEYCK.

From John A. Beerbower, Proprietor City Hotel: I have pleasure in saying that DR. KIMBELL has cured my feet in one treatment.

BURKE IDENTIFIED

Officer Collins' Successful Mission to Winnipeg.

IT WAS A PURE FORMALITY,

But Chief of Police Hubbard Will Not Take Any Chances.

Expressman Martinsen Also on His Way to Manitoba to Aid in Burke's Extradition—There Is an Abundance of Evidence—He Is Said to Have Decoyed Cronin for the Purpose of Slaying Him—Betrayed by His Cups.

CHICAGO, June 21.—The identification of Martin Burke by Officer Collins at Winnipeg yesterday afternoon was a pure formality, as Burke had confessed he was from Chicago and the man who was "wanted," though denying participation in the crime.

But Chief of Police Hubbard does not propose to take any chances. He has shipped Martinsen, the expressman, to Manitoba, and other witnesses will go there, as it will be necessary to produce some evidence before the Judge of the Court of Queen's Bench showing Burke's guilt.

EVIDENCE ENOUGH.

Of the latter the police entertain no doubt. They say that he was No. 108 of Camp No. 20, that he was the man who decoyed Dr. Cronin to the corner of State and Sixteenth streets with intent to kill him, was often heard to threaten Cronin when in his cups, discarded his old clothes immediately after the murder and flashed out in a new suit, displayed a great roll of bills at the saloons when it was known he had not worked for four months, and did other things calculated to excite attention and create suspicion.

He didn't kill Cronin at State and Sixteenth streets—which is a very lonesome locality and fitted for a murder—because he was drunk that night. Some of his old clothes are now in possession of the police, having been given up by his aunt, Mrs. Philbin, who does not seem to be enamoured of her notorious nephew.

THE "MARKET STREET GANG."

Not only Burke, but Michael Cooney, his partner, and the others interested in the murder of Cronin, belonged to the "Market Street Gang." They are a quarrelsome, troublesome set of people, being constantly rowing among themselves, but they make common cause when the law reaches out for them or when peaceably disposed citizens make complaint of them.

How Burke Was Caught.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 21.—It has been learned that Calder, the agent who sold the ticket from Winnipeg to Liverpool to Burke, was the man who spotted the suspect and sent for Chief Rae to arrest him. Burke, in buying the ticket, said that he wanted one which would take him all through British territory, as he had had some trouble in the States and did not want to risk himself south of the boundary line. This aroused Calder's suspicions and he sent for the Chief of Police, who shadowed Burke until he thought fit to arrest him.

FIGHTING FOR A ROANBED.

The Erie and Lackawana Lock Horns at Paterson.

PATERSON, N. J., June 21.—The strained relations between the Erie and Lackawanna railroads culminated yesterday in the police being called on to prevent a riot.

The Cooke locomotive works in South Paterson has been a coveted terminus for branch tracks by both railroads.

When the Lackawanna men quit work Wednesday night the road had been graded and tracks laid as far as Getty avenue.

At daylight a construction train of the Erie company, loaded with Italians with picks and crowbars, stopped at the Getty avenue crossing and in a few minutes the laborers were tearing up the rails and ties which the Lackawanna men had just laid. Having accomplished this they set to work laying other ties and rails for the Erie.

The men in the employ of the Lackawanna company finally appeared on the scene, and a riot was imminent between the rival forces, headed by their overseers, when Captain Bronson, with a large force of policemen arrived.

The Erie men continued laying tracks on the roadbed prepared by the Lackawanna company, while the latter crew stood looking on, being prevented from interference by the police.

Last night the Erie had guards stationed along its tracks.

Another Secret Ballot Bill,

HARTFORD, Conn., June 21.—Both Houses of the Legislature yesterday passed a second Secret Ballot bill, and it now goes to the Governor. The bill provides for official paper for ballots and envelopes, which must be of uniform size, color and quality. Selectmen of towns are to provide for holding elections; rooms screened from observation adjacent to the room where the ballot-box is stationed. Only election officers and persons actually voting are to be allowed in the private room.

A Despondent Ex-Legislator.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—William Carberry, 53 years old, who represented the Third District in the State Legislature for two successive terms and who was defeated for renomination last autum, attempted suicide last evening at his boarding-house, by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. He was taken to the Pennsylvania hospital in an unconscious condition and is not expected to survive the night.

Young Brice's Expulsion.

EXETER, N. H., June 21.—The expulsion of S. M. Brice, son of Calvin S. Brice, from Phillip's Exeter academy, has produced a sensation. Young Brice was very popular with his class, and after his expulsion they met and elected him class President, and he read the class history before them. His diploma has been withheld. His convivial habits on these occasions led to the expulsion.

Judgment Against C. F. Weber.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Judgment notes aggregating $10,000 have been issued against Charles F. Weber, the big furniture dealer at the southwest corner of Tenth and Market streets. Mr. Weber declines to give any figures about either his assets or liabilities. He thought that the business would be carried on for the present, anyway, for the benefit of the creditors.

Crushed to Death.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 21.—Early this morning Daniel Foley Patrick Digens and two other men were pushing a car on the Buffalo Creek railway tracks up to a grain elevator. On the same track in their rear was a string of twenty cars being pushed the same way. The four men tried to get out of the way but Foley and Digens were caught and crushed to death.

A National Organization.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 21.—At yesterday's session the commercial travellers formed a National organization and amended the constitution in several particulars. State employment bureaux were substituted for the National emnloyment bureau. A motion to change the headquarters from Chicago to Washington was defeated.

Wealthy But Bad.

NEW YORK, June 21.—William F. Havemeyer, a youth who says he is a member of the wealthy family of that name, has been arrested for insulting ladies in Central Park. Mrs. Genton, of 104 West Fifty-Sixth street, appeared against him and he was locked up, but subsequently furnished bail for appearance.

No More Prohibition.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 21.—The total vote in yesterday's election in this state was 28,449 for the repeal of the Prohibitory amendment, and 9,853 against repeal. The amendment is therefore repealed by 5,569 more than the total vote. The amendment was adopted in 1886, by a vote of 15,113 to 9,230.

Drowned in a Water-Race.

TRENTON, N. J., June 21.—Willie Weid, the eight-year-old son of Wilbert Weid, was drowned in the water-race near Walton's flour mill yesterday afternoon. The boy fell into the water while fishing for driftwood. Up to a late hour this morning the body had not been recovered.

Gen. Sherman Saw Them Graduate.

NEW YORK, June 21.—General W. T. Sherman and a number of other citizens were present last night at the commencement exercises of the College of the City of New York at the Metropolitan Opera house. The large graduating class acquitted themselves very creditably.

The Strike Is Ended.

CONCORD, N. H., June 21.—The trouble among the Italian laborers employed on the Suncook Valley Extension railroad, near Pittsfield, was caused by dissatisfaction with the sutler, who is also an Italian. This man was discharged and the laborers returned to work.

Judges for Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 21.—Governor Bulkely to-day appointed Senator John M. Hall, of Windham and John M. Thayer, of Norwich, Judges of the Superior court for eight years from July 1889. The Senate referred the nominations to the Judiciary committee.

A Boy Sentenced for Life.

GALENA, Ill., June 21.—Jonathan S. Keene, the 16-year old murderer of Professor Matchett, of the public schools of Hanover was to-day sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

Large Icebergs Sighted.

NEW YORK, June 21.—The steamers State of Pennsylvania and Wyoming, which arrived yesterday, sighted large icebergs on the passage.

MOTHER OF ICEBERGS.

A Huge Glacier Forty Miles in Length.

It Is Situated in Southeastern Alaska, and Presses Constantly Toward the Sea, Into Which Huge Masses of Ice Drop from Its Beetling Front.

Prof. Horace W. Briggs, in the Sitka Alaskan, describes the most notable of the glaciers of Southeastern Alaska. It is called the Muir, and is named from Prof. John Muir, a geologist of some reputation, since he gave the first uncolored description of it. It is forty miles long, and back on the land, in a basin of the mountains. Being reinforced by fifteen tributaries coming down the glens from different points of the compass, it swells to an icy sea twenty-five miles in diameter. Thence it moves with resistless power, bearing rocks and long lines of detritus on its billowy surface. Just before it reaches the bay it is compressed by two sentinel mountains into and is forced through a gorge one mile in width.

Emerging from this narrow gateway it moves on, at the rate of forty to sixty feet a day, to the waters whence it originally came, buttressing the bay with a perpendicular wall 800 feet high, 300 feet of ultramarine crystals tipped with purest white being above the surface, and, being pushed beyond its support in the underlying rock, a battle begins between cohesion and gravity. The latter force always prevails, and vast masses break from the glacial torrent with the combined crash of falling walls and heavy thunder, a tumble into the bay with a dash and a shock that agitates the waters miles away, making navigation perilous to craft of all sizes. The almost deafening roar made when these masses are rent away, the splashing baptism they receive in their fall and the leaping waters are lively witnesses to the birth of an iceberg, which henceforth, as an independent existence, goes on its mission of girding the shores, butting against its fellows and of scaring navigators.

While the ship was resting unmoored near the front of this icy barrier, we were startled by the sudden appearance of a mass of dark crystal, vastly larger than our own ship, shooting up from the depths and tossing our steamer as if it were an egg-shell. As the vessel careened the frightened passengers were sent whirling against her, over chairs or prostrate on the deck. This strange visitor had doubtless been broken off from the roots of the icy mountain, hundreds of feet below the surface, and hence had unexpectedly appeared upon the scene. Had it struck the ship fairly nothing but a miracle could have saved us.

Having recovered somewhat from our dumb amazement, about twenty of us were sent on shore in the captain's gig. Landing some distance below the ice wall we climbed seventy feet up a lateral moraine, crawled, shoe-deep in wet gravel, down into the valley of a glacial river, forded it, paddled through glacial mud covered with shingle just deep enough to hide the creamy pools, slipped prostrate on the ice made treacherous by a thin disguise of detritus, and barked our shins and cut our shoes on the sharp, angular blocks of granite and basalt strewn profusely along our perilous route.

Blocks of the finest marble hedged our pathway; trod on chips of jasper and chalcedony, the product of different mountains far up on the peninsula, and we passed two exquisitely beautiful bowlders of veined porphyry, weighing 200 or 300 pounds each, rounded and polished by centuries of attrition. They were of a dark purple, streaked with quartz spotlessly white, very desirable specimens for a cabinet, or for out-of-door ornamentation.

Stretched along the base of the mountains till they are only a line in the distance were the records of those gray old years in the form of moraines a hundred feet high and appearing like a range of hills.

The larger portion of this crystal river, perhaps an eighth of a mile in width, is heaved into rounded hills and beetling precipices, quite resembling the sea in a storm; while the middle and much the wider part is splintered into countless spires and needles and pinnacles, ten, twenty, thirty feet in height, and of a beautiful ultramarine at the base shaded to a dead white at the summit.

In the onward march of the glacier these pinnacles are occasionally wrenched from their seats in the solid ice beneath—they nod, then totter, and then make a plunge, and are shattered into a cloud of acicular crystals that sparkle like the frosted snow under a full moon of a winter's night, only with more of color—they are diamonds on the wing.

Again the whole surface is riven by a thousand crevices, along the bottom of which streams of clear water find their way, often broken by waterfalls that plunge further down into the dark blue abysses out of sight. These chasms are frightful gaps to one peering down a hundred feet between their turquoise walls. A slip, a frail alpenstock, a feeble grasp of the guide's rope, and gravity would close the scene without further ceremony.

The molecular structure of the glacier is continually changing, adjusting itself to the elevations and depressions of its rocky bed, and hence there is an incessant clicking and cracking, interrupted here and there by an explosion heard over every inch of the surface.

The whole scene is weird and strange in sight and sound—in the voices that rise to the air from the azure depths—fascinating because every step is perilous, majestic from its massiveness and awful because its march is irresistible.

Consider what a force in wearing away mountains and glens an icy torrent must be, one mile wide, eight hundred feet deep, and in the middle flowing sixty feet a day; it goes grinding and groaning and cracking in startling explosions, all mingled in a loud wail like that from the Titans imprisoned under Mount Ætna.

Now, let any one in fancy frame for himself this picture: Snow-capped mountains in the background, two of them. Fair-weather and Crillon, more than fifteen thousand feet high, thick set with glittering peaks and clear-cut as silhouettes on a dark sky; the great glacier, child of Arctic snows, turreted and pinnacled and splintered into a thousand strange forms upon which Iris has flung the varied hues of amethyst and turquoise and sapphire; huge masses riven from the crystal river with a thundering roar, reeling and toppling into an amber sea, thickly dotted with newborn and vagrant icebergs; and all this scene glorified and transfigured by the setting sun. Looking upon this picture through the creative power of imagination one can readily conceive that the enraptured tourist, standing in the presence of the realities, would call that day spent with the Muir glacier the day of all the days he ever passed in gazing upon and listening to the wild wonders of our planet.

Good Old Texas Way.

A Texas bank president recently ran away with the funds of the bank, leaving a placard on the door reading: "Bank suspended." The depositors caught him, and having hanged him, pinned this notice to his breast: "Bank president suspended."

LEM HILL'S FUNERAL.

The Decent Way in Which the Sad Affair Was Conducted.

Another of the queer characters in White Horse camp was a man known as Lem Hill. He was, says the New York Sun, as mild as buttermilk and as dull as a hoe, and no one ever thought of asking his advice or interesting themselves in his affairs. One day he took sick, and after a period lasting about three weeks it was seen that he must die. It was deemed best that some one should break the news to him, and so "Judge" Kelso dropped in and said:

"Lem, you are going to turn up your toes before another sunrise."

The judge didn't mean to be sudden or unfeeling, but that was his way.

"I guess I am," quietly replied Lem.

"Well, that p'int being settled and no exceptions taken, what last request hev ye got to make? We want to do the fair thing, you know, although it's a busy time."

"Kin I hev a funeral?" queried Lem.

"You kin."

"Reg'lar procession?"

"Yes."

"I don't expect any coffin, of course, but I'd like to hev the affair pulled off reasonably decent. You kin plant me on the hill beside the Frenchman. I guess we won't quarrel."

"Yes, we'll do that, though it's purty hard diggin' up thar."

"Needn't mind going over a couple of feet," said Lem, "and the fellers with the body had better take the left-hand path as they go up; it's easier to climb."

"Got any wealth?" asked the judge, after a moment's silence.

"A couple of ounces, mebbe."

"Mighty slim show for a big spread on that, but we can't help it. Well, Lem, it's my busy day, you know, and I must cut this short. Hope you won't take offense."

"Oh, certainly not. Don't neglect work on my account. Sunthin' said at the grave!"

"Just a few words, Lem, and I'll say 'em myself. I'll practice up this afternoon and git some whisky to clear my throat. I want to make a decent job of it."

"What'll you say?"

"Why, that you died happy—hev left an aching void—we shall all miss you—cut down in yer prime. I'll lay it on purty thick."

"Well, I'm sure I couldn't ask for more, and perhaps it's better than I could expect. So long, judge. Go back to your work, and I'll go on with my dying."

And the judge left the shanty whistling as was his wont, and Lem had been dead over an hour before word came to us down in the gulch. The funeral came off the next morning, and it has always been a pleasant remembrance with me that the judge did considerable better than he agreed to. He gave two eulogies in place of one, and after the burial he licked one of the men who wouldn't knock off work to attend.

VIRTUES OF MAD-STONES.

What the Owner of One of Them Has to Say on the Subject.

Under the heading "What I know about mad-stones," a correspondent writes to the Lumpkin (Ga.) Independent as follows: "About fifteen or sixteen years ago I providentially came in possession of several mad-stones, said to be genuine, which I doubted. Still their virtue has surpassed all former reports. I regard it as the last act of folly for any person to die from the bite of a mad dog, snakes or poisonous insect if within the reach of a mad-stone. I have also used them in many diseases as an experiment and have seldom failed in making a perfect cure, to my delight and the relief of the sufferer. Losing sight of the cures from the bites of dogs and snakes, I will mention only such as I treated. I have cured neuralgia in its worst form, sun-pain, sore eyes, bruises, pain in the back, head or located pains, high fever and delirium, bone felon and kindred diseases. They are of much value in bad cases of erysipelas and poison oak. Cured one case of rising breast in this county after six or seven weeks of intense suffering, all other remedies having failed to give relief. Three applications of the mad-stone relieved and cured her. The worse the disease the easier the cure, when there is inflammation, poison or fever sufficient to cause the mad-stone to adhere. I have never seen a failure. I have seen the water turn green while cleansing the mad-stone. No faith is required, only the disease. I once had the honor of curing a distinguished physician of a violent attack of neuralgia, after his remedies had all failed. Rather than die he concluded to send for me and try the mad-stone. I applied it and he went to sleep in ten minutes, and when he awoke he was relieved and cured. I only have confidence in their virtue when they effect a cure. I have seen persons suffering intense pain and in less than ten minutes after applying the mad-stone they would be sound asleep dreaming of some happy land. Their origin is a great mystery to many persons. I know the origin of mine and it can make no difference to the person cured whether they are bone, stone, wood, created or manufactured.

MIGRATION OF BIRDS.

Curious Observations Made by a Student of Natural History.

Many of the birds common about the fields and woods of this section fly hundreds and thousands of miles in the fall to some land where the rigors of winter do not reach. Some of them can be found at the Key of Tortugas, two hundred miles and over from Cape Florida, the southern jumping-off place of the United States. Numbers of the English birds and many from Northern Europe make yearly voyages down into the African continent, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and careful observers state that they have seen the great storks so common in Germany moving along high in the air bearing on their broad backs n mbers of small birds that had taken free passage, or were, perhaps, stealing a ride. In these wonderful migrations many birds are blown out to sea and lost, while others become so fatigued and worn out that they will alight upon boats. A New England fisherman, who in the autumn follows his calling fourteen or fifteen miles out from shore, informed me that nearly every day he had four or five small birds as companions. They had wandered off from shore, or were flying across the great bay on the lower coast of Maine, and had dropped down to rest. One day the same fisherman fell asleep while holding his line, and upon suddenly opening his eyes there sat a little bird on his hand, demurely cocking its head this way and that, as if wondering whether he was an old wreck or a piece of driftwood. Thus it will be seen that birds are obliged to adopt all kinds of expedients and to form strange friendships at such times.

A curious spectacle often seen in Southern seas by sailors long before land is sighted is that of the long-legged flamingo resting on the back of some great sea turtle, enjoying his ease by floating on the water's surface. What prompted the bird to take such a long flight can only be conjectured; but it is evident the journey proved fatiguing, and it settled on the turtle's inviting back for a rest.

Surrendered the Option.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 21.—John J. McFarland, of Philadelphia, whose $501,000 option on the control of the Phœnix Mutual Life Insurance company expired yesterday, has surrendered the option, and president Goodman has released the $22,000 forfeit. It is understood that this ends the deal.

The Aeronaut Injured.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 21.—Prof. Bartholomew, the aeronaut, made a balloon ascension at the fair grounds to-day, and owing to a failure of his parachute to work properly in descending, he was thrown heavily against a fence and had his right leg broken.

He Stood on the Track too Long.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., June 21.—A boy named James Garvey, about 7 years old, was trying to show another boy how close he could stand to a moving train on the Crawford branch to-day, when he was hit by a crossbar and instantly killed.

Two Hundred Years Old.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 21.—The Baptist church at Stelton, the third oldest in the United States, celebrated its two hundreth anniversary yesterday, visitors being present from all parts of the State and from other states.

KILLED AND MAIMED

Five Lives Lost in a Big Fire in Boston.

PYROTECHNICS UNEQUALLED.

A Large Fireworks Establishment Burned to the Ground Last Evening.

The First Reports Announced that Three Workmen Were Dead and Three Injured, but Later Investigation Swelled the Number of Fatalities to Five—Fears that Many More Lost Their Lives in the Building—The Loss is $70,000.

BOSTON, June 22.—A disastrous fire accompanied by loss of life occurred early last evening in the fire-works establishment of Heyer Brothers, corner of Sumner and Hawley streets.

Three dead bodies have been taken from the ruins and three persons are known to be fatally injured. It is feared that there may be more victims among the debris.

The building was occupied on the ground floor by C. E. Browning, milliners, and on the three upper floors by Heyer Brothers, dealers in fancy goods and fire works.

A salesman discovered the fire on the second floor shortly after 5 o'clock. The flames spread rapidly, cutting off the escape of several men in the upper stories and in five minutes the dense smoke and almost incessant discharge of fireworks made in the building a perfect pandemonium for those confined within its walls.

Edward Heyer, one of the firm, was nearly overcome by smoke. He managed to climb to an adjoining building, however, and escaped unhurt.

Charles Albert Gage, aged 20, dropped from the third story window and broke his neck.

Charles F. Callahan, of No. 426 Chelsea street, East Boston, and Thomas Paine, packers, who were working on the fourth floor, jumped from a window in their fright. Paine was instantly killed and Callahan's injuries will probably be fatal.

William Brenenstuhl, who was on the second floor, was doing good service in checking the flames, but lost his way while carrying water, and rolled down the stairs. He was injured so badly that it is feared that he cannot recover.

A body taken from the building has been recognized as that of Samuel Cord the chief packer of the firm.

The body of a boy was also taken to the morgue, and has not yet been identified.

This completes the casualities so far as known at present.

The firm employed from 20 to 25 men and boys, and carried a stock of $10,000 worth of fire works, and $50,000 to $60,000 worth of fancy goods, which is well insured. A large portion of the stock is ruined.

During the fire the discharge of fire works sounded as if a battle was in progress. Occasionally a rocket would shoot out of the windows.

The interior of the building was completely ruined but the walls are left standing.

The employes were largely foreigners and known to the firm by their first names only, and this fact may add to the difficulty of ascertaining whether or not there are any other bodies in the building.

The cause of the fire is not known.

A later investigation shows five lives lost, two boys missing, and one man probably fatally injured. The dead are: Samuel Cord, C. F. Callahan, Thomas Paine, one unidentified man; one unidentified boy. Fatally injured: Charles Albert Gage. Missing: John E. Anderson and Charles Polley, both boys. Meyer Bros.' loss is about $50,000, and Brownings about $20,000.

Presentation Day at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 22.—Yesterday was presentation day at Yale. The Seniors assembled in Battel chapel and listened to the class poem and the class oration, sang the class ode, and listened to the awards of honor made by President Dwight. The poem was by Thomas W. Buchanan, of Albany, Vt.; the oration by Herbert Wetmore Wells, of Louisville, Ky., and the ode by Gordon Brainerd Pike, of Middletown, Conn. In his oration Mr. Wells spoke of intemperance as a greater curse than immorality.

Mrs. Hayes Paralyzed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 22.—A special from Fremont, O., states that Mrs. Lucy Hayes, wife of the ex-President, was yesterday afternoon stricken with paralysis. Her entire right side is affected and at 9 p. m. she had not recovered consciousness. General Hayes was in Columbus, but arrived home at 5 o'clock in the evening. The other members of the family have been telegraphed for.

Damaged by a Storm.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 22.—Much damage was done by a terrific thunder storm which passed over this city about 9 o'clock last evening. Several houses were struck by lightning and set on fire. Henry Somers, aged eight years, while lying on a couch at home, was struck by the lightning and killed. George Somers, the boy's father, was seriously injured.

The President at Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., June 22.—President Harrison, Postmaster-General Wanamaker and ex-Senator Sewell, of New Jersey, arrived here at 9:45 p. m. by special car. They were welcomed by fireworks, illuminations, cheering and general enthusiasm. The party went at once to the Wanamaker cottage, where Mrs. Harrison and her father have been stopping.

Hungarians Are Indignant.

NEW YORK, June 22.—At a meeting of 1,500 Hungarian-Americans citizens last night resolutions were adopted that the stories of Hungarian atrocities at Johnstown had been proven false, and calling on the press to retract the slanders upon a law abiding people.

BURKE THE MAN.

Fully Identified by Martinsen, the Chicago Expressman.

WINNIPEG, June 22.—Martin Burke was brought up in court before Judge Bain yesterday. Mr. Howell, counsel for the prosecution, asked that the case be remanded for one week. He said he was collecting evidence and would be prepared to go ahead with one witness to-day, but as counsel and additional witnesses would have to be brought from Chicago, he thought a remand for a week would be absolutely necessary.

Martinsen arrived late yesterday and fully identified Burke as the person who ordered the furniture hauled to the Carlson cottage.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Further investigation of the Cronin murder has been postponed by the Grand Jury as the result of the accumulation of ordinary jail cases which require immediate attention in order that the prisoners may be brought to trial within the term prescribed by the statutes. The case will be taken up again next week. A number of minor witnesses were examined yesterday including Robert Bruce, the private detective, who says he was offered a large sum of money to "slug" Dr. Cronin.

Final Heats at Albany.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 22.—Yesterday was the last day of the circuit races at Island Park. The weather was fine and the attendance the largest of the meeting. The track was fast.

First race—2:27 class; trotting; purse $1,000; divided. R. M. Wilkes won in straight heats, Issaquena second, St. Elmo third, Sleepy Chief fourth. Best time 2:25¼.

Second race—2:19 class; trotting; purse $1,000; divided. Gene Smith first, T. T. S. second, Thornless third, Pilot Boy fourth. Best time 2:22.

Eloped With a Theatrical Agent.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 22.—Miss Mamie Rieves, aged 17, daughter of Samuel Rieves, who disappeared from her father's home a few days ago, eloped with J. S. Hoffmann, advance agent for the Arthur Rehan Comedy company, which recently performed at the Opera House. Miss Rieves, who is a pretty girl, became acquainted with Hoffmann when he visited Elizabeth to make arrangements for the performance of the Rehan Comedy company. The sloping couple are said to be in Philadelphia.

General Cameron Sinking.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 22.—The latest reports from General Cameron's bedside are to the effect that his condition is not materially changed from that of yesterday. His physician said last night that he may live a few hours and perhaps a day or two. All his relatives are at Donegal, his country seat, which is within three miles of the birthplace of the venerable statesman. He is unconscious. A cablegram has been sent to Senator Cameron, who is in Scotland.

The Will Overthrown.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 22.—Judge Cowenhoven has overthrown the will of the late Mrs. Emeline Hines, of Dunellen. By the will her daughter got $100,000, while her grandson got nothing. It was in evidence that the daughter had induced Mrs. Hines to destroy a former will, by which the grandson got the property.

Where the President Will Spend the 4th.

PUTNAM, Conn., June 22.—President and Mrs. Harrison have formally accepted the invitation of Henry C. Bowen to be present at Roseland Park, Woodstock, July 4. The President and party will arrive in Putnam July 3 in the afternoon, and a committee of prominent gentlemen have been named to attend to their reception.

Shoemakers on Strike.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., June 22.—There is a strike of stitchers, cutters and lasters at the Sampson shoe factory here and the shop has shut down. It is feared that the strike will become general among all the shops here. Wages were reduced last winter and the men demand a new schedule. The shops have large orders.

Caused by an Actress.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 22.—William Prestwich, an employ in L. B. Humphrey's office, and a member of one of the best families in the city, has left the town. It is said that considerable funds from Humphrey's office disappeared with young Prestwich, and that an actress in Philadelphia had been the cause of his troubles.

Massachusetts Wheelmen to Meet.

BOSTON, June 22.—The Massachusetts division of the League of American Wheelmen, augmented by the Providence Bicycle Club will hold its annual meeting at Cottage City Aug. 8, 9, and 10. There will be races and excursions.

Winners and Losers.

YALE WINS AT WILL

The Pennsylvanians Beaten at New London.

THE LOSERS SHOWED PLUCK.

But the New Haven Collegians Had It All Their Own Way.

It Was a Large Day for Pennsylvania, Even If She Was Beaten—There Was Very Little Daylight Between the Boats at the Finish—How the Crews Did Their Work—Time of the Winners, 23:50; Time of the Losers, 23:56.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 22.—The eight-oared, four-mile, straightaway race between the Yale and University of Pennsylvania crews, was rowed last evening over the Thames river course from Gale's Ferry to Winthrop's Point and was won by Yale by one and one-half lengths. Official time, Yale 23:50, Pennsylvania 23:56.

A stiff breeze was blowing up the river against the crews and over the first three miles the water was rough.

The interest in the race centered largely in the exhibition given by Yale as a means of judging her chances in the race of next Friday against Harvard.

The comments on the result vary widely and although the boats were kept very close together from start to finish it was in many respects a queer race.

The crews were late in leaving their quarters, but at 6:57 they backed up to the starting line and were at once sent away by Referee Brooks, of Harvard. Both crews caught the water together and for two or three strokes both splashed water badly. Yale's shell forged about ten feet ahead, but the Quakers settled down and in a few strokes pushed the bow of their boat a trifle to the front.

At the first quarter-mile the boats were bow and bow, both crews rowing in good form, Yale's perfect swing being especially noticeable.

A strip of rough water was entered and both crews eased down, but the Pennsylvania boys managed to push ahead and at the half-mile flag were leading by a full length, pulling 34 to Yale's 31.

From the half-mile flag to the one-mile Yale dropped her stroke to 30, while Pennsylvania ran theirs up to 36. In spite of this change Yale gradually crept up to the Quakers and at the one-mile flag were again on even terms, rowing their slow, easy but effective stroke apparently with but little effort.

From the one-mile to the mile and a half flag the boats were bow and bow, Pennsylvania pulling 34 and Yale 30. In the Pennsylvania boat there was some splashing and No. 4 was keeping very poor time.

Just before the mile and a half flag was reached Pennsylvania had a stretch of smooth water under the lee shore while Yale was in rough water in the channel. The Pennsylvania men spurted and thought to take a lead, but Yale responded and easily held her own.

At the two mile flag the difference between the slow and steady giving of the Yale men and the quick and nervous stroke pulled by the Pennsylvanians began to show itself very plainly. Yale gradually forged ahead, pulling 32 strokes in the easiest possible manner, while the Pennsylvania men—although doing fairly good blade work—went all to pieces in their giving and recover.

From the Navy Yard to the finish their stroke was a "swing as you please."

After passing the Navy Yard Yale increased her lead to a clear length with plenty of power in reserve. At the three mile and a half flag Yale had a lead of nearly two lengths and was taking things very easy.

A quarter of a mile from the finish, Pennsylvania made a tremendous spurt and cut Yale's lead down to half a length, but then Yale hit her stroke up to 34 and crossed the line with a lead of 1¼ boat lengths.

To the casual observer the race appeared to have been one of the most exciting and evenly contested races on record, while as a matter of fact it was a walkover for Yale.

"Bob" Cook's orders to the Yale crew before they left their quarters were to win by the smallest possible margin, as they did not care to give Harvard any points as to their strength. These orders were obeyed.

The following time-table gives the time of the crews at each half mile:

	Yale.	Penn.
¼ mile	2:53	2:49
½ mile	6:05¼	6:09¼
¾ mile	8:49¾	8:49¾
2 miles	12:06	12:07
2¼ miles	15:17	15:20
3 miles	18:11	18:13¼
3¼ miles	20:51¼	20:53
4 miles	23:50	23:56

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Bound Brook is to have a new public park.

—The usual Reform Club meeting will be held to-morrow evening. Able speakers will be present and address the meeting.

—The collection to-morrow morning in the Crescent Avenue church, will be for the running expenses of Bethel and Hope chapels.

—The ladies of the W. C. T. U. desire a full attendance at the meeting in their rooms on West Front street at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

—The weak fish have arrived at Seawaren Beach and have come to stay. Messrs Wm. H., Samuel D., and Frank H. Price, of Newark, caught 25 fine ones there, yesterday, with some of John Turner's choice bait.

—President Murray will conduct the Young Men's Meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening. This service will be followed by a short meeting of the various committees of the Association. Members and committeemen are especially urged to be present at both meetings.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Sheldon of Sheldonville, Mass., are the guests of Mrs. John H. Wilson of Grove street.

Mr. and Mrs Harry Dixon, of Brooklyn, are visiting their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Church, of Craig Place, North Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Frazer of Lexington, Ky., are the guests of Mrs. Frazer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Demarest, of the Borough.

Plainfield people especially will be glad to hear of the engagement of Mr. P. B. Wright as Manager of the Hotel Columbia, at Ocean Beach, for the season. Mr. Wright's thorough tact and uniform courtesy, particularly fit him for the position, and the many friends he gained among Summer hotel patrons during his connection with The Netherwood, and the Coleman House, Asbury Park, make him a valuable man at the head of such establishments. The Columbia is the best house in Ocean Beach.

Three Officers Chosen From Plainfield.

At the conference of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union, held in the First Baptist church, at Elizabeth, last evening, Mr. Edward St. John, of the Plainfield First Presbyterian church, was elected Second Vice President, Mr. H. E. Gayle, of the Plainfield Trinity Reformed church, was elected Secretary, Miss Alice Spangenberg, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, was elected Treasurer, and Mr. E. E. Anthony, also of this city, was chosen a delegate to the Executive Session at Philadelphia in July.

Of the conference programme, the most praiseworthy feature was a paper on "Committee Work," by Miss E. J. Bainbridge, of North Plainfield. It was very fine and thoroughly appreciated.

A Lame Excuse.

One of the Somerville papers seeks to excuse itself now from its ungentle remarks regarding its city's guests, the Crescents, upon the occasion of the recent ball match with the West Ends, by pleading it was "provoked thereto by the remarks of the PRESS."

We challenge all the papers of Somerset county to quote a word in the PRESS' account of the occasion, that was in the slightest way discourteous to our hosts, the Somervillans.

Election of Officers.

At a regular Convention of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., held last night, the following officers were elected to serve for the term ending Dec. 31.

Chancellor Commander—J. C. VanDyke.
Vice Chancellor—Samuel Miller.
Prelate—S. J. Robinson.
Master-at-Arms—Edward Hann.
Trustee—J. W. Ford.

Improve the Opportunity.

On account of the great rush at the City Hotel, Dr. Kimbell has concluded to cancel his engagement in Trenton for a few days longer, and to give all a chance to be cured. He will operate at reduced prices during the remainder of his stay in Plainfield. He will be at his rooms tomorrow (Sunday,) from 10 A. M. till 4 P.M.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

A Long Discussion on the Subject of Water Works, and the Water Committee Finally Authorized to Advertise for Bids—The Sewerage Question Laid in its Grave for the Present—A Resolution to Appropriate $300 to Employ Detectives to Detect Illegal Sellers Snowed Under—Shifting the Responsibility on the Shoulders of Spies.

An animated session of the City Council was held last evening, the object being to give the members an opportunity to thoroughly discuss the water works and sewerage question. That the subjects were thoroughly discussed, goes without saying, as this report indicates later on. The night was warm and sultry and the mercury in the thermometer in the Council chamber was playing foot ball up in the eighties when President Dumont called the meeting to order at 8:30 o'clock. In answer to the roll call, all the members responded except Messrs Myers and Watson.

The reading of the minutes and the regular order of procedure were dispensed with, and Mr. Newhall's motion to take up and act upon the report and resolutions submitted by the Committee on Water, Printing and Stationery at the last meeting, prevailed. Mr. Newhall stated that Engineer Herring was present, and willing and ready to answer any questions the members of the Council saw fit to ask him.

Clerk Oliver B. Leonard read the Committee's resolutions authorizing the return of the general specifications for the erection of water works and sewerage for revision, and providing for an increased expense of $350.

THE DISCUSSION BEGINS.

Mr. Marsh spoke at length. He said among other things, that with two reports, those of Engineers Bassett and Herring, the Council should be prepared and ready to ask for proposals. He said he knew of companies which were ready to bid on certain conditions. To outsiders, he said, it looked as though the thing was arranged so that certain parties would get the bid. He said he thought the Committee could ask the various contractors to send in their bids, on the strength of the two reports already presented by competent engineers, and to specify on what terms and conditions they would furnish the City with water. He withdrew a motion of his made at a previous meeting, and substituted one to the effect that all reference to sewerage be stricken out of the general specifications. After a long discussion, the motion prevailed, Messrs Dunham, Erickson and Newhall voting against the motion.

Corporation Council Marsh was present and stated the manner in which the City could procure sewerage. The latest statute, he said was passed last Winter. It provided that the citizens first petition the Council, said Council to call for estimates of two or more systems, then advertise for bids and accept the lowest bid. In case of damages or benefits to property owners, application is made to the District Court Judge, he to appoint Commissioners. Another act was passed in 1882. The act of '88, the Corporation Counsel said, was the most favorable if submitted to the people.

Engineer Herring stated that in Philadelphia sewers were constructed under a similar law.

Mr. Squires said he was willing to support any measure that would lead to the establishment of water works, but he did not agree with the Commitee in the matter of sewerage. He favored a gradual system.

Mr. Dunham favored the introduction of both water works and sewerage, and thought it best to wait until bids could be received for both. He said he considered that sewerage was the more necessary.

The revised general specifications submitted by Engineer Herring were then taken up and discussed at length. Mr. Marsh stated that through some misunderstanding the Water Committee had got a report from Mr. Herring, but it was not so full as that made by Engineer Bassett two years ago, and it contained no specifications upon which a man can bid.

Mr. Dumont said the Committee could not get detailed specifications because the appropriation made for that purpose was not large enough.

In the matter of considering Green and Stony Brooks as sources of supply, Mr. Newhall said that the Committee had come to the conclusion that they were no good, partly because of low water in the dry season, and because of the muddy condition of the streams. Of the two sources Stony Brook is the better.

Engineer Herring was asked to state why the Passaic River supply was included in the general specification. He said that New Jersey has a water commission, and that the State has been divided into districts. The commission has named the Passaic River as the future water supply for Plainfield. Stony Brook, he said, would be a good source for obtaining water at present, but in later years when the City becomes more thickly populated, and an extra supply of water was needed, it would then be comparatively easy to cross the mountain and connect with the Passaic River. Mr. Herring considered that a sufficient quantity of subterranean water could not be obtained. The underground water, he continued, runs from the Northeast to the Southwest. While a sufficient amount of running water can be had the City's health will not be affected, but when it becomes necessary to draw back the subterranean flow from the lower part of the city, then the surface water will settle into the porous ground, and become dangerous to the health of the residents in the lower part of the City.

After some modifications were made to the general specifications, a resolution was adopted authorizing the return of said general specifications to the Committee for revision and to have the same printed in pamphlet form; also to advertise in two trade journals and in the City papers for bids for the construction of water works. The bids are to be made in conformity to the method submitted by the Committee, and will be opened in the Council chamber on August 5, at 8 P. M.

Mr. Newhall introduced a resolution which prevailed, that upon the request of the applicants who have already made bids, for the return of the same, that the requests be granted.

Mr. Gallup offered a resolution authorizing the collector to return on or before July 2, to the City Judge, the names of the tax delinquents, the City Judge to immediately issue his warrant to Vincent W. Nash for collection. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Marsh stated that inasmuch as it had been reported to the Police Board that there were numerous places in the city where liquor was illegally sold, and that the police were powerless to enforce the law, he thought the Council should back up the authorities and authorize the Mayor to expend $300 for the detection of illegal sellers. He made a motion to that effect. This brought forth considerable discussion.

Mr. Moffett said that it was the duty of the Mayor or some other city official to communicate to the Council the fact that liquor was sold illegally, before voting $300 to employ detectives on heresay evidence.

In response to a question as to where he got his information concerning illegal selling, Mr. Marsh said that he had been informed by certain Councilmen.

Mr. Dumont said that if the Mayor or other proper authorities should make application for the money, he would vote in favor of granting it. If it was to be used for "spies," he wanted to know the name of the officer who requested the money. The motion was lost by the following vote:

Ayes—Messrs Dunham, Marsh, Newhall and Squires—4.

Nays—Messrs Dumont, Erickson, Gallup, Jenkins, Moffett—5.

Council adjourned at 10:30 o'clock.

CAP. HORTON'S NINE WINS.

Park Avenue With The High School Battery, Beaten by Front Street.

Two local nines, ostensibly representing Front street, and Park avenue, met on the Y. M. C. A's ball field, yesterday afternoon, and played a nine inning game that occupied three hours and was full of excitement and fun. There was not much bad playing, either, as the column of errors below, shows; and the work of the batteries was clever—23 men being struck out.

Mr. Ash Horton, in one of his handsome striped flannel caps with the price ticket on it, was Captain of the victorious Front Streeters, and he and First Baseman Duckworth, who put out eleven of the Park Avenues, offered to set set their nine up to cream after the game. But they could not be found when the time came.

The Park Avenues led up to the seventh inning, but as Doane and Voehl were compelled to leave, the High School battery, Shepherd and Langdon, was substituted, and the Front Streeters made 11 runs in the last three innings. Doane pitched quite a game and even struck out Condon, while Winn in the five innings he pitched, held the Park Avenues down to three runs.

The "features" of the game were principally the base running and general play of Spider Voorhees, the Waterbury movement on Duckworth and J. Morrison, the way W. Trust could fall all over the ball without touching it, and Condon's base stealing on one leg. The latter run one man out between third and home, and then limped down between first and second and caught another—making the only double play of the game.

Horton, Putnam, Vanderbeek and Atwood, laid out in the field in the sun and slept during the early part of the game, until somebody pinned a sign on them—"Keep off the grass." They realized, however, that cows can't read, so they kept awake thereafter.

The score was:

Plainfield's Representative Made a Gallant Fight.

After many postponements on account of rain, the tennis tournament begun at Elizabeth on Decoration Day, was recently decided after a hard fight in which Mr. David Wotherspoon, of this city, only lost by being overweighted. The Elizabeth Journal, thus describes the wind up:

"The battle between Wotherspoon and Elliott was a brilliant one. Young Wotherspoon was in rare form and gave Elliott a hard and successful fight, winning 6-4, 6-4.

"After a quarter hour rest Wotherspoon and S. W. Smith faced the nets for the de ciding round. The little fellow fought hard and won the first two sets with a margin of two games each. Then Smith, realizing that he would do or die, braced wonderfully, and walked away from the youngster six games to one. Both players now began to show signs of fatigue but they stuck gamely to their work. The fourth set produced some of the closest and most brilliant plays ever seen on the grounds. Almost every game was a contest of repeated "deuces" until Smith finally won, 7-5. The rubber set resulted in Smith's victory, 6-3. This gave the latter the first prize, a handsome piano lamp, the total score being 4-6, 4-6, 6-1, 7-5, 6-3."

What You Do Unto His Children You Do Unto Him.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—As there seems to be a misunderstanding in regard to the balance in the "Home" treasury announced Thursday evening, June 6, and published in full in your paper the next day, will you allow me to explain? The total balance was $1,480.87. Of this sum $1,000 were left as an endowment fund, the interest only to be used for our running expenses, which now average about two hundred dollars a month.

We have now a family of eighteen. We are in daily expectation of the two orphans from Johnstown and have this week admitted three motherless children from Plainfield. Our family limit is twenty-five. Besides this we shall have a large bill for painting the outside of the building. Under these conditions it will not require a problem in long division to show how far our extra balance of $480 87 will carry us in our new year of work.

For the Association,
N. E. KIMBELL, Pres.
Plainfield, June 19.

COMMENCEMENT AT SCOTCH PLAINS.

The Programme of the Evening, and the Roll of Honor.

The public school closes a week earlier than usual this year, chiefly on account of the warm weather, and because the scholars have been working unusually hard. The Commencement exercises were held Friday evening. This is always the greatest occasion of the year, and Excelsior Hall is sure to be packed. It was never more so than it was this time; in fact, few except the ladies could get seats, and many of them had to stand.

All of the graduating class read essays. Miss Mary Mercier's paper on "Moonshine" indicated considerable research; Miss Nellie Hollingsworth, who has small brothers and sisters enough to furnish material for several novels, wrote from experience upon "Children in Literature." "Social Sins" was the theme of Miss Anna Radin, and she found plenty of them. Miss Fanny Haskard read a carefully written essay entitled "At Cost," and to her the Valedictory address was assigned. Miss Haskard discharged her trust faithfully, and although her address was very short, it went exactly to the point. Perhaps among the essays, that of Miss Emma Clark upon "Failures," carried off the palm. The duett sung by Misses Lillie Nicholl and Christine Sorensen, was exceptionally good. The doll drill was on a par with the flag drill and tambourine drill that were so successful last year, and it called forth such tumultous applause that Mr. Nicholl had to announce that no encores could be given.

Following is the programme:

Instrumental solo.....Amy Cook
Essay—Moonshine.....Mary Mercier
Song—Vocal Duett.....Lillian Nicholl, Christine (Sorensen Essay—Children of Literature.....Nellie (Hollingsworth Instrumental Duett.....Lillian Nicholl, Blanche (Sayre
Doll Drill.....Pupils from Primary Dept.
Essay—Failures.....Emma Clark
Recitation.....Benette Marsh
Vocal Duett.....Nellie Hollingsworth, Mabel (Mooney
Essay—Social Sins.....Anna Radin
Recitation.....John Roulston
Essay—At Cost.....(with the Valedictory address) Fanny Haskard
Awarding of diplomas, 2d grade certificates and 3d grade certificates.
Announcement of Roll of Honor in Primary Department.
Song.....School

The following is the Roll of Honor of the two lower rooms. Mr. Nicholl said that he was sorry certificates could not be awarded to these scholars because the grade of their course was not high enough, but that they would be given the honor of public mention.

First Primary, A Class—Florence Nicholl, George Snyder, Anna Belle Snyder, Philip Jahn.

B Class—John Wade, Bertha Frentz, Flora McNair, Carrie Flynn.

Second Primary, A Class—Kittie Flynn, Edna Nicholl, Roger Haskard, Lizzie Reick.

B Class—Willie Illsley, Jeppe Sorensen, Jennie Frentz.

C Class—Jennie Coyte, Etta Cook, Nettie Reick.

I am very sorry that I have not at hand the names of the scholars who received Second and Third Grade certificates, but I will try to give them next week.

The following pupils have not been absent from school a single day: Anna Radin, Mamie Mercier, Anna Murphy, Ella Frentz, Bella Mercier, Walter Collins, Willie Illsley, Kittie Flynn.

Mr. T. J. Nicholl presented the graduates with their diplomas, and made the address. Although the latter was a little one, it was first-rate, and remarkably free from the stale platitudes usually promulgated on such occasions. There was something said, I believe, about some one else having been originally expected to make the address, but no one could have spoken more forcibly and to the point than did Mr. Nicholl.

I suppose it's Mr. Goodenough's fault that we have such good school entertainments nowadays. They are never uncomfortably long, and are interesting throughout. The teachers deserve great credit; they themselves feel that their year's work has been a successful one, which is often the only satisfaction that a teacher gets, but in this case they feel that everybody is in accord with them, so they have the added pleasure of knowing that even the parents, often unreasonable and hard to please, have no fault to find.

And as for the Board of Trustees, which sat upon the stage vigorously fanning itself and trying to keep cool, well, I don't think there is any very pressing and immediate need of its worrying itself as to whether the people are satisfied.

SUBURBAN SAUNTERER.

The State's Guests.

There are at present 934 convicts in the State Prison at Trenton. Of this number 784 are serving their first term. There are 95 who are serving their second term. There are 31 who are undergoing their third term. About 10 are on their fourth term. There is one prisoner who is serving his ninth term.

Burglary and larceny contribute the crimes that preponderate among prisoners who are serving their second and third terms. Assault and battery, in more or less aggravated forms, contributes the crime for which convicts usually serve but one term. The records of the prison for a quarter of a century make this fact clearly evident.

—The South Forks dam proved defective, but Dr. Dam's Remedy can always be depended upon.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Judge Hogan of New York set July 1 as the day for the examination of O'Donovan Rossa on the charge of criminal libel preferred against him by Patrick Sarsfield Cassidy. He was required to furnish $500 bail.

The discovery has just been made that City Solicitor Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, N. J., has failed to qualify during the past three years though elected annually. The question is raised whether or not his official acts are invalidated.

Forced to Shut Down.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., June 22.—The Bertran Manufacturing company of Windermere, manufacturers of beaver clothing, shut down yesterday. An attachment for a large amount was served by Deputy Sheriff Lord of Hartford, for a New York firm. The company employed about 150 persons. It will probably make an assignment.

Looks Bad For the Captain.

HIGHLAND SIGHT, Mass., June 22.—The bark Samar, Captain Emery, at this port from Tamatave had three men die on the passage. The Captain refuses to give the names of the men or the nature of their illness.

NO GREAT MEN WANTED.

A Parisian Barber Who Does Not Desire Their Custom.

Victor Hugo was once one of your patrons, I believe," said a French writer, M. Planche, to Brassier, a barber of Paris. "Alas! yes," answered the barber. The word and the accent surprised the inquirer. "Was it not agreeable, then, to have the greatest man in France—the greatest poet of his century, perhaps—for a customer!" The barber shrugged his shoulders. "Ah, monsieur, it is one of the worst things that can happen to you, to have a great man for a customer. You see, they are not like other men." Then, in order to justify his paradox, he related a chapter of personal experience.

"One day a great lady, Mme. de X——, whose hair I had dressed, and who was much pleased with my work, said she would recommend me to thirty or more of her friends; and in a day or two she sent me a paper containing all the names and addresses of these people, with her recommendation of me at the bottom."

"The recommendation of Mme. de X——! why, that was as good as a fortune to you, my good man," said M. Planche.

"It might have been, sir, but for M. Victor Hugo. He was here the day I received it; he had sat down in the very chair you are sitting in now. I had just put a towel round his neck, when he seemed to be seized with some great thought and beckoned me to let him alone. He drew a pencil from his pocket, took a sheet of paper from this table here and began writing.

"He had been writing about five minutes when another customer came in. My men were all busy, so, seeing that M. Hugo had stopped writing to sharpen his pencil, I stepped up to him and said:

"'M. Hugo, if you will permit me to begin with you—I am in a hurry.'

"'Um! I'm in a hurry, too,' said he.

"Then he got up all at once, paper and pencil in hand, and started out of the shop. I called after him that he had the towel round his neck, and he took it off. But I didn't mind the paper, because I didn't know what it was.

"But in the afternoon I wanted the paper which Mme. de X—— had given me, and couldn't find it. One of my men said it had been lying there on the table. That was the paper that M. Victor Hugo had taken for his notes!

"It was so. I rushed away to M. Hugo's house to recover the precious paper.

"'Ah, yes,' he said, 'I remember; I had no sooner got into the house than I had another and much better idea, and as I had, therefore, no further need of your paper, I—'

"'Threw it into the fire!'

"'I am sorry to say I did!'"

The Duke of Cambridge Must Answer in Court.

FOR ASSAULTING A REPORTER.

Lord Chief Justice Coleridge Says the Law Respects no Persons.

Cousin Though He Is to Queen Victoria, the Duke Is No Better Than Other Men, and if He Committed a Crime He Must Pay the Penalty—Public Confidence to Be Preserved—News and Gossip from London.

LONDON, June 22.—It is now likely that the Duke of Cambridge, Commander in Chief of the British army, and first cousin to her Majesty, Queen Victoria, will have to answer in police court, just like any ordinary citizen for his assault upon the reporter Simms on the occasion of the Firemen's parade recently.

Simms and his frends after vainly appealing for a warrant against the Duke first to one Police Magistrate and then to another, brought their case to the higher courts.

Lord Coleridge, Chief Justice of England, to-day gave his decision remanding the case to the Magistrate for adjudication. In his decision the Lord Chief Justice says that the public should at all times rest satisfied that all subjects are equal before the law. To preserve this confidence the law must be no respector of persons.

Searle Goes Into Training.

LONDON June 22.—Searle the Australian oarsman, with his backer and trainer has arrived here and begins training next week. He does not think lightly of O'Connor but is confident that he can beat him. He says that he is stronger and better now than he ever was before. The climate does not affect him.

Will Appeal to the President.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The action of the Civil-Service Commission in ordering the peremptory dismissal of Alderman W. E. Tousey from the Indianapolis post-office has caused the question to be raised as to whether or not the Civil-Service rules really apply to the appointment of substitutes. It is claimed that the Commissioners could cite no authority for their action, and Tousey maintains that his dismissal is the result of wrongful construction of the law. He declares that he will appeal to the President for a decision.

The Beal-Thompson Suit.

BOSTON, June 22.—In the action of tort of Mira Beal, formerly the wife of James H. Beal, to recover damages from Augustus Thompson for alienating the affections of plaintiff's husband by writing and sending him a letter containg a false and malicious libel against plaintiff, the Supreme Court, full bench, has decided that the verdict of the Superior Court jury awarding the plaintiff $30,000 must stand.

The Seized Schooner.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., June 22. — The schooner Mattie Winship which was seized by the Canadian cutter Vigilant for alleged violation of the fishing laws arrived home to-day. The vessel is under $3,000 bonds. Captain Erickson's statement does not differ materially from the accounts published at the time of the seizure. He insists that he was within the three-mile limit for shelter only and was not fishing.

Three Hundred Hands Idle.

PAY DAY AT JOHNSTOWN.

A Danger of Scurvy Breaking Out in the Ill-Fated Valley.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 22.—Nearly $100,000 in wages was paid out to-day to the employes of the Cambria Iron company. At the time of the flood the company had 5,000 names on the pay-rolls. To-day 3,000 answered to their names. The employes of Gautier Steel company were also paid to-day.

The strike is still on and very little work is being done. About fifty men are at work on the gorge. The idlers are patronizing the illicit saloons in the neighborhood, and the militia are held in readiness to respond at a moment's notice to suppress any outbreak that may possibly occur.

Dr. Lee, of the State Board of Health, said this morning that the sanitary condition of the various camps was first-class in every particular.

All semblance to contagious diseases is dying out, and there are but few cases of sickness of any kind in the immediate vicinity.

Nearly every person here, however, is more or less afflicted with hives.

Some of those so afflicted express fear that they are the marked victims of scurvy.

Dr. Lee says that the prevalence of hives is due to the diet of salt meat which, from necessity, has been the principal article of food.

Several physicians were interviewed on the subject and agree that there is a possibility of the scurvy making its appearance.

The State Board of Health are taking special precautions to guard against it.

Journalists on an Excursion.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—Under the direction of Mr. George W. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania railroad, the company sent ont yesterday from Broad street station six coaches of Philadelphia newspaper men and their families. It is the annual excursion given by the company, the itinerary this year including Altoona, Cresson and possibly the devastated Conemaugh district. At Harrisburg the party were joined by Baltimore and Washington journalists.

Fired On by Haytians.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 22. — The schooner Baltic, of Provincetown, from a whaling voyage, reports that while in Samana Bay in May she was fired on by a party of Haytian soldiers, but no one was hurt. The captain was unable to get any satisfaction, and reports that the authorities seem unable to enforce discipline. He will refer the matter to Washington.

Dohm's Half-Mile Record.

NEW YORK, June 22—Walter C. Dohm, the famous college sprinter, beat Myers' half-mile record last evening at the track of the New York Athletic club, of which he is a member. Myers' record was 1:55¼ and Dohm did it in 1:55¼. It was one of the regular weekly club races. Wainwright, who had 65 yards start, won second prize, coming in a foot behind Dohm.

THE BEAUTIFUL ROSE.

A Halo of Romance Crowning the Queen of Flowers.

A Charming Legend Accounting for the Origin of the Rose—Greek Myths and Mussulman Tradition — Bits of Old-World Folk-Lore.

There are several legends to account for the origin of the rose. Here, says a writer in All the Year Round, is a beautiful one: A certain Jewish maiden, Zillah, rejected the advances of a lover, Hammal, a degraded and cruel man. In revenge he accused her of offenses for which she was condemned to be burned at the stake. When brought to the spot the flames did no harm to the maiden, but consumed the false lover. "And the fyre began to burne about hire, she made her prayers to oure Lord and anon was the fayer quenched an oute and brandes that were brennynge becomen white roses, and theise were in the first roseres that ever any man saughe." The burning brands thus became red roses —the other ones white.

According to a Greek myth red roses were white ones tinged with the blood of Venus, who wounded her foot on a thorn while hastening to the aid of the dying Narcissus. According to another legend they sprang from the bath of Aphrodite. A later Christian tradition asserted that the crown of thorns was one of the rose thorn, and that the red roses sprang from the blood of Christ:

Men saw the thorns on Jesus' brow,
But angels saw the roses.

A still different origin is given to the "queen of flowers" by Mussulman tradition. According to it white roses sprung from the sweat of the prophet Mohammed during his journey to Heaven, and yellow ones from perspiration dripping from the mane of Al Borak, his steed. It is further reported that the red flower is colored with drops of his blood, and the faithful will never allow one to lie on the ground. There is an Arab tradition that a certain King Shaddad planted a field of roses in the desert, which are still flourishing, but no man can find them.

The rose has always been an important flower in folk legends. It has several emblematic meanings. It is, to begin with, the symbol of beauty:

Whatsoe'r of beauty
Yearns and yet reposes,
Blush and bloom and sweet breath,
Took a shape in roses.

Anciently it was the emblem of silence. Eros gave to Harpocrates, god of silence, a rose to keep the secrets of Venus. On the ceilings of the banquet-rooms, to remind strangers that what was "sub-rosa" was not to be repeated, was anciently sculptured a rose.

Red as the rose of Harpocrates.

For the same reason it was placed over confessionals in 1500. Doubtless its place on Greek and Roman tombs was given to it as the flower of silence. It was the symbol of the mystic Rosicrucians (sub-rosa crux). As diplomacy is secret, it became a national emblem. Roman soldiers bore it as an insignia on their shields. Adopted as an emblem of England, and each political faction having selected his color, the rose figured conspicuously in English history. The wars of the roses lasted thirty years, with the white rose as the badge of York and the red one of Lancaster.

The rose of Jericho, also called the rose of the Virgin Mary, became the symbol of resurrection. It is not really a rose, however. A tradition reported that it marked every spot where the holy family rested during the journey to Egypt.

The Syrians regarded the rose as an emblem of immortality. Chinese plant it over graves, and in the Tyrol it is said to produce sleep. Germans call the rose of Jericho the Christmas rose, and it is supposed to divine the events of the year if steeped in water Christmas Eve.

There are many other superstitions about the rose. It is said in Persia that there is a certain charmed day in which the rose has a heart of gold. Another tradition relates that there is a silver table on a certain Mount Calassy, in India, and on this table lies a silver rose that contains two beautiful women who praise God without ceasing. In the center of the rose is the triangle—the residence of God.

And when the bell hath sounded,
The rose, with all the mysteries surrounded
The bell, the table, and Mount Calassy,
The holy hill itself, with all thereon,
Dissolves away.

One of Vishnu's wives is said to have sprung from a rose. In Germany the rose has been a favorite flower. It is one of those mysterious blossoms, like the "forget-me-not," that unlock treasures concealed in caves or castles. The rose was a favorite flower of Holda, the Northern Venus, and, in Christian lands, became the "Marienroschen" of the Virgin. The white rose is usually Mary's emblem. She dries her veil on a rosebush, which bears no more flowers thereafter.

It is probable that rosebuds were the larger beads in the Catholic rosary, the German rosenkrantz or rose wreath.

It is said that if a white rose blooms in autumn an early death is prognosticated, while an autumn blooming red rose signifies marriage. The red rose, it is also said, will not bloom over a grave. Rose leaves are sometimes thrown on the fire for good luck, and a rose bush may be made to bloom in autumn by pruning it St. John's Day. Here, as well as in France and Italy, it is believed that rosy cheeks will come to the lass who buries a drop of her blood under a rose bush. In Posen young women assure the fidelity of their lovers by carrying a rosebud in the breast. Rose leaves are chosen for divination in Thuringia, the maiden having several lovers scattering a leaf named after each one on the water; the leaf that sinks last is the true lover.

Charms for stopping hemorrhage are connected with the rose. One of these, used in Germany, reads thus: "In God's garden bloom three roses—blood-drop, blood-stop, and blood still; blood, I pray you, cease to flow."

The rose was a potent ingredient in love philters in England and Scotland a century ago.

In the "Saemundr" Edda Brynhild is thrown into a trance from which Sigurd arouses her by a blow from the "sleepy thorn" in the hands of Odin. In the German tale of "Dornroschen," or the "Sleeping Beauty," the thorn hedge that surrounds the slumbering heroine bears only roses to the true Prince.

A Long-Felt Want Supplied.

Miss Antique (ancient maiden with modern ideas)—We had such a glorious meeting this afternoon, to organize the Anti-Male Social Club. In response to my call over fifty beautiful and charming young ladies presented themselves, and all were enthusiastic over my plan to escape from the thralldrom of man. The first entertainment is to be given next Monday night, and not a man is to be allowed to enter. I am to deliver an address, Miss Highnote is to sing, the Misses Ivory are to play, Miss Totter is to give recitations, the members of the art club are to bring specimens of their work, and we are to have a perfectly delightful time. Can't you come?

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

From an Address by Charles R. Miller, Editor of the New York Times.

I am convinced that the shortest way to reform the newspapers is to push on to a prompt conclusion the regeneration of man. If those newspapers that are least scrupulous as to the kind of matter they print are seen to be the most widely circulated, that is a proof that the class in the community which has lax taste in respect to its reading in the most numerous class. It is an easy matter in any large city to give large circulation to a newspaper. You have merely to dismiss all scruples, all taste, all decency; print all the scandals that a large and active corps of detective reporters can unearth; let your pages reek of crime and foulness and cheap sensations, and so long as the Society for the Prevention of Crime keeps its hands off, the bounding circulation of your newspaper will keep your affidavit-maker at the full stretch of his powers. Not many years ago a newspaper was founded in New York upon a novel and ingenious theory. "I am convinced," said its founder and editor, "that there are fools enough in this city to support handsomely a newspaper carefully edited to their tastes and capacities." He made the venture, and found readily that "handsome support" which he had so shrewdly foreseen, and for which he so skillfully catered. When we add to the number of "fools" the much greater number of persons of morbid or positively vicious tastes, not all of whom by any means are poor in estate or low in social position, we get a pretty formidable total, insomuch that those publications which appeal more directly by their character and cleanliness to the thoughtful, wholesome-minded part of the community have considerably less than half the whole field for their domain. No doubt this is a deplorable state of things. The reformers and home missionaries should look to it. But the proprietors and managers of newspapers not given up to sensations and scandals have a right to make their protest heard against those indiscriminating censors who consign all newspapers alike to the brand of the common hangman. No man or woman in this country is constrained otherwise than by personal tastes to read vicious and frivolous newspapers. There are newspapers enough of all shades of party opinion, Republican, Democratic, Prohibition and mugwump, that are published for virtuous and intelligent men and women. It is not the fault of their editors and publishers, nor is it chargeable to the wickedness of the press as a whole, if so large a part of the community turns with a shameful craving to newspapers which the virtuous and intelligent regard with disgust. Some part of the castigation visited upon the licentious press might with propriety be transferred to the backs of those who are daily guilty of the voluntary debasement of reading it. Depend upon it, you can not reform the press by preaching at it. Abolish vulgarity, brutality, ignorance and vice, and then you may have the delight of seeing the sensation-mongering, scandal-purveying editor on his way to the poor-house.

BRAVER THAN MEN.

Women Endure Pain Much Better and Face Death with More Calmness.

In the course of a recent interview Dr. Shrady, the editor of the Medical Record, and one of the physicians who attended General Grant in his last illness, was asked whether his experience as a medical man had led him to believe that death is painless.

"Speaking generally," said he, "the death agony is very rarely attended by pain, because the system is always prepared for death by a weakening of the vital forces, by the circulation of impure blood through the brain and by the obtunding of the nerves. Of course, some people have more pain than others, and this is largely determined by temperament.

"A nervous man—all other things being equal—suffers more pain than a man who has enjoyed robust health, because the nervous man's sensibilities are stronger, but the pain of death is more in the anticipation of it than in the reality. The instinct for life is stronger in man, and the teachings of the present day, as well as the writings of our novelists, do not make the majority of men any the more ready to relinquish life.

"Men of education face death with greater fortitude than men who are not educated. Philosophy has a great deal to do with the art of dying, although the Christian religion has been a great comfort to the human race in preparing the way for death and in giving hope of a life hereafter, amounting in some cases almost to a realization of a better country beyond the line of time.

"Women are almost always pluckier than men. They endure pain much better. Have you ever observed how irritable a man is who is suffering from toothache or neuralgia, but a woman will often suffer without a murmur. All other things being equal a woman will face death with more calmness and fortitude than a man, which may be partly accounted for from the fact that the instinct for life is stronger in a man, and his habits and surroundings have trained him not to give in so easily."

ANCIENT MIDASES.

The Millionaires of Our Day Paupers by Comparison with Them.

Our modern millionaires, rich though they may seem to us, are mere paupers when compared in wealth to the Midases of old, says the New York Truth. Neither Jay Gould, Vanderbilt, the Duke of Westminster, Astor, Rhinelander nor Rothschild owns a tithe of the vast hoards possessed by the ancients, the misuse of which provoked the downfall of the Roman State. Tiberius, the second Emperor of Rome, left to Caligula a sum of money in hard cash equivalent to $138,125,000, which, if history is to be believed, the latter gentleman spent in one year of royal and unbounded spree. Cæsar began life owing $10,000,000 and before he ended it had got through $735,000,000 of public treasure. Not the greatest of our boodlers ever even dreamt of such omniverous embezzlement. Crœsus had a nice little nest-egg, $10,000,000, besides real estate and slaves beyond counting. Esopus is reported to have expended $40,000 in a single dish, of which phœnix eggs and canned ambrosia direct from Olympus were, probably, component ingredients. Caligula paid $400,000 for one supper, beating the Nitrate king by long odds for a distance. Heliogabulus gobbled up $100,000 at one debauch, and Lucullus never spent less than that sum on a meal. Where these rioters stowed away their victuals is open to theory. I have seen seasick people feed themselves, then the fishes and themselves again, and I fancy these gourmands must have acted on the same principle, or on that of Jack the Giant Killer, who tied a leathern sack under his doublet as a sort of secondary stomach.

Cramps in the Legs.

There are two idle superstitions about cramps that come in the legs and start a man out of his bed quicker than any thing else. One is to stick a jack-knife in the headboard of the bed on retiring for the night, and the other is to arrange the slippers very carefully, bottom up, at the foot of the bed.

AN EXCURSION ACCIDENT.

A Steamer Collides with a Bridge—Several Persons Injured.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 22.—The Catholic Benevolent Legion of this city gave a picnic at Frenchman's Island in the Oneida Lake yesterday.

It was attended by about 500 people from Syracuse.

Everything went well until the return trip when the steamer Oneida having the excursionists on board became unmanageable, its rudder breaking.

At the railroad bridge near Brewerton the boat collided with the bridge and a number of pleasure seekers were swept into the river.

Peter Yackel, the leader of the Central City Band was drowned, and a number of those on board sustained injuries.

Several people who witnessed the accident from the shore went into the water and rescued many of the excursionists from drowning.

Titania Beats Katrina.

NEW YORK, June 22—The Titania beat the Katrina in yesterday's yacht race.

A Woman Struck by Lightning.

OSWEGO, N. Y., June 22.—During a thunder storm Mr. Henry Warner was struck by lightning in her home at Hannibal, and so injured that she will probably die. The house was not much damaged.

IS YOUR BAKING POWDER PURE?

Do its Manufacturers Publish all the Ingredients Used?

IS IT FREE FROM AMMONIA?

As is well known, ammonia is unhealthful in food, and dries up the bread material.

Protection to consumers of food compounds lies in their ability to choose those made from healthful substances. Unless manufacturers publish just what their baking powder is made of, do not use their goods, but buy instead

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER.

This powder is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, and strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, with a little wheat flour to preserve it. This is attested by the official analyses of Government and State chemists, and physicians, and chemists of Boards of Health throughout the country.

BOSTON IN THE VAN

The Beaneaters Leading in the League Race.

ST. LOUIS ALSO HOLDS COMMAND

Von Der Ahe's Champions in the Front Rank in the Association.

Cleveland Playing a Good, Steady Game and Clinching Its Mortgage on second Place—Philadelphia and New York Fighting For Third—What Will Become of Louisville?—There Is a Revolt in the Nine—People Won't Support It.

NEW YORK, June 24.—From present indications the Boston Club is not likely to fall far below their present position in the championship race while in the West. People who have been predicting the downfall of the present leaders have thus far been disappointed, and unless the Indianapolis and Chicagos play a better game than they are Manager Hart will get more than he calculated on. He claims that the Bostons will get eight of the sixteen games, and this is a reasonable number. If they do this it is not likely that the conclusion of this Western series will find another team in its first place.

But without any bluster the Cleveland team is playing the same steady game. Every man has learned the lesson not to give up the contest till the last man is out. The men have been greatly encouraged by their good work and are now convinced that they can play ball alongside of any in the League. They now go in without the slightest fear and with even chances of coming out first. Dame Fortune has favored the "Babies" in many respects, but careful team work has much to do with their getting in second place. Many lovers of the game expect to see this plucky team rise to the top of the ladder before the season is much further advanced.

Philadelphia and New York are making a gallant fight for third place. The former now occupies that position. The New Yorks have somewhat improved their style of playing and will likely take one-half of the games on this Western trip. On the whole, Cleveland and Indianapolis are likely to have upheld the honors of the West, as Pittsburg and Chicago are certainly "in the soup." Anson's men are playing a very poor fielding game, and when victory is assured costly errors rob them of it. The people in Chicago have become disgusted with the team's poor showing and the small number that attend takes more pleasure in seeing the home team defeated than if they won. The League race is as follows:

Boston,	33	10	.767
Cleveland,	30	18	.625
Philadelphia,	26	19	.578
New York,	24	18	.571
Chicago,	21	26	.447
Pittsburg,	17	28	.378
Indianapolis,	16	28	.364
Washington,	11	31	.262

What will eventually become of the Louisville Club is a question that nine out of every ten baseball admirers are asking. The recent revolt in the team, due to President Davidson's unreasonable fines, has created a terrible feeling against the management in the Falls City. The people are dead against the methods adopted in handling the men, and unless a change is made very soon empty seats will be the principal feature on the ground. On Thursday the return home of the club from the East, accompanied by the Browns, was greeted by 150 persons. This is an evidence of the opposition to the club, and President Davidson is utterly disgusted with his position and will likely withdraw from baseball.

The departure from the East, after a three week's tour, found the Browns still in first place, and as they play with the Louisville's they will probably increase their present lead. The Athletics and Brooklyns are still in second and third place respectively. Both teams lost a game this past week through the most stupid errors. The Browns and the Columbus team took advantage of these misplays, and through them turned defeat into victory. The Baltimores are again on the downward track, and need considerable strengthening in the box and at shortfield. When these points are properly attended to the club will give a different exhibition of the national game. The result of the Association teams struggle is as follows:—

St. Louis,	38	17	.691
Athletic,	34	18	.654
Brooklyn,	32	20	.615
Baltimore,	29	23	.558
Cincinnati,	28	25	.528
Kansas City,	21	30	.412
Columbus,	19	31	.380
Louisville,	9	46	.164

Yesterday's games in the Association resulted as follows: Brooklyn 8, Columbus 2; Louisville 7, St. Louis 3; Baltimore 8, Athletic 0; Cincinnati 15, Kansas City 7.

The League clubs have made this season 513 two-base hits, 164 three-baggers and 111 home runs, in doubles the Philadelphia lead with 94 to their credit; in three-base hits Anson's men have made the most, 34 being their record. Pittsburg carries off the honors on home runs, as the men have gone clean around the diamond 28 times on four-baggers.

The number of home-runs scored by the League clubs is as follows:—Chicago, 24; Indianapolis, 16; Philadelphia, 13; Boston, 11; Washington, 8; New York, 6, and Cleveland, 5.

Three-base hits have been plentiful in the League. Philadelphia, 26; Boston and Pittsburg, 23 each; New York, 20; Cleveland, 18; Washington, 13, and the Hoosiers, 8.

Philadelphia started the season by playing a remarkably fine game and by so doing got second place. Delahanty was injured and Irwin was suspended and subsequently released. This streak of misfortune and bad management was responsible for several defeats and Cleveland took advantage of this and ousted the Quaker City team out of the position.

The Newark and Jersey City clubs played at Newark yesterday with the following result: Jersey City 12, Newark 7. The standing of the clubs in the Atlantic Association is as follows:

Jersey City,	24	11	.686
Wilkesbarre,	22	12	.647
Hartford,	22	14	.611
Worcester,	22	15	.595
Newark,	19	17	.559
Lowell,	14	24	.389
Easton,	10	26	.278
New Haven,	9	25	.265

TAYLOR WAS A FRAUD,

The Bold Bluff Made by a Hotel Thief at Saratoga Springs.

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 24.—J. Wesley Taylor came on from the West several days ago with a flourish and entered suit against the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, to obtain possession of Fourteen-Mile Island, an extensive pleasure resort owned by the railroad company near Glens Falls.

Taylor claimed that he was the legal heir to the property, but had only recently discovered his title. He employed attorneys at Glens Falls to look after his case and came to Saratoga to look around. He engaged rooms at the Western hotel and tried to find work as a coachman. Failing in this he disappeared last night together with the valise and a suit of clothes belonging to a fellow boarder. The police are looking for him.

The island Taylor claimed to own is valued at $50,000 and when he first appeared at Glens Falls he said he had mortgaged his ranch near Los Angeles, Cal., to get money with which to carry on the suit.

Bates Graduates Receive Parting Advice.

LEWISTON, Me., June 24.—President Cheney delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Bates college yesterday. His text was: "He that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city." In the course of his sermon he referred to President Harrison's reported refusal of a cup of wine offered by the representatives of "Bacchus" in the historical pageant during the Centennial celebration at New York, and said the greatness of President Harrison began then and there. He also said that according to common reports men of high standing became disgracefully intoxicated at the Centennial feast, and it was to the honor of the Governor of Maine, who sat at the same table, that he turned down his wine glass.

Bowdoin's Baccalaureate Services.

BRUNSWICK, Me., June 24.—President Hyde delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Bowdoin college yesterday, from the text: "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." He said science had superseded Caesar as the great secular authority. We should render unto science the things that belong to it, but science and religion have entirely different spheres, and we should none the less render unto God the things which are his.

Good-bye at Lafayette.

EASTON, Pa., June 24.—President Knox delivered the baccalaureate sermon yesterday morning to the graduating class at Lafayette college. His theme was the necessity of over coming the World. He urged upon the graduates the necessity of bringing educated Christian experience into the solution of the great questions of the day. Last night Rev. McIlvaine, of New York city, addressed the Brainerd Missionary society of the college on "Loyalty to Christ."

Baccalaureate Sermon at Trinity.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 24.—Rev. W. R. Huntington, rector of Grace church, New York, preached the baccalaureate sermon at Trinity college yesterday, his text being 1 Timothy, 17:—"The King, eternal, immortal, invisible." The sermon was a scholarly one, embodying a review of the relations between civil and religious liberty in all times, and a plea for active participation by Christians in works of social reform.

Yale's Baccalaureate Sermon.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 24.—President Dwight, of Yale, delivered his baccalaureate sermon at Battel chapel yesterday from the text: St. John xvi 12, "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." The words of the text were made the basis of an illustration of the development of men's growing capacity to receive higher truths through fuller experience.

Parting Words to Williams' Graduates.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., June 24.—The baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class of Williams college was delivered yesterday by President Carter. His text was: "Ye are from beneath; I am from above."—John viii-23. The sermon was an exposition of the scriptural outline of the character of Christ.

A Sermon for the Girl Graduates.

WELLESLEY, Mass., June 24.—The baccalaureate sermon at Wellesley college was delivered yesterday by Rev. Frank Wakely Gunsaulus, D. D., of Chicago. The text was Revelations xxi-23, the topic being the vision and scope of Christian scholarship. The sermon was a plea for Christian solution of all social problems.

The Last Sermon at Mt. Holyoke.

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., June 24.—Rev. Dr. Love's baccalaureate sermon at Mt. Holyoke college yesterday was from the text, James 1-4: "That ye may be perfect and entire, lacking nothing." The preacher argued that Christianity was capable of producing such perfection of character.

Preaching to Wesleyan's Graduates.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 24.—The baccalaureate at Wesleyan University was preached yesterday by Bishop E. G. Andrews, from the text: "Every man that is of the truth heareth my voice." The ground taken was that faith is reached through the heart, not the intellect.

Dartmouth's Baccalaureate Sermon.

HANOVER, N. H., June 24.—President Bartlett delivered the baccalaureate sermon before the graduates of Dartmouth college yesterday from the text Proverbs IV-18: "But the path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."

JOHNSTOWN'S LOSS

The Relief Commission Figures It at $5,500,000.

THIS IS A LIBERAL ESTIMATE.

But It Is Only One-Quarter of What Some People Suppose the Loss to Be.

A Collision Between the Johnstown Citizens' Committee and Governor Beaver's Commission Probable in the Near Future—The Victims of the Flood Not Only Ask for Relief but Complete Restoration of Their Losses.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 24.—A collision between the Johnstown Citizens' committee and Governor Beaver's Commission over the matter and manner of restoration of the city and its invirons is probable.

Johnstown people have an idea that with the hundreds of thousands of dollars donated for their relief by the sympathetic peoplee of this and other countries, something approximating the prestine condition of affairs should result. The Governor's relief commission thinks differently, and its idea will likely go.

Its members desire to place the means at their command in such manner as will render comfortable all those entitled to assistance until such time as they can by their own efforts make permanent the improvements they desire.

The Pittsburg members of the relief commission took a look over the grounds today. They have been not a little amazed at the exaggerated reports of losses caused to real and personal property by the flood.

A Pittsburg paper published a statement that the losses would run from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000. This statement set the commission at work figuring on the matter and the result is summarized af follows:

"According to the estimate of James McMillan, Cyrus Elder and other leading business men of Johnstown the aggregate loss of houses was about 1,800.

"These 1,800 houses would require $300 each to furnish them, or $630,000; or, to give all the margin necessary perhaps a half million.

"The average cost of replacing these 1,800 houses would not be over $2,000, or $3,600,000, and again to give a margin to people who may be incredulous to these figures let us put this at $5,000,000, plus the $500,000 for loss of furniture, and you have nearly what the aggregate cost of the flood is.

"These figures do not include the losses of the Pennsylvania railroad or the Cambria Iron company.

"From this it will be seen that the real estimate will not reach 25 per cent of the amount published. We very much doubt if the assessed valuation of all the property in Cambria county is $30,000,000. We will go further. We very much doubt if Cambria county is worth $20,000,000. However, it is bad enough and the necessities of the people must be looked to and alleviated at the earliest possible moment."

NO FEAR OF EPIDEMIC.

Surgeon-General Reed's Report of the situation at Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 24.—L. R. Reed, Surgeon-General of Pennsylvania, arrived here yesterday, and in company with Surgeon Foster of the Fourteenth Regiment, made a thorough inspection of the city and the various camps.

In his report to Gen. Hastings, Dr. Reed says that he discovered nothing likely to produce an epidemic except in the workmen's camp, where the refuse has been allowed to accumulate around the tents. The defect was ordered remedied at once.

Col. Spangler, Commissary-General, in his report to Gen. Hastings to-day, says that 25,000 persons are being fed out of the relief fund, a decrease of 3,500 during the last week. He recommends that the relief fund be turned over to the citizens and that supplies be purchased from the sixteen general stores and three batteries now open, and that one third of the commissaries be abolished.

A complete list of the houses entirely swept away in Cambria City, of which not a vestige is left, shows the number to be 325.

SUNDAY IN JOHNSTOWN.

Open Air Services Held and All the Saloons Kept Closed.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 24.—Work was entirely suspended yesterday in the ruins of Johnstown. Open air services were held by the pastors of the homeless churches.

The Fourteenth Regiment was called out on dress parade and attracted much attention from spectators.

Four bodies were recovered. The remains of two women and a little girl were found in Stony Creek, and the remains of a Chinaman were found in Keruville. The body of one of the women was identified by a letter found in her pocketbook as the wife of Mr. Clark, a grocer in Johnstown. The child is believed to be Mrs. Clark's daughter, as they were found lying close together.

The order of Judge Johnston, that all saloons be closed on pain of revocation of license has had a good effect, and good order and sobriety prevails.

Simon Cameron Very Weak.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 24.—General Simon Cameron's condition yesterday was practically unchanged from Saturday, and though he is very weak, his physicians consider it possible that he may live several day longer.

Looking for Witnesses in Georgia.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 24.—Two detectives from Chicago arrived in Brunswick Saturday in search of an important witness in the Cronin case. They left there for this city last night.

Mrs. Hayes' Condition Unchanged.

CHICAGO, June 24.—Advices from Fremont report that Mrs. Hayes' condition is not materially changed.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Admission to the organ concert in the First Presbyterian church, this evening, will be by ticket only.

—The Summer change in the time table on the Central Railroad and its branches, will go into effect on Sunday, the 30th instant.

—In another column, Springmann, the tonsorial artist, of No. 87 Somerset street, announces hot and cold baths for twenty-five cents each.

—The ball game Saturday afternoon be the Orients of this city and the Evonas, resulted in a victory for the latter by a score of 19 to 14.

—A delegation of young people from this city started for Alfred Centre, N. Y., yesterday, to attend the closing exercises at the Alfred University.

—The regular business meeting of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society, will be held as usual, to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock, in Reform Hall.

—The Shah of Persia arrived at Antwerp, June 22. The Shaw of Plainfield is compounding prescriptions at the old stand every day, No. 3 East Front street.

—A regular meeting of Alpha Lodge, No. 4, I. O. G. T., was held in the Sons of Temperance rooms on Friday evening, when two applications for membership were received.

—The Reform Club excursion to Rockaway on August 8, promises to be an interesting event. The steamer "Grand Republic" will convey the excursionists to and from the beach.

—"Dot leedle game of draw poker," is in progress every Sunday, in a certain secluded spot. The police have their eyes on the place, and a wholesale "gathering in" may soon be looked for.

—Rev. Mr. Morehouse of Brooklyn, preached an interesting sermon in the Unitarian course, before a large audience in Jacob Bros. piano warerooms on East Front street, last evening.

—On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week Chief T. O. Doane of the Plainfield Fire Department, will distribute badges among the members at his office on East Front street.

—While some freight cars were being drilled near the freight house at eleven o'clock today, one of the cars run up on the point of the switch and jumped the track, tearing up the planking on the Peace street bridge. No one was injured, and but little damage resulted from the accident.

—The Evona Juniors beat the Dunellen Stars in a game of base ball at Dunellen on Saturday afternoon, by a score of 38 to 23. Smith pitched for the Juniors. The Juniors would like to play any nine not over 16 years old. Inquire at G. Smith's, 220 South Second street, near the Pond Tool Works.

—A special service for the institution of the surpliced choir of Grace church was held in that place last evening. The service included prayer, the versicles, anthems, the creed, the examination of those to be admitted choristers, and an address by the rector, Rev. E. M. Rodman. The attendance was very large.

—There were over two hundred persons at the depot when the milk train arrived, last evening. Many of them took passage on the train, and many others were there out of mere curiosity. One thing in particular which amused the crowd, was a man with a big horn encircling his waist, from which cool and refreshing "water" was drawn to quench the thirst of the bystanders.

Concerning the Dog Pound.

Complaint has again been made against the dog pound, located on Lake street, on account of the continual howling of the dogs at night. Mayor Male has given the dog-catcher instructions not to deliver any more dogs at the pound for the present. Four dogs were executed by the pound-master today, making eight in all that have been killed since the dog pound opened. A few of the dogs have been redeemed, and there are still two dogs at the pound.

Gymnasts at the Y. M. C. A. Rooms.

The Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., will give a reception at the rooms, to-morrow evening. Mr. S. F. Dudley of Orange, will speak of the Boys Camp and other matters of interest to the boys. Three gymnasts from the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. will add to the interest of the occasion.

STRUCK A WINNING GAIT.

The Crescents Add Another to This Season's Victories.

Almost a thousand people witnessed Saturday's match on the LaGrande avenue grounds, between the Crescents of this city and the Dauntless ball nine of Elizabeth. The game was not without interest, although the home team won from the start with Condon in the pitcher's box and a faultless support to back him.

Only three errors were made by the Crescents, and each was the result of ill luck. McMurray's error was because of a bad throw to him by Cadmus. Babcock's error was because Condon also ran for a fly that did not belong to him, and that Babcock failed to get because he was afraid of a collision. Gately's error was because he signaled to Condon for a high ball which Dave tried to throw him, but the ball slipped from the pitcher's hand and was a low inshoot that split Gately's fingers apart of his right hand and he was compelled to stop playing. He will be laid off probably for a month. Cadmus took his place behind the bat, and Cornwell was called out of the grand stand to finish the five remaining innings.

But for Gately's misfortune the Dauntless would have been shut out without a run. Cadmus was responsible for the scoring of both the vistors' runs. Batjer after making a base hit, stole second on Cadmus and hurt his leg in so doing. Davis was substituted and stole third on Cadmus and came home on Moore's sacrifice. The only other run was made by Terrill who was given his first on balls, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and stole home while Cadmus walked down to the pitcher's box instead of calling Condon to him.

Mr. T. H. Keller was umpire again, and again proved himself very satisfactory. Barring the calling of one foul tip a strike, and a strike a foul, his decisions were accurate and prompt. The score was as follows:

OBITUARY.

HERBERT WINTHROP PECK.

The entire community has been deeply shocked by the news of the sudden death of Herbert Winthrop Peck of this city, who has been thus cut down in the very prime of life, at the opening of a brilliant future, with prospects unexcelled probably by any young man of his age in the United States.

Although just 21 years old, he had been graduated from Columbia College, the youngest in a class of 200 but ranking fourth in scholarship. He had also just passed successfully a severe examination at Poughkeepsie and been admitted to practice at the New York bar. He was a member of Trinity Reformed church, a teacher in its Sunday school, and a conscientious Christian, as well, in his daily life.

Death occurred from heart failure, about three o'clock Saturday afternoon, at Milford, Conn, where he was visiting his grandfather, Mr. Samuel C. Peck. His mother was with him at the time, having been sent for because of his sickness, some days ago. Mr. S. C. Peck, Jr., received a message at four o'clock of Saturday, stating that his son was dying and left for Milford at once, although, of course, too late.

On Saturday afternoon right after eating a hearty dinner, Mr. Peck straightened himself up in the chair in which he was sitting and thrusting his arms back and forth as if rowing, said: "Now for a long pull, a strong pull and a pull altogether, and we'll soon reach the shore." Immediately he fell over unconscious, and was dead almost instantly.

A meeting of the teachers of the Trinity Reformed Sunday school, was held yesterday afternoon, and a Committee was appointed to draw up and present resolutions of condolence. The Plainfield Bicycle Club will meet to-night at eight o'clock, to take some appropriate action in recognition of the loss of so esteemed a companion.

The remains arrived in this city this afternoon at 2:08 o'clock. The funeral will be held in Trinity Reformed church, Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock. The Rev. A. V. V. Raymond will probably take part in the services.

—Friday was the longest day of the year. You all saw the end of it, but how few saw its beginning.

—Never give up. Try Dr. Dam's Remedy.

ACCUSED OF A CRIME.

Threats to Mob a Plainfielder in Asbury Park.

John Charles Cleveland, formerly of this city, but recently working in Ocean Grove as a painter, was arrested at that place Friday night on a charge of attempted assault on a minor, the daughter of George L. Fowler, a respectable business man. The child is ten. Cleveland is 48 years old and has a child by the wife of a man who is still living in this city.

In Judge Borden's Court it was stated that Cleveland had been eating in Fowler's restaurant and by degrees, through kind attentions, had won the child's confidence. John F. Robinson detected Cleveland, called Policeman Chas. Kipp, who secured his arrest. The hearing was quasi private, as threats of lynching had been made. Cleveland was taken to the Freehold jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. John Erskine and family, are at Sheffield, Mass.

Mr. George C. Mahon, and family, are at Asbury Park.

Mr. H. B. Wells is at the Vermont House, Atlantic City.

Dr. Fred J. Wells is at DeRuyter, Madison county, New York.

Miss Belle Scott of Newark, N. J., is visiting the Misses Addie and Kate Weaver of Orchard place.

Rumor has it that Washington avenue, North Plainfield, is to be called Maiden Lane, on account of the numerous single sisters residing thereon.

Mr. and Mrs. Cort. R. Hincken, of St. James place, Brooklyn, enjoyed last Sunday with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Dupee, of Rock View avenue.

Mr. Aaron T. Marsh, formerly of this city, but now of New York, is visiting at the residence of his mother on West Fifth street, for the first time within the past five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Fisk, whose home here is being so extensively altered, as told in these columns, recently, are at Wilburtha, Mercer county, on the Delaware river.

Mr. Samuel P. Williams, brother of Mrs. Schenck, and Mr. Warren Hantsch, her brother-in-law, both of Philadelphia, spent Sunday and Monday with the Rev. and Mrs. Cornelius Schenck.

During the past week, Dunellen's population has increased to the extent of three, Mrs. John Apgar, Mrs. John H. Wyckoff and Mrs. Geo. M. Homan, each presenting her husband with an offspring.

Mr. D. W. Littell of North avenue, started for Pittsburg today to attend the National Convention of the Master Mechanic Plumber's Association of America, which convenes there to-morrow. Mr. Littell will stop at Johnstown to witness the flood scenes at that place.

Since his name was suggested in THE PRESS for the honor, Mr. F. X. Schoonmaker has been invited by the President of the Board of Education, and has consented to deliver the address to the people at the High School Commencement in Music Hall, Thursday evening.

At her home in New Brunswick, yesterday occurred the death of Caroline S., widow of the late Wm. L. Simpson. The deceased was a sister of the late Wm. M. Jennings of this city. Interment will be made in the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield, on Wednesday at 11:30 A. M.

At the residence of her sister, Mrs. H. D. Janes, on First place, took place yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, the funeral of Mrs. Towle, who died recently in Asbury Park. The Rev. W. R. Richards officiated, and there was singing by Mrs. J. K. Myers, Miss Alice Holmes and Messrs Elmer Runyon, Andrew Gavett and George Schoonmaker.

At the meeting room over the Dime Saving's Institution, on Saturday afternoon, occurred the marriage of Miss Lillie Ebbitt and Mr. Robert A. Grant, both of North Plainfield. Justice T. R. Crosley of North Plainfield officiated. An interesting service of song and prayer followed, after which the newly-married couple started on their wedding tour.

Mrs. Patrick Day died at her home on West Third street, at an early hour yesterday morning, aged about forty-nine years. Mrs. Day's death resulted from a congestive chill, and her illness was of short duration. Besides her husband, two sons survive her. Funeral services will be held to-morrow morning at 9:30 o'clock in St. Mary's church, when a requiem mass will be said for the repose of her soul.

At Keller's Grove.

About fifty young persons, representing the National Turn Verein of Newark and the Elizabethport Turn Verein came to this city and spent yesterday at Keller's Grove in North Plainfield, together with the members of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein. The day was pleasantly passed in outdoor amusements, such as acrobatic feats, turning, jumping, climbing and putting the shot. The visitors returned home early in the evening, well pleased with the day's sport.

Reform Hall Meeting.

There was a good-sized audience present at the Reform Club meeting in Reform Hall, last evening. President French was in the chair, and Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, conducted the devotional exercises. Spirited and interesting addresses were delivered by Rev. Messrs C. L. Goodrich and J. B. Cleaver. The usual Reform Club choir furnished the music.

VIEWED FROM THE METROPOLIS.

What a New York Paper Has to Say of Plainfield's Society People Who Gather in "Steinway Hall" and Their Own Salons.

A New York paper of yesterday contained a column about the people in the swim of Plainfield, 'which was described as a city "without any back streets." Much of the article was either colossal nonsense or prodigious sarcasm, and in fact none of its society news was at all accurate except such as had been copied from back numbers of THE PRESS. Below is quoted some of the good and true, the bad and erroneous—and some of the ironical, as well:

"Probably the representative leaders of the 'four hundred' are the family of Mr. J. Evarts Tracy, of West Eighth street. Like all true leaders, Mr. Tracy's family would doubtless disclaim all pretense to leadership. And yet the fact remains that Mr. Tracy and his estimable wife and large family of interesting young people are the real centre of Plainfield's very exclusive best society. Mr. Tracy is a nephew of Senator Evarts, and the family being in mourning for his r other are not identifying themselves prominently with society events at present. Associated with them are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Perkins, the latter a daughter of Senator Evarts.

"With them are Mr. Augustus D. Shepard and family. Mr. Shepard is a brother of the editor of the Mail and Express. His oldest daughter, Miss Mellie, is probably the fairest and sweetest-faced girl in Plainfield. Her face is familiar to the friends of her uncle in New York, at whose house she is a frequent guest. During the Summer while Mr. John Taylor Johnston and family occupy their residence on Front street, they are important factors in the Summer-tide festivities of the town. Mrs. Johnston's death last year and the long illness and subsequent death of Mr. Collis Johnston the previous year have been the cause of this family's entire withdrawal from Plainfield as well as New York society.

"The elegant home of Mr. Charles Potter, Jr., on West Seventh street, is thrown open for entertainment more than any other in town. Two unmarried daughters, the Misses Florence and Mabel Potter, are exceedingly popular. Mrs. William Palmer Smith of Netherwood Heights, is considered one of the most striking-looking ladies from that locality. She has a very fine figure, dresses with good taste, and with her wealth and position easily takes place among the best society. The wife of Mr. Frederick F. Beals of Crescent avenue, is considered one of the most beautiful women in town. Her complexion is a marvel of loveliness.

"The family of Mr. Orville T. Waring of Park avenue, is an interesting one. The marriage of Miss Frances, the oldest daughter, to Mr. Louis Gouverneur Timpson the past Winter, was one of the finest social events Plainfield has ever witnessed. A brother of Mr. Waring, Mr. Edward Waring, and his wife are readily recognized as leaders of society in the Washington Park district. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wadsworth of Central avenue, are great entertainers. Mrs. Wadsworth is a very handsome blonde, tall and stately. Not a few people consider her one of the most beautiful women in town. A brother, Mr. William Wadsworth, and wife are recognized as belonging to the 'four hundred.' The recent death of Mrs. Wadsworth's mother has closed their beautiful home on Eighth street to any extensive entertainment. It is not true that the names of all of Plainfield's most exclusive society are given here. Only those who are most prominently identified with society events have been mentioned.

"Among the Washington Park people the families of Mr. Morgan S. Taylor, Mr. Martin I. Cooley and Mr. James Mc Gee, late President of the New York Produce Exchange, are representatives. Mrs. Cooley is a bright, sparkling little woman, very popular. Mr. McGee has two unmarried daughters, the Misses Emma and Adelaide, who are considered in every way charming girls. Mr. and Mrs. William J. Roome of Willow and Mercer avenues, are great society-loving people. Mr. and Mrs. B. Arrowsmith Hegeman, Jr., easily bear the palm as a handsome and stylish couple. Mrs. Hegeman is the daughter of Mr. Charles Matthews, and is a niece of the late Frederick A. Potts. Her face is the picture of glowing health. Her manner is vivacious and bright. Their beautiful home, with its ample grounds on Grove street, gives them opportunities for frequent entertainments, of which they are not slow to avail themselves. A most charming young lady is Miss Ida Musgrave, daughter of J. J. Musgrave, the New York banker. In complexion she is a decided brunette, her form is tall and willowy, her manner is gracious and pleasing. The house of Charles McCutcheon, on Rock View and Washington avenues, is by all odds the most beautiful one in the Park. Its doors are not infrequently open to the demands of society.

"At Netherwood the family of James Anthony are recognized leaders. Mr. Anthony occupies the handsome house built several years ago by John F. Plummer. Across the avenue the beautiful home of Mr. Henry P. Tallmage stands just on the edge of the hill. A little lower Henry C. Bowen, son of the famous editor, lives. These three families form the nucleus of Netherwood's best society.

"The Poverty Cotillon, composed entirely of young people, has dancing as a means and an end, and embraces representatives from many of the best people in town. Among the many pretty young ladies who belong to it is Miss Kittie Stewart, daughter of W. E. Stewart of West Seventh street. Miss Stewart is a tall, stately blonde, has an abundance of beautiful hair and dresses with great taste. Her eyes are dark and lustrous. The daughter of Eric Erickson, Miss Jean, is a very lovely and lovable girl. The family of John W. Murray, of Central avenue and Eighth street, are embraced in this circle. The oldest son, William D. Murray, is one of the most popular young men in town with all classes. He has devoted most of his time to Christian work and is now President of the Y. M. C. A.

"The Monday Afternoon Club, which embraces Crescent avenue, Park avenue and Broadway people, bears the reputation of furnishing more real enjoyment than any other club in town. Mrs. C. E. Brooks, nee Miss Sally Ames, is its treasurer and, practically speaking, its centre. To it belong also Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox of Seventh street; Mr. George Wharton Edward, the artist, and wife. Its centre of gravity is Steinway Hall, where most of its social gatherings are held, though occasionally some of its members open their doors to a cotillon, german or evening of private theatricals. Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Herring, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fleming and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lowe are all recognized as leaders in this special circle of society, and are all of them prominent as entertainers."

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH DEDICATION.

Programmes of Tuesday and Friday Evenings Services.

The handsome new home that has been erected for the worship of God by the congregation of the First Presbyterian church, is all completed, and dedication ceremonies, as already announced in THE PRESS, will be held therein on Tuesday evening, followed by a fraternal service on Friday evening.

Besides the special music by choir and organ for the occasions, Scripture lessons, congregational singing and invocations, the features of the two services will be: On Tuesday evening, the Rev. Charles L. Thompson, of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church, New York, moderator of the Centennial General Assembly of last year at Philadelphia, and a class mate of Dr. Ketcham's at Princeton, will preach the dedicatory sermon.

Friday evening's service will be in charge of the Rev. W. R. Richards of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, in which pastors of the different churches of the city will take part and also laymen representatives of the churches and the Young Men's Christian Association. Addresses will be made by the Rev. D. J. Yerkes, D.D., of the First Baptist church, the Rev. E. M. Rodman of Grace Episcopal church, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck of Trinity Reformed church, the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and the Rev. Charles L. Goodrich of the Congregational church. President W. D. Murray, of the Y. M. C. A., and Messrs James McGee and Charles W. McCutchen, will also speak.

To-night the inaugural concert of the new Midmer organ will be given according to the programme published in these columns of Friday. Messrs Frank Taft and Henry Eyre Browne will be the instrumentalists, and Miss Blanche Fellows the vocalist.

The Building Committee of the church, is composed of Messrs J. M. Bettman, Howard A. Pope, Fred C. Lounsbury, Wm. H. Shotwell, Edward St. John and Robert H. Radford. Mr. Oscar S. Teale was the architect.

Plainfield's Place in the County Conference.

Besides the facts presented Saturday in the account of the conference at Elizabeth, of the County Y. P. S. C. E., published exclusively in THE PRESS, the following additional details are of local interest.

The Rev. Asa R. Dilts, of this city, made the opening prayer. Mr. W. C. Dobbins of the Congregational church, was one of the Nominating Committee that named Mr. E. St. John, Vice President; Mr. H. E. Gayle, Secretary, and Miss Alice Spangenberg, Treasurer.

Among those appointed on the Executive Committee, were Mr. A. E. Hoagland, to represent the First Presbyterian church, Mr. E. E. Anthony, the Trinity Reformed church, and Mr. E. S. Kober, the Congregational church. The reports showed that the largest society in the Union is connected with the Trinity Dutch Reformed church of this city. It has a membership of 172, of whom 140 are active members. The average attendance at prayer meetings is ninety-five, and thirteen of the associate members united with the church during the year.

The society of the First Presbyterian church of this city, also reported a membership of fifty-three, an earnest interest in the prayer meetings, and marked development in all the matters of the organization.

At the Washington School.

The closing exercises at the Washington school building on Thursday will include the unfurling of a handsome $23 flag, ten by fifteen feet in dimensions. A flag staff has been erected on top of the building, from which the flag will float in the breeze. An address will also be delivered by one of the members of the Board of education.

—Wm. Stein, New Market: Was wounded in the war, and has had bad headaches ever since. Six months ago I got Dr. Dam's Remedy, and have been well ever since.

North Plainfield's Graduates.

The motto of the graduating class of the North Plainfield public school, this year, is "Never Say Fail."

The members of the class are:

Marion Barcroft Nevius, Alice Jennings Carroll, Nellie L VanWinkle, Maggie R. Cory, Minnie M. Arnold, John G. McLaughlin, Josephine W. Brock, Lewis R. Bird, James Hurley, Walter S. Place, Mary F. Thompson, Mary B. Wells, Philip B. Wells, Lizzie Sheppard, Bertha E. Needham, Augusta Winckler, Ida M. Lewis, Francis A. Grant, Maggie Winckler, Paul H. Loizeaux, Lambert Bodine, Louise H. Loizeaux, Eleanor Tennant Morrison, Margaret Shepherd, Ella W. Gardner.

—The weather for the past few days has been remarkably cool for this season of the year.

MAN AND MASTIFF FOUGHT.

Terrible Battle Between an Engineer and a Watchdog.

NEWARK, N. J., June 24.—Max Walters, an assistant engineer in Blatt's Beef establishment had a terrific encounter with a watchdog kept in the place. Walters entered the store at a late hour to go to work, when the animal, a vicious mastiff, sprang upon him and buried its teeth and claws in his body. A terrible battle ensued, the man and dog rolling together from one end of the building to the other.

Walter's cries attract the attention of Ambrose Ball, who entered the place and broke a couple of chairs over the dog's head before he was driven into the basement and locked up. Walters was carried home and his wounds cauterized. He will not be able to resume work for a week.

Fighting the Bobtail Car.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—Valentine Pfager last night refused to walk up and deposit his fare in the cash-box on one of the Trenton Horse Car company's cars, which are running without conductors. He, however, offered the money to the driver, who refused to take it. The driver, assistant superintendent and other employes of the company then boarded the car, and in the effort to get him off there was a scuffle, in which Pfager was assaulted and roughly used, after which he was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. The hearing takes place to-morrow night, and it is said that Pfager intends to have his assailants arrested in the meantime. Inasmuch as there has been general public complaint against the bobtail car system, the case is exciting much interest.

The Abandoned Bark Ottawa.

BOSTON, June 24.—The tug Argus, of Philadelphia, arrived at this port last night having in tow the wrecked Norwegian bark Ottawa, which was abandoned at sea about May 15 while on the passage from Pensacola to Buenos Ayres laden with hard pine lumber, her crew having at that time been rescued and taken to London. She presents a hard looking appearance. All of her spars and sails are gone. The hull is apparently in good condition, and a portion of her deck load of lumber remains on board.

Forged a Boston Man's Name.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 24.—A. C. Williams, who was arrested recently for forging the name of Arthur Gorham, of Boston, to a draft of $500, has made another statement, representing his relations with Gorham as very intimate, and declaring that Gorham gave him authority to use his name as it was used.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

T. J. Claxton & Co., merchants, of Montreal, Que., have assigned. Liabilities about $200,000.

Julia Aclaviano, an Italian girl, accidentally shot herself at Baltimore on Sunday and died in a few hours.

Early next month the second detachment of employees of the Nicaragua Canal Company will leave New York.

The French man-of-war Duquesne, flagship of the Pacific fleet, arrived at San Francisco Sunday from Panama, having on board Rear-Admiral Lefrvee.

The French are increasing their strength in the islands neighboring the Tahiti group, their latest acquisition being Reita Gronio island, eighty miles from Tahiti.

J. Houck, aged 29, Teller of the Traders National bank, of Baltimore, committed suicide by hanging on Saturday night. He was suffering from nervous prostration.

Stephen Hodge, an old colored man, was struck with a club and killed on Saturday by Benjamin Lawson, a farmer, living near Upper Marlboro, Md. Lawson is now in jail.

William H. Hawn, a young farmer living near Woodstock, Va., attempted to murder his wife Sunday and shot himself through the heart, dying instantly. Jealousy was the cause.

Nearly one thousand people saw a hard and bloody fight at Hurley, Wis., late last night between Joe Sheehy and Frank Kellin, heavyweights. Sheehy won in the fourteenth round.

Two Boys Drowned.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—Walter and George Lyford, aged 10 and 16 years, were drowned near Westville, N. J., yesterday. Walter had got beyond his depth while swimming and George tried to save him, but Walter sank, carrying his brother down with him.

SEALED PROPOSALS.

Sealed proposals, accompanied with plan and specification, will be received by joint committee of the Boards of Chosen Freeholders of the counties of Somerset and Union, at two o'clock P. M., of at the Hotel of Miller Bros., Plainfield, N. J., for an iron-truss bridge over Green Brook, on Grant avenue. The length of bridge, one span of 50 feet between the faces of the abutment walls. Bridge seat at right angles to line of bridge. Roadway, 20 feet in the clear. No sidewalks. Planking to be three inches thick, the best of Georgia pine, free from sap or dote. The structure to sustain 80 pounds per superficial foot on total area, besides weight of bridge, with a factor of safety of four.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 3, 1889,

At the same time and place, proposals will be received by said committee, for the masonry of said bridge. Specification for the same can be seen and examined at the store of A. Vanderbeek, on Park avenue, Plainfield, and also at the house of Wm. E. Jones, Somerset street, North Plainfield, after June 27.

The joint committee reserve the right to reject any or all the proposals for either of the above.

WAR CLOUDS RISING

The Roar of Battle May Soon Be Heard in Europe.

FRANZ JOSEPH'S DUBIOUS WORDS

He Talks of Peace But Ill Conceals His Fears of Strife.

Meantime Austria Is Carefully Girding Herself for the Conflict That Is Soon to Come—Doctor Carl Botticher Dead—Michael Davitt to Testify Before the Parnell Commission—The Trial of Editor O'Brien's Libel Suit.

LONDON, June 24.—The speech of the Austrian Emperor to the delegations of the Empire gives but little encouragement to those who have been decrying the war prophecies which have filled the air for the past two weeks.

The full text of the speech has been telegraphed here and shows that it does not contain a single reassuring word.

The Emperor expresses the hope that peace will continue, but the strength of his expectations in this respect may be measured by the urgency with which he emphasizes the necessity for increasing the military force.

The speech shows no pains to conceal the Emperor's deep distrust of the Servian Regency nor is there any effort to disguise the thrust at Russia which the commendation of Bulgaria's government carries with it.

The speech excites much comment here, as it proves an exception to the rule that these documents usually convey no information. To those accustomed to interpreting state documents, the speech supplies the missing ingredient in the existing European mess—the readiness of the great Austrian Empire for war, and its thinly disguised expectation that war must come.

But events in the Austrian Empire to-day show that the Government is not content alone to wait for war until it is forced upon it.

In the provinces of Bosnia-Herzegovina, Slavonia and Croatia the officials have been ordered to prevent the proposed celebration of the battle of Kossoko, fought five hundred years ago. Elaborate preparations had been made by the Slavonian population of these provinces to celebrate this event and the announcement to-day that they would be prevented by their detested German masters, from honoring their Slav heroes and commemorating a notable Slav victory raises a storm of indignation which needs only the encouragement which the Servians over the border are only too willing to extend, to break out into open rebellion.

Doctor, Carl Botticher, Director of the Royal Museums of Berlin, is dead.

* * *

Michael Davitt will testify before the Parnell Commission July 2 and it is expected that he will be the last witness summoned for the defense. His evidence is regarded as of much importance and is looked forward to with considerable interest.

* * *

The trial of the O'Brien-Salisbury libel suit has been fixed for July 11, and the case will be heard at the Manchester assizes.

Lord Salisbury's reply to Mr. O'Brien's complaint that the utterances complained of as libelous were simply fair comments upon the plaintiff's public conduct and speeches.

Boulangists in Battle.

PARIS, June 24.—A pitched battle was fought yesterday at Bezieres between a party of Boulangists and a number of supporters of the Government. The rival parties met in the streets after each had held a meeting of their adherents. After casting opprobrious epithets at one another for a while, they came to blows. Sticks and stones were used and many battered heads resulted. M. Deroulede, the Boulangist Deputy, was singled out by the police as the most aggressive of his party and carried off to jail. He was, however, soon liberated.

Firemen Killed by Falling Walls.

LONDON, June 24.—A portion of the Manningham mills in Bradford was destroyed by fire last night involving a loss of £50,000. Two firemen were killed by falling walls, and several were injured. A number of workmen in the mills were also injured.

The Great Peace Congress.

PARIS, June 24.—The Paris Peace Congress was opened yesterday. Delegates from peace societies all over the world are in attendance. Madame Love and Belva Lockwood were elected honorary members of the Committee on Legislation.

A Fatal Landslide.

BERLIN, June 24.—A landslide occurred yesterday in one of the Kaltenleutg quarries. Six workmen were killed and many others injured.

This Time It Is a Pottery Trust.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—A movement has been started by the owners of the large potteries in Trenton and vicinity to organize a big trust, the object being to produce goods at lower figures and secure a more central market for the same. It is intended that each pottery shall manufacture one line of goods only, and to establish a central office from which salesmen are to be sent out to solicit trade for each line of goods for the respective potteries. It is intended that the proposed trust shall not interfere with labor.

Will Not Marry a Jewess.

NEWARK, N. J., June 24.—Dr. Charles Simon, a wealthy Hebrew physician, has brought suit in the courts against Dr. Alfred Donovan, of Elizabeth, claiming damages for his daughter, Gussie Simon, for breach of promise of marriage. Dr. Donovan acknowledged that he at one time intended to marry Miss Simon, but decided not to do so because of her race. Miss Simon is one of the society belles of Newark.

Drowned in the Schuylkill.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—Two young men and two young ladies, whose names have not been learned, were drowned yesterday in the Schuylkill at Fairmount Park, their rowboat being carried over the dam. The bodies are being searched for.

He Man Jumped His Bail.

NEWARK, N. J., June 24.—Frand Pilkington, salesman for Albert Spaith, furniture dealer, was arrested last week on a charge of embezzling $2,000. He furnished bail, but has since left town and detectives are looking for him.

THEIR FATAL EXPERIMENT.

Two Boys Killed by the Explosion of a Kitchen Boiler.

PHILADEPAIA, June 24.—Hary and William Jesser, aged 15 and 17 years respectively, living at No. 621 South Third street, were killed yesterday by the explosion of an old range boiler, with which they were experimenting. A boy named Kniese was cut in the face and Mrs. Flora Kniese was badly scalded about the back.

The Jesser boys were fond of mechaical experiments, and were using the old boiler to generate steam with which they ran a miniature engine. The steam passed through gas pipes from the boiler to the engine.

The boys intended to attach the boiler to an icecream freezer, so that hand turning would be dispensed with. While Harry was oiling the engine and Willie was banking ing the fire with bricks, a terrific explosion occurred, which was felt for blocks around.

Both boys were hurled some distance and frightfully crushed, both by being thrown against the walls and by being struck with flying bricks and pieces of metal. Harry died instantly, and Willie lived only an hour.

The little Kniese boy and his mother were watching the experiment from an adjacent shed.

THIEVES ON BOARD.

A Gang of New York Pickpockets Loot a Party of Picknickers.

JERSEY CITY, June 24.—St. Patrick's Alliance society, composed of young ladies and young men of the Catholic parishes, went on their annual excursion yesterday up the Hudson river to Riverside park. Between 500 and 600 persons were on board. Everything passed pleasantly until they started on the return trip to Jersey City, when officer Stanley of the First Precinct discovered that a gang of New York thieves and pickpockets were on board.

Three robberies were reported in a few minutes. Watches were stolen right and left. The thieves had women working with them, who got away with the stolen goods. There was great excitement when the boat landed its passengers at Morris street, and Thomas Hayes, of 65 Bowery, New York, and William Childs, of 97 Madison street, New York, were arrested and locked in the police station on suspicion.

New York's Free Masons.

HERKIMER, N. Y., June 24.—M. W. John W. Vrooman, Grand Master of Masons in the State of New York, has made the following appointments: Robert Collyer, New York; Charles W. Camp, Lockport; John S. Bacon, Corning, Grand Chaplains. Wm. C. Prescott, Herkimer, Grand Marshal; John H. Cunningham, Utica, Grand Standard Bearer; Charles W. Mead, Albany, Grand Sword Bearer; Samuel J. Campbell, New York; Simeon T. Clark, Lockport; Wm. Elbert, Brooklyn; George Anson Beam, Dundee, Grand Stewards. Frederick P. Morris, Flushing, Grand Deacon; Alfred B. Price, New York, Junior Grand Deacon; Geo. H. Raymond, New York, Grand Lecturer; Herman G. Carter, New York, Grand Librarian; George Skinner, New York, Grand Pursuivant; John Hoole, New York, Grand Tyler.

The Ex-Cashier Could Explain It.

FALL RIVER, Mass, June 24.—The suit brought by the Union Savings bank of this city against the National Union bank to determine which institution is responsible for $30,000 worth of bad notes, known as "the Nichols paper," was begun before Judge Fuller, of the Probate Court, to-day. Thus far the evidence only shows that D. A. Chapin, the ex-treasurer and ex-cashier of the two banks, was in the habit of counting these notes as cash and of shifting them from one bank to the other as occasion required. Chapin was not present, though summoned. It is reported that he has left the city.

Panic in a Brooklyn Church.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 24.—During the communion service yesterday at St. Casimir's R. C. Church, in which sixty little girls dressed in fleecy white and bearing lighted tapers took part, the veil of one of the children took fire from a taper and a panic ensued. Several persons in the audience climbed out of windows and there was a rush for the doors. Some cool-headed person tore off the burning veil and stamped out the flames and this, together with energetic efforts of the priests, resulted in order being restored before any serious harm had been done.

The President at Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., June 24.—President and Mrs. Harrison, Dr. Scott and Postmaster-General Wanamaker attended the Beadle Presbyterian church yesterday. In the afternoon the President and wife dined with General Sewell and Mr. Wanamaker visited the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday schools. The President returned to Washington this morning. He is much pleased with his visit here. Mrs. Harrison's health has improved since she came to Cape May.

The Athletes Got Their Share.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 24.—The appointments for the senior class of the academical department of Yale university have been announced. A noticeable feature of the list is the number of athletes who secured appointments, among them being Corbin, Gill, Woodruff, Buchanan and Mosle, ball and boating experts, and Sherrill, Shearman, Hinckley, Walker and Bradner, prominent in track sports.

The B. & O. Cutting Expenses.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—The car-wheel foundry at the Mount Clare shops of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad has been permanently closed, and the seventy-six men working there have been discharged. The company has decided to buy its wheels a Williamston, Del. Altogether nearly 100 men have been dropped at Mount Clare and the shops are gradually becoming nothing more than repair shops.

She Was Burned to Death.

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 24.—Mrs. McDonnell, aged 66, widow of the late Col. Alexander McDowell, while descending the stairs of the residence of her son, fell to the bottom with a lighted lamp, which exploded, enveloping her in flames. She succeeded in reaching the yard, but before assistance arrived was burned to death.

LaBourgogne Saw an Iceburg.

NEW YORK, June 24.—The steamer LaBourgogne from Havre reports that on June 20, lat., 44.13, long., 49.47, she passed an iceburg, estimated to be 985 feet long and 193 feet high, the largest ever seen by the steamer's officers.

Convention of Labor Bureau Chiefs.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 24.—The national convention of Chiefs of Labor Bureaus will be held here to-morrow, Wednesday and Thursday.

FURNITURE FOR SUMMER.

How The Country Houses Should Be Furnished This Year.

Mahogany Taking the Place of the Light Woods—To Fit Up a Chintz Bedroom. Last Century Fashions Revived In Hangings.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

As the dresses of our grandmothers are this Summer the styles, so also for the country house are the furniture and the hangings. Indeed one is necessary to the other.

The gay soft sweeping gowns of India silk girdled close beneath the arms, the scant skirts falling straight and even, the tiny bodices laced up the back, the puffed sleeves that extend only half way from shoulder to elbow, the kerchiefs and the snowy necks encircled by simple strings of pearls, the hair piled high on cushions, the delicate feet in high heeled buckled shoes of the old time beauties who will soon be sauntering up and down the box-bordered walks of country gardens would be sadly out of place, even at so modern an entertainment as a lawn party, among nineteenth century plenishings. If we cannot often build in houses which are occupied for a part of the year only the heavy mahogany staircases which used to respond to the touch of lightly flying feet we can introduce, and in our June fittings are liberally introducing the brown and yellow walls, the high wooden mantels with frieze of acanthus and decorated with heads crowned with curls and wreathed with amaranth, the deepest fire-places, the old brass andirons, shovels, bellows and tongs, the polished floors strewn with rugs, the sconces with their twinkling candle lights, the four-post-tester beds, the high-backed chairs, the quaint old rockers and tea tables which were used by ladies in the century which ladies now dress to represent.

That mahogany is fast regaining its old importance goes almost without saying. There is springing up, even among people of moderate means, some notion of founding families, and the idea of permanence implies a root in the soil, a country house almost equally important with the place in town, the accumulation of belongings not to be hustled about at May movings, in a word, solid mahogany rubbed till it shines like polished glass.

With mahogany goes chintz and the two make a favorite country combination. Hardly a pretentious new house at Tuxedo or Lennox which has not its chintz bedroom. Old-fashioned chintz, you may believe, in designs that were called 'the new India printings' a hundred years ago. Reds and creams and soft blues and yellows abound in the clorings, adapted especially to the hard dark wood furniture and trim. To correspond with the chintz hangings come the new chintz wall papers, reproducing the same cream grounds and the same patterns, but outlined in colors instead of filled in.

I have seen a charming chintz bedroom in the summer cottage of an artist on Long Island, on which comparatively little money was expended, but which admirably illustrates the idea; the floor stained a very dark red, rubbed with shellac varnish and made soft to the feet by the addition of a few good rugs and a strip of rag carpet, which is the owner's special pride; the woodwork mahogony, with deep panelled window seats and a high mantel, tiled with brown red tiles with golden lights in them; the bed a huge mahogony four poster, with brass tester rails and canopy of satin-finished chintz, the ground of which is a pale, delicate green, with hints of brown, figured with golden rod sprays and the deep red cardinal flowers. The same flowered chintz makes the bed spread, the window curtains, cushions in window seats and upholstery for the high backed rockers and a most sumptuous divan which has for its foundation a heavy old straight backed mahogany sofa, picked up in a second-hand furniture shop, stripped of its horsehair covering and given in exchange a riot of chintz cushions. The wall paper has the shadowy green chintz ground, with golden rod and cardinal flowers in outline. The picture rail is mahogany and the frieze is like the side wall, except that the flowers are printed solid, precisely as on the hangings. The ceiling is tinted in a still more delicate shade of pale green.

And does not the dark wood and deeper colorings produce a heavier, hotter effect than is appropriate for August and July? The water greens are introduced to save the coolness, and in another favorite combination the creamy ground of chintz and wall paper preserves the mahogany from the suspicion of sultriness. Besides, the country house is no longer a roughly finished structure, occupird for ten weeks or three months only, and becoming uninhabitable as soon as the autumn chill strikes through its unfinished walls. It receives its tenants as soon as the bobolinks begin to sing, entertains the major part of the company of the twelvemonth, and, if not so fas from town as to inconvenience seriously the business man of the household, often sees the Christmas stockings hung in the light of its ingleside, the winter flitting cityward being for a comparatively brief period. Decidedly the country cottage has a right year by year to richer and more serviceable furnishings.

Light wood trimmings have not vanished; they have merely divided their empire. The new enameled furniture is very pretty and tasteful, both for parlor and bedroom, though far less serviceable than the mahogany. Much the same effect, indeed, can be produced in brass and iron and wicker at one-fourth the cost and half the risk of damage. I remember a delightful little room in one of the mountain cottages of Onteora, whose owner is one of those new products of evolution, the girl bachelors who set up in Summer independent households. This young bachelor, whose parents go to the seaside while she perches with Dora Wheeler and the rest of that artistic colony among the Catskills, seats herself in a wicker rocker cushioned with a Morris patterned cretonne of a sort of crushed strawberry or salmon pink shade. Her bed is iron, knobbed with brass, with valance of the cretonne and spread of lace lined with cretonne. A cheap little washstand bought at the nearest country store has been turned into the most tasteful of toilet tables by the use of cretonne covered with dotted Swiss. The walls are covered with a creamy paper in a Louis Seize design of narrow pinkish stripes, in shade corresponding to the cretonne, alternating with bouquets tied with fluttering ribbons. The ceiling is very delicately stenciled round with flowers. With cretonne hangings and a half dozen little pictures such as one gets with the art magazines, framed some in white and some in pink lacquered frames, the room comes as near the midsummer ideal as one often approaches where narrow limits are set to ways and means.

Mahogany inlaid with mother of pearl in Eighteenth century festoon designs and white mahogany finished with gold rosettes and scroll work, with brass handles and inlaid with dark mahogany, are fashionable compromises between light wood and dark, for the country season. Cherry, not stained to imitate mahogany, but left of its natural salmon hue, quartered oak and even the old fashioned black walnut which is trying to engineer a boom on its own account are largely used in the new warm weather furniture. A country house not far from Nyack has been rented for a season or two to an outing club of a novel description. Eight or ten interesting women, all of artistic temperament, occupy it. They vie with one another, the clever creatures, in odd rustic decorations for their individual apartments, but the pride of all centers in the reception parlor which is a joint possession. This room has lounge and armchairs upholstered in the native grass linen that comes from the West Indies. It is striped in delicate shades of blue, brown and ecru and makes a tasteful and not expensive material. There are hangings of the grass linen at door and windows and white sash curtain next the glass. The floor is covered with a blue and brown matting and the walls are covered with more grass linen in narrow strips of pale blue, silver and gray. The deep frieze is a pale blue stenciled with silver and the furniture is holly carved and inlaid with silver. Table spreads, rugs and scarfs introduce Japanese cretons and chintzes over which are scattered sprays of tiny flowers in pale blue, red and olive green leaves.

I have pleasant recollections of a country house at Shelter Island, whose immense hall occupies half the ground floor and is living room and reception hall in one. The hall, which has just been redecorated for the season's occupancy, is finished in oak—heavy oak staircase, oak mantel and huge oak settees drawn up on a chilly evening about the log fire. The floor is polished oak and the walls are tinted a kind of wood brown with stray golden tones. The picture rail is oak again and the frieze a brownish ecru figured with blue. The cornice is blue and a bronzy brown and the ceiling a pale blue, with enough yellow introduced to keep its temper with other tones. The rugs repeat the wood brown, the gold and blue; the window hangings are in two shades of pale and dark old blue Persian stuff, and the portiers and hangings add a little dull red to the other colors. The walls are nearly covered with etchings in oak frames, the ugly space alongside the stairs having scarce a monotonous foot to weary the eye. With the rain dashing against the windows outside this hall does not meet you with a pursed up lip and hands behind its back, as if to say "What's your business here," but opens its doors to the entire household with generous hospitality.

It is hardly possible to say too much for the pretty and artistic cretonnes which go so well with the rattan furniture so deservedly popular for moderate priced Summer rooms. In this branch of manufacture the New England mills are giving us something more characteristic than can be offered by foreign makers, introducing in their designs the American wild flowers. In blue and white cretonnes there are blue bell designs; in pink and white, arbutus and mountain laurel and wild roses; in yellows, sun flower and goldenrod patterns. The Louis Seize designs are liked in all the light, cheerful, delicate tintings, and are shown in narrow stripes mostly. Like these in coloring are the Pompador cretonnes with small bouquets on pale cream grounds. Japanese cretonnes go well with the Summer hangings of bamboo and beads, not those you see in the shops, but newer ones made from bamboo cut in short lengths and strung on cords with large green beads between, each strand ending in a tiny musical bell. Italian renaissance cretonnes are appropriate in bedrooms furnished with the pretty and graceful sets in maple and bamboo. A chamber in an out of town house is being fitted up with this material. The walls are papered in low soft colors, the design showing baskets of fruits, birds and small beasts, patterns seldom introduced nowadays but occasionally appropriate. Across a corner between two windows stands a Duchesse table draped with cretonne of the same pattern as wall paper. The bed is bamboo and maple with cretonne spread and the floor is covered with a white matting. There is a portiere of cream linen momie cloth embroidered in the cretonne colors and white dimity window curtains. Dimity, by the way, is being fashionably revived.

There is nothing more attractive among the new Summer curtain fabrics than the Liberty cottons, which show old-fashioned India designs in soft blues and Vandyke reds and ecrus on creamy grounds. A country parlor has walls in gold leaf on an ecru ground. The carpet is a soft blue green with invisible figures. The hangings are of Liberty cotton blending into the same cool greenish blue. Under the windows is a divan where one might dream away an entire July afternoon, an ideal nook when the sun has made the robin redbreasts drowsy outside.

No Summer hangings show violently contrasted designs, both wall paper and chintzes paying more heed to color than to patterns. No Summer furniture displays much carving. Simple patterns and well made pieces from fine wood are the rule.

ELIZA PUTNAM HEATON.

In the Dark, Deep Sea.

It has long been known that the daylight cannot penetrate for any great distance into the depths of the sea or our deeper lakes. There has been, however, much discrepancy in the results of experiments. A Swiss investigator, M. Asper, has recently combined his researches with those of Prof. F. A. Forrell, and come to some interesting conclusions concerning the penetration of daylight into the waters of Swiss lakes. The methods of the experiments is interesting. By means of a somewhat complicated apparatus, a rapid gelatine-bromide plate was, with proper protection, lowered to the depth desired, exposed for ten minutes and then withdrawn for development.

The results of several trials appear to establish the general conclusion that in the Lake Geneva in the month of September the amount of daylight at the depth of 170 metres below the surface is about the same as the light perceived of a clear night when there is no moon. Similar experiments carried in the Mediterranean appear to show that in the middle of a bright sunlit day perfect darkness is attained at the depth of 300 metres. Thus at less than 1300 feet we probably pass below the level where sunlight has any sensible influence on the life which the waters contain.

As most of the sea floor, probably more than 19-20 of its area, has a greater depth than 1,300 feet, we may assume that in general the life of the sea bottom has to live in utter darkness, a gloom practically as deep as that of a cavern. As over half the earth's surface is covered by water to a greater depth than 1,300 feet, it follows that more than half of the earth receives no direct effect from sunlight.

FIRE LENDS A HAND

To Complete the Devastation of Doomed Johnstown.

PARTLY SAVED BY THE WIND.

The Flames Swept Across the Dismal Waste Left By the Flood.

The First Ward School-House and a Number of Habitable Dwellings Razed to the Ground—The Fire Creates a Veritable Panic Among the Survivors of the Great Disaster—The Flames Extinguished With Great Difficulty.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 25.—It was only due to the direction of the wind that the remains of Johnstown were not entirely wiped out by fire, yesterday afternoon.

The blaze began at 1 o'clock with the First Ward school-house which stood on the bank of Stoney creek. That building stood on the upper side of the dismal waste which the torrent of water swept clear across the town.

Close by the school building, all jumbled up together, were about thirty buildings, some of them in a good state of preservation and inhabited.

Next to these houses was a street, the only one not yet cleared up of debris, and on the opposite side was a wide stretch of ground tightly packed with frame buildings in all manner of decrepit attitudes.

Still further above were some of the best preserved buildings in the city.

Had the wind carried the flame in the opposite direction fire would have destroyed what the flood had left. As it was the fire caused a veritable panic in the immediate neighborhood, as it enveloped one house after another in rapid succession.

One of the abandoned houses had been a hardware store and the explosion of a keg of powder in it sent the burning roof flying in fragments, thus increasing the danger.

Men were put to work smothering the bonfires that stretched across the open space, with earth and in this manner, cut off the fire's line of communication to the threatened buildings whose occupants were already moving the remnants of their furniture.

This banking the bonfires with earth and the veering of the wind so that the burning embers were carried into Stony Creek ended the danger in this direction.

On the other side the fire met no opposition until it had reached the ruin-packed street.

The militia and a gang of laborers worked hard at clearing the street and then tore down a number of houses on the opposite side. By this time the streams of water from the fire engines had their effect and the fire was under control after burning for two hours and twenty-five or thirty houses were in ashes.

The whole population of the valley turned out to watch the conflagration and so general became the belief that everything remaining would go up in smoke that in all directions people were loading their effects on wagons preparatory to fleeing to the hills.

The money loss will be about $35,000. The fire was caused by three small boys setting fire to a pile of rubbish.

Bodies Recovered at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, June 25.—The decomposed bodies of a man and a boy were found in the Ohio river to-day, at the foot of Evans street. The man was dressed in black and on his person was found a memorandum book, containing the name of William Dooley, as near as could be deciphered. The boy, apparently fourteen years of age, was dressed in a bicycle suit, with knee breeches. The bodies are supposed to have come from Johnstown. They were immediately removed to the morgue.

Sixth race, ½ mile—Reveller, 1; Pericles, 2; Carnegie, 3. Time, 1:29.

Winners and Losers.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Yesterday's ball-games resulted as follows: Pittsburg 7, Washington 4; Cleveland 6, Philadelphia 4; Indianapolis 6, Boston 5; Chicago 6, New York 0; Brooklyn 7, Columbus 13; Athletic 8, Baltimore 10; Worcester 6, Wilkesbarre 2; Hartford 13, Jersey City 2; New Haven 6, Newark 13; The regular scheduled game at Brooklyn was forfeited to Brooklyn by the score of 9 to 0, as the Columbus club made some objection to the umpire. The game afterward played and won by Columbus by the score given above was a postponed game.

Will Call an Extra Session.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 25.—Governor Ladd says that an extra session of the General Assembly will be called to revise the statutes regulating the liquor trade. He will count the votes cast at last Thursday's election as soon as possible and proclaim the result at once. He will appoint a new Chief of State Police as soon as a satisfactory examination of the candidate can be concluded.

"Bring the Gun" Frightened Him.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 25.—Edward Dillencey, a negro, attempted by means of a ladder to enter a house in the suburbs, occupied by the widow Bergen and her two daughters. One of the daughters heard him and called to an imaginary person to "bring the gun." This frightened the negro, who fled, leaving his hat and shoes. He has since been captured and lodged in jail.

FATAL RACE FEUD.

Serious Trouble at Haverstraw, N.Y., Yesterday Afternoon.

HAVERSTRAW, N. J., June 25.—A gang of colored men and one of Hungarians engaged in a serious riot at Jones Point, yesterday afternoon, the result of which was the shooting of four Hungarians by the colored men.

The color line has been the occasion of bitter feeling, which found vent in two Huns attempting to drown a negro.

The latter's friend saw the attempt and went to his rescue.

While a number of Hungarians gathered to do battle for their two friends, a colored man named James Morton deliberately drew his revolver and fired seven shots, bringing down four of the Hungarians, one of whom was instantly killed.

Then the fight became general and knives and pistols were freely used.

Word was immediately sent to Haverstraw, and two officers and Coroner McGowan visited the scene, where Clark Ryder, Walter Deane, Frank Ling and Walter Davis were arrested and held as witnesses, while Morton, the man who did the shooting, made his escape.

This morning the colored men started to work in the brick yard, when the Huns turned out and with shouts of "Four niggers for one white man" drove them from the place.

Sheriff Shankey has been telegraphed for, as still further trouble is anticipated.

MEDICAL MEN IN SESSION.

The Fortieth Annual Convention of A. M. A. Meets To-Day a Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 25.—The fortieth annual convention of the American Medical Association opens here to-day. Two thousand physicians are expected with their families.

General meetings will be held at Music Hall; the section meetings in the Casino theatre, cafe, restaurant, reading-room, vacant stores and Channing parlors.

A large building has been erected near the Ocean House for the exhibits, of which over a quarter of million dollars worth are expected.

The Americand Medical Editors' Association, and the Association of Acting Assistant Surgeons of the United States Army meet to-night at the Casino.

The Rocky Mountain Medical Association consisting of the surviving members of the American Medical Association who crossed the "Rockies" in 1871 to attend the meeting at San Francisco meets to-morrow.

Medical Editors Meet.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 25.—The annual meeting of the Association of Editors of Medical Journals was held at the Casino last evening. Dr. Brodie of Detroit presided and a number of interesting papers on the proper methods of medical journalism were read. I. M. Love of St. Louis was elected President and J. L. Gray of Chicago Secretary for the ensuing year.

Yale Freshmen Object.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 25.—There is trouble concerning the Yale Freshmen cup race, and at a late hour last night it was not definitely known whether the race with the University of Pennsylvania Fresh men would take place or not. Yale claims that only two of the Pennsylvania crew are eligible to row; that the others are graduates from that or other colleges, and are what is termed "one year men." It is probable that Yale will finally contest with the Pennsylvania crew, but they will insist that they are not rowing against Freshmen.

Shoemakers' Strike Spreading.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., June 25.—The shoe workers, strike now affects all the shops in town, excepting that of H. J. Cady, who is said to have agreed to the old schedule, and his is the only shop running. The strikers, including the locked out men, number between 1,500 and 1,700. Negotiations by the Shoe-workers Executive Board are pending, but it is doubtful if any adjustment can be made, and the strike threatens to be long and disastrous to all concerned.

Englishmen Get Another Brewery.

NEWBURG, N. Y., June 25.—It is learned that the Vassar Brewery at Poughkeepsie is to be transferred to an English syndicate which has for some months been negotiating for its purchase. The brewery has earned half a dozen fortunes for its owners. It is now owned in great part by Oliver H. Booth, a gentleman in easy circumstances, who has not pushed the business beyond earning a good income.

Henry Ward Beecher's Brother Dead.

CHICAGO, June 25.—The Rev. William Henry Beecher, brother of Henry Ward Beecher, is dead, at the family residence, aged 87. His death was due mainly to advanced age. The funeral will be private. Interment will be made in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Boston.

Big Ride on a Bicycle.

BIDDEFORD, Me., June 25.—Enoch Townsead, of Saco, accomplished the feat of riding from Boston to Portland in a single day. He started 7 miles west of Boston at 5 a. m. and arrived in Portland at 8 p. m. in good condition. The distance traversed was about 112 miles.

Dedication at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 25.—The monument of the One Hundred and Twentieth New York Infantry will be dedicated this afternoon. Will Carleton, the poet, will take part in the exercises. About 145 members of the regiment arrived last night.

Long Litigation Ended.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 25.—The long-standing litigation among the stockholders of the Royal Baking Powder company was ended to day by a settlement out of court, Mr. Joseph C. Hoagland buying the interest of Wm. Ziegler for $3,500,000.

Secretary Noble Takes a Rest.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Secretary Noble to-day left for New Haven, to be absent four days. Assistant Secretary Chandler is acting as Secretary.

THE CRONIN MURDER

Fastening It Upon the Clan-na-Gael.

NEW INFORMATION AT HAND.

State's Attorney Longnecker Receives an Important Anonymous Letter.

How the Butchery of the Irish Physician Was Planned in Camp No. 20—All the Officers of That Camp Likely to Be Arrested—President Harrison Signs the Requisition for the Extradition of Burke.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Despite his vigorous denials to-day, it is positively known that State's Attorney Longnecker has received important information regarding the plot of which Dr. Cronin was the victim.

This information came to him in a letter unsigned, but which contained many statements outside of the main issue which convinced the official that it could be relied upon.

It states in effect that Cronin was tried in February by the inner circle of Camp 20, John F. Beggs, presiding: found guilty of being a British spy and sentenced to death. Instead of calling for volunteer "removers," lots were drawn, the name of every man present being written on slips of paper. The names of those selected were not made known at the meeting. The only one of the participants who had definite knowledge on this point was the man whose duty it became to notify those upon whom the choice had fallen.

This man, according to the letter, is John F. Beggs. The State's Attorney is moving heaven and earth to discover the writer and is willing to promise him immunity and ample protection if he will come forward.

The Grand Jury yesterday afternoon suddenly took up the Cronin case and issued an order for Beggs' appearance. Officers searched for him high and low but he could not be found.

Later the State's Attorney went before Judge Shepherd and secured an order directing Postmaster Sexton to produce before the Grand Jury all applications for money orders or registered letters and all other information which might have a bearing on the murder.

It is said that the police are on the track of some of the individuals that attended the trial and that Beggs will be arrested wherever found.

Luke Dillon is quoted as saying to-day that the police have another suspect under surveillance, of whom nothing yet has been said. He is a Californian, has a lucrative business and enjoys an excellent reputation. This man, who he believes is the original "Simonds," is, he says, the last man in the world that would be suspected of the crime.

The despatch from Rome via London to the effect that Archbishop Feehan had made a report on the Clan-na-Gael to the Vatican is characterized as sheer nonsense by Vicar-General Muldroon. The Church, he says, does not act as quickly as is thus indicated.

To Extradite Burke.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The President on his return from Cape May, last evening, signed the warrant for the extradition of Martin Burke. Owing to some technical requirements, however, the State's messenger was not able to leave with it last night.

Not Patrick Cooney.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Chief Hubbard this morning received a despatch from Frankfort, Ind., stating that the suspect held there was not Patrick Cooney, wanted here by the police.

Sore About Their Street Cars.

TRENTON, N. J., June 25.—The refusal of a street car driver to accept from a passenger fare which, in the absence of the conductor, is required to be deposited in the fare box led to a demonstration Sunday that it was feared would end in bloodshed. Valentine Pfledger was ejected with his wife, for refusing to comply with the rules, and set on by the car men and beaten unmercifully. The potters and iron workers are incensed and, 10,000 strong, vow vengeance on the street railroad. They vow to compel the company to abolish the box system and some lively developments are expected.

Bangor's Big Strike.

BANGOR, Me., June 25.—The employees of Gould, Hastings, Steers & Co's., mills to-day joined the men from the other saw mills, who struck last week for a reduction in working time from twelve hours a day to eleven hours. About five hundred men are out and five mills are idle. One hundred strikers visited D. Sargent and Son's mill the only one remaining and tried to induce the men to strike. Violent talk was made and Sheriff Fanham was called to disperse the crowds. Some of the mill owners are settling up with the men and no step toward a compromise has been taken.

Ready to Hang "Red Nose Mike."

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 25.—Preparations for the hanging of Michael Rizzolo, alias "Red Nose Mike," to-day were completed last night. Atkinson, the New York hangman, will act as executioner. The condemned man seems unaffected by the approach of the fatal hour. About 2,000 applications to the Sheriff for permission to see the hanging remain unacted upon, the Sheriff absenting himself from his office.

O'Connor Going to England.

TORONTO, June 25.—William O'Connor left for New York, where he will take the steamship Germanic to-morrow for England. He took his new Warren sheil with him, and, upon arriving in England, will at once go into training for his match with Searle.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—The Sunshine Mission Band held its regular monthly meeeting, yesterday.

—The Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., will give a reception at their rooms this evening.

—The preparatory lecture will be delivered in Crescent Avenue church, to-morrow evening, at eight o'clock.

—The strawberry harvest in this section is about over. The frequent rains damaged the crop considerably.

—The Johnstown survivors in speaking of their lost never once call them dead. Invariably they use the word "gone."

—The service of sacred song announced for next Sunday evening in Crescent Avenue church, has been indefinitely postponed.

—The Park avenue and Front street ball nines will play on the Crescents grounds to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

—Chief T. O. Doane's residence on West Fifth street has been equipped with a telephone instrument, and the Chief can now be communicated with by telephone. His number is 72.

—The Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of this State has issued a call for the aid of suffering brethren at Johnstown, and it has been nobly responded to by the subordinate lodges.

—A meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will be held in the office of Chief of Police T. J. Carey, on Monday evening next. A full attendance of the members is requested.

The mails from New York were considerably delayed, last evening, on account of the difficulty with the new switch system which the Central Railroad company is introducing into the "yard" at Jersey City.

—The members of the Cooking Class of the W. C. T. U. Kitchen Garden went on a picnic to the Short Hills, on Saturday. The children spent the day in harmless out-door amusements, and returned home late in the afternoon.

—The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, it is said, is utilizing every available car in its possession at the present time in the transportation of 150,000,000 bushels of corn from Buffalo to New York, under contract.

—"Vacation" articles are advertised at low prices at Edsall's, in another column. He says his assortment is very large, and he can furnish all necessary articles for mountain or seaside wear, in the best and most fashionable goods.

—"When a cinder enters one eye"—says an engineer—"rub the other eye, and let the suffering member have its rub by proxy. In a little while the cinder will pass out of the corner of the eye, and may easily be removed."

—The Lehigh Valley Railroad company has located and named a station on its branch between South Plainfield and Roselle, "Marcinear." The new station is located about one-quarter of a mile east of where the branch road crosses Park avenue.

—An esteemed reader writes that the 17-year locusts were around this part of the country not more than twelve years ago, hence it is almost too soon to look for them this Summer. But maybe the locusts expected will be another 17-year variety.

—Newspapers are often criticised for what they print, but if it were known how much credit they merit for what they don't print, or for the nonsense they whack out of what they do print, they would command a much more generous judgment.

—The Independent Social Club will give its first picnic, in T. A. B. Hall, during the afternoon and evening of July 4. There will be good music and dancing. The committee in charge is: S. Clouston, J. Sheehan, J. McNally, W. T. O'Conner, and P. McCourt.

—A good scraping and general cleaning of some of our streets would not be out of place; no doubt some sections would smell a great deal better in the heart of the city if such care were given them frequently during the heated term that is now upon us.

—In our cent-a-word column today is a notice to those fond of rifle practice. On July 22, three valuable prizes will be given away at the gallery, No. 20 East Front street, to those making the highest scores between now and July 22. Rules and regulations may be seen at the gallery.

A GRAND INSTRUMENT.

Inaugural Recital of the Midmer Organ Just Erected in the New Presbyterian Church.

Every seat of the 850 in Dr. Ketcham's new church, was filled last evening. It was the first time the edifice had been formally opened to the public, and the complimentary tickets issued were all used even if only because of curiosity to inspect the interior of the edifice. But, besides, fully half the audience were music-lovers who thoroughly appreciated the treat afforded by the inaugural concert of the new organ built for the church by Reuben Midmer & Son, of Brooklyn, who also built the instruments in the Jerusalem and the Anchor Lodge rooms.

The instrumentalists of the occasion were Messrs Frank Taft and Henry Eyre Brown, who had both been heard before at an opening concert on the Odell organ when it was first completed for the Crescent Avenue church. The vocalist was Miss Blanche Fellows, the leading soprano in St. Paul's Cathedral, Albany. She is a niece of Mr. J. M. Bettman of North Plainfield. The programme as published in THE PRESS, last week, was rendered as follows:

PART I.

Overture to the Occasional Oratorio.....Handel.
Toccata and Fugue in D. minor.....Bach.
Henry Eyre Brown.
Chant Religeuse—"O Sanctissima".....Lux.
Frank Taft.
"For My Soul Thirsteth for God".....Mendelssohn.
Miss Blanche Fellows.
a. Elsa's Brida March, "Lohengrin" } Wagner.
b. Pilgrim's Chorus, "Tannhauser" }
Frank Taft.
Sonata in D minor, op. 30, 3 movements..Merkel.
Henry Eyre Brown.

PART II.

Grand Toccata in F.....Bach.
Thunder Storm..... Adapted by Taft.
Frank Taft.
"In dreams I've heard the seraphs."..J. Faure.
Miss Blanche Fellows.
Adagio, 2d Symphony.....Schuman.
Finale, 5th Organ Symphony.....Widor.
Henry Eyre Brown.
Offertoire de Ste Cecile.....Batiste.
Frank Taft.

Miss Fellows' singing was especially pleasing. Her selections were well suited for the display of her voice, and the way they were rendered evidenced her faultless training. Her method in every particular is perfect, and her voice is rich and sweet. She received an enthusiastic recall—the only encore of the evening that was persisted in.

Mr. Taft and Mr. Browne have already been criticised in these columns, and are, besides, so well known now that nothing new can be said of them. Mr. Taft again proved what a brilliant and showy player he is, and how unrivalled he stands in ability and skill to display the solo effects and novel combinations of a church organ. As usual he was the more enjoyed of the two. Mr. Browne's selections were mainly beyond the appreciation—not to mention the comprehension—of at least three-quarters of his audience.

The organ is a grand one, and the public will join in the hope that frequent opportunity to hear it, will be granted them. It comprises three manuals and pedals, and has 2,004 speaking pipes. Its case designed by Architect Teale and built by Mr. John Chandler, is very handsome.

Death of Mr. Rudolphus MacDonald.

A telegram was received in this city today announcing the death, at Asbury Park, this morning, of Mr. Rudolphus MacDonald of this city, from rheumatic fever. Mr. MacDonald was about 65 years of age. Of late he enjoyed only moderate health, and about ten days ago, in company with his wife, he went to Asbury Park and registered at the "Bristol," where his death occurred this morning.

Mr. MacDonald came to this city and started in the grocery business in 1856, in the building on East Front street, now occupied by his son, Mr. J. Fred Mac Donald. He continued in active business until March 20th last, when he retired. Mr. MacDonald had held the office of Cnmmissioner of Appeal for many years past.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed. The remains will be brought to this city, today.

Prohibition Convention.

The Prohibition voters of the State have been notified, by a call issued, to meet in their townships and wards and choose delegates to their County Conventions. By a resolution of the State Central Committee, it was requested that in County Conventions delegates be chosen to a State Convention, to be held in the Grand Opera House at Asbury Park on Thursday, July 18, at 3 P. M., and continue two days. Said convention is for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor to be supported at the ensuing election, and for such other business as may be brought before it.

—The dog-catcher reports a total of four unmuzzled dogs gathered in yesterday.

—The year 1889 will live in history as the year of unparalleled calamities by fire and water.

—The city fund for the relief of the Johnstown sufferers, was enriched today $33.45, the result of the entertainment recently given in Reform Hall by Mizpah Lodge, United Order of Independent Odd Ladies.

—The fourth lecture on inspired church history will be delivered this evening, at 7:45 in the Hall over the Dime Savings Institution, No. 6 East Front street. Subject—"Pergamos: The Church united to the World." Rev. 2:12-17. All are cordially invited.

—Drink Moy's Soda. None better.

Public School Matters.

President Kirkner and Messrs J. W. Murray and L. F. Wadsworth, constituting a quorum of the Board of Education met in special session in the Franklin building, last evening, and finished up the school business for the year.

Mr. Murray, from the Building Committee, reported that the new building has been thoroughly examined and was ready for acceptance by the Board. He made a motion which prevailed, that the new school building be accepted, and the balance on the contracts paid. He further stated that the difficulty with the well at the Monroe school was not the fault of the contractor, and all that was necessary was a little pumping before the water was offered the pupils for drinking purposes. The well was accepted, and the bill for the same was ordered paid. The bill for the furniture was also ordered paid.

In the event of a deficiency in the Building fund to meet the remainder due the contractors on the new building, the clerk was authorized to draw from the general fund to meet said deficiency.

Mr. Murray made a preliminary report for Mr. Babcock who was absent, on the matter of connecting the High and Franklin schools with a new system of heating, at a cost of about $2,600. The matter was referred to Messrs Babcock and Murray for investigation, they to report to the Board at a subsequent meeting.

Upon motion of Mr. Wadsworth, Janitor Mattox of Music Hall was authorized to expend a sum not to exceed $7 for decorations for commencement night.

The President stated that on account of the State Normal School exercises taking place on the same evening, State Superintendent Chapman would be unable to attend the graduating exercises in this city. He said that Mr. F. X. Schoonmaker would deliver the address on Thursday evening.

Miss Bulkley was present and reported that upwards of $300 had been received for tuition fees.

Some discussion followed on the subject of increasing the musical instructor's salary, but the request for an increase was not granted.

A claim of Mr. Wm. M. Smith for diplomas was ordered paid, and the Board adjourned.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. D. Godfrey Atwood, dental surgeon, has removed his offices to 15 East Front street.

Mr. Frank Vosseller of Broadway will start for Chicago on Monday next where he will permanently locate.

Miss Dora Onderdonk, now of Philadelphia, has been visiting former school mates and neighbors in this city.

Mr. James Frazee of East Second street was presented yesterday morning by his wife, with a baby girl. Mother and child are both doing well.

Mr. "Charley" Smith of Front and Somerset streets is the happy father of a bouncing baby girl. The little one arrived yesterday, and weighs 'teen pounds.

James T. McElroy, M. D., died, this morning, in the 34th year of his age, at his home, 28 GrandView avenue, where he has been living for the past three months. He leaves a widow, the granddaughter of the late 'Squire James Verdon, of Somerset street.

The standing of Miss Louise B. Runyon in the High School class of '89, was so high that it was almost an utter impossibility to decide between her and Miss Ella U. Osborne in making the appointment of valedictorian. The fact that the latter was ultimately chosen, does not imply that Miss Runyon's scholarship was less praiseworthy.

The many friends of Mr. Randolph Dunham, will be sorry to learn of his misfortune in being very badly hurt by a horse about four weeks ago. Dr. Fritts has daily attended him, as the case is worse than a fracture, being diseased at the bone. Mr. Dunham is the father of Surveyor F. A. Dunham and O. M. Dunham of Front street, this city.

Put Out in Time.

Fire started in the chimney of Mr. George A. Moore's residence, on East Front street, Saturday evening, but was discovered in time to save the house.

About half-past ten o'clock Mrs. Moore smelled the burning soot, and sent word to Mr. Moore at his place of business on North avenue. With the assistance of Mr. James Heath, the fire was put out before much damage had be done. Had it started later in the night, or when the house was empty, there might have been a total loss.

George Thatcher, the Minstrel, Receives a Surprise.

The Leadville, Col., Herald of Saturday, June 15, says: "As the 'Second Edition' came on in the first part at the Tabor Opera House last night a gentleman surmounted the footlights and approaching George Thatcher, presented him with an elegant solitare diamond bosom pin. The minstrel was taken by surprise. The pin was a gift of Joseph Gavin, of the Board of Trade."

Italians Go On Strike.

The Italian laborers employed in building the new race track of the Linden Park Horse Association near Elizabeth, struck yesterday on account of an Italian who was appointed foreman. The Italians have all been paid off.

—A colored woman was seen on her knees praying, on the sidewalk on West Second street, a few evenings since. She attracted considerable attention.

SATURDAY'S TROTTING.

An Increased Attendance Over the Preceding Week—Some Exciting Heats in Saturday's Races.

There was an increased attendance at the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association on Saturday afternoon, at the second in Summer series of trotting contests which are to take place there during the present season. The track was in excellent condition, and some good time was made. The judges were Messrs. J. W. Johnson, O. T. Waring and Nate Robbins, the latter of Metuchen.

In the first race to harness there were three entries, viz. John Osborn's "Marcinear," John Hayes' "Andy" and Wm. Van Syckle's "Sag Wah." The first named horse won two straight heats, with "Andy" second. Time 2:57 and 2:51½.

The next heat was the deciding one in the unfinished race between Nate Robbins' handsome black horse, "Metuchen Boy," and Geo. B. Bascomb's "Harry." The two first heats were trotted two weeks ago, each horse winning a heat, "Metuchen Boy" trotting the mile in 2:57 and "Harry" in 2:56. Mr. Robbins' horse won the deciding heat in 2:55, and this time would have been considerably lowered, if "Metuchen Boy" was pushed.

Mr. A. C. Vail drove his horse "Betsy Bobbitt" against "Ed." Waring's "Ledger Boy" in a mile heat to wagon, owners driving. "Betsy Bobbitt" crossed the line at 2:45½, thus winning the heat.

Ex-Councilman O. T. Waring drove his horse "Copeland" to wagon, the fastest on the track this season, making the half mile in 1:17½.

There were other "spurts" but the time was not recorded.

NEW MARKET NEWS.

Big Bass Waiting—A Malicious Mail Catcher.

The bass seem to be very plentiful in Spring Lake, several handsome specimens having been carried away by sports from Plainfield, Bergen Point and Elizabeth. The finest one was 21½ inches long, weighing 5 pounds, and there are lots left to hook, yet.

The mail catcher seem to be in anything but good working order, one mail pouch was torn in two, and upon another occasion it failed to catch the bag. The agent on the train should use more care in throwing off the mail, otherwise he should be reported.

The Postmaster-General sent a special agent to inquire into the justice of the claim of a large number of our citizens in relation to the undesirable location of the postoffice, and it is probable another expression of opinion will accompany any report that may result from the investigation.

The department should heed the voice of the people, when such a pronounced majority asking redress are steadfast followers and supporters of the administration.

Entertainment at Reform Hall.

A musical and literary entertainment was held at Reform Hall, last evening, for the benefit of the Washingtonville chapel fund. The attendance was fair, and everything passed of smoothly. Among the artists announced to take part were Mr. J. R. LaForrest of New York, Elocutionist; Mr. Stringer, the bass soloist of the Orpheus Society of Newark; the Misses Totten, Baxter, Smith and others, of Newark; Mrs. Dr. VanDegrift of New York and Mrs. B. Luersen, and others of this city.

The programme as arranged was as follows:

Tennis by Mixed Doubles.

As the tennis tournament held at Mr. I. W. Rushmore's was so great a success, it has been decided to have another tournament. This contest will be played by "mixed doubles," and on the Central avenue courts, on Saturday the 29th inst.

As the object is to increase the building fund of the Y. M. C. A., it is earnestly hoped that all friends of the above Association, and the tennis-loving part of the community, will be well represented at this great contest.

Thule Picnic.

The Scandinavian Beneficial Association of this city, held a picnic, Saturday evening, at the Sixth Corps camp grounds on the mountain back of North Plainfield, where the white flag flies. The dancing was in charge of Floor Manager—C. Anderson; Ass't Floor Manager—F. Tideman, and Floor Committee, A. Johnston and J. Molander. Everybody present had a nights enjoyment.

—Wm. Stein, New Market: Was wounded in the war, and has had bad headaches ever since. Six months ago I got Dr. Dam's Remedy, and have been well ever since.

Another Newspaper Man From Plainfield.

Albert C. Phillips, son of General Manager Phillips of The United Press, who formerly resided at Broadway and Ninth street, this city, begins the publication of the Adirondack Mountaineer this week. The young man has been living at Saranac Lake, N. Y., since he left Plainfield, where he is being prepared for college by a tutor, and he has decided to launch a weekly newspaper to employ himself in his spare moments.

He has already contributed to the daily press quite freely, and has at different times been employed by The United Press. He is in his eighteenth year and has demonstrated his ability to write to an extent which indicates that he has in him the material for the making of a first-class editorial writer.

How Long John Assesses Westfield's Dogs.

"Nice dog you've got there, Mr. Reporter. Setter?"

"Yes."

"Yours?"

"Yes."

"That acknowledgement costs you just 25 cents," and the ubiquitous John M. C. Marsh, the gifted and painstaking assessor, constable, surveyor, insurance agent, auctioneer, correspondent, etc., etc., ad infinitum, made an entry in a big black book, and walked off to assess the weather-cock on Mr. W. Miller's new barn, and to make a poll tax on the strength of Dominie Cadwell's young Republican, and to hunt up a wooden Indian to assess under the head of idols.—Standard.

A Suburban Concert.

The second private concert of the Evona Vocal Club, of this city, will be held this evening in the Dunellen Presbyterian church. The programme will be an extensive one, and the rehearsal last evening assured the entire success of it.

The Club will be assisted by: Miss Bella L. Watson, soprano; Miss Edith Tuttle, contralto; Mr. Robert Schreyvogel, tenor; Mr. Wm. T. Angel, baritone; Miss Jessie Utter, pianist; Mrs. Kate C. Conant, musical directress and Miss Margie Atkinson, accompanist.

The officers of the Club are: President, Mr. R. J. Shaw; Vice President, Mr. C. W. Oley, Secretary, Mr. P. Rupp, M. D.; Treasurer, Mr. J. Fowlsr Pound; Librarian, Miss Elizabeth G. East.

Many Trains Late on the Central.

Incoming travellers on the New Jersey Central Railroad were considerably delayed yesterday morning. The main line was at one time filled with standing trains from the Communipaw depot to the Newark Junction at Communipaw station. Many of the travellers walked from the junction to the ferry. At the big station fifteen to twenty trains were standing at one time waiting to back out. All the annoyance was owing to the first trial of the new switch system completed yesterday. Evidently the operators had not learned their duties or the system was defective.

Westfield Bowlers Crying for Pie.

The Westfield Standard says: "Westfield bowlers complain that they were not allowed to enter the contest for the prizes at Plainfield. If they had been, it is probable that they would have captured all the prizes, as the highest score made was only 153 pins. Second and third prizes were won on a tie of 152 pins."

The contest was a private match arranged between twenty Plainfield bowlers who each chipped a dollar for three prizes to make the competition interesting. The Westfield bowlers were very impertinent if they complained.

Behind the Times.

We understand, says the Hunterdon County Democrat, that the town of Somerville receives the money obtained from licenses granted to its drinking places, under the Werts bill. What is the reason that Flemington cannot do the same? The license fees collected here go into the county treasury. It is worth the time of our Board of Street Commissioners to inquire into this matter. A few more dollars here would be an advantage to our streets.

Honors for Chauncey Shaffer.

At the Commencement of the Fort Wayne College of Indiana, the degree of Doctor of Laws (LL.D.) was conferred upon Chauncey Shaffer, Esq., of this city. Mr. Shaffer is a graduate of Wesleyan University of the class of 1838.

KIDNAPPED FROM BROOKLYN.

Two Little Girls Taken to Chautauqua and Abandoned.

MAYVILLE, N. Y., June 25.—Mamie Tarrarria and Daisy Sadler, the latter of 276 Gold street, Brooklyn, aged respectively 12 and 13 years, are here in the custody of Sheriff Case, who has notified the parents and has received a despatch saying they would come for the children.

The girls say they were met in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, by a strange woman, who asked them if they did not want to go to Chautauqua; that it was only a little ways, and they would get back that night. They consented.

When they arrived in Buffalo the woman placed them on a train for Mayville on Chautauqua Lake and then went out to find an acquaintance and did not return. The girls had tickets for Lakewood.

When they arrived at Mayville the girls said they had had nothing to eat for twenty-four hours. They are bright and intelligent.

Lost in a Strawberry Patch.

BURLINGTON, N. J., June 25.—Mrs. Burnham, mother-in-law of Thomas McMahon, lost a roll of bills amounting to $60 a few days ago while picking strawberries, and all search failed to discover the bills. About two weeks after the loss William Wilde, a young man, went in to mow weeds around the strawberry patch; while so engaged his machine was stopped by some obstruction and an investigation showed the roll of bills on top of the machine. The roll was intact and was returned to Mrs. Burnham in perfect condition.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Egan's Appointment Denounced.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 25.—The Buffalo branch of the British-American association have passed resolutions denouncing the appointment of Patrick Egan as Minister to Chili, as "insulting to the sense of decency." It is declared that Mr. Egan's conduct is under investigation by British justices, and that he is not a creditable representative of the American people.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS

The War-Cloud Rising Above the Horizon.

A FRANCO-RUSSIAN ALLIANCE

Two of the Czar's Emissaries Have Just Departed from Paris.

The Contingency of a War Between Austria and Russia, in Which Germany Might Become Involved, Freely Discussed — Meantime Russia Is Putting Herself in a State of Defense—Items of Interest from London and the Continent.

LONDON, June 25.—Two eminent Russian generals left Paris last evening for St. Petersburg as quietly as they had come a week ago and it turns out that they came entrusted with a most important diplomatic mission.

These are General Annenkoff and Gen. Vannoffsky, the Russian War Minister, and it is asserted that their visit to Paris was to ascertain on what terms a political and military co-operation with France could be arranged without the conclusion of the Franco-Russian Alliance.

It is understood that the visit was made at the suggestion of M. Spuller, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, and it is certain that M. Spuller and the two Russians had frequent interviews during the visit of the latter.

The contingency of a Russo-Austrian war in which Germany might become involved was freely discussed, and according to the Parisian press, the two Generals left Paris entirely satisfied with the result of their mission.

Russia Fortifying Herself.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 25.—The Government is about to issue a new loan for the purpose of building several fortresses and strategic railways. The semi-official press daily indulges in attacks upon Italy. The Czar goes out of his way to snub M. de Marochetti, the Italian Ambassador, and misses no opportunity for so doing. At the last State ball he purposely ignored the Ambassador's presence and when the latter placed himself in the Czar's way so that it was impossible to avoid him, the Czar gave him the coldest possible greeting.

The Viscount Had to Pay.

LONDON, June 25.—Phillis Broughton will no longer trouble her wayward lover. Viscount Dangan and she may again delight London audiences with her dancing. It is learned that the Viscount has settled her breach of promise suit against him by paying the lady £2,500 and costs.

The Armagh Disaster.

DUBLIN, June 25.—The five railway officials who were arrested charged with responsibility for the Armagh railroad disaster have been committed for trial.

DENMARK HONORS MURRELL.

King Christian's Testimonial Given the Gallant Life Saver at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 25.—Mr. Harold Jackson, the Danish Consul at this port, transmitted to-day to Captain Hamilton Murrell, of the steamship Missouri, the insignia of Knighthood of the Order of Dannebrog, conferred upon him in recognition of his noble rescue of the people on the unfortunate steamship Denmark. There was a large party on board, and the Consul said that His Majesty desired him to convey to Captain Murrell his most gracious thanks for his heroic act.

Captain Murrell mentioned that while in London Lord Salisbury, in a communication to him relative to this matter, said that the British Crown would not grant permission to him to wear it, but by way of postscript he added that there was, however, no penalty.

Honored by the Pope.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The cross of the Order of the Golden Spur, conferred upon Chevalier Josef Jerzmanowski by the Pope, was presented to that gentleman last evening by Father Mahoney, of Brooklyn, in the presence of a select few of the Chevalier's invited friends. This is the first time the cross has been conferred in America. The Order is a very ancient and distinguished one and the cross is conferred only for military distinction obtained in battle or for great services to mankind. The Chevalier, who is now in business in New York, was an officer in the Polish rebellion and afterward gained fame as a civil engineer in France.

Charged with Poisoning.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 25.—Edward Glynn and wife, of Pittston, have been arrested charged with having administered poison to Mrs. Mary Craighau, of Scranton, who died a few days ago. It is charged that the prisoners poisoned her in order to secure an insurance of $500 which she carried upon her life. Some startling developments are expected in connection with this case, as it is stated that Glynn's father and mother and Mrs. Glynn's first husband all died suddenly after having their lives insured.

Where Is Judge Lynch?

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 25.—Thomas Gavan, a dissolute young man, demanded money of his widowed mother yesterday afternoon, and upon her refusing to give him any he beat her about the head with a hammer. He then poured kerosene on the floor and set fire to the house. Neighbors managed to rescue the unfortunate woman, who is very seriously injured. Gavan is in custody.

A Comet Discovered.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 25.—A telegram just received by Prof. Lewis Swift, of the Warner Observatory, from Prof. Barnard, of the Lick Observatory, announcing the discovery by the latter of a faint comet early this morning nearly midway between Beta, or Gamma Andromeda. The comet is new and unexpected. It is moving slowly northeast.

His Sight Restored.

WATERBURY, Conn., June 25.—John McDonald, who has just recovered from a temporary illness, has regained his eyesight, of which he had been deprived for more than thirty years. During his sickness he felt snapping pains in his head and eyes.

Forged His Father's Name.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Henry A. Maas aged 19, son of A. H. Maas, a prominent manufacturer of chemicals, was arrested to-day for swindling Tiffany & Co. and other firms by means of checks to which his father's name was forged.

HIS WIFE SAVED HIS LIFE.

Neil Burgess Terribly Injured by an Explosion of Gasoline.

HIGHLANDS, N. J., June 25.—Neil Burgess, of the "County Fair" company, met with a horrible accident at his handsome cottage yesterday afternoon. He was trying the effect of gasoline on an expensive rug, and fearing some accident would happen if the old rags used in the cleaning were left about he concluded to burn them. His clothing had been spattered by the fluid and when the flames shot up from the rag fire his shirt was ablaze in an instant.

To smother the flames he grasped the rug and wrapped it around him, when it also caught fire. His trousers caught fire at the same time, and, but for the bravery and presence of mind of his wife, who threw her shawl around him and held it down while it smothered the flames, he would have been burned to death.

A physician was hurridly sent for, and on examination Mr. Burgess was found to be terribly burned about the arms and legs. His eyebrows were burned off, as well as his eyelashes, but he had the presence of mind through all the suffering he endured, to shield his eyes and face with his arms. The physician remained with him all night. No doubt is expressed about his speedy recovery.

The fire caught in the fence and burned part of it down, but it was put out before it did any other damage.

EVIDENCES OF DISASTER.

What of the City of Rome, the Victoria and Haytien Republic?

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., June 25.—The sea for the past week has been casting upon these islands evidences of some ocean disaster. Last week J. H. Smith found a steamer's yawl on the south beach of Martha's Vineyard. Skipper N. N. Bourse yesterday picked up off Fishing Rip, the starboard, or green light of a steamer attached to its board and a camp chair.

Rufus Smith, of Edgartown, to-day found a bundle of women's clothing, evidently done up in great haste and bound with a shawl strap. No name or any clue of the owner could be found. A life preserver that came off the City of Rome was also picked up to-day.

George Huxford reports from Tuckernuck that some trunks were washed ashore on this island. Two dead bodies have washed in to this harbor during the past week. Lots of wreckage painted green and slate colors, coming ashore. The following wreckage was washed ashore at Smith's Point, west side of Nantucket Island, to-day: Gilt mouldings in considerable quantities, one large door with three ground glass circular top-light, one window-sash, evidently belonging to some steamer; also steamer Victoria bills of lading.

The President's Homeward Journey.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—The train bearing the President and General Sewell arrived at Camden at 3:10 p. m., and was met by Postmaster-General Wanamaker and Mr. Thomas F. Dolan. The party were driven in Mr. Wanamaker's carriage to the ferryboat and on reaching this city were driven to the Manufacturers' club, whose building the President inspected. He promised to attend a reception which the club will tender him next fall. The party were then driven to the Pennsylvania Railroad station, where they entered a private car attached to the Washington express, which left at 3:50 p. m. for Washington.

A Clear Case of Larceny.

TROY, N. Y., June 25.—A man about 30 years of age giving his name as E. L. Emerson presented on June 21 a check for $25 on the Union bank at Rochester at the counter of the Bank of Skaneateles, N. Y. It was discovered that the check was a forgery and the man was arrested and the money recovered. He was held for the Grand Jury and the bank has a clear case against him. The prisoner's name is thought to be E. L. Warren. It is understood that he is wanted by the Rochester police.

Melville's Circus Stranded.

BIDDEFORD, Me., June 25.—An attachment has been hanging over Melville's circus ever since it pitched its tents in Saco last Monday. The company has been showing here several days in the hope of earning a sufficient amount of money to raise the attachment. Receipts have not covered expenses, and the showmen are deeper in debt than when they arrived. They cannot raise money enough to leave town and the company is liable to disband.

She Is Insane.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Mrs. Wilhemina Schoop, charged with being accessory to the murder by her husband of Andrew Schilling, was arraigned for trial yesterday but her counsel declaring his belief that she was insane, a jury was impanelled who took evidence on that point and rendered a verdict of insanity, and Judge Wilson thereupon committed the woman to the Norristown insane asylum.

The "Lightning Calculator" is Guilty.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The trial of George B. Dean, the "Lightning Calculator," for obtaining $1,200 from the Rev. George H. Chappelle, a Methodist minister, in a game of faro, was concluded to-day. The jury was out ten minutes and brought in a verdict of guilty of grand larceny in the first degree. Dean was remanded until Thursday for sentence.

Pittsburg's New Masonic Temple.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 25.—The new Masonic temple was formally dedicated with impressive Masonic rites yesterday. The officers of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania were present and conducted the ceremonies. Last evening a reception and banquet was tendered to the officials of the Grand Lodge in the banquetting hall in the temple.

Connecticut's Revenue Collector.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 25.—It is said that at a meeting of the Connecticut Senators and Congressmen Saturday John I. Hutchinson, High Sheriff of Middlesex county, was selected for Internal Revenue Collector for Connecticut to succeed Alexander Troup, and his name has been sent to Secretary Windom.

Collision on the Erie.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., June 25.—Erie express train No. 2 ran into a pusher engine at the Summit near Susquehanna. Both engines were badly wrecked and Henry Green, engineer of the express, and the head brakeman of the forward train were baely injured. None of the passengers were hurt.

Bishop Keane's Successor.

BOSTON, June 25.—A despatch from Rome says that Very Rev. A. Van de Vyver, administrator of the diocese of Richmond, Va., has been nominated Bishop of that see to succeed Bishop Keane, now rector of the Catholic University.

SNAKE CHARMING.

Some Interesting Information from a Missouri Observer.

Three different incidents of snakes charming birds have fallen under my own observation, writes a New Madrid (Mo.) correspondent of the St. Louis Republic. Once I saw a bluejay charmed by what is commonly known as the "blue racer" snake. The next instance was a redbird charmed by a "blue racer," and the next was a "catbird" charmed by a "cow-sucker." As these snakes are classed as non-poisonous, they could not have bitten the birds and then quietly awaited their death, as some very learned gentleman has stated in your paper. In the first case the bird was in an apple tree, some ten or twelve feet from the ground, when its attention was first arrested. The other two were somewhat under the influence of the snake's charm when first observed. I would judge that it takes from one to two hours for a snake to bring a bird completely under the spell, which they can most certainly do if not disturbed after the bird's attention is once gained.

I have never seen a snake charm a frog, though I have seen them catch frogs often. They are more than a match for the frogs in a foot race; consequently they have frog legs to eat whenever they wish, provided the frogs can be found. The greatest trouble is to swallow the frog after catching him. The frog is swallowed heels first. Whether this is a preference on the part of the snake or whether it is because this is the first part overtaken and laid hold of, I do not know. When caught the poor frog cries out in the most pitiful terror. Then the struggle of life and death begins, with determined animal instinct on the part of the snake; nay, I might say with devilish triumph—for he knows that victory is sure in the end—and almost human horror on the frog's part. The instant a snake seizes a hind leg it is swallowed, and the hard part of the job is to get hold of the other leg without releasing the one he already has. The frog soon finds it useless to struggle to release the leg already swallowed by the snake, and seems to realize that its only hope is to keep the leg that is free out of that horrible mouth which has such wonderful suction power. I once saw a garter snake push a frog over thirty yards endeavoring to force the leg of the frog that was free against some obstruction, that it might get a hold upon that also. It finally succeeded, and the struggle was soon over after that. When both hind legs are once in the snake's power a deeper horror seems to take possession of the poor little creature who has battled so hard for life; its eyes dilate with terror and assume a glassy stare, its whole body is stupefied, paralyzed with an awful dread of its impending fate. The snake does not swallow, it crawls over its prey. It does so by means of strongly contracting muscles in the throat.

BROUGHT TO TIME.

A Scene That Was as Intensely Dramatic as It Was Enjoyable.

Never did the heroine of a play receive such sympathy from her spectators as was accorded the leading lady of a little scene enacted at a hotel one recent evening, says the Detroit Commercial Advertiser. During the afternoon an attractive couple entered the hotel. The young man was about twenty-five years of age. He appeared out of place in the hostelry. The most showy feature of his attire was a huge white necktie. The young lady was taller and more portly than her companion and possessed a very ruddy complexion.

To a casual observer it was evident that both were from the country and that they were about to take part in an event of great importance to them. The young man approached the clerk and said he wanted to register "Fred Hastings and friend."

Mr. Clerk dipped his pen in ink when his guest exclaimed: "Hold on, you needn't write that. You wait an hour and I'll write that different."

He ordered a cab and drove to the house of a preacher, returning in about an hour.

"Now I'll register," he said, as he smiled broadly, and wrote "Fred Hastings and Wife" with a big W.

The newly-married gentleman then joined Mrs. Hastings in the reception-room. He was not seen again until 6 o'clock, when he skated across the rotunda like a man on rollers. He was brimful of happiness combined with other good things. It seems that he had surreptitiously crooked his elbow many times during the afternoon and the last "geeser" was telling.

Standing in the center of the rotunda he pulled a large wad of money from his inside pocket and declared he intended to "blow" it all in. This was Mrs. Hasting's cue, and she emerged from the reception-room and walked straight to her hubby. In silence she gazed fiercely at him for a few seconds.

The spectators, and there were many, looked on and wondered. The suspense was broken by the leading lady, who, with a swoop, grabbed her bad-acting husband by the arm.

"Come on," she ordered. "You are married now and you can't cut up any monkey shines with me."

Meekly he followed the "man of the house" to the elevator, and they were soon lost to sight. The scene was intensely dramatic and hugely enjoyed.

FOOLED HIS BISHOP.

How a Clergyman Took Advantage of His Spiritual Superior.

A good story is told of one of the most popular clergymen in a city not one hundred miles from Brooklyn. He is a pleasant, genial man, and on a certain evening in every week a few of his brother priests meet at the rectory and they spend together an hour or two in a social way. Some curmudgeon in the neighborhood, happening to get a glimpse through the blinds at a bottle and glasses and the smoke of cigars and to hear the sounds of cheerful laughter, though it behooved him to let the Bishop know what was going on. Thereupon he wrote to that distinguished functionary, of course greatly exaggerating what he had seen and heard. The worthy priest got wind of this in some mysterious way and was on his guard. One night while he and his friends were enjoying themselve a ring came to the door. Going up-stairs to the second floor the good father saw a brougham of familiar build standing outside. Raising the window he looked down and discovered the Bishop on the stoop.

"Who's there!" he asked.

"It's I, the Bishop," was the reply.

"Oh, go along! Your an impostor," said the priest. "The Bishop is a decent gentleman, and would never be roaming around the streets at this time of night. Be off with you at once, or I'll call for the police and have you taken in as a suspicious character."

With that he banged down the window and went back to his friends. The Bishop paid no more late visits to the rectory, and the pleasant weekly symposium continued

A North Carolina Heroine.

In Lenoir, N. C., a child, Hattie Rainey, saved a small railroad bridge from destruction not long ago. She discovered it ablaze, and carried water in her felt hat from the stream below, making several trips before the flames were extinguished.

PURCHASE A HOME.

The Personal Independence That Is Inculcated by Housekeeping.

"Will it be wise?"

"Yes," replied the elderly man, "it will be wise for you, because, if you try, you will persevere."

I agree, adds a writer in the New York Weekly. And working-men, clerks and others of moderate incomes, let me tell you why, prefacing it with the remark that I have consulted with some of the best advisers that I could find, during several weeks past.

A home for which you agree to pay a moderate price to-day, if wisely located near a large or small city, is sure to increase in value on your hands. Suburban lands have not yet begun to show Americans the figures they will show. When one hundred and seventy-five millions of people fill America, as they will during a lifetime from this, land is to be the most valuable thing here. You will be more likely to save money to pay the full debt, provided you have not purchased by too small a payment down to have a reasonable glimpse of daylight ahead. If your home is pleasant to your family, the argument for economy is pleasing and popular with all the household. "Remember the mortgage. Let us get the house clear," will seem a less irksome caution than "Let's put by something for a rainy day." Your sense of unity in the struggle will be constant. All at it, and always at it, will be not only a thrifty domestic motto but will be a band of love; mutual burdens and sacrifices make affections, unless they become exasperating by severity.

There is a certain personal independence that is inculcated by householding that can be grown from no other soil. At least it runs in the Anglo-Saxon blood to love an acre all one's own. I am not now to be understood as raising any mooted question as to the private ownership of land. I am only saying that a mechanic or operative who lives under his own roof feels more independent, he has more of the self-consequence of citizenship, than the dweller "in his own hired house." There is a firmness in the tread of one's own door-step, there is a welcome in the snap of one's own front door-catch, a security in turning one's own key when he lies down to sleep, that no rented room can give. If one pays his tax, he is a little monarch on his own floor. If his children smash a glass or scratch the wall, whose business is it? If the baby cries loudly, well, the good neighbors are to be commiserated perhaps, but there is no one to pound on the floor above or growl at you through the janitor. You are the lord of all you survey, and your noble spouse, broken in her sleep in vain attempts to hush the child and spare the breadwinner, is the only one you care to pity.

Owning your own house, you become an internal part of the school district, the voting precinct, the vicinage. There is nothing that concerns the neighborhood that is not your concern. The highway, the gutter, the sanitation, the abatement of a nuisance, the building of a new library, the payment of the church debt, the character of the boys who associate with your boys, and girls that your boys may fall in love with. You are a fixture; you are of the soil. You are an essential part of the town, and always a counsellor for good and wholesome things. Being permanent, you brook no abiding evil; let the evils get out, for you and yours are not to be driven out by them. You change places with life's annoyances. Heretofore the annoyances have said to you: "If you do not like us, why move." Now you reverse the order. "No, move you!" The effect on a man's mind is wonderful. The evils of life have driven us with a whip, from boarding-house to flat, from village to city, up and down. Evil has seemed a tyrant. We were the transient and flitting. Now, owning a home, you stiffen with the authority of a master. You drive away evil—you seek to, at any rate; you plot not to dodge an evil, but to annihilate it. You confront miserable things, and command: "Turn! Retreat! I am anchored. I'll think of you as transient."

The mental effect is seen all through a man's life habit. This bad practice of pulling up and flying from things we do not like—a practice that makes short tenures of clerkships and hire—is changed. He who owns a home does not take offense at trifles and fly off the handle. He knows full well that he can not now afford to get mad and flounce out of a good position on every slight provocation of an employer's unreasonable demand or temper. He must exercise self-control. He goes home to sleep over his anger, and as his pleasant door-yard smiles on him it seems to chide him. The very front gate begs him: "Be patient. Am I not worth many insults?" The bed, in his own familiar room, the room where his children were born, and perhaps where the baby boy breathed his last, speaks all so eloquently of patience, of forbearance, and charity. How many a roving nature has been changed to settled habitude and persevering purpose by the matchless persuasion of one's own home. "My own Home, bless God and please God, I will suffer long before I will lightly leave thee."

In time the house owner becomes a lot owner in the cemetery on the village hill. There, with the wall of marble head-stones smiling to the church spires, there he and his children often stroll on Sunday evenings, when the lengthening shadows creep across the glebe. There, on the well-kept mounds, repose the flowers that loving hands keep fresh, flowers that grow from the soil of your own home lot, flowers whose roots the living children plant in May, whose stocks they cut for the dead children in July. Near by the church you love, the familiar place in the old sanctuary, where your boy first slept through services, whither the same whiskered boy returns in after years to sit beside your gray hairs.

Owning your own house your neighbors have learned to love you by the memory of scenes of cheer at your table, year after year. You have watched with their sick, as they have with yours, you have been to their weddings, as they to yours. The house is you; it grows to look like you; it is your monument of years of tastes peculiarly your own.

I wish you well of your struggle, reader. God help you to pay off the last cent of the mortgage. I can not see your face, but I encourage you. Be patient, be strong. You will succeed at last.

A Slightly Mixed Letter.

The London Spectator, pursuing its researches into Irish bulls, prints the following supposed letter of an Irish gentleman to his son at school, written by John Brougham, the Irish actor and dramatist: "I write to send you two pairs of my old breeches that you may have a new coat made out of them. Also some new socks that your mother has just knit by cutting down some of mine. Your mother sends you ten dollars without my knowledge, but for fear you may not spend it wisely I have kept back one-half, and only send you five dollars. Your mother and I are well, except your sister has got the measles, which we think would spread among the other girls if Tom had not had it before, and he is the only one left. I hope you will do honor to my teachings; if not you are an ass, and your mother and myself your affectionate parents."

Weavers Leaving Their Work.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., June 25.—A large number of weavers have left the Blackstone, Mass., mills during the past two months, their complaint being that they cannot make sufficient wages to support them. Many looms are now stopped on that account.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

MRS. HAYES DEAD

She Passes Quietly Away at Her Home.

SURROUNDED BY HER FAMILY.

The Last Hours of a Former Mistress of the White House.

The End of a Life Devoted to Religious Interests, Temperance, Philanthropy and the Welfare and Happiness of Her Husband and Children—Stricken Down While Planning for the Entertainment of Her Friends.

FREMONT, O., June 26.—Mrs. Hayes died at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, without having spoken a word since she was stricken with paralysis last Friday afternoon.

MRS. R. B. HAYES.

The family, Mrs. Mitchell, of Columbus, Mrs. Huntington, Miss Lucy Keeler and Mrs. A. H. Miller were at her bedside.

The entire city is in mourning and flags are at half-mast.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

Telegrams of condolence have been received from many friends, among them President and Mrs. Harrison.

Lucy Ware Hayes was a daughter of Dr. Isaac Webb. She was born at Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1833.

Her father, Dr. Isaac Webb, when quite young served in the war of 1812 as a member of the Kentucky Mounted Riflemen.

Mrs. Haye's well known earnestness of conviction with regard to the subject of temperance was inherited from her maternal grandfather.

The inherent feeling was fostered throughout her school days, both during the six years of her education in Delaware and later in the Wesleyan Female Seminary in Cincinnati, where she completed her school course and was graduated.

It shaped simply and naturally the ways of her home life, the manner of her hospitalities and her custom in society while she moved through them all as the wife of a private citizen, a Union General, a member of Congress, a Governor of her native State, and President of the United States.

NOTHING OF IMPORTANCE

Developed in the Cronin Murder Case Yesterday.

CHICAGO, June 25.—There were no important developments yesterday in the Cronin case. Woodruff, O'Sullivan and Conghlin were brought into Judge Shepard's Court in the afternoon and it was stated in their behalf that they agreed to a continuance of the case until next term.

John F. Beggs spent two hours in the State's Attorney's office this morning, and in response to repeated questions declared that Cronin had never been tried by Camp 20.

The mysterious writer of the letter received by Judge Longnecker has not yet revealed his identity. To-day the Grand Jury resumes its investigation into the case.

The Mystery of the Sea.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., June 26.—It is generally conceded by old seafaring men hereabouts that part of the wreckage which has been coming ashore is from the British steamer Victoria, now due at Baltimore from Pernambuco, but the wreckage supposed to be from the Haytien Republic remains a mystery. Some think the Haytien Republic may have become disabled after being reported at Pernambuco, may have returned for repairs and may have collided with the Victoria. Another possibility is that the report of the Haytien Republic's arrival at Pernambuco was an error, and that she was wrecked off this coast.

The Extra Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—It is thought likely now that the extra session of Congress which the President is expected to call will not be held until November. The impression has prevailed that Congress would likely be called together in October, but several Senators prominent on the Republican side of the chamber have stated recently that the President would not call the Congress together until the first week in November.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The President has appointed twenty-seven postmasters, among them the following:

Connecticut—Walter B. Cheney, South Manchester.
Vermont—Fred. A. Field, Rutland.
Maine—Jos. H. Manley, Augusta.
New York—Wm. Martin, Honeoye Falls.
New Jersey—James H. Wynne, Edgewater.

Fifteen Millions for Pensions.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Pension Office to-day made requisitions upon the Treasury Deprrtmant for $15,000,000 out of the appropriation to be available July 1. This amount will be placed to the credit of the pension agents on the 1st or 2d of the coming month. There are said to be between 8,000 and 10,000 first-payment vouchers awaiting the depositing of this money.

FLAMES IN ATLANTIC CITY.

A Fire Breaks Out in an Auction House. A Hard Fight With the Flames.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 26.—At an early hour yesterday morning the fire department was called out to subdue a fire in Charles W. Fisher's auction house at Arkansas and Atlantic avenues.

Before their arrival the flames were bursting from two sides of the building and the roof, and for a time it was thought that the entire block was doomed.

By herculean efforts the firemen succeeded in confining the flames to that building, and after a couple of hours completely extinguished it.

The loss was estimated at four thousand dollars and there was one thousand dollars insurance. How the fire originated remains a mystery.

He Can Use Brass Not Copper.

BOSTON, June 26.—In the United States Circuit Court, Judge Colt decided for the defendant in a suit for alleged infringement of a patent brought by George H. Hood, of the Boston Rubber company, vs. the Boston Car Spring company. Rubber cannot be securely attached to iron, but if the iron is coated however slightly with some other metal the rubber can be attached. The plaintiffs own a patent for coating iron with copper and in 1884 secured an injunction against defendants using that process in making wringer rollers. The defendant subsequently coated his spindles with brass which proved effective and Hood sued for infringements. The Court decides that the use of brass did not violate an injunction against using copper.

Labor Statisticians Meet.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 26.—The seventh National convention of the Bureaux of Statistics of Labor opened here yesterday. Among the leading commissioners present are: Carroll D. Wright, Washington, H. G. Wadlin, Massachusetts, Albert S. Bolles, Pennsylvania, James Bishop, New Jersey, E. J. Keene, New York, Samuel W. Matthews, Maine and J. B. Bowditch, Rhode Island. Carroll D. Wright was re-elected president, S. M. Hotchkiss Vice President and E. R. Hutchins Secretary. Des Moines was selected as the next meeting place.

A Gigantic English Enterprise.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 26.—A distinctively new era in the South's iron and steel industry is marked by the organization of English companies to build extensive steel and iron works at a new town at Cumberland Gap, on the dividing line between Tennessee and Kentucky. The name of the town is to be Middlesborough, Ky. Over $4,000,000, in cash have already been paid out and upward of 60,000 acres of mineral land purchased. Total investments secured already aggregate $10,000,000 in cash.

Master Plumbers in Convention.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 26.—The seventh annual convention of the Master Plumbers National association met in this city yesterday. President John Trainor of Baltimore called the convention to order. Charles H. Humbert of Pittsburg in an address welcomed the delegates, to which President Trainor responded. After appointing a committee on credentials the convention adjourned. To-morrow evening an excursion on the Ohio River will be the feature of the close of the convention.

A Massachusetts Eve Meets a Serpent.

RANDOLPH, Mass., June 26.—Mrs. E. J. T. Dexter while out walking to-day heard a strange noise a short distance from her, and, on looking in that direction, discovered a rattlesnake coiling for a spring. Mrs. Dexter did not become frightened, but started for a good-sized stick and after a hot fight succeeded in killing the reptile. It was nearly four feet long and had fourteen rattles. The neighborhood abounds in rattlesnakes.

Prof. Morse Is Known Abroad.

BOSTON, June 26.—Prof. Edward S. Morse of Salem has just received notice of his election as corresponding member of the Berlin Society of Ethnology, Athropology and Archæology, accompanied by the society's diploma. Prof. Rudolf Verchow, the eminent naturalist, is president of the society.

Commencement at Haverford.

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 26.—Yesterday was Commencement Day at Haverford College, and a number of persons, friends of the students, and men and women prominent in educational circles were in attendance. President Sharpless conferred degrees upon the twenty-six graduates.

Pennsylvania Editors at Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., June 26.—The Pennsylvania Editorial association arrived here yesterday on their seventeenth annual excursion. One hundred and twenty members are here. To-day they elect officers and to-morrow evening they have their annual banquet.

Simon Cameron's Condition.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 26.—General Cameron constantly grows weaker, and death may occur at any moment. If no sudden weakness occurs as happened last evening he may survive a while longer.

Vinal Haven's Centennial.

ROCKLAND, Me., June 26.—The island town of Vinal Haven celebrated the centennial of its incorporation yesterday by literary exercises, parades and fireworks.

Distinction for New Rochelle.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Chief Justice Fuller, of the Supreme Court, has leased the Leland Castle at New Rochelle, N. Y., for the summer. Mr. Fuller and his family are expected there next week. It is said that ex-President Cleveland will be Mr Fuller's guest during the month of July.

Lunacy Leads to Suicide.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 26.—Mrs. Charles H. Hall, of Dallas, Pa., committed suicide in her husband's drug store last evening by taking carbolic acid and corrosive sublimate. She had for several days shown evidence of mental unsoundness.

KILLED WITH A CLUB

The Tragic Ending of a Little Love Affair.

MURDERED HIS SWEETHEART.

Eugene Emery in a Jealous Rage, Destroys Pretty Cora Grimes.

She Rejected His Attentions and Treated Him Coldly—He Kills Her in the Presence of Her Relatives—Her Head Beaten Into a Shapeless Mass—The Murderer Gives Himself Up and Says He Is Insane.

MEDINA, N. Y., June 26.—Cora Grimes, of Oak Orchard, northeast of here, was brutally murdered by Eugene Emery last night.

Emery is a sort of day laborer, but both in intellect and appearance is above the average hired man. He has been for several years greatly attached to the Grimes girl, who is but thirteen years old, and on numerous occasions has purchased trinkets for her and showed many little attentions to her. As the girl grew older these attentions grew distasteful to her, and Emery's regard ripened into a wild love for the maiden.

Last night he came to see her while her father and mother were away. A quarrel ensued between them and the girl started to run into the house. Emery evidently thinking she was trying to avoid him, tried to detain her, but she succeeded in avoiding him.

In a few minutes she returned and bitter words passed between them. Emery became wildly enraged and picking up a piece of plank struck her on the head, knocking her senseless. The girl's younger brother and an uncle were present and attempted to interfere but were threatened with death by the man and ran away.

As they turned to look at the man they saw him beating the girl's head into a shapeless mass with a piece of the end of a fence rail. When help arrived the girl was dead.

Emery fled, and as the story of the murder was noised about to-day, parties of enraged men with ropes and weapons went in search of him. For protection he went to Officer Charles Prussia, at Gaines, who took him to Albion jail, where he now is.

Coroner Munson empaneled a jury which is in session now. Emery, when asked why he gave himself up, replied that it was better than lying around in woods for two or three weeks.

He stated that he had not been feeling well for three or four weeks, and had been troubled with pains in his head and heart and often dropped unconscious upon the floor.

Emery is about 40 years old. He was married some fifteen years ago, but a disagreement arose between him and his wife and they have not lived together for some time.

Hard Luck Follows Them.

BOSTON, June 25.—The New American Opera company's season at the Boston theatre was abruptly ended yesterday by the withdrawal of Mme. Natalie from the company on account of the death of her mother. The season has been a disastrous failure financially, despite the general excellence of the performances. The company was organized a year ago and made money last season, but has met with a remarkable series of disasters this year.

He Captured a Bear.

HOTEL ANDERSON, SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., June 26.—Mr. L. O. Crane of Boston returned to Saranac Lake last evening after a few days spent in hunting and fishing in the adjacent lakes, bringing with him the greatest catch of the season. At Rollins' Pond, twenty-five miles from here, Mr. Crane discovered a huge black bear, which he captured after firing two shots from his rifle into the animal. The bear was about one year old and weighed 200 pounds.

They Had to Go Indoors.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 26.—Rain prevented the One Hundred and Twentieth New York Infantry veterans from holding their dedication exercises at the monument yesterday, and they took place at their headquarters. The exercises opened with prayer by Rev. Andrew Schriver, of Cooksackie, followed by an oration by Gen. Geo. H. Sharpe, of Kingston. A poem, written for the occasion by Will Carleton, was read.

Supposed to Have Drowned Herself.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., June 26.—Annie Derby, a handsome young lady of 20, is supposed to have drowned herself. She has been living with Rev. E. B. Paine's family for the past week. She was seen yesterday morning walking to the lake carrying a pair of oars. She was in her night clothing, with a waterproof wrapped around her. It is thought that she was insane.

Boulangists Rejoicing.

PARIS, June 26.—The Government has lodged an appeal to have the judgment of the Court at Angouleme set aside on the ground that the sentences imposed on MM. Lagnerre and Deroulede were not sufficiently severe. The Boulangist, Monarchist and Imperialist newspapers are jubilant over the result of the trial and characterize it as another blow at the Government.

Francis Joseph's Views.

LONDON, June 26.—A Vienna despatch to the Standard says: Emperor Francis Joseph, speaking individually to a delegation yesterday, said the public and press view the foreign situation in a far more disquieting light than the facts warrant, either in Roumania or Servia, where good immediate prospects of peace exist.

Bowdoin Class Day Exercises.

BRUNSWICK, N. H., June 26.—Bowdoin College class day exercises took place today. The oration was delivered by G. W. Hayes, the poem by F. H. Hill.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Don't forget the tennis tournament, Saturday at 3 P. M.

—This a busy week for the teachers and scholars of the public schools.

—On account of the Public School Commencement of Thursday evening, the usual mid-week meeting at Reform Hall will be postponed.

—A large number of the members of the fire department applied at Chief Doane's office, last evening, as notified in THE PRESS, and received their new badges.

—The pupils in the Lawrenceville, N. J. Academy, passed through the city this afternoon, in two special cars attached to the 1:06 o'clock train, on their way home to spend the Summer vacation.

—Thirty-seven people at twenty-five cents each, was the extent of the audience in Music Hall, at eight o'clock, last evening, where a "Miniature Opera Company" from Newark had advertised on the bill boards to appear in "Erminie." The "Opera" opened with the chorus. "Marching through Georgia."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Mary J. Loftus is spending a week at Carbondale, Pa.

Mr. Eugene Lorton is still very sick at his home in this city.

Miss Lizzie Knapp, and Miss Mary Frank, are at Asbury Park.

Miss Mildred Potter of Philadelphia, is visiting among friends in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Musgrave, and Miss Lefferts, of 47th street, New York, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Musgrave's father, Mr. J. G. Musgrave, of Washington Park, North Plainfield.

The four-year-old son of an Italian, whose name is unknown, pulled a bicycle over on himself this afternoon at the depot and fractured the right leg in two places. Dr. J. T. Fritts set the broken limb.

Miss Carrie Dusenbury, a sister-in-law of Bishop John H. Vincent, was the guest during yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. Theo. French of West Fifth street. Miss Dusenbury sailed for Europe today on the steamer City of New York, in company with a party of friends from Buffalo.

Honor to Whom Honor's Due.

Here is the way in which a true story from this city gets twisted all out of shape in its travels, and finally lands in the columns of the Times of Troy, N. Y.

A little girl in Plainfield, N. J., whose parents attend the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, was very thoughtful on the way home from morning service on a recent Sunday. The last hymn had been, "Even Me, Even Me." Finally she asked her mother, who was holding her hand: "Mamma, did Adam write that hymn?" "Why, no, my child," said her mamma; "why do you ask that?" "Because it says 'Eve and Me.'"

It remains for THE PRESS to tell for the first time, the facts of the case. It was not a little girl at all who was the hero of the story. It was Master George Richards, son of the pastor of the Crescent Avenue church. The refrain that caused him to think his wise little thought, was, "Jesus Loves Even Me!" and his remark was that "Adam must have sung that song about Jesus loves Eve and Me."

Who the Contractors Are.

The new First Presbyterian church which was formally dedicated last evening, is wired throughout for incandescent lighting with the Westinghouse system by Mr. F. E. Kinsman, general manager of the Electrical Construction and Supply Company of New York city, of which Mr. F. S. Dunn is the agent in this city. The other contractors, outside of those mentioned elsewhere, are as follows: decorations, by the Steno Relief Decoration Co.; gas fixtures and electrolier by Orly Giddings & Sons; painting, Woolston & Buckle; pulpit furniture, Barnatz & Diehl; cushions, H. D Osterman, & Son; carpets, Howard A. Pope.

Y. M. C. A. Camps.

Full information can be obtained at the Y. M. C. A. rooms in regard to the Tenting party at Northfield, Mass., June 30, to July 10, and also the Boy's Camp in charge of Mr. S. F. Dudley at Lake Wawayanda, Sussex county, New Jersey, July 2 to 16.

The following gentlemen will also be glad to give information: W. D. Murray, Geo. H. Fontaine, and Alfred E. Holmes, about the former, and Vincent Rockwell, Bruce Beals, Geo. Ryder and Frank French, about the latter.

SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.

WM. WALTER PHELPS APPOINTED.

WASHINGTON, June 26—The President today appointed William Walter Phelps of New Jersey, Minister to Germany.

CHURCH WEDDING IN HIGH LIFE.

The Marriage of Mr. Kirkner and Miss Newell.

Grace Episcopal church, last evening, was again filled with society people, the wealth and culture of the city, upon the occasion of another marriage in high life. The bride was Miss Kathleen F. Newell, daughter of Mr. Theodore H. Newell, formerly proprietor of the extensive oil-cloth works on North avenue and Richmond street, and the groom was Mr. George Moss Kirkner, eldest son of the Hon. Jacob Kirkner, President of the Board of Education.

The bride's intimate friends had decorated the interior of the church in a charming way. Across the aisle, midway to the altar, was built an arch of daisies and ferns, the reredos was banked with the same, and ropes of daisies were twined about the reading desk. The sun shone gorgeously through the stained glass windows. During the wait those present were entertained with a programme of organ music by Mrs. Freeman, including Leybach's Suisse Tyrol, Kullak's Grand Parade, a Scherzettino by Sternberg, Hunt's Shepherd's Morning Song, and a Rustic March by Villereccia.

The bridal party entered to the music of the Lohengrin March. It was headed by the ushers, Messrs John B. Drayton and Robert A. Fairbairn, of this city, Mr. Edmund T. Church of New York, and Mr. Charles E. Machold of Philadelphia. Following them were the bridesmaids, Miss Minnie Case of Brooklyn, and Miss Carrie Kirkner, sister of the groom, with another sister, Miss May Kirkner, as maid of honor. These maids were all dressed in white India silk frocks, and carried bouquets of daisies and ferns.

The bride entered on the arm of her uncle. She was robed in white faille francaise, with white velvet brocade skirt embroidered with pearls. The veil of tulle was fastened with a costly pin of diamonds and pearls, a present of the groom's. In her hand was a prayer book. Her beauty was the subject of general admiration. The bridal party was met at the steps of the altar by the groom with his cousin, Mr. Frank H. Moss, of Philadelphia, who acted as best man.

The ceremony was performed by Archdeacon Erskine M. Rodman. There was no formal reception afterwards, and Mr. and Mrs. Kirkner left at once for a short bridal tour. They will divide their residence hereafter between this city and New York where the groom is enrolled in business among the brokers of Wall street. The couple's popularity and the esteem in which they are held, was evidenced by the quantities of costly presents received.

Dropped Dead When Starting for Home.

The funeral of Rudolphus R. MacDonald will take place at his late home on East Front street, Friday afternoon, at three o'clock. The remains were brought on from Asbury Park, yesterday, arriving here about six o'clock in the evening.

Mr. MacDonald was in the sixty-fourth year of his age. He has been suffering from a rheumatic affection about the the heart for the past few weeks, and intended returning home yesterday. His trunks had already been sent, and he came down on the porch to take the carriage for the station.

Suddenly he was oppressed for breath and asked to be taken "out-doors." A chair was brought at once, into which he sank and almost immediately fell back dead. This occurred at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, just as the carriage that was to take him to the train for home, was coming up the street. The cause of death was heart failure from valvular insufficiency.

The Rev. W. R. Richards, Dr. K. P. Ketcham, and the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, will officiate at the funeral services.

THE EVONA VOCAL CLUB.

A Suburban Choral Organization That Excels Anything in the City.

Evona can justly boast of something in which Plainfield cannot rival her—the Evona Vocal Club. The second private concert of the Club took place last evening, as announced in THE PRESS, in the Dunellen Presbyterian church, and the rendition of the extensive programme given below, would have been creditable to many larger, more experienced, or professional choral organizations.

The officers of the Club are: President, Mr. R. J. Shaw; Vice President, Mr. C. W. Oley, Secretary, Mr. P. Rupp, M. D.; Treasurer, Mr. J. Fowler Pound; Librarian, Miss Elizabeth G. East.

The church was comfortably filled by an appreciative audience that numbered many musical people from this city. The encores were frequent and hearty. The Club was assisted by: Miss Bella L. Watson, soprano; Miss Edith Tuttle, contralto; Mr. Robert Schreyvogel, tenor; Mr. Wm. T. Angel, baritone; Miss Jessie Utter, pianist; Mrs. Kate C. Conant, musical directress and Miss Margie Atkinson, accompanist. The programme was as follows:

PART I.

Part song—Ladybird.....Cowen.
Evona Vocal Club.
Tenor solo—Longing.....Rubenstein.
Mr. Schreyvogel.
Soprano solo—Leite Signori—The Huguenots.....Meyerbeer.
Miss Watson.
Chorus—Spring Waltz.....Milde.
Evona Vocal Club.
Alto solo—Love's Sorrow.....Shelley.
Miss Tuttle.
Baritone solo—Serenade.....Schubert.
Mr. Angel.

PART II.

Soprano solo and chorus—Gypsie Life.....R. Schumann.
Miss Stevens and Evona Vocal Club.
Duette. {a. A Streamlet full of Flowers. b. Nearest and Dearest.} Carracios.
Miss Watson and Miss Tuttle.
Baritone solo—Lost Chord.....Sullivan.
Mr. Angel.
Oft in the Stilly Night—Harmonized by Max Vogrich.....(From No. 87.)
Evona Vocal Club.
Soprano solo—Stars of the Summer Night.Tours.
Miss Watson.
Part song—Bugle Song.....Jordan.
Evona Vocal Club.

Too much credit cannot be given Mrs. Conant for the meritorious results of her patient training. She has organized and drilled a chorus of voices that reader some of the most difficult part songs with a shading and harmony that is seldom excelled. Milde's Spring Waltz was sung most beautifully, the soprano and basso parts, especially, being full and true. It was loudly encored.

Miss Watson and Miss Tuttle, each, received sincere recalls to their solos, and their duetts were also much enjoyed. The former sang as encores, "He Thinks I do not Love Him," "Maid of Dundee," and a Lullaby, and the latter gave Goetz's "O, Happy Day!" Miss Watson possesses a very sweet and sympathetic voice, while Miss Tuttle's is remarkably fine and rich, and its expression perfect. Mr. Schreyvogel's tenor solo was very charming. Mr. Angel replied to sincere recalls with, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and Molloy's "Polly!"

The pulpit of the church was banked with ferns, grasses and calla lilies. There were twenty-two members of the chorus on the platform. The letters "E. V. C." built of daises, were suspended above them.

ONE WIFE TOO MANY.

Bigamist Fredericks of New Jersey Comes to Grief in New York.

A dispatch from Middletown, N. Y., says:

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., June 26.—Last evening a lady came to this city and swore out a warrant for the arrest of John S. Fredericks on the charge of bigamy. She showed her certificate of marriage dated Dec. 10, 1879, at Bloomingdale, N. J., by Rev. J. H. Robertson. Her maiden name was Charlotte L. Mead. They have lived since that time at Elizabeth, N. J.

About a year ago he left here and said he was going to Plainfield, N. J. She had not heard from him until about a week ago, when she heard he was living here and was married to another woman.

When arrested Fredericks denied the second marriage, but the Chief of Police had seen his certificate of the second marriage; then he admitted his guilt and was committed to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

His first wife has three children aged 2, 6 and 8 years respectively. Neither of the wives have any means whatever.

The Colored Centrals Defeated.

The "Lone Stars," Westfield's nine of colored ball players, beat the Centrals of this city, on the Somerset street grounds, yesterday afternoon, by a score of 22 to 13. Mulford and Peterson were the visitors' battery, and Kline and Nelson the home team's.

There was considerable rag-chewing during the game, and the umpire's decisions on balls and strikes, were frequently disputed. The Westfielders not only accused the Plainfielders of furnishing a two-shilling ball, but asserted that it was bought out of a job lot.

Graduating Exercises at Westfield.

The closing exercises in the primary department of the Westfield Public School, will take place in Arcanum Hall, Westfield, this evening. The graduating exercises will take place to-morrow evening. The graduating class numbers eight pupils. Mr. C. B. Ripley, Esq., will deliver the address.

THE NEW FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

DEDICATED.

THE NEW FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH FORMALLY TRANSFERRED.

Solemn and Impressive Services in the Church Last Evening—An Eloquent Sermon by Rev. Chas. L. Thompson, D. D., of New York, and the Dedication Report by Rev. Dr. Ketcham, the Pastor—Other Details.

The handsome and costly edifice on East Front street, which has recently been erected for the congregation of the First Presbyterian church, was formally dedicated for the spread of Christianity, last evening, when a large and fashionable audience was present to witness the initiative service. Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham, the pastor, who for the past eighteen years has faithfully labored with his flock, officiated, and the regular church choir rendered special music for the occasion in a truly delightful manner, accompanied on the new Midmer organ by Dr. E. W. Hedges. As before stated, the attendance was large, and courteous ushers and church officers exerted themselves to comfortably seat all who applied for admission.

The service opened with an organ voluntary and Gloria, Mass in B Flat by the choir, followed by the doxology by the choir and congregation. Rev. Dr. Studdiford, at one time pastor of the First Presbyterian church in this city, but now pastor of the Third Presbyterian church of Trenton, invoked the divine blessing, the congregregation joining, at the close, in repeating the Lord's prayer.

After a hymn was sung, Rev. Dr. Studdiford read from the Scripture according to Second Chronicles, sixth chapter, beginning with the 17th verse, and also from Revelations, 21st chapter.

Another hymn was sung, after which Rev. Chas. L. Thompson, D. D., pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church, of New York, who was also an associate of Rev. Dr. Ketcham at Princeton, and who sailed for Europe today, preached an eloquent sermon, taking for his text the ninth verse of First Corinthians, thirteenth chapter: "For we know in part, and we prophesy in part." The learned doctor eloquently pictured out how Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, had prophesied certain things, yet only in part. We, as a people, he maintained, are prophets in reality, and yet only in part. The church of God, he said, is a prophet in the relation of her truth to His Word. Christian life is a true but limited expression of God's Word.

Dr. Ketcham led in prayer, after which he gave notice of the union dedication service on Friday evening, and the first regular church services on Sunday at 10:30 A. M., and 7:45 P. M., to which, he said, "all, rich and poor, strangers and friends, are welcomed to this house of God." The doctor very moderately asked for a liberal contribution, which was then taken up. He stated that the present dedication was the first the church has had in many years. Furthermore, it has never held a fair or festival to solicit funds. While the church is practically out of debt, he added, the trustees need $1,000.

Following the collection, the choir rendered Venite in E. flat, by Dudley Buck, and Rev. Dr. Ketcham made a commendable dedication report, which is in substance as follows. In part he said: This is the third church of the First Presbyterian denomination which has been dedicated in Plainfield; all three have been dedicated in June. The first one was raised during the first week in July, 1826, and was dedicated the last Thursday in June, 1827. The first Sunday school in connection with the church was organized on the the third Sunday in December, 1825, with five teachers and twenty-three scholars. The first church building was converted into dwelling houses, and the latter now stand near the gas works. The first brick church, the one recently torn away to make room for the new edifice, was erected in 1854, the corner stone having been laid on Tuesday, December 26th of that year. The church was dedicated in June of the following year, 1855, Rev. Dr. Nicholas Mundy of Elizabeth, having preached the dedication sermon. Both of these dedications were under the pastorate of Rev. Lewis Bond, whose memory is ever held dear.

Here Dr. Ketcham stated that eighteen years ago Dr. Studdford told him, that a new church was needed here, and now the new church was a reality. At a congregational meeting held in June, 1888, a committee was appointed to take charge of the whole matter of erecting a new church. The committee consisted of the following gentlemen: Messrs J. M. Bettman, chairman, Howard A. Pope, Fred C. Lounsbury, Wm. H. Shotwell, Edward St. John, Rev. K. P. Ketcham and Robert H. Radford. Mr. Oscar S. Teale was selected as the architect and to Mr. Isaac W. Pangborn was awarded the contract for the carpenter work and masonry. Mr. John Chandler did the carpenter work, much to his credit may it be said. The corner stone of the new building was laid with appropriate exercises on the afternoon of Thursday, September 13, 1888.

Here Dr. Ketcham spoke of the work done by the various contractors. The windows in the new edifice, he said, were made by Tidden & Arnold of Brooklyn. the memorial window, dedicated to memory of the late Sarah M. Latimer, represents Mary of Bethlehem pouring the precious oil on the head of the Saviour. The pulpit furniture is the gift of Miss Annie Page, the seven-year-old niece of Mrs. Latimer, and is built according to drawings by Mr. Teale.

Dr. Ketcham stated in his report, that out of a total cost of $43,000 for the new structure, Mrs. Latimer had contributed $38,000, showing an unselfish act of charity on her part. The deceased said previous to her death: "The old church is abundant and ample for me, but it is not adequate for Plainfield." She further gave instructions to have the new edifice furnished in modern style and in good taste. This church is her monument. She had but one wish and that was to live until the church was completed and to hear the pastor preach the first sermon from the new pulpit.

The Building Committee, Dr. Ketcham continued, have exerted their energies and wise action in carrying on the work, and at all times unity has prevailed. Much credit is due to Mr. John M. Bettman, Chairman of the Committee, and also to Mr. Oscar S. Teale for his judgment, taste and integrity. "We had faith in man," said the doctor. Bids were not solicited; competent men were selected, and the work was entrusted to their honesty. Messrs Pangborn and Chandler put $700 worth of additional labor on the organ front than they were under obligations to do, and Messrs Reuben Midmer & Son, the makers, incurred an additional expense of $1,000 on the organ, for which there was no extra charge. Dr. Ketcham alluded to the other contractors, all of whom, he said, had performed their work to the entire satisfaction of the committee. The total cost had not exceeded their expectations. He then on behalf of the Building Committee formally tendered the new church to the congregation, and especially to the Board of Trustees and to the session.

Mr. E. St. John accepted the church on behalf of the trustees, and expressed his hearty recognition of Mrs. Lattimer's munificent gift. The trustees, he said, asked for the earnest support of the members of the church.

Mr. H. B. Opdyke replied for the session, recognizing the solemn trust now given to their care. With the acceptance of the church, he said, the honored pastor's association with the Building Committee will now mainly end.

The pastor and congregation read responsively from the Scripture, and the former delivered the dedication prayer. The choir sang "Jesus, How Sweet," by Dudley Buck, and after the audience joined in singing a hymn, Rev. Dr. Studdiford pronounced the benediction, thus bringing the dedication service to a close.

The pulpit decorations were neat although not elaborate, and consisted wholly of ferns, cut flowers and potted plants.

The First Presbyterian church was organized in 1825, with less than two dozen members. The late Rev. Dr. Bond was one of the first pastors of the church, and was followed by Rev. Dr. Studdiford, Rev. J. H. Myers and others. Rev. Dr. Ketcham, the present pastor, associated himself with the church about eighteen years ago. He is a native of Huntington, Long Island, and is a graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary. Under Dr. Ketcham's pastorate the membership has increased, and the church is today free from all debt. The first sermon by the pastor will be preached in the new church on Sunday morning next.

Fourth of July Excursions on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

In pursuance of the usual custom the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will open its line for Fourth of July travel at the usual reduction in rates.

Excursion tickets will be sold between all stations on the system on July 2d, 3d, and 4th, valid for return until July 8th, 1889.

—The Board of Freeholders will meet on Tuesday afternoon next owing to Thursday coming on July 4.

—One week more will close Dr. Kimbell's stay at the City Hotel, as he is advertised to be in Trenton the first week in July. All troubled by their feet in any way, may be cured permanently and cheaply, by his treatment.

The Cambria Iron Works Resumes Operations.

FIRST WORK SINCE THE FLOOD.

Dynamiting Resumed at the Dam Near Johnstown's Bridge.

Some of the Blasts Very Heavy—Houses Shaken All Over the Town—Strained Relations Between Major Phillips and the Officials of the Relief Commission. Idlers Arrested, Fined and Driven Out of Town This Morning.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 26.—The first heat was made in the steel department of the Cambria Iron Works last night, and the Superintendent has posted notices of regular pay days.

Dynamiting was resumed at the dam near the bridge at 5 o'clock this morning.

Some of the charges were very heavy and shook the houses over in town very severely but did no damage.

On account of the strained relations between Major Phillips who is now in charge of the work on the jam, and the officials of the commission, he, it is said, will leave for his home on Thursday.

Considerable excitement was occasioned last evening by the discovery of a number of strangers whose actions created suspicion. They were seen near a train loaded with provisions and clothing at the Pennsylvania railroad depot. Later they took possession of a number of vacant tents.

A detail from the Fourteenth Regiment was sent to watch them and the camp was notified that any strangers found in the morning not recognized as workman would be arrested.

This morning fifteen not employed were found and placed under arrest. Later on they were fined, discharged and driven out of the town.

The officials have evidence that the strangers were an organized band who were here for the purpose of plundering.

PENNSYLVANIANS WIN.

The Yale Freshmen Beaten at New London Last Evening.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 26.—The two-mile race between the Yale and University of Pennsylvania freshmen crews was rowed last evening over the Thames river course, and was won by Pennsylvania by about three-quarters of a length. The official time was: Pennsylvania, 10:08½; Yale, 10:11½.

The race was very close throughout, but excited no enthusiasm. Yale got more credit for good work than their opponents. They looked sure to win at 1½ miles, but near the finish their No. 3 caught a crab and unshipped his seat. His recovery was quick, but he did not aid much for the remaining half mile, and Pennsylvania, by a tremendous spurt, got the bow of their boat just ahead of Yale by the time the line was reached.

Pennsylvania took the water first at the signal, and by rapidly running up a 39-stroke, secured a length lead within the first 150 yards. Yale started off at 35 strokes, pulling scientifically, closed the gap at the quarter mile, and was soon in the lead.

At the half-mile post Yale had a lead of two seconds, pulling 36 strokes to their opponents 36. Pennsylvania was pulling a short, snappy stroke, while Yale's was long and sweeping.

After passing the half-mile point Pennsylvania gained a trifle, and both crews passed the mile flag in 4 minutes, 45 seconds.

From the mile to mile and a half flag both crews were pretty well together, Yale doing by far the better rowing, but Pennsylvania pushed the brow of her boat slightly to the front, passing the 1½ mile flag in 7:14 to 7:15 for Yale.

Just after passing that flag Ryle, No. 3 of the Yale crew, unshipped his seat and "caught a crab." He quickly regained control of his oar, but the effectiveness of his work was lost, and the sliding seat could not be put in place again.

Yale made a great effort, but the Pennsylvania forged ahead and crossed the line a winner by three-quarters of a length.

The Pennsylvania appeared quite fresh at the finish. It was their first victory on this river, and the first full race Yale has lost since 1885.

The strokes at each half were:

Pennsylvania, . . . 38, 37, 36, 36.
Yale, ... 35, 36, 34, 36.

Mr. R. C. Watson of Boston, has been selected as referee for the Pennsylvania-Columbia-Cornell race.

THERE WILL BE NO RACE.

The Royal Yacht Squadron Will Not Accept the New Cup Deed.

LONDON, June 26.—The yacht squadron at their meeting in London yesterday resolved that it was impossible to accept the proposed new deed of gift of the America's cup.

Boiler Makers on a Strike.

CONSTABLE HOOK, N. J., June 26.—The boiler makers and helpers employed here, to the number of 150, are striking for nine hours a day labor on all days excepting Saturday, when they want the day's work to consist of eight hours. The strike was ordered by the Equitable association, to which they all belong, and has been in preparation for about three months. About 100 of the men are employed by the Tide Water company, 25 by the Standard Oil company and 25 by two Pittsburg contractors, Rider & Connolly, who are building tar stills for the Tide Water company.

The First Since the Flood.

CHICAGO, June 26.—The Pennsylvania Co., having in a remarkably short time repaired the serious break in its track caused by the flood at Johnstown, is now running its full complement of trains with wonted regularity. Yesterday the first limited train to arrive came into Chicago in good shape with vestibule cars well filled with passengers. All the other trains are running on time.

Newspape Change in New Hampshire.

NASHUA, N. H., June 26.—The Nashua Daily and Weekly Gazette, the oldest Democratic paper in Southern New Hampshire, will in a few weeks pass into the hands of a stock company, which organized last evening. Edior B. B. Whittemore, who for many years has successfully managed the paper will retire. The paper will remain Democratic.

Coffee Prices Still on the Fall.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The trading in the Coffee Exchange to-day was very heavy and prices for Rio coffee for future delivery declined one cent per pound. The fall to-day is a continuation of the downward movement which has been the feature of the coffee market for two weeks, and in that period the price has fallen three cents per pound.

Badeau Must Produce a Bill of Particulars

NEW YORK, June 26.—Counsel for Charles L. Webster & Co., the publishers, to-day applied to Justice Andrews in Supreme Court Chambers for an order requiring Adam Badeau to furnish a bill of particulars, in his suit against them for alleged breach of contract in the publication of "Grant in Peace." The order was granted.

PROVIDENCE, June 26.—President-elect E. Benjamin Andrews, of Brown University, has written an acceptance of the Presidency to take effect as soon as his resignation as a professor in Cornell University shall have been acted upon.

FASHIONS IN BUTTONS.

Costly Things in Silver and and Paste to Fasten Milady's Gown.

Buttons That Are Cased in Velvet and Satin Jewels—Gold Rims Enclosing Miniatures—Odd Buttons for the Tennis and Outing Girls.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

If Mme. Recamier and Mme. de Stael could make a flying visit to Yonkers or Larchmont or Flushing, Long Island, or any one of the beautiful suburbs within an hour's ride of New York, where the stately country houses are this month thrown open to gaily dressed, chatting, laughing women who breakfast and lunch and pose on haycocks and drive, all among the laurels and roses, they would find that their fair hostesses were gowned, even to the last button, in exact imitation of what these two leaders of the Parisian world introduced as the fashion of their day 100 years ago. These Recamier gowns are copied from old portraits and prints, are adorned, in the rare cases where these are procurable, by historic sets of old silver buttons painted by Watteau and Boucher and raked from London and Paris bric-a-brac shops or preserved as heirlooms in families. I have seen within the fortnight exquisite miniature shepherdesses and Cupids, the original paintings of masters who excelled in the fine and the dainty in art. These buttons once adorned the cuffs and fronts of brocaded gowns and coats long fallen into shreds, and after lying in innocuous desuetude for generations are now become the pride of the new-old toilets which were picturesque in town in winter and rapidly approach the daringly bizarre as Summer toilets bourgeon with the singing of the birds and the dropping of the bars of dress conventionality on the Summer lawns.

For those who cannot compass the gold and silver and silver gilt antiques the modern make of buttons a la Directoire fosters the button craze. Artistic buttons are now being manufactured, imported and imitated by American workmen, and what used to be an important branch of delicate art workmanship promises to be revived. Buttons may never again be set upon the dress as thickly as in Edward I's days, when even the servants went from top to toe be-buttoned:

Now the horse clawers, clothed in pride,
They busk them in buttons as it were a bride.

But finely cut steel buttons have come back to us as big, as intricate in pattern and as highly polished as those which were the badge of the young Tory dandies who promenaded up and down the Broad Way in Revolutionary days; such buttons as were satirized in a 1777 caricature showing a dude flashing his brilliant ornaments in the eyes of a dazzled damsel. It is the matronly richness of velvet and dark silk which calls nowadays for steel buttons, but if Jnly emancipates the bachelor as it does the maid, the embroidered waistcoats, short breeches, dress coats lined with bright silks, lace-edged cuffs, lace ties and broad silk sashes with which one or two gilded youth have already relieved the monotony of male attire may be followed up by buttons which flash back the sun. Buttons have already become an important feature of the masculine tennis and yachting costumes.

Some of the ornamented buttons which have been brought into use by the fashion of redingotes and redingote casques are simply painted with a number of the most brilliant colors placed in such harmonious juxtaposition as to produce a rich and refined effect. Many of these are only elaborations of the fashions of the button rage which lasted from 1875 or thereabouts to 1880, when there were buttons on a lady's shoulders and buttons on her sleeves and buttons up and down and crosswise on her bodice and buttons on her back and buttons lodged on her skirts wherever there was room for a button to cling. But the characteristic button of the season ranges from the size of a copper cent to that of an English penny and thence to more than the dimensions and almost the weight of a silver dollar. Such a button is gilt or silvered or lacquered and usually adorned with graceful paintings, in the gay, soft, bright greens and pinks and blues which color the dainty silks of the Summer, and showing pretty, frivolous, mythologic designs or picturesque groups of cavaliers and ladies worthy of the sunshine and blue skies and clipped lawns, the simpers and the patches, the smiling grace and highly finished art of the laughter-loving, the carelessly glad pseudo-shepherds and shepherdesses who masqueraded with Marie Antoinette at Little Trianon.

To collect "button sets" is becoming the fashion. Young women whose beauty, cash or American chic gets them into the London swim have been writing home wonderful stories within the last two months of valuable old sets of Florentine mosaic buttons, and buttons with crests and monograms in repousse work and brilliant paste buttons which go back to Cromwell, and pearl and topaz buttons of a period even earlier. These are old family buttons, prized as highly as jewels and kept in cases of velvet and satin. A young woman who is travelling with Mrs. Frank Leslie is authority for the statement that that lady is picking up abroad a button set which shall rival her diamonds. Fine old Louis XV. buttons in silver, painted after the design of Fragonard, are the object of Mrs. Leslie's desire, an object not easily attained. The beautiful Miss Chamberlain, whom the international gossips married offhand before her engagement was announced fairly, will have an exquisite set of Dauphine buttons in paste in her trousseau. A pretty American girl who has seen them writes that they are very valuable, being undoubtedly genuine and exquisitely mounted in silver.

Not many American women have succumbed as yet to the "button set" mania. Mrs. A. M. Palmer, the wife of the theatrical manager, has worn with a Directory evening dress this Season a set of really beautiful flower buttons in incrusted ivory. Mrs. Cleveland appears occasionally in a Louis XV. coat of dark brocade with six large, exquisitely carved cameo buttons which were a gift to her on her last birthday. Some of the most artistic buttons in New York have been worn by the Princess Marthe Engalitchieff, whose imposing family name and high-bred St. Petersburg manners have enabled her essays on social life in Russia to draw much cash into the exchequer. The Princess Engalitchieff has family buttons which rival those in pearls and diamonds possessed by the Countess of Leicester. One beautiful set which she wears with evening dress occasionally consists of ten good-sized coral buttons set in gold, and another which has appeared on a Directory redingote of gray silk with black revers is made up of buttons three inches in diameter of old Russian repousse work, the beauty and value of which are famous.

It is of course the Directory and Louis XV. coats so much worn this Summer which give buttons their opportunity, especially buttons of large size. The number with which to adorn one's self is left entirely to the discretion of the wearer, though a few buttons of considerable value impart more distinction to a toilet than a great quantity of the cheaper kind. Four buttons is quite sufficient, six perhaps is the most usual number with dressy women. Sometimes a button is set to fasten the sleeve puff at the shoulder, or two or three buttons are sewn on the coat tails behind. The large pocket flaps are not so common in warm weather fabrics as on winter materials, but call for one or two buttons each when employed. Fifteen is about as many buttons as a handsome gown, utilizing all its opportunities, can comfortably maintain.

FOR BRETON JACKET AND DIRECTORY GOWNS.

Natural wood buttons are bought for rustic use either plain, in which case the family genius "hand paints" them, or most elaborately carved. The cameo buttons are as beautiful as any made, and the variety of their coloring, ranging from pink through every shade of brown, an imperial purple to a magnificent black, gives a great variety of lawn party and country house and coaching toilets with which they harmonize. The cameo buttons are carved on pieces of conch shell and landscapes are introduced showing a castle with trees, cattle and figures, a farmyard or a well with oxen, fowl, carts and wagons, women and children.

For young ladies who are the artists of their own pretty toilets the plain white porcelain buttons possesses irresistable charm. Suppose the fete gown to be buttoned is a soft India silk figured with the budding twigs, the grasses and flowers which Japanese artists render so perfectly; or suppose again it is one of the new wash silks with a geometrical design. Buy porcelain buttons and tint the ground of them to correspond with the stuff they are going on. Then copy a spray of the flower or a whorl of the scroll for the pattern, and you match as smartly as if silk and buttons had been made to order at great cost from your own drawings. Or if you are quite "advanced" you may take a silk or thin wool fabric of subdued rather than pronounced pattern, and give it character by painting porcelain buttons for it—you can buy them at any shop which sells artists' materials—in different but harmonizing patterns. On one shoulder a gallant in knee bretches and ruffles may bend fore a fair lady, while on the other a l of water slips past an old ruin. The pictured face of Josephine or Marie Antoinette may look out from one pocket, while your monogram holds the post of honor on the other side. Odd buttons, bizarre, missmated, are quite the fashion, the more motley the merrier, provided they are of the same size and shape, and do not wrangle in color.

A passing fancy with quite young girls is for each to paint for her tennis gown a set of buttons adorned with flowers standing for the letters of her name, Mary, for example, fasens the jacket which goes over her accordion-plaited skirt with the marigold—the darling of fashion—the alyssum, the rose and the yarrow. Alice does not pick up the racquet until she has made herself pretty with the anemone, the laurel, the ivy, candytuft and everlasting flowers.

The yachting buttons are the biggest of all. Red and blue-veined onyx set in silver makes saucers from two to three and one-half inches in diameter for the water gown. It looks as if the button manufacturers would make their fortunes, but with all their ingenuity nothing will be devised prettier and few things more expensive than the diamonds set in silver with which a handsome black satin which walked up Fifth avenue was buttoned yesterday afternoon.

RUN DOWN ON THE HUDSON.

The Sad Ending of a Boating Party at Bath, N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 26.—A boating party consisting of John Mattimore, son of the late Thomas Mattimore, the well-known coal dealer; Edward and Joseph Cody; Maud and Maggie Horner, and two other young ladies, cousins of the Horner girls, from Hudson, N. Y., while rowing on the river opposite the Knickerbocker Ice houses at Bath, were run down by the tug Evangeline and the boat upset at 9:30 last evening. Before assistance could reach them all were drowned excepting Joseph Cody, who escaped but was almost completely exhausted by his efforts to save his companions.

Think It the Work of "Jack the Ripper."

LONDON, June 26.—The identity of the body that was recently taken piecemeal from the Thames has been established. It was Elizabeth Jackson, a frequenter of the common lodging houses in Chelsea, and, virtually, a public woman. She was known to be alive on May 31. The identification has revived the theory that she was another victim of "Jack the Ripper."

Parnell Commission.

LONDON, June 26.—Before the Parnell Commission to-day Commodore Joseph Kenny testified that he did not know Le Caron. He denied that he had introduced Le Caron to Mr. Sacton. He would not admit such a man into his house. Le Caron, he said, had a false face, which would make honest men chary of association with him.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

GEN. CAMERON DEAD

His Brilliant Life Comes to a Peaceful End.

DEATH CAME LAST EVENING.

His Last Moments Cheered by the Presence of Many Friends.

Ex-Attorney-General MacVeagh and Wife, Simon B. Cameron and Wife, Mrs. Richard Haldeman, and Others at the Bedside of the Dying Statesman—The Funeral to Be Postponed Until Senator Cameron's Arrival from Europe.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 27.—General Cameron died at 8 o'clock last evening. He began sinking about noon and rapidly grew weaker until the end. He was told late yesterday afternoon that his son, Senator Cameron, was on his way home, and this news seemed to give him pleasure.

Ex-Attorney-General Mac Veagh and wife, Simon B. Cameron and wife, Mrs. Richard Haldeman and others were at his bedside. Dr. Dunot, the consulting physician, arrived from Donegal and stated before he heard of the death that his distinguished patient could not possibly live until morning.

SIMON CAMERON.

The funeral will take place in Harrisburg, and will likely be postponed until Senator Cameron's arrival.

Simon Cameron died in his 91st year, having been born in Lancaster county, Pa., on March 8, 1799, and was left an orphan at an early age. He received a fair English education, and began to learn the printing trade at 9. He worked as a journeyman printer in Lancaster, Harrisburg and Washington, and so improved his opportunities that in 1820 he was editing a newspaper in Doylestown, Pa., and one in Harrisburg in 1822.

HIS CAREER.

He was for a time Adjutant-General of Pennsylvania.

In 1845 he was elected to the United States Senate for the term which ended in 1849. During this period he acted with the Democrats on important party questions, such as the Missouri Compromise bill. This was repealed in 1854, and Mr. Cameron became identified with the "People's Party," and subsequently merged with the Republicans.

At the Republican convention that nominated Abraham Lincoln, Mr. Cameron was strongly supported for the Presidency and again for the Vice-Presidency. Lack of harmony in the Pennsylvania delegation prevented his nomination to the latter office.

LINCOLN'S WAR SECRETARY.

Mr. Lincoln, upon his inauguration, called Mr. Cameron to the Cabinet as Secretary of War, and he proved equal to the arduous duties of the hour and the place.

Mr. Cameron resigned the War Secretaryship on January 11, 1862, and was at once appointed Minister to Russia, where his influence tended in a large measure to secure the friendship of that nation during the civil war.

AGAIN IN THE SENATE.

He resigned as Minister to Russia on November 8, 1862, and remained at home until 1866, when he was again elected United States Senator and appointed chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs on the retirement of Mr. Sumner in 1872. He was sent to the Senate for the fourth time in 1873, but resigned in favor of his son.

During the years of his active public life Mr. Cameron was a powerful political leader, practically dictating the policy of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, and wielding a strong influence over its policy in all the country.

Graduation at Lafayette.

EASTON, Pa., June 27.—Yesterday was commencement day at Lafayette college and the graduating orations were delivered. The Latin salutatory was delivered by Harry Smith Robinson of Wilkesbarre and the valedictory by Albert Hunt Weller, of Wilkesbarre. There were thirty nine graduates. The March Philological prize was awarded to Herbert Wilmer March; the astronomical prize to Thomas M. Stafford; the Reed prize essay to O. H. Bokeless. Among the honorary degrees conferred by the trustees were the following: LL.D. on President Read of Dickinson college, and on Rev. George Nye Boardman, D D., Professor of Systematic Theology of Chicago; the degree of D. D. on Rev. J. B. Grier of Danville, Pa.; Rev. John Dixon of Trenton, N. J.; Rev. M. W. Styker of Chicago, Ill., and Rev. B. T. Jones of Lincoln University.

Ex-Judge Sheridan Is Dead.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Ex-Judge of the Marine court James B. Sheridan died at his residence, Lenox avenue, Harlem, last night.

FOR KILLING HIS WIFE.

Labee Suffered the Extreme Penalty To-Day at Paterson, N. J.

PATERSON, N. J., June 27.—Louis Labee, who brutally butchered his young wife, was hanged this morning at the County Jail here.

The crime for which Labee is to be executed was committed on February 28 last. Labee, who is a Hollander, came to this country with his wife about three months previous and had settled in Patterson about Thanksgiving time.

He had married her in Rotterdam just previous to coming to America, and she was said to be one of the prettiest girls in that city. She was nineteen and he was thirty.

She was certainly a very beautiful woman, and it was the fact which made Labee jealous and led to frequent quarrels between them when they had settled down to housekeeping in Paterson. These finally became so violent that the pair separated, the young wife going to live at the house of a friend, while Labee took board elsewhere.

He could not keep away from his wife however, and visited her almost every day. In order to avoid him she went to live in the house of Cornelius Stoolemaker, at No. 10 Chestnut street, where her husband's visits were less frequent, and where she could refuse to see him if she so desired.

On the day of the murder Labee went to the house about 1 o'clock in the afternoon and asked for his wife. She consented to see him and they had a long talk in the parlor, which ended in a violent quarrel.

At this point Labee became crazy with rage and drawing a long, ugly-looking knife he sprang upon the woman with the ferocity of a tiger and drew the sharp edge across her throat.

She screamed loudly, but before any one could come to her assistance Labee had thrown her on the floor and was stabbing and hacking away at her body with the fury of a fiend.

He literally carved her to pieces, and when the neighbors ran in she was so disfigured with gashes and cuts as to be hardly recognizable.

For Taking Exorbitant Fees.

READING, Pa., June 27.—David M. Kline, ex-Justice of the Peace and Dr. A. M. Fritz, a leading politician of Berks county, having been the Democratic candidate for Congress several times, both of Fleetwood, this county were arrested yesterday and taken to Philadelphia on a charge of taking exorbitent fees for collecting pension claims. It is alleged that $500 was charged in the case on which they were arrested, the amount collected being $1,100. Fritz's son was recently appointed Postmaster at Fleetwood but has not been commissioned.

More Wreckage Coming Ashore.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., June 27.—Several empty crockery crates constitute the only new wreckage found on the Nantucket shore up to noon to-day. The fresh southerly wind now blowing will doubtless bring new developments. Mr. R. Hawley of the Anchor line is at Nantasket to-day endeavoring to ascrtain whether the wreckage here is from the steamer Victoria. He states that the first bills of lading of the Victoria which were found were from the Anchor line steamer and were thrown overboard. Of the last ones found he knows nothing.

Worms Play Havoc with Potatoes.

BURLINGTON, N. J., June 27.—The farmers are very much alarmed over the appearance of a worm resembling the dread wire worm, but even more destructive, which plays havoc with the potatoes. It works near the top of the ground and cuts the vine of the potato off close, thus totally destroying it. Nearly every field of potatoes in the section about Columbus has signs of the destructive worm.

Threw His Money in the Stove.

PENNSGROVE, N. J., June 27.—James D. Torton, while counting money, laid a roll of bills amounting to over a hundred dollars on some waste paper. A few minutes afterward he threw the paper and bills into the stove, but succeeded in saving most of his cash. Though scorched, the notes were sent to the United States Treasury for redemption.

Earnings of the P. & R.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—The statement of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company for the month of May shows that the net earnings were $656,940, a decrease of $216,161 as compared with May, 1888. Since January 1, 1889, the net earnings have been $3,237,586, a decrease of $157,554 as compared with the corresponding period last year.

Fire at Rockland, Me.

ROCKLAND, Me., June 27.—A fire last night burned a building and its contents on Park Place, owned by A. K. Spear and occupied by F. R. Spear for hay and storage and as a stable. Four horses and a cow perished. The addition of the St. Nicholas Hotel was also damaged.

Yale Commencement Exercises.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 27.—The Commencement exercises of the Class of '89 Yale, occurred in Center Church yesterday. The class graduated 126 men. The valedictorian was William A. McQuaid, of New Haven and the Salutorian H. F. Walker, of Detroit.

Session of the Labor Commissioners.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 27.—At the session of the Labor Commissioners, a paper on child labor, written by Mrs. Florence Kelly Wichnewitzki, was read and discussed. The President, Vice-President and Secretary were appointed a committee to select some topic of general interest to the laboring classes upon which all of the Commission may work in harmony.

Col. McCaull Is Not Insane.

NEW YORK, June 27.—It having been stated in a paper that John A. McCaull, the comic opera manager, was suffering from paresis in Baltimore, Benjamin Stevens, his abusiness associate, said that the report was untrue. McCaull, he says, recently broke his leg, and is now convalescing at his home in Baltimore. His mind is in no way affected.

PHELPS FOR BERLIN

The Samoan Commissioner Becomes German Minister.

IT IS NOT MUCH OF A SURPRISE.

President Harrison Made the Appointment Yesterday.

The Reward of Mr. Phelps' Successful Diplomatic Work in the Recent Samoan Conference—The Friends of Editor Murat Halstead Gave Up the Struggle Some Time Ago—Postmasters Appointed in New York.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The President yesterday appointed Wm. Walter Phelps, of New Jersey, Minister to Germany.

WM. W. PHELPS.

The nomination of Mr. Phelps is no surprise as it has been generally understood that he would be offered this place on his return from Berlin after the Samoan Commision had finished its labors.

The friends of Editor Murat Halstead gave up the idea some time ago of the Senate ever acting favorably upon his nomination and no pressure was brought to bear on the President to withhold the appointment longer.

Fourth-Class Postmasters Chosen.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The following named fourth-class postmasters were appointed in New York to-day: Rebecca J. Seymour, Ardonia; E. A. Marks, Belleaye; W. T. Humphrey, Big Indian; L. R. Nash, Earlville; T. W. Peeling, East Bloomfield; R. Humphrey, Esopus; W. C. Williams, Farmersville Station; G. W. Smith, Fish's Eddy; C. B. Shaler, Floyd; E. S. Munson, Franklin; R. Palmer, Glen Castle; A. J. Reemoldson, Gulick; C. H. Mills, Hadley; S. K. Wood, Homorsack; Fred Horton, Horton; C. Drake, Lansingville; A. M Henderson, North Hortright.

THE CLUB MUST PAY,

A Test Suit Will be Brought by Johnstown Sufferers.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 27.—Legal proceedings against the South Fork Fishing Club will be commenced here next week. The matter has been talked over in a quiet way for a week, and some rumors have crept out, but not until to-day was there a definite line of action laid out. The first move will be a suit for damages in the sum of $150,000, brought as a test case by the firm of John Thomas & Sons.

The firm of Thomas & Sons did a general mercantile business of about $200,000 a year. They also had a fertilizer manufactory on the outside of the city, and owned several farms in the path of the flood. They lost fully $150,000, and are the heaviest losers in the mercantile business in Johnstown. For that reason and from their standing in the community it was thought that they should bring the test suit, the majority of the expense of which will be borne by fifty other citizens whose names will not be made public.

What the P. R. R. Lost.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—At a meeting of the directors of the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday, the first since the recent floods, the result of the examination of the several lines made by President Roberts was discussed. No accurate estimate as to the cost of restoring the property to the condition it was in before the flood, but reports were presented sufficiently specific to show that on all of the lines operated by the company the total damage done would not exceed from $1,500,000 to $1,750,000, which sum will be entirely supplied from the surplus profits of all the lines affected. Except by loss of traffic, the current net revenue of the several companies will therefore not be affected.

The Commissioners Visit Lock Haven.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., June 27.—Mayor Mason and the Relief committee this afternoon showed Messrs. Marvin, Scott and Miller, the Pittsburg members of Governor Beaver's Flood commission, through the city. Messrs. Marvin, Scott and Miller viewed the damages by the flood at Renove before their visit to this city.

Profits of the P. R. R.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—The statement of the business of the Pennsylvania Railroad company's lines east of Pittsburg and Erie for May, 1889, shows an increase of $131,872 in net earnings as compared with May, 1888. The five months of 1889 show an increase in net earnings of $522,000 over the same period of 1888. The operations of the lines west of Pittsburg and Erie for the five months of 1889, show a net loss of $200,832, being a loss as compared with the same period of 1888 of $64,754.

Graduation Exercises at Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Me., June 27.—Graduation exercises at the Maine Medical school took place yesterday. James McKeen delivered the address and President Hyde presented the diplomas. The Bowdoin trustees voted to name the new gymnasium the "Sargent Gymnasium," after Dr. Sargent, who donated the apparatus. At the annual meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa Rev. E. Cummings was elected president. The committee to attend the Saratoga convention consists of F. W. Robinson, Barrett Potter and A. W. Case.

FUNERAL OF HERBERT W. PECK.

"Blessed Are They Who Are Called to the Marriage Supper of the Lamb."

Every seat in Trinity Repormed church was occupied, last evening, at five o'clock, upon the occasion of the funeral of Herbert Winthrop Peck. The unusually large attendance proved the esteem in which he is held by the community, and their appreciation of the loss they had sustained and their sympathy with the bereaved parents.

The doleful and oppressive atmosphere that is unjustly supposed to be a proper and a necessary part of like gatherings, was absent. Intimate friends of the dead man, wearing white Japonicas in their coats, acted as ushers, and through the wide open doors and windows the bright sun and pleasant breezes entered and filled the large church with brightness and comfort. By request of the family, there was no dismal tolling of the bell.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck and the Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, D. D., met the funeral cortege at the door of the church, as it came from the house, and preceded the pall bearers with the remains, up the centre aisle to the pulpit. The parents of the deceased and intimate family friends, followed and occupied the pews in the front that had been reserved for them. The casket was loaded with magnificent floral tokens of love and admiration, including a massive bank of flowers from the Y's.

Mr. Arthur L. Titsworth presided at the organ and played with beautiful effect an appropriate processional. There was singing during the services by a quartette of male voices—Messrs Elmer E. Runyon, David E. Titsworth, Morris C. VanArsdale and Arthur L. Titsworth. The pall bearers were: Messrs Louis Walz, Frank Newman, Tiemann Horn, Neil Bristol, John Woodruff and Mortimer Day. The ushers were: Messrs Frank Martin, Fred Yates, Daniel Adams, Frank Clawson and Clarence Murphy of this city, and Messrs Sebert and Allen of New York.

The Rev. Mr. Schenck spoke first, taking his conception of the occasion from John's words: "Blessed are they who are called to the marriage supper of the Lamb." His address was a cheering one, though most affecting. "This is not a time," he said, "when we should feel miserable, unhappy, unfortunate or ill fated. This is rather a time for congratulation. This is not the ending of a life, but the beginning of it. It is not darkness that has come upon us, but sunshine. It is not the cutting off of all this young man's brilliant prospects—it is the realization of every ambition. It is the beginning of a rest that shall never be disturbed, and of a song without an end.

"There is left behind a blessed record, and a sweet and tender memory, we shall always cherish. Herbert Peck furnished for you and for me, an example we may well seek to emulate. He has shown how one can be manly and yet be a Christian—how it is consistent to be a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ and yet be a man."

The Rev. Dr. Raymond, who as the former pastor of the church had received Herbert Peck into its membership, followed with a sympathetic and compassionate talk, full of just eulogy of the dead. "I am here," he began, "not as a minister but as a friend, to talk over together among us the experiences we have had with him who has just left us for a little while. * * * I never knew in all my life a purer hearted young man than Herbert Peck. He had not one unholy ambition, nor a single feeling that was mean. The Father has let the light of this life in upon us just long enough to leave its impression on those who will be influenced by it."

The remains encased in a casket of embossed white velvet, were deposited in the receiving vault at Hillside Cemetery, to be privately interred, later.

The Rev. Mr. Schenck Will Go to Europe.

"Three months' vacation for our pastor," was voted by the consistory of Trinity Reformed church, at a meeting last evening, and the Rev. Mr. Schenck will sail Tuesday morning of next week, at seven o'clock, on the SS. "Arizona."

He will be accompanied by the prayers for his health and safety, and the heartfelt wishes for his enjoyment, of the whole congregation and his hosts of friends among the people of Plainfield. The tour will be through Liverpool, London, Belgium, The Rhine, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, France, England and Scotland.

Mrs. Schenck will not accompany him, but will spend part of the time in Plainfield and the remainder with her mother at Philadelphia, her former home.

Closing Exercises in the Public Schools.

The Public Schools in this city and in North Plainfield, closed with appropriate exercises today. At the High School the exercises opened with Scripture reading and prayer, followed by singing and an address by the Principal, Miss Bulkley.

At the Washington School building, the exercises were more extended, and included, singing, recitations and addresses. A solo by Master John Bartindale was well rendered. A flag drill by twelve girls, each with a wand, was creditably performed, and was a very pretty sight. Addresses of a patriotic nature were delivered by Judge L. F. Wadsworth and Judge Harper, after which the pupils marched out into the yard, and witnessed the unfurling of a handsome flag.

TRINITY COMMANDERY CONSTITUTED.

Impressive Ceremonies in Anchor Lodge Room Last Evening—The Banquet and the Guests.

The ceremonies attending the constituting of Trinity Commandery, No. 17 Knights Templar of this city, took place in Anchor Lodge room, last evening, over eighty of the Sir Knights, including the officers of the Grand Commandery of New Jersey being in attendance. The new Commandery was constituted with a membership of thirty-seven.

The Commandery was constituted by Sir Albert D. Winfield of Paterson, Grand Commander, assisted by the following grand officers: L. L. Grear, D. G. C., of Passaic Bridge; Isaac S. Roberts, P. G. C., Lambertville; J. E. Fulper, G.C.G., of Washington; Thomas Codson, Grand Prelate of Newark; W. W. Hulfish, G. S. W., of Newark; Warren Dobbs, G. J. W., of Jersey City; I. C. Githens, P. G. C, of Camden; James McCain, Grand Standard Bearer, of Trenton; Edward Mills, Grand Steward Bearer, of Camden; Robert Dingwell, Grand Warden, of Newark, and J. E. Rowe, Grand Marshal, of Newark.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, R. E. Sir Albert D. Winfield, G. C., assisted by Em. Sir J. E. Rowe, Grand Marshal, installed the following officers:

Commander—Wm. H. Sebring.
C. G—C. M. Goddard.
Prelate—W. L. Gavett.
S. W—F. O. Herring.
J. W—B. F. Coriell.
Treasurer—O. T. Waring.

Warden—John Chandler.
Organist—E. Woltmann.
Third Guard—J. G. Miller.
Second Guard—C. H. Rugg.
First Guard—Asa Collier.
Sentinel—I. D. TenEyck.

After the installation of officers Eminent Sir J. S. Farcand on behalf of St. John's Commandery No. 9 of Elizabeth presented an elegant Bible to Trinity Commandery, and Eminent Commander Wm. H. Sebring acknowledged the receipt of the same.

The Commandery then closed and the Sir Knights repaired to the banqueting room in the Republican headquarters on East Front street, where a sumptuous collation was served by Stevenson, during which speech-making was a prominent feature.

Large delegations were present from Cour de Lion Commandery, No. 8, K. T., of New Brunswick, Josiah Tice Eminent Commander, also from St. John's Commandery, No. 9, of Elizabeth, J. S. Farrand Eminent Commander; Pilgrim Commandery, No. 16, of Hoboken, R. H. Livingston Eminent Commander; Damascus Commandery, No. 5, of Newark and Palestine Commandery, No. 4, of Trenton.

Melita Commandery, No. 13, of Paterson, was represented by Eminent Commander, W. J. Lockwood and Sir Knights Pidget and Parsons. The latter presented Sir Knight E. P. Thorn of this city with a badge of Melita Commandery.

High School Boys Close the Season With Another Victory.

The High School team finished the season by defeating a picked nine, Tuesday, on the Y. M. C. A. grounds. The High Schools were to play the Fanwood nine, but all their players did not show up, and three fellows were substituted. Up to the 5th inning the High School team kept the picked nine from making any runs—in fact, not one reached first base—but pitying them the High Schools played a loose game, which resulted in the picked nine making 5 runs. Then the boys would not allow any more of that and played better ball up to the 8th inning, when they again became reckless. Without these faults the High School boys played a fine game. Following is the score:

The Rev. Mr. McAll to the Plainfield Auxiliary.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I have been requested to send you for publication the enclosed extracts from a letter lately received from Rev. R. W. McAll, that a larger circle may read his words. His letter is in response to a contribution of $50 sent by the Plainfield Auxiliary, toward its mission's present work at the Paris Exposition.

MISSION POPULAIRE EVANGELIQUE DE FRANCE,
28 VILLA MOLITOR,
ANTEUIL, PARIS.
May 28, 1889.

Mrs. Augustus C. Baldwin,

DEAR MADAM:—* * * * * I wished to seize a moment amidst my incessant duties, to express our high estimate of the true Christian sympathy of yourself and the friends associated with you at Plainfield. Can you not understand how cheering it is to us to know that kind thoughts and fervent prayers are constantly engaged on our behalf, and many of these on the part of dear friends whom we have never yet had the joy of welcoming here.

Our special work in the "World's Fair" is full of interest. Each night we have two meetings in our larger temporary Hall on Avenue Rapp. On Sunday we add a third meeting there. At the smaller Hall, Place de Trocadiro, a meeting is held daily, and two on Sundays. We have constantly new congregations in these places, many of whom never before in their lives heard the tidings of Salvation by grace. Not a few come afterwards to convene with us, and express their interest and gratitude. We trust and believe that they will carry a Saviour of the Gospel back with them into the farthest corners of France. A diligent sale and extensive distribution of Bibles and Scripture portions goes on at both Halls. They are eagerly received. All this being added to our extensive regular work, we are busied indeed. Our dear friends Mrs. Chase and Miss Lea from Philadelphia are here. Their visits are invaluable to us. We owe them more than can be told. * * * * * * * * *

Believe me, dear madam, most truly yours,
R. W. MCALL.

What a Plainfielder Saw at Johnstown.

Mr. D. W. Littell, the North avenue plumber, is at present in Pittsburg attending the National Convention of the Master Plumbers' Association. On his way to Pittsburg Mr. Littell with others stopped over at Johnstown, and viewed the terrible scenes caused by the late flood. In a private letter to the writer, Mr. Littell says:

"I can say that the daily papers have not exaggerated the disaster at all; it is three times worse than they have reported it. The fire at the bridge is still burning, and the laborers are hard at work. Houses are piled up on each other yet, and it is a heartrending sight. The washout in the Conemaugh Valley is beyond description; words cannot express it. Friends of the lost are still standing about the wreckage looking for their loved ones. One poor woman remarked that if she could only find one of her loved ones or a token of them, she would feel settled and satisfied, but not a member of her family has been found. The city is like a forest cut down, the roots of the trees representing the foundations of houses. In numerous instances gullies have been washed out to a depth of from fifteen to twenty feet.

"On Friday the entire delegation to the Master Plumbers' Convention will spend five hours in sight-seeing at Johnstown, upon invitation from the Mayor and Gen. Hastings. As I said before, you cannot describe the horrors of the city."

Its Fiftieth Performance.

In all of Francis Wilson's long stage career with its surprises and successes, he never achieved such a measure of popularity as he has earned by his work in "The Oolah" at the Broadway Theatre. Last Monday evening "The Oolah" entered upon its seventh week, and a very large audience was present to laugh at the matrimonial woes and tribulations of Hoolahgoolah. Its record has been a succession of big houses and enthusiastic audiences. As "The Oolah" stands, it is likely to prove the greatest comic opera success of the day.

Preparations are being made for the fiftieth performance which will take place next Monday evening, July 1. Very pretty little momentoes have been prepared to properly commemorate the event. The house will be decorated and a general gala night made of the occasion.

"The Oolah" is attracting large numbers of out-of-town people. Theatre parties from the near-by towns are of very frequent occurrence. The curtain goes down at 10:45 giving ample time to reach the late suburban trains.

Tennis Tournament.

The following ladies and gentlemen will take part in the tennis tournament to be given on the grounds of the Plainfield Lawn Club at Central avenue and Eighth street, on Saturday of this week at 3 P. M.:

Rev W. R. Richards and Miss L. Newman; Rev. A. Reed Dilts and Miss Flora Petrie; Samuel St. J. McCutchen and Miss Julia Ketcham; L. B. Goodrich and Miss Mary French; Russell Jacobus and Miss Kate Kimball; Rev. C. L. Goodrich and Miss Minnie E. Wood. The price of admission will be 20 cents. The receipts will be donated to the Y. M. C. A. building fund.

Rhyme and Reason.

Now rose-leaves rain o'er grassy plain,
And chrystals rain the cloudways through,
While very best of bargains reign
At Collier's, 3 Park avenue.

ON THE RAILROAD.

Important Change of Time Table and Increased Accommodations.

The full Summer schedule on all divisions and branches of the Central Railroad of New Jersey will take effect Sunday, June 30, with increased accommodations.

The Steamers Monmouth, Sandy Hook and St. Johns of the Sandy Hook Route will leave New York, Pier 8, N. R., at 4:30, 7:45, 9:00, 11:00 A. M., 1:00, 3:30, 4:15, 5:30 P. M.; Sundays at 9:30 A. M., 1:00 P. M. These boats will connect at Sandy Hook with fast express trains for Seabright, Monmouth Beach, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and all points on the New Jersey coast. The addition of the Steamer Sandy Hook to the fleet of Steamers running on this route and the double tracking of the road between Sandy Hook and Long Branch will be appreciated by the public, as the time on all the trips will be reduced over former seasons.

The trains of the "All Rail Route" from foot of Liberty street, N. R., New York, will leave at 4:00, 8:15, 9:30, 11:15 A. M., 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4, 4:30, 5:30, 6:10 P. M., Sundays at 9:00 A. M., 4:00 P. M., for Red Bank, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, Point Pleasant, etc. These trains will be composed of elegant day coaches, built by the Pullman Company, and Pullman Parlor cars will be attached to all express trains. A new feature will be a through express train from Newark to Long Branch and Point Pleasant, leaving Newark at 4:35 P. M., and arriving at Newark on return at 9:15 A. M. The first trip of this train will be made on Saturday, June 29. There will also be a special express train by "All Rail" route from New York, leaving foot of Liberty street, at 3:30 P. M., Saturday, June 29, for Long Branch and principal stations to Point Pleasant.

From Pier 8, N. R., a special steamer will leave on Saturday, June 29, at 1:00 P. M., for Long Branch, Ocean Grove, Vineland, Bridgeton, etc.

The train now leaving New York for Easton at 8:30 A. M., will be changed to 8:45 A. M.

A Sunday train to Lake Hopatcong will be added, leaving New York at 7:00 A. M. Returning, arrive at New York at 9:30 P. M.

Plainfielders in Competition for an Elegant Jewel.

(From the Somerville Democrat.)

Somerset Lodge, No. 56, Knights of Pythias, of Bound Brook, is making extensive preparation for a grand fair to begin July 3. It promises to be one of the most successful benefits that the town has ever had. Every member of the Lodge is using time and influence in the effort to swell the funds of the organization, part of which it is intended to forward to Johnstown, for the relief of the families of brother Knights, who perished in the flood.

The Lodge has purchased an elegant P. C. jewel, said to be the most valuable in the State, which will be given to the one of the following Past Chancellors of neighboring lodges who gets the most votes before the closing night of the fair: William Durham of Friendship Lodge, No. 30, New Brunswick; Joseph Blimm of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Plainfield; E. W. Titsworth of Unity Lodge, No. 102, Plainfield; A. J. Chamberlain of Lodge of the Castle, No. 82, Somerville; J. R. Hall of Crescent Lodge, No. 93, Flemington; J. Kitchen of Star Lodge, No. 113, Clinton, and Charles Haberly of Goodwill Lodge, No. 101, Scotch Plains. The home Lodge will divide its support equally among the contestants for the jewel.

Too Many Hydrants Proposed.

(From the Central Times.)

In the discussion at the last Common Council meeting on the subject of water works, the question was raised by Councilman Marsh, whether it was not extravagant to commence the system on 200 hydrants, in addition to the score of good fire wells already existing in the city, and put down at a large expense. Reference to official reports of fire departments in neighboring municipalities shows the following: Morristown, with 20 miles of mains, has 90 hydrants; Orange, with 31 miles of mains, has 185 hydrants; Trenton, with 41 miles of mains, has 203 hydrants; Elizabeth, with 47 miles of mains, has 214 hydrants.

The G. A. R. Excursion.

A regular encampment of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., was held in the Post room on Tuesday evening. The principal business transacted was the settling up of the items in connection with the recent excursion given under the auspices of the Post. It is to be regretted that the Post did not succeed financially, but this is perhaps easily explained from the fact that not more than fifteen of the members were passengers on the train. Those who went along report having had a delightful time.

We Think So, But We Give it Up.

The following intelligent (?) item appears in this week's issue of the Somerset Messenger, among the Raritan items:

"Our informant, who stated there was a Sunday meeting anent the quo warranto proceedings, must have drawn largely on his imagination for some of his statements as no Plainfield lawyer, known as the Judge, has been in town."

—The heavy rains, yesterday, flowed into the sewers under the Park avenue railroad bridge in such quantities that the sewers were inadequate to carry off the supply, and the water backed up to such a depth as to entirely submerge the roadway.

ANOTHER WOMAN FIEND.

Mrs. Brennan Arrested for Poisoning Her Husband and Two Sons.

HOLYOKE, Mass., June 27.—Mrs. Lizzie Brennan was arrested to-day on suspicion of having poisoned her husband and two sons in order to obtain the insurance which she had on their lives.

The Brennans had six children, and Mrs. Brennan insured the lives of all, including herself, the policies being made payable to her. The amounts of the policies ranged from $300 to $2,000.

Her husband died under suspicious circumstances two months ago. Six weeks ago her son John died. She supposed that his insurance had been increased, but on claiming it she found the increase had been erroneously made in the policy of his brother Thomas. About two weeks ago Thomas was taken sick. He went to the country, where he recovered, but on returning home he was again seized, and died in great agony to-day.

All of the medicines used were seized by the officers.

Russel Harrison Goes Abroad.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Inman steamship City of New York, which sailed to-day had among its passengers Russel Harrison, son of the President. He goes to Paris and London in the interest of his publication. Dr. Fordyce Barker, Edmund Johnson, U. S. Consul for Baden, Alsace and Lorraine, Sir Wm. Robinson, Governor of Trinidad and Lady Robinson were passengers on the Trave.

Once Wealthy, Suicides a Pauper.

WHITMAN, Mass., June 27.—Joseph Macomber, aged 88, committed suicide last night by cutting his throat. He has been an inmate of the poor house here for the past eleven years. At one period of his life he was well off and had quite a reputation as a lecturer on astronomical subjects. He is not known to leave relatives.

For Mistreating Her Child.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Mrs. Annie Dubois, convicted of brutally maltreating her seven year old step-child Della, was to-day sentenced by Judge Martine to one year in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $500.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THIRTY MEN KILLED

Fearful Railroad Accident at Latrobe, Pa.

LABORERS FROM JOHNSTOWN.

Put Off the Train, They Jumped on Again and Rode to Death.

Thirty-One Cars with an Engine Fall Fifty Feet to the Channel of a Creek—The Wreck Takes Fire and is Covered with Boiling Lime—Horrible Agony of the Imprisoned Victims—The Track Torn Up.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 26.—A special from Greensburg says: The wreck at Latrobe on the Pennsylvania railroad is terrible and it is probable that thirty or forty lives were lost.

Thirty-one cars together with an engine went down into the channel of the Loyal Hanna Creek, fifty feet below the bridge.

The conductor states that he is positive that thirty men are under the wreck. He stopped his train at Derry Station and put off forty-five men who were coming to Pittsburg from Johnstown.

After receiving his train orders he started West and a great many of the men jumped on his train again. The last car to go over the bridge was loaded with lime and it scattered all over the pile of wrecked cars setting them and the bridge on fire.

He describes the screams and yells of the imprisoned men as terrible in the extreme.

Firemen from this place went to the scene and are now throwing water on the flames. The arms, legs and bodies of victims can be seen protruding from the debris.

Not a member of the crew, except the conductor remain to tell the number of those who went down. The West-bound freight collided with the Derry shifting engine just as the train reached the bridge.

The track for a long distance is torn up. Those known to have been killed are Elmer Caldwell, engineer; Frolich, fireman, and Hugh Kelly. Those fatally injured are John Brown, Thomas Miller, Pat Flanagan, John Early, Peter Monday, John Miller, John Howard, John Thomas, T. Miller and Lewis Wyble.

LATE NEWS FROM ABROAD.

The Irish Supply Bill Not to Be Taken Up Until Next Month.

LONDON, June 27.—The Government has arranged with the Parnellites that the Irish Supply bill shall not be taken up in the House of Commons until July 15.

This understanding was reached at the solicitation of the Home Rulers many of whom, feeling no interest in the other subjects of legislation to be brought before the House, are anxious to take a much needed rest, and many will leave London to enjoy a holiday untill the date named.

The well known engineer Sir Robert Rawlinson in an interview printed to-day on the subject of the collapsed Johnstown dam is far from echoing the confidence of the English press in safety of the dams confining large bodies of water in England.

He makes the suggestion that the Government should institute an inquiry into the whole subject of artificial lakes and abolish all reservoirs situated immediately above thickly populated valleys without reference to the apparent safety of their construction.

He insists that engineering science should be credited with infallibility no more than other human institutions, and in no case ought the lives of the thousands of men, women and children to be jeopardized by a possible error of judgment on the part of an engineer.

The plan for the conversion of the Egyptian debt has been finally abandoned in consequence of England's refusal to guarantee the evacuation of Egypt, which was made by France a condition of her consent to the conversion scheme.

Besides this guarantee, France also demanded the annulment of the Anglo-Turkish convention of 1887, before she would give her consent to the conversion.

Germany and Switzerland.

BERLIN, June 27.—The North German Gazette continuing the attack on Switzerland says that the tolerance of the Social Democrat and other Socialistic newspapers by the Swiss authorities in spite of Germany's repeated protests has aided the spread of Socialism's growth. It says that not until one of those journals attacked Swiss officials was the government induced to act.

General Boulanger's Pension Stopped.

PARIS, June 27.—The Government has stopped the payment of Gen. Boulanger's pension. The latter will bring suit against the authorities to compel its payment.

THE LATEST FROM HAYTI.

Mr. Stephen Preston Claims That Legitime Is Still on Top.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The steamship Prins Wilhelm arrived to-day. Among her passengers were Stephen Preston, son of Minister Preston, of Hayti, Gen. Herard Laforest, Military Governor of Port-au-Prince, and Mr. Leon Hutinot, Chancellor of the French Legation at Port-au-Prince. Mr. Hutinot is en route to France with despatches addressed to the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Preston told a reporter that he was en route to Germany on a secret mission to ask Germany in behalf of Legitime for assistance against Hippolyte.

The situation in Hayti, he said, was about the same as it was eight months ago. Legitime was still in possession of Port-au Prince, and Mr. Preston denied that the city had been besieged. Hippolyte had never been within fifteen miles of the city.

Legitime is certain of success. He has obtained a second loan from the merchants of Port-au-Prince of $600,000. He intends to push the campaign with this money and endeavor to bring the war to a close.

Attempted Suicide in a Cemetery.

NEWARK, N. J., June 27.—Yesterday afternoon August Drescher, a druggist, attempted suicide by shooting in Woodland cemetery. He fired several shots at his head, but only one bullet took effect. He was found lying across the grave of his sixteen-year-old daughter, who died last September. The superintendent of the cemetery notified the police and Drescher was taken home. His wound is dangerous, but not fatal.

S. Robbins & Son Go Under.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—After confessing judgment for $14,800 to the Kensington National bank for money loaned, the old-established iron firm of S. Robbins & Son, proprietors of the Philadelphia Rolling mills and blast furnace, made a general assignment for the benefit of creditors to Edward H. Wilson of the iron commission firm of E. H. Wilson, who are creditors to the amount of $10,000 or more. The liabilities are $115,000.

An Advance in Coal Prices.

NEW YORK, June 27.—A meeting of the sales agents of the six great coal companies decided yesterday to advance prices as follows, to take effect July 1: Grate, 5c.; egg, 15c.; stove, 10c.; chestnut, 15c., making the price respectively $3.90, $4.15, $4.40 and $4.15. In 1888 the prices ranged slightly under this figure until July 16, when they were advanced.

A Fire of Incendiary Origin.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., June 27.—The feed store and hay-press of E. L. Kooker, at Sellersville, on the North Pennsylvania railroad, were burned last night by a fire of incendiary origin. The presence of a steam fire engine saved the rest of the town. Loss, about $10,000; partly covered by insurance.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

Two twins I know—two lovely girls—as pretty as can be,
Upon a charming country place far down in Tennessee;
Their names are Maud and Madge, but each resembles so the other,
To tell them is not possible to father or to mother.

Each has blue eyes and golden hair, and features just the same,
The voice is one, the form is one—they differ but in name;
They dress alike; they walk alike, and not a trait you see
Belongs to one to which the other doesn't just agree.

I first met Maud and loved her, as only lovers can,
And when she cooed responsive, I was a happy man;
Madge then was on a visit, and I did not chance to see,
Or know her, till long after I became Maud's love-parti.

With seventeen years' rare beauty they thrill each comer's heart,
But never was the person who could tell the two apart;
The first time I saw Madge she ran in answer to the door;
And I kissed her for my sweetheart, though we'd never met before!

This mistake she sweetly pardoned, as she often has to do,
Until now I seem committed by my acts to wed the two;
For when they come together to each will beat my heart,
But I try to keep my kiss back till they tell themselves apart.

Sometimes—or else it seems so—Madge salutes me with a sly
Keen counterfeit of frankness in her manner and her eye,
When I put my arm around her, as I feel it is my right,
Nor can I tell the difference if Maud is full in sight.

This dilemma is portentous, though I cannot say a bore,
I should love—if they were like them—a dozen sisters more;
And I should tell each one I love her (for what else is there to do?)
Though it strains the best affection to pledge single love to two!

One day I met Madge suddenly, and took her finger tips,—
As I thought she blamed my coldness, I then kissed her on the lips—
When all at once she told me that Maud was just in view,
And in another minute I had finished kissing two!

"NOR CAN I TELL THE DIFFERENCE IF MAUD IS FULL IN SIGHT."

How to end this touching comedy I know not, till we wed,—
And still, when Maud I marry I see other bulks ahead;
To go and live in Utah is not just the thing to do,
Though I'm dead in love with one girl and am paying love to two.

As I cannot court forever it surely will work strife,
If I think at times that one girl then another, is my wife:
Yet in wooing in this fashion, so very queer and new,
One's benefits are doubled by receiving them from two.

I think I'll buy a necklace and fix it fast on Maud—
(She'll have to tell me which she is) to head off wrong and fraud;
But if by some strange blunder I should make the wrong one wife,
I shall never know the difference for the balance of my life.

But one thing does disturb me not a little, I declare,
What if Madge should have a lover? By jove! he must beware!
There might come a complication which no mortal could condone,
If I saw him kiss my pretty wife and claim her as his own.

It Will Prove a Failure.

Mrs. Henpeck—My dear, you will make a sad mistake if you marry Mr. Meak. He has no beard and he wears a wig.

Daughter—What difference does that make?

"Huh! You try managing a husband with no hair of his own, and you'll find out."

Miss Gotham—I adore travelling. Were you ever in Greece, Miss Loin?

Miss Loin (of Cincinnati)—No I never was, but papa was in that lard trust, you know.

SOME QUEER FISHES.

Singular Exhibitions of Breathing Habits and Climbing Propensities.

Taking first the Ophiocephalus tribe, or "snake-headed" fishes, found in the Indian region, we meet with singular exhibitions of breathing habits, writes Dr. Andrew Wilson, F. R. S. E., F. L. S., in Once a Week. It is known of these fishes that they can survive long periods of dryness, living as they do in the semi-fluid mud of rivers and lakes. Often they may be found lying dormant beneath the "hard-baked crusts of the bottom of a tank, from which every drop of water has disappeared." Now, in these fishes it is clear breathing must be largely suspended, and life goes on at very low pressure, so to speak; but so long as the mud is soft enough, these fishes can be seen to rise to the surface at intervals to gulp in air. That is to say, when hard pressed for water, these fishes have developed a habit of using air taken directly from the atmosphere for the purpose of purifying their blood—a function naturally carried on by their gills. They have converted themselves, for the time being, into land-animals. Not is this all. These "snake-headed" fishes of India, while enjoying their ordinary life in the water, are are also seen to gulp down air from the atmosphere. Dr. Day tells us that this habit is to be regularly observed in these fishes. He adds the interesting observation that if a net be suspended below the surface of the water of the vessel in which they are contained, so as to prevent the fishes from rising to the top of the water to breathe in the air, they will actually perish and die by suffocation. So that just as ordinary fishes die suffocated out of the water, these fishes perish from a like cause if they are kept in the water.

Another and nearly related division of fishes includes the climbing perch of India and its neighbors. In 1797, one Daldorf, in a paper read before the Linnæan Society of London, detailed the fact that he had captured a climbing-perch (or Anabas) while the fish was climbing a palm-tree growing near a pond. The fish had attained a height of five feet above the water, and was proceeding to a higher level still. By aid of the spines in front of its gill-covers, it held on to the tree's bark. It then bent its tail, and inserted into the bark its hinder tail-spines. Thus fixing the hinder part of the body as a kind of fulcrum or support, the fish then released its head, and made further ascent by straightening its body. In the Malay tongue the fish has been named the "tree-climber:" and it is known to walk, or rather to waddle, over the land in search of fresh ponds and pools. The gills are kept moist in its land-journeys by a peculiar arrangement of the bones of the head. These bones are greatly twisted and contorted, and serve apparently either to retain moisture for the gills, or to hold a supply of air sufficient for the breathing operations of the fish.

But excelling in interest, even the curious fishes just named, we find the Lepidosiren, or mud-fish, of the Amazon and Gambia rivers, and the Ceratodus, or "Barramunda," of the rivers of Queensland. In most ordinary fishes, such as the cod, salmon, herring, etc., an organ called the air-bladder, swimming-bladder, or sound exists. The use of this organ is apparently that of enabling the fish to rise or to sink in the water, by releasing or compressing the gases the "sound" contains. This bladder varies very much in shape and conformation, and in some cases it is seen to communicate with the throat of the fish by means of a duct or tube. In deep-sea fishes the gas contained in the bladder is mostly oxygen, while in fresh-water fishes much nitrogen with little oxygen and carbonic acid gas are found. These gases appear to be secreted or formed by the air-bladder itself. In some ordinary fishes, in which a dense network of blood-vessels exists in connection with the air-bladder, we may readily believe that this organ may assist in purifying the blood.

In certain fishes, however, not only does the air-bladder become lung-like in structure, but it also discharges the duties of a lung, in that it receives impure or venous blood from the body and returns it to the body in a purified condition. The Ceratodus of Queensland has thus an air-bladder which is a true lung. It rises to the surface of the water and fills this lung, then descends and remains below water until the air it has inhaled has become exhausted. The fish possesses also fully-developed gills, and we may hold that these organs are its natural breathing organs while it inhabits the water, although it is equally obvious that the lung-like air-bladder must constitute its means of breathing, when from any circumstances the gills are unable to perform their work. As Dr. Gunther tells us, the Barramunda "can breathe either by gills or lungs alone, or by both simultaneously."

The Lepidosirens, or "mud fishes," on the other hand, are more decidedly lung breathers than the Ceratodus. For their air-bladder is really a double lung, purifying impure blood, in the absence of water, in which medium alone their gills can act efficiently. In the dry seasons of the year these mud fishes appear to be dried up with the mud of the pools or lakes they inhabit. They coil head and tail together, and exist thus inside a cavity or receptacle hollowed in the mud, which may communicate with the outer air by an aperture or channel. These fishes are dug out of the mud, and are often sent to Europe packed, as it were, by nature, within their mud investments, and existing thus inside a veritable ball of dry clay, whence they are released by steeping the clay in tepid water. In this state it is evident the breathing must be of a strictly atmospheric type. There can be no use for gills in a fish while it is spending part of its life in a dried and dessicated state.

Hence, the lung-like air-bladder must perform all the functions of breathing, the gills resuming their duties, doubtless, when the wet season dissolves the clay and when the fish returns to its native waters. We witness in such a case the stages by which the type of water life can be, and probably has been, modified into the type of land life. Anyone who sees a frog begin life as a tadpole, breathing with gills, and ending its existence as an air-breathing frog, may think of the mud fishes, and note how lower life often successfully aspires to attain a higher stage of existence.

Uncle Medill and the Reporter.

They tell in Chicago a story about Uncle Joseph Medill, the owner of the Chicago Tribune, and a new reporter of that paper. The reporter was sent the other evening to write up a reception. He got along all right until he met a fine-looking gray-bearded old gentleman, the center of a group of ladies and gentlemen. As is customary, apparently in Chicago, the reporter entered the group and got the names of those present, but when he asked for the old gentleman's name he was answered by a loud and and exasperating: "Eh!" "I should like your name, please." "Eh! What? Speak louder!" yelled the old gentleman, putting his hand to his ear. The reporter filled his lungs with air and then yelled: "I am a reporter, and would like your name!" "Oh, reporter, eh! What paper?" "The Tribune; will you please give me your name!" The old man looked at the young man kindly, stroked his beard, and said, quietly: "Joseph Medill."

COLUMBIA BEATEN

In the College Boat Races at New London.

TWICE SHE FINISHED SECOND.

Her Freshmen Outrowed by the Young Men from Harvard.

Cornell Wins the Triangular Contest, the University of Pennsylvania Crew in Third Place—Trotting at Charter Oak Park—The Coming Fight Between Kilrain and Sullivan—News and Gossip of the Sporting World.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 28.—The crews of Columbia were twice beaten yesterday afternoon. It was expected in the race of the Columbia Freshmen with the Harvard Freshmen, for the Columbia had a light crew that had entered the contest handicapped by a belief that was too freely entertained that they were no match for the sturdy lads who wielded the crimson blades for Harvard. And this fact, coupled with their lightness and the strong head wind, and water a trifle lumpy for their style, was what really beat them. They rowed well and hard, and gave the visitors that hardest kind of a chase, a stern one, but in vain. They are really a better crew than their contest would indicate.

Cornell won the triangular contest, Columbia again coming in second, with the University of Pennsylvania third. Cornell was the favorite in the betting.

The race was over in doubt. Never was there more than a length between the first and the second bow, and the Pennsylvanias too, came along so magnificently strong at the end, that it was impossible for the moment for those behind in the boats to say just who had won.

It was a grand race, but it was a costly one for the Columbians. The men were completely used up and unable to help themselves. They were actually rowing right up to their utmost tensions the whole way.

College Boys Angry.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 28.—University of Pennsylvania boys to-day denounced the utterances of Bob Cook, who is alleged to have said that Yale would have no further aquatic contests with University of Pennsylvania men, because the boys from the latter college had deceived Yale men in putting a fixed up freshman crew on the water against the Yale freshman crew this year.

A Pennsylvania collegian said to a reporter that Cook's sole reason for desiring to end Yale-Pennsylvania races is alleged to be Pennsylvania's underhand work in putting first-year men from the professional departments into the freshman crew, but the Pennsylvanians deny that there was anything underhand, inasmuch as the names with class and departments of the men have frequently been published in the Philadelphia papers.

The speaker believed that Cook desired to avoid a freshman race this year in order to prevent a 'Varsity race next year, because he feared defeat.

TROTTING AT HARTFORD.

A Large Attendance at the Races at Charter Oak Park.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 28.—About 25,000 people attended the Charter Oak Park trotting races yesterday. The track was in fine condition and the racing exciting. Mambrino Hannis made a record of 2:17¼ in the 2:30 pacing race. This is the fastest mile trotted or paced thus far this season on any track. The following is the summary for the day:

Sports Not Much Worried.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 28.—Gov. Nichols' proclamation regarding prize fighting in this state is not causing much anxiety to the sports hereabouts.

Brad Renaud, who has charge of the affair, said last night it was never contemplated to pitch the battle ground within the jurisdiction of Louisiana. He says the prosecution will not interfere with the arrangements.

"Bill" Harding and Frank Stevenson of New York concurred fully in Renaud's opinion and expressed like views.

Pittsburg Gets White.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 28.—"Deacon" White, president of the Pittsburg Baseball club, will play with the Pittsburg team the balance of the season and left for Pittsburg last night ready to sign his contract. White stated that the Pittsburg management had offered him $1,250 as a share of the release money paid for him to the Detroit club by the Pittsburgs, and as he had been losing money in the Buffalo club he was perfectly willing to make the change

Serious Charges Against a Doctor.

NEWARK, N. J., June 28.—Doctor Alfred Q. Donovan, Coroner for Union county and Chief of Surgeons at the leading hospital of the city, was arrested yesterday on charges of breach of promise, seduction and malpractice, preferred by Miss Gussie Simeon, who claims $25,000 damages. He was released on $5,000 bail.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

The Delagoa Railroad Affair Promises to Become Serious.

LONDON, June 28.—The diplomatic feature of the repeal by Portugal of the Delagoa railroad in Africa promises to become serious. The railroad was built almost exclusively of English capital and the British government has already made earnest representations to Portugal to induce the Ministry to revoke their action in repealing the concession.

It is claimed on the part of the railway company that the repeal was secured by a few wealthy boers in Delagoa who privately urged the Portuguese Ministry to this course, in the hope of acquiring the railroad without paying for it.

There is no question that sharp practice has been resorted to. The claim upon which the repeal of the concession is based is that the railroad was not completed within the time specified in the grant.

As a matter of fact the whole line was finished when the time expired with the exception of the last six miles of the road and the building of these few miles was delayed by the prevalence of disastrous floods in the district which rendered construction altogether out of the question.

Mrs. McMurdo of London owns 300,000 shares of the stock of the company.

The International Labor Conference.

LONDON, June 28.—The refusal of Germany to take part in the coming international labor conference at Berne will very largely tend to deprive that gathering of the opportunity for useful work which it was hoped would result from it. Germany's refusal is very well understood to be only a spiteful hit at Switzerland in whose territory the conference will hold its sessions, but not withstanding this, other powers who have already signified their intention of being represented, are now said to be considering the advisability of revoking their former action in view of Germany's withdrawal.

Death of Stanley's Assistant.

LONDON, June 28.—A letter from the Lower Congo reports the death of Mr. Swinburne Mr. Stanley's assistant in his previous expedition, but more recently Assistant Manager of the Congo Commercial company. He died of the fever May 31. He was a great favorite of Stanley's.

FELL AMONG THIEVES.

A Cashier Robbed and Thrown from a Ferry-Boat.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 28.—Job C. Crane, cashier of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, at No. 1 Broadway, New York, who resides at this place, did not return to his home last evening, and friends instituted a search for him. At midnight he was found in a hospital in Jersey City, where he was taken after having been picked up in New York bay a few hours before by the crew of the Erie annex-boat.

He was taken by the boat to Hoboken and sent thence to Jersey City. He was unconscious when taken from the water. His hat was gone and his pockets had been rifled of his watch and pocketbook. It is supposed that he was robbed and then thrown from a ferry-boat.

A Mine Under His Home.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 28.—The cellar of the house of Conrad Shafer, on Miner street, caved in yesterday, making a hole twenty-five feet deep. An examination showed that there was a chamber of the Henry Colliery directly under the house and that coal and slate had been mined to within ten feet of the bottom of Shafer's cellar. The cave-in weakened the stone foundation of the house and upturned the garden plot in front of the dwelling.

A Big Consolidation of Coal Interests.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 28.—It is now currently reported that the Monongahela coal operators are about to consolidate and form one gigantic company, controlling the entire output of the Monongahela river mines and a part if not a majority of the Kanawha river mines. It is also stated that the Standard Oil company has offered to take a large block of stock in the proposed new company.

For Assaulting a Little Girl.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 28.—Patrick Corconnan, aged fifty, was before Justice Stilsing yesterday, charged with assault on Sarah Foley, who is only ten years of age. She is the adopted daughter of Corconnan's brother who is the complainant. The girl and the complainant testified that the attempt was made when the girl was at home alone on May 11. The prisoner denied the charge and was prompted by revenge. He was remanded for further investigation.

Brazil, Ind., Strikers.

BRAZIL, Ind., June 28.—The attempt of the State Board of Charities to settle the coal miners' strike here failed to-day. The operators and miners refuse to yield their positions. Further negotiations will be continued by committees. The semi-weekly relief fund to-day amounted to $334, which was equally divided among 5,478 dependants. The fund was 100 per cent. less than on Friday last.

The Poor Umpire Gets It Again.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, June 28.—Two members of the Desmoines Baseball Club, Maculler and Traffley, yesterday attacked Umpire Clark and brutally beat and kicked him until persons present interfered. Clark was sitting on a chair in the hotel when attacked. The assault was on account of a decision in Tuesday's game which the Desmoines club regarded as unjust.

The Duchess Gets the Money.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Application was made to the Surragate yesterday for an order directing the executors of the will of Louis C. Hamersley to pay to the Duchess of Mariborough $100,000 from the accumulated income of her late husband's estate she being in need of cash.

Under Bail for Extortion.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—Dr. A. N. Fretz and David Kline of Fleetwood, Pa., who are charged with taking an illegal pension fee were brought before United States Commissioner Edmunds to-day, and placed under $1,000 bonds for a further hearing on Wednesday next.

COONEY NOT FOUND

Chicago Police Looking for Burke's Partner.

IS HE HIDING IN THE CITY?

Said to Have Been Seen During the Past Twenty-four Hours.

The Grand Jury Said to Have Prepared Two New Indictments—The Report that Camp No. 20 of the Clan-na-Gael Had Been Disbanded, Is Denied—The Authorities Working Hard to Secure Burke's Extradition.

CHICAGO, June 28.—It is currently rumored that Cooney, the partner of Burke in the Cronin butchery, is at present right here in the city. A morning paper makes this assertion and says he has been seen on the North Side within the past twenty-four hours.

It is reported that the Grand Jury has prepared two fresh indictments, and that they will be presented in Court shortly.

The names are suppressed.

John F. Beggs, the Senior Guardian of Camp No. 20 is locked up at the Armory. He occupies the same cell in the witness department in which ex-Detective Dan Coughlin was locked up while he was confined at that station. No one, not even the police are allowed to see him. Orders for the closest secrecy come direct from Chief and they are being obeyed in the fullest sense.

Captain Bartram even denies that Beggs is confined there at all and his lieutenant sustains his statement.

Ed Spillman, district delegate for the Clan-na-Gael stated this morning in reference to the disbandment of Camp 20 of Chicago that the camp was not disbanded as had been said, and that it would not be.

"The rumor is a sensational one," he said, "and had no foundation as far as I know. Neither were the records of the Camp burned. The Cook County authorities can easily secure the records of the Camp by applying to the offices of that division for them."

"It has been said, Mr. Spellman, that you left Chicago in a hurry, and that your action has created suspicion."

"Yes. I heard that. Well, the State Attorney knows where I am. He don't need to send any one for me, and he knows it. If he sends a telegram for me I will go to Chicago at once to testify or lend any other assistance in my power."

May Be Hard to Get.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 28.—It is stated here on what appears to be most reliable authority, that Burke is a British subject and as such entitled to certain rights of citizenship that he would otherwise be able to claim.

One of the advantages he would gain by this would be that under the Extradition laws of Manitoba it would be absolutely necessary for the prosecution to prove that he was directly connected with the murder.

Making out a prima facie case would not be sufficient to warrant extradition and it would be necessary to bring into operation here all the machinery of the American law to convict Burke of Cronin's murder.

Mr. Campbell the prisoner's lawyer was interviewed by your correspondent last evening and asked if this was to be the line of defence.

His reply was evasive and no satisfaction could be gathered out of him.

To Obstruct Investigation.

CHICAGO, June 28.—A rumor has been industriously circulated to the effect that Edward Spellman, the district member of the Clan-na-Gael and millionaire distiller of Peoria, has disbanded Camp 20, with a view to obstructing the investigation of its records.

Nobody in Chicago seemed to have received an official notice of Spellman's action and Judge Longenecker is inclined to doubt the authenticity of the rumor.

The Judge said this morning he had every reason to believe that it was not true, but in the absence of facts he was unwilling to cast discredit on it.

To Be Tried for Manslaughter.

TRENTON, N. J., June 28.—On Monday next the cases of William W. Wood and Thomas H. Corcoran for manslaughter will come up in the Mercer county courts. Wood was engineer and Corcoran conductor of the train which killed Foreman Amos V. Scott at Millham Junction, in January last, while Scott was cleaning out the fire pan beneath the engine.

For Deserting His Wife.

MT. HOLLY, N. J., June 28.—James Peak a brother of Barclay Peak, who escaped the gallows by a hair's breadth, some time ago, has been committed by Justice Clevenger for a hearing before Justice White, of Pemberton, on a charge of desertion and non-support. It was reported that Peak was married to another woman on Sunday last.

Winners and Losers.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Yesterday's ball games resulted as follows: Pittsburg-Washington game was called at the end of the second inning on account of rain; Indianapolis 6, Boston 10; New York 13, Chicago 10; Cleveland 4, Philadelphia 1; St. Louis 6, Cincinnati 8; Baltimore, 0, Columbus 1; Kansas City 5, Louisville 6; Philadelphia—Baltimore game postponed, wet grounds; New Haven 11, Jersey City 6; Hartford 11, Newark 5; Lowell 7, Wilkesbarre 21.

Frank Murphy Entertained.

BOSTON, June 28.—Frank Murphy, the English featherweight, who left to-night for San Francisco, where he is to fight Billy Murphy, the Australian champion, was tendered a reception at Patsy Sheppard's. He was presented with a diamond pin, a set of colors and a handsome cane.

THE NINETEENTH.

PLAINFIELD PUBLIC SCHOOLS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT.

One of the Finest Classes Ever Graduated—The Valedictory and the Speeches—Winners of Awards—A Presentation by the Class of '78—Music Hall Crowded.

EVERY seat was occupied and the walls were lined at the Nineteenth Annual Commencement of the Plainfield Public Schools which was held last evening, and an audience gathered in Music Hall that exceeded in numbers even those of past occasions.

The stage picture was, as usual, a very pretty one. Besides the members of the graduating and training classes grouped together there, the Principal, Miss Bulkley, Mr. Lincoln Goodrich the Senior Class teacher, the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, President Jacob Kirkner and Secretary L. F. Wadsworth, of the Board of Education, and the Hon. F. X. Schoonmaker, also occupied seats on the stage.

The distinctive features of the occasion were the Valedictory of Miss Osborne, the address of Mr. Schoonmaker, and the graduation of Miss Mitchell, daughter of the colored pastor of Mt. Olive church. Miss Osborne's composition is well worthy the space given it below. It is the work of a young woman whose scholarship and popularity have never been excelled in the Plainfield schools. Miss Mitchell received a most flattering reception from the audience. Her essay on the advancement of her race was listened to intently throughout, and loudly applauded. Her dress was not exceeded in beauty and taste by any of her class mates.

VALEDICTORY.

The old Roman form of farewell was "Vale! Vale! Vale!" thrice repeated round the funeral-pile, when the shade of the departed was wished a safe journey to the realms of Pluto. Custom has retained the word in the title, "Valedictory," so often used at this Commencement season. But, as we think of it, how utterly incongruous this use of the word appears! To liken this, our dear old school, hardly more than started on its career of usefulness, to the manes of a departed comrade, is manifestly absurd; and to think of thus consigning our friends and benefactors to oblivion is still more inappropriate.

No, our farewell is rather that of long-united companions now compelled to separate and, before they part, wishing one another "God speed." We are now entering upon a broader life, of wider opportunity and more extended experience, surely, not a cause of sadness, but, rather, of congratulation.

We have not completed this High School course without realizing to some degree, the value of a good education. It is the philosopher's stone, by means of which we may convert even the lesser things of life into a pleasure and profit to ourselves and to the World.

In these days of progression, when the little boy born on Fifth avenue, and he who first sees the light in a log-cabin, have equal chances of becoming great. A good education plays an important part in the struggle for success.

It has been truly said that the welfare of the Nation rests with her public schools. Crowds of emigrants from other countries yearly come to our shores, some to go immediately to the broad prairies where there is abundance of room, but the greater part to remain in our large cities where the tenement houses are already crowded and the chances of making a living, slight. It is easy to imagine the result of thousands of children, born to this condition, growing up in ignorance, with nothing to give them better and higher impulses. But our public schools are working a change. Education is now open to every one and children from the poorest quarters of the city, under the kindly and uplifting influences, are rising above the degrading scenes about them and in after years will make good and true citizens.

And it is not only among the poor that these benefits are felt. Those from higher ranks, naturally, exclusive and narrow, being brought in contact with those of other classes, learn a broader sympathy and charity, and are thus fitted for a better citizenship.

A century ago, in this country learning was considered entirely beyond the rights or abilities of woman. One, who, in spite of precedent, worked for herself and finally learned a little more than simple reading and writing, was made an object of ridicule and styled a "blue-stocking." Today the number of educated women is large and their ambition to prove themselves worthy of the privileges bestowed upon them leads them to aim for the highest in whatever they undertake. Colleges are now open in various parts of the country, filled with earnest, hard-working young women, eager to make the most of their opportunities.

Methods of teaching as you know, have changed very much in the last few years. The stifling little school house, with its battered desks and master, forcibly instilling the dry lessons with the aid of a birch rod, is a thing of the past. Children of the present day come to well heated, well ventilated buildings, and, instead of disliking their tasks are made to think that learning is a pleasure. We have with our number to-night worthy representatives of the new education, who are about to wield the rod in a new fashion and drive away old time traditions and associations.

This is only our nineteenth Commencement, but, in the few years of its existence our school has made rapid progress and is steadily approaching the ideal of its founder, the late Dr. C. H. Stillman.

We can nearly all of us remember the two-story frame building that stood on the site of what is now known as the "Franklin School." It was little more than a country school, yet it was the beginning of Plainfield's public institutions of learning. Gradually as the number of pupils increased and the need became greater, other structures have been erected, until now there are five large, well equipped buildings in different parts of the city, all under the same general management and supervision.

Every year improvements are being made and additions are calling forth the constant delight of all who take an interest in our welfare. Even the youngest are not forgotten, and, in this last year, a new class, somewhat after the Kindergarten system, has been established, where the little minds are trained in the formation of good habits and a foundation laid for the work of after years.

Our list of alumni is not, as yet, very large, but we can even now count upon our roll the names of men successful and prominent in the various professions they have chosen.

And a very pleasant and gratifying fact in regard to our school is the unusual interest in her success still manifested by former members. We have many substantial proofs of the high esteem in which our graduates hold their Alma Mater. Our walls, a few years ago, bare and unattractive, are now lined with cabinets filled with minerals, birds of various plumage and many other rare and interesting specimens of natural history. By this means unusual facilities are presented for studying the characteristics of places both near at home and more remote. Pictures adorn many of our class rooms and books have been added to our library, many of these the gifts of former pupils. And in conferring these benefits, so much hearty, good-will and pleasure in giving are shown that the favor is all the more appreciated. As our alumni increase in numbers their united power will be felt, and, just at this time we are reminded of how much we have lost in integrity of character and power of influence in those who have been taken from the ranks.

This night means more to us than mere appearing in public for a few hours. It means a change in all our relations with the teachers who have done so much for us in the past years; it means our separation, and it means a severing of all connection as a class with the school that has entered so much into our lives.

As we meet here, for, perhaps the last time as a class, let us think a little of what this school has done for us. In this course of training we have learned more than text-book lessons. In a school of this sort, where distinctions are almost obliterated, are formed many of the independent, law-abiding qualities of the good American citizen, careful of the rights of others and beliving in the equality of all.

Many changes have come to us since we entered the High School, some have fallen from our number and others have been added. But, on the whole, we have always been closely united and a feeling of honest class pride has been very strong.

We have often heard that the true quality of a school appears in the character of her alumni. Therefore, if we are not yet able to present to this school tangible evidences of our regard, let us remember that, if our initials are not graven on her desks, our names are written in the alumni-roll of our Alma Mater and our records are joined with hers. Our hopes and plans for future usefulness are embodied in our class motto, "Live up to the best that is in you." That motto demands that each one of us put forth all his strength to make life a success, realizing that whatever we do will reflect credit or discredit on our school.

And now, as we say our farewell to the "Vale" of the old Romans, we wish to add a word of thankfulness toward those to whom we are so deeply indebted and to express our heartfelt gratitude to the Board of Education, to our Principal and teachers, for the earnest and persistent efforts they have made in our behalf.

ELLA UNDERHILL OSBORNE.

Of the other essays, but few could be heard. Every word of Mr. Holmes' essay on Fanaticism, however, was audible, and it was one of the half-dozen specially good ones. Miss Runyon's was another. Every member of the class was loaded with bunches and baskets of flowers.

The following was the order of exercises, the music of which was rendered by a string-orchestra from Cappa's N. Y., Seventh Reg't Band:

Overture, Fantalasquale.....Suppe

In introducing the speaker of the evening, President Kirkner said: "There is no doubt that we have in Plainfield the best schools in the State—there is no question about that. But I also believe that we have one of the best members of the State Board of Education, as a resident of our city. We are proud of our schools, and we may be proud of Mr. Schoonmaker who will now address you."

Because of recent sickness, Mr. Schoonmaker delivered his address, sitting, but it was just as full of fire and lost none of its effect. It was probably the most able speech that has been delivered upon a like occasion in this city, at least. In a pleasing and instructive way the speaker compared the past times and the present, and asserted, "I have heard more good oratory and sound sentiments within a few minutes this evening, than in as many years when I was a boy."

But more special interest in the address was occasioned by the speaker's introduction of an emphatic protest against parochial schools, and his scheme for their abolishment. He said that other States had endeavored to get rid of them and had failed, but it was proposed to bring a different view of the matter before the Legislature of New Jersey, next Winter, and as such view was presented that evening for the first time in public, he intended it should be known all over the country as the "Plainfield Idea."

"These schools are a menace," he said, "and the fact that Father McGlynn was driven out of a parish of $30,000 souls who loved him, because he would not establish a parochial school, proves that the opposition of these schools is to be persisted in. It is not a question of religion, for if such the State could not interfere, but when hundreds of children are withdrawn from the public schools and taught that the head of the church is a Monarch in Italy, then the State shall rise up against a Papacy claiming temporal power, and demand that its people shall be educated only that their first duty is to it, the State. These parochial schools are started by the priests because the Propaganda at Rome command them to, and they are bound to obey every command that is not illegal. Then let us make it illegal to establish schools for the avowed purpose of taking away from the public schools children who would otherwise attend those schools, and the question is solved."

At the close of this address, Mr. Howard S. Runyon, President of the Class of '78, made the presentation in behalf of his class, of a picture to the school. He said:

"MR. PRESIDENT—It is my pleasant duty in behalf of the Class of '78 to express our sincere regard for the Plainfield Public School. In the years which have elapsed since our graduation, we have not lost interest in the school, but they have rather taught us how much we owe our Alma Mater. We desire that you will accept this picture as a token of our regard for the past and sympathy with you in the present work. La Via Appia has been selected as historically appropriate to hang upon the Chapel walls. We hope you will receive it in the spirit it is given. The laurel wreath, placed upon the brow of the victor has little intrinsic value, but as a token it is significant. This is the token of our desire to co-operate with you in the educational work here."

President Kirkner accepted the gift with an expression of appreciation and thanks on behalf of the Board.

The presentation of rewards was made by Judge L. F. Wadsworth, Secretary of the Board of Education, assisted by post-graduate Tiemann N. Horn, of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

The prizes for best Penmanship was awarded by the committee—Messrs J. Evarts Tracy, S. A. Ginna and W. M. Smith—to Miss Lillian D. Garretson; and for greatest improvement to Miss Jennie Lunger.

The first prize in Mathematics, $15 in gold, was awarded the valedictorian, Miss Ella U. Osborne; and the second prize, $10 in gold, was awarded Miss Teresa G. Keenan.

The committee on English Composition—the Rev. J. P. Taylor and Messrs S. P. Huntington and H. P. Talmage—awarded the first prize, eleven volumes of Shakespeare's works, to Miss Caroline Fitz Randolph, and the second prize to William W. Coriell. Honorable mention was made of the compositions of Edward J. Patterson, Fred A. Daboll and Eleanor E. Davis.

The first and second prizes for excellence in U. S. History, were awarded Miss Helen T. French and Mr. Arthur H. Serrell; while honorable mention was made of the standing of Miss Ariadne Gilbert, Miss Amelia S. Langdon, Miss Viola Conklin, and Messrs S. Clinton Crane and J. Newton Goddard.

The prize for Spelling also went to Miss Helen T. French, and honorable mention was made of Miss Florence L. Kyte.

The first prize for Languages was awarded Miss Teresa G. Keenan for excellence in Latin; and the second to Mr. Edward C. Petrie, for Greek. Honorable mention was made of Miss Phebe E. Mill's Latin.

After the presentation of diplomas to the graduates, by President Kirkner, the class remained standing while the Rev. C. L. Goodrich addressed them. He said, "I am glad to be called on this evening to congratulate you upon your receiving of those diplomas, not because of just what is signified by them, and not only because of the knowledge you must have attained before receiving them, but because of their expression of character developed. Year after year you have been working to attain them; while others have dropped out you have kept on to the completion of your purpose; and I congratulate you on having that in your character that can aim at a good end and work patiently and persistently until you reach it. It is now accomplished, but continue to keep up a purposeful life. If you want to be noble, get hold of a great purpose and strive to attain it. Everything depends upon the energy with which you lay hold of your opportunities. Don't sigh for vain chances beyond your reach, but with courage and purpose seize those that God puts in your way."

In presenting diplomas to Miss Eleanor G. Beal, Miss Abbie M. Wilson and Miss Lucia N. Wood—the first graduates from the Training Class—President Kirkner said: "Three years ago you stood here as graduates from the Senior class of the High School, and now you stand here after three years of the best instruction your honored principal can give you. You have labored faithfully and well, and as an appreciation of your success, the Board has appointed each of you a teacher in the primary department of the schools for the ensuing year. It has always been our purpose to have our best teachers in the primary, because if your foundation is not complete, and firm, and of the best material, your super-structure will fall to pieces. Consequently, your appointment there is all the greater honor, but the Board believe you well fitted for the positions, and I am personally satisfied that our realization will fully equal our anticipation."

And so ended another commencement of the public schools of Plainfield.

Dunellen's New Postmaster.

James H. Harrold, the recently-appointed Postmaster at Dunellen, entered on the duties of his office June 15. Mr. Harrold was appointed on the 27th of April, and as soon as it was announced he was bitterly assailed by some disaffected hangers-on, who claim allegiance to the Republican party—men who are really a damage to it, as well as any other cause they attempt to champion. He was charged with being a Prohibitionist, and every thing else except the Christian gentleman that he is. When the efforts of this opposin faction became ominous it was found necessary to place some facts before the Department at Washington in behalf of Mr. Harrold, and the result was that the "wets" were ingloriously routed.—Messenger.

One Game for Each.

The return match between Cap. Horton's Front Street nine, and Cap. Vanderbeek's Park Avenue, was played yesterday, and resulted in a victory for the latter after an exciting contest of ten innings. The score by innings was:

Park Avenue.....3 2 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 3—9
Front Street.....0 0 1 0 0 0 2 3 0 1—7

Time of game—2:45. Umpire—J. B. Miller.

Sale of Real Estate.

THE PRESS wishes to call attention to the advertisement in today's columns of the public sale on Saturday. The property is located virtually in the heart of our city, and its prospective value must be great. As it is a public sale it will test the value of Plainfield property. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Middlesex Gun Club.

The regular monthly meeting of The Middlesex Gun Club will be held at Force's Hotel, this city, Saturday evening, June 29, at which time important business will be transacted.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Gertrude Fowler, of Port Jervis, is the guest of her cousin, Miss Clara Dunn, of Park avenue.

Miss Nellie Mattison of Manning avenue, North Plainfield, left today for Cornwall, Litchfield county, Conn.

The second annual reception of the Alumni Association of the North Plainfield Public School, will occur next Monday evening in the W. C. T. U. rooms, 73 West Front street, at eight o'clock.

In a runaway accident on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. W. P. Smith, of Netherwood, was thrown from a carriage near her residence and severely sprained an ankle. The coachman was also thrown and badly injured, one of the wheels on the vehicle passing over his body at the thigh.

BY THE WAY.

—O! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Many items of local interest are crowded out of today's issue.

—The tennis tournament will be held on the grounds of the Plainfield Lawn Club, Central avenue and Eighth street to-morrow at 3 P. M. Admission 20 cents. If stormy the tournament will take place on Monday.

—The latest dinning-room novelty is the musical fruit basket. Every time the basket is raised to pass fruit around among the guests, soft and delightful music is wrought out from a music box located in the base of the basket. When the basket is deposited on a table, the music ceases.

NORTH PLAINFIELD GRADUATES.

THE SIXTH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT.

The Graduating Class, Numbering Twenty-five Pupils, Present an Interesting Programme in Warren Mission Chapel, Last Evening—The Essays and the Declamations.

CLOSING scenes were enacted in the North Plainfield public school yesterday, and last evening the Sixth Annual Commencement exercises took place in Warren Mission Chapel. The humidity of the weather did not serve to materially decrease the attendance and long before eight o'clock, the hour announced for opening the exercises, several hundred people were wedged in a group in front of the door leading to the chapel, and many more held their position on the sidewalk, waiting for an opportunity to gain admission to the place. When the doors did open at 7:30 o'clock, the rush was really terrible, and several ladies were heard to exclaim that they would never again attend the graduating exercises if they had to pass through such an ordeal. The outside temperature was extremely hot, and inside the chapel it was even worse, although all the doors and windows were open. Principal Boss and his corps of courteous ushers exerted themselves to comfortably seat the multitude, but when the exercises began there were many standing—and so they remained throughout the procedure.

At a little after eight o'clock the sliding doors were drawn, disclosing about 150 of the pupils in the intermediate department arranged in tiers, by Miss Perdue, the Vice Principal, in the rear of the stage proper. The girls were dressed in white and the boys in their "best." The floral decorations about the platform were extremely modest at the beginning of the exercises, but at the close the platform was literally banked with baskets and bouquets of choice cut flowers, the gifts of relatives and friends of the graduates. These gifts were arranged in a semi-circle on the front of the stage, and were admired by many at the close of the exercises.

Principal Boss presided, and with him on the platform were Dr. H. K. Carroll, James McGee and Geo. F. Brown, the school trustees, and Miss Carrie E. Randolph, the accompanist. The members of the graduating class, twenty-five in number, marched in and occupied seats on the stage, at the left.

The programme was inaugurated by the school singing: "The Song of the Mountaineers," and was according to the following

Music—The Magic Flute.....School.

As will be seen by the foregoing programme the exercises were varied, but each and every number on the lengthy programme was acceptably and very creditably rendered. Master Lambert Bodine declaimed on the subject "Washington." He told of the many great and noble deeds of the father of this country, adding that truth places his name at the head of the Nation at the close of a century.

Miss Bertha E. Needham recited "Ben Hazzard's Guests," in a pleasing manner, and Miss Alice J. Carroll read the first essay, on "Roads." The young lady very forcibly pictured out the various roads through which man passes during his existence. The roads to success and ruin, to happiness and misery, to Heaven and to Jericho, are perhaps the most traveled. These roads are not taken deliberately. When a traveler is in doubt he makes inquiry, and the result of the choice will depend largely upon the quality of the advice given him. The road to marriage, the essayist said, is too often the road to divorce. The first and worst road recorded was that leading out of Eden and traveled by Adam and Eve. If the road traveled by Adam was the worst, certainly the modern roads constructed by Mac Adam are of a superior quality. The Romans were the first to show their appreciation of roads, and as years have gone by wonderful progress has been made in their construction.

Many interesting facts are associated with roads. It was the "sunken road" at Waterloo, into which Napoleon's troops fell that saved Europe from the hand of domineering France. Along Giltspir street in London, passes the unhappy criminals on their way to Smithfield.

Russia has the "great Siberian road," the very stones of which cry out at the awful cruelty with which her citizens have been driven into exile and to death. In our country, what road is dearer to every patriot than that on which Faneuil Hall, the "Cradle of Liberty," stands?

In our quest of learning during the past years, we have found out the truth of the saying: "There is no royal road to knowledge." It is not like gliding over a smooth road in a luxurious palace car, but rather like climbing a steep mountain, where one has many slips and falls. We have now reached a point from which we can look back over the past years and review the path by which we ascend. We must not linger, however, for the road winds on and the summit is still far above us.

"Masters of the Situation" was the subject of a declamation by Master John G. McLaughlin. "Today," he said, "is master of the situation; to-morrow is an impostor. Principles, not men, are imperishable."

The scholars sang "Anchored," after which Miss Ella W. Gardner recited pleasantly "Patient Mercy Jones," and Master Paul H. Loizeaux very ably told, in his declamation, of "The Last Charge of Ney." The young man's delivery was clear and distinct, and his gestures were particularly good. "The Hat" was the subject of Miss Maggie R. Cory's essay. The production was worthy of its publication in full, but space will not permit it. The young lady whose delivery was just droll enough to suit the subject, declared that in early days our grandparents wore hats to shield their brain. As the hats of modern times are not of a very protective nature it is concluded that either the cranial organ has become so strong as to need no protection, or there is none to protect. The paper closed with the words: "We need hats, we enjoy hats, we love hats and blessed be hats, if there be not too much of them."

Master Charles Hazeltine comically delineated the negro fisherman, on a "Sunday Fishin'," followed by the Boys' Chorus singing "My Heart's in The Highlands."

The next number on the programme was a declamation by Master Philip B. Wells, who appeared in knickerbockers and black stockings. The young man gave a selection from Lowell's "Fable for Critics." He was followed by a recitation entitled "Don," by Miss Minnie M. Arnold. The production was in rhyme and the young lady showed no trace of embarassment during its delivery. Her allusion to faithful "Don's" rescue of a child from drowning, was particularly affecting.

After the school sang "Joyous Entry," little Miss Grace Overton, dressed prettily in blue, recited "The Little Princess." The expression on the child's face betokened perfect composure and her delivery was excellent. At the close of her recitation she was accorded loud and continued applause.

Miss Eleanor Tennant Morrison recited in a pleasant strain "How the Women Went from Dover," followed by Walter Place's declamation on "The Goose." It was a good selection as to matter, and as an elocutionary effort, it was one of the best of the evening.

"The Little Midshipmate" was sung by the boy chorus, Master Herbert Schutt rendering the Solo parts in fine style. Miss Marion Barcroft Nevius' recitation, "The Legend of St. Christopher" was a commendable production, and showed the young lady's eloquence to good advantage. "Among the Hills" was the subject of Miss Mary F. Thompson's essay. The paper showed care and thought in its construction and its delivery was admirable. It is hereunto produced in full:

AMONG THE HILLS.

It is generally with a feeling of awe of the Divine Power that could create a thing so majestic, that one gazes upon a lofty mountain. Then, if ever, the sense of his own littleness is greatest.

In its solemn beauty it seems to be stationed there, a grim sentinel, guarding the adjacent country from any unseen enemy that might wish to enter in.

It is the most favored spot of the Almighty. On its summit Day and Night seem to linger longest, and as Lowell says, "Dawn's delighted eyes bend with a pitying kiss, the night-shed tears of earth to dry." To the watcher in the valley that greeting is plainly visible.

There, too, on the crest the foliage seems filled with life, the birds sing sweetest and the clouds take on the richest blue and crimson tints.

Highlands are positively essential to picturesque scenery. The wildest, grandest spots on the earth's surface, are in the mountains. The long fertile plains however beautiful, are nothing in comparison with the high peaks and deep gorges of our mountain systems. Surely a bit of such scenery is far richer material for an artist's brush, than miles of lowlands. It is frequently amid varied surroundings like these where a monotony is avoided and the mind is free to choose its ideas, that great genius is developed.

Another beautiful feature of the uplands is, that from them come all the mightiest streams of water, and human influence. The rain falling on the mountain tops, sinks down through the soil and runs along an impervious layer until it finally breaks out as a clear cold spring.

Through this little underground stream drains but a small portion of the country, gushing out as it does in a weak place and refreshing many with its waters.

It is even so in life. In every heart there dwells a tiny spring that may produce pure or impure waters as the spirit may determine. If too much pleasure is indulged in the waters become contaminated, but where a noble purpose controls the life, the waters are sweet and healing. The little stream as it flows along, making all things glad around it, gains strength and volume every day, and at last grows into a mighty river.

David Livingstone leading his quiet hard-working life in England, was the source of one of the noblest influences in the World's history.

Early in life there was born in his heart an intense love for his fellow men, and a desire to show it in some way. As the years passed, the longing grew and as he dwelt more upon it his thoughts naturally became higher, his nature stronger and his way more clear, for no thought for another's welfare can fail to make the originator purer and "stronger thereby."

Finally with his message of love he went to Africa where for many years he was almost forgotten by the world. But the little stream that had started out so bravely was not fated to be lost. It was only buried from sight for a time. During those lonely years in Africa Livingstone was gradually unfolding the beauties of the Christ-life to the darkened African minds. At last his work began to make itself known. Different countries became interested in his cause until the tiny stream that first had its rise in the high, pure mind of David Livingstone, had swelled into a mighty tide of missionary spirit, that is now slowly but surely sweeping over Africa.

Elevations have also a tendency to create nobler aspirations and so make better men and women. They seem as Mrs. Browning says, "to draw like heaven, holding out their hands to pull you from the vile flats up to them." And when you have reached the summit and stand in the pure atmosphere gazing upon the scene before you, the beauties of your surroundings are appreciated as never before.

In the valley where the air is less clear and the view obstructed, life is apt to seem very limited. But as soon as we rouse ourselves and begin to think on a higher plain, God's purpose for us gradually opens out and life is worth the living.

The world today is full of elevated minds, musicians, poets, statesmen, sculptors and authors, whose noble thoughts are tending to create in us longings for higher attainments. If we make but little progress, seemingly, and others are climbing faster, we must not be discouraged, but remember "The heights by great men reached and kept, were not attained by sudden flight, but they, while their companions slept, were toiling upwards through the night."

MARY F. THOMPSON.

Dr. H. K. Carroll, President of the Board of Trustees, then addressed the graduates in a few congratulatory remarks. Said he: "Young ladies and young gentlemen, you have been working ten years for these diplomas, and in view of the [illegible] heat to-night I am not going to [illegible] you much longer. Your [illegible] course has been very satisfactory to the teachers and trustees. I now congratulate you upon your success during these years of school life." The Doctor then presented each of the graduates with a diploma.

The school sang "The Magic Flute," and the audience dispersed, thus bringing to a successful close the sixth annual commencement of the North Plainfield public school.

Among those who ranked first in the class during the year were Miss Maggie R. Cory, Miss Eleanor T. Morrison and Miss Marion B. Nevius. Those who ranked second were Miss Nellie L. Van Winkle, Miss Mary F. Thompson and Miss Alice J. Carroll.

The graduating class was as follows: Marion Barcroft Nevius, Alice Jennings Carroll, Nellie L. VanWinkle, Maggie R. Cory, Minnie M. Arnold, John G. McLaughlin, Josephine W. Brock, Lewis R. Bird, James Hurley, Walter S. Place, Mary F. Thompson, Mary B. Wells, Philip B. Wells, Lizzie Sheppard, Bertha E. Needham, Augusta Winckler, Ida M. Lewis, Francis A. Grant, Maggie Winckler, Paul H. Loizeaux, Lambert Bodine, Louise H. Loizeaux, Eleanor Tennant Morrison, Margaret Shepherd, Ella W. Gardner.

The class motto is "Never Say Fail."

BASE BALL.

An Exciting Game On For To-morrow—The Names and Positions of the Home Nine.

To-morrow's ball match on the home grounds will probably be close and exciting, as the Miller Athletic Club is said to be the best amateur team in Newark, and the Crescents will have their strongest nine in the field. Game will be called at four o'clock.

The grand stands, last Saturday, comfortably seated about 400 spectators, of which number more than half were ladies.

Curlis, who will pitch for the Crescents to-morrow, is highly recommended and will undoubtedly put up a good game.

Since Gately's accident, Manager Gavett is receiving offers by pitchers from all over desiring to engage with the Plainfield team.

The nine to-morrow will be: Haydon, c.; Curlis, p.; McMurray, 1st b.; Condon, 2d b.; Cadmus, s. s.; Lee, 3d b.; McLoughlin, l. f.; Demerest, c. f.; Townley, r. f.

Haydon, the deaf-mute, who caught at Somerville for the Crescents, catches to-morrow.

The Miller Athletic club expect to add another victory to their list to-morrow. They may add one to their defeats.

Westfield's Commencement.

The annual commencement of the Westfield High school was held in Arcanum Hall yesterday afternoon, as stated in THE PRESS of Wednesday. The Salutatory was delivered by Carrie Harding Beebe and the Valedictory by Edwin Alexander Francis, both ranking the same in the class. Prof. Francis presided.

The diplomas were presented by E. L. Embree, President of the Board, and the address to the graduating class was delivered by Chauncey B. Ripley, LL. D. The motto of the class is Palma Non Sine Pulvere. The entire programme was as follows:

Opening prayer.

Putting Back the Hand Switches Temporarily.

The new switch system which the Central Railroad is trying to introduce at Jersey City is not working yet, and last evening the company began to replace the old hand switches.

The interlocking attachments are only temporarily disconnected, however, because of the new schedule Monday. When the Summer trains are all running smoothly, the new switch system will be tried again.

SHEPARD'S MISSION

The Religious Editor to Go to Russia.

THAT IS THE PRESENT SLATE.

He Is Supported by the Vice-President and Mr. Depew.

His Claim Advanced at a Conference Held at the White House—The Colonel's Friends Confident that He Will Get the Place to Which Allen Thorndike Rice Was Appointed—Busy Days for the President—No Day Off This Week.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Bright and early the Vice-President and Col. Shepard called at the Executive Mansion. They found Secretary Blaine and William Walter Phelps, the new German Minister, at breakfast with Mr. Harrison. After congratulating Mr. Phelps on his good fortune, the visitors had a long talk with the President.

It can be stated on reliable authority that the Russian Mission was the theme, though, of course, no one would frankly admit it. The advisability of sending the Colonel to the court where Allen Thorndike Rice would be now were he living, it is understood, was urged upon the President and Mr. Blaine by the Vice-President.

In the afternoon Mr. Depew arrived, and he and Colonel Shepard lost no time in hurrying to the White House. They dined with the President and later drove out with him. During that ride your correspondent was informed, Mr. Depew, with his nimitable eloquence, urged the claims of his old chum. The party returned about 5 o'clock. As they alighted at the White House entrance the faces of the distinguished trio were wreathed in smiles, and Colonel Shepard himself appeared to be as happy as his companions. If the confidence of his friends is to be relied upon his appointment as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of St. Petersburg is but a question of days.

CAN'T LEAVE HIS WORK.

President Harrison Unable to Go to Cape May This Week.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The President has found that it will be impossible to go to Cape May at the end of this week to bring Mrs. Harrison home. He will have to remain at the White House and she will come on with the children alone. He will probably also have to delay his trip to Deer Park for a few days.

It was at first thought that he and Mrs. Harrison, together with the children, would start for that resort not later than the first of July, and that he would go on from there to keep his appointment at Woodstock on July 4. It is pretty certain now that he will be obliged to stay in Washington until he starts for Woodstock, and the Deer Park trip will have to wait upon this appointment.

Counterfeiters Run Down.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Chief Bell of the Secret Service, has just been informed that James H. Cobles had been arrested at Lockport, N. Y., for passing a counterfeit $10 note. When arrested there was found on his person counterfeit coin and paper money. He was held in default of bail. Cables was formerly connected with "Dye's counterfeit detector" publication.

Chief Bell also received a telegram from Agent Harris, of San Francisco, Cal., saying that he arrested in that city William Stein for dealing in counterfeit coin, and captured $270 in counterfeit $5 gold coin and $30 in counterfeit fifty cent silver pieces.

INTO AN OPEN SWITCH.

Accident to an Express Train on the Boston and Maine Railroad.

DOVER, N. H., June 28.—An express train on the Boston and Maine railroad ran into an open switch while coming into this city last night, and the engine and three cars were thrown down an embankment. The engineer and fireman jumped and escaped without serious injured.

The train was running at a high rate of speed, having been delayed at North Berwicks for Crescent Division of the Knights of Pythias, of Dover, to embark.

The passengers were badly shaken up, and Oscar F. Kimball, Grand Chancellor of the K. of P. of New Hampshire, William Hilliard and Frederick Weeks, all of Dover, were injured; Kimball and Weeks in the head and back and Hilliard internally. William Hoitt, of Malden, had his arm broken.

Worse Than Expected.

LATROBE, Pa., June 28.—The loss of life at the Latrobe freight wreck will be probably larger than was first reported and the death list may reach 45. Engine 1,313, which was supposed to be lying at the bottome of the Loyalhanna river was found resting on a box car which was supposed to have contained ten or twelve tramps and it is probable that a number of bodies will be found when the car is taken out.

Grand Meeting of Indians.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., June 28.—The grand meeting of the Six Nations of the tribes of Indians of this State is being held on the Tuscarora reservation in this County today. The election of a new chief to fill the place of the late Sachem, William B. Printup, takes place. The programme includes a love feast in the afternoon and a war dance at sundown with the usual ceremonies.

A Serious Burning Accident.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., June 28.—Mrs. P. W. Brown back was severely burned about the hands in the cellar of her husband's store whild drawing benzine. The vapor caught from the flame of a lamp held by the customer, Hezekiah Keiter, and she was instantly wrapped in flames. Running up stairs persons in the store seized her and stifled the fire.

Echoes of the Centennial.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The squabble over the adjustment of the Centennial celebration finances was settled yesterday by the General Committee handing over to Stuyvesant Fish the $10,000 due for tickets for the ball, and which the committee had held back pending an accounting by Mr. Fish.

John P. Verree Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—John P. Verree, who was a representative in Congress from 1858 to 1862, died in this city yesterday aged 73 years.

COOLNESS IN DANGER.

Some of the Most Reliable Contributors to the Hour of Peril.

"There is no great secret about it," said an old soldier to me. "You must think about the danger and not about yourself. See?"

At first glance I confess I did not see, remarks a writer in the New York Weekly. But upon further conversation with the veteran I caught his meaning. His idea was that panic was caused by a sudden self-consciousness. One begins to imagine that a limb is crushed or the breath knocked our of him, or he forecasts the pain or the misery of his hurts before he gets them. The danger itself, that is, the thing that is about to hurt you, possibly, but has not yet done so; the thing that is to be confronted, met and vanquished; this is put out of mind by the terror with which it clouds itself, and so it has you at a disadvantage. Danger masks itself into terror. The terror blinds our wit and paralyzes our arm; we are thus at the mercy of our destroyer. The real danger we do not see—that is, the agent of evil—unless we are cool-headed.

There is a world of truth in the philosophy of this well-known General. Suppose one is in a theater at the time of an alarm of fire. Most people do not even smell the fire, much less see it. Most people are simply self-centered to that degree that they know nothing outside of personal alarm. The real cause, who has the coolness to seek for it? Who inquires, where is it? Or who asks, what is your authority? Not one. All are thinking of self. I do not now mean to criticise the selfishness of it, the moral phase of the matter. I only point out that personality, not the cause, fills every mind. Except of course the cool-headed man here and there who thinks to ask: "Now, I wonder if it is really so. I would like to know who said so." Such a man is not drawn into a vortex and trodden into the carpet. He studies the danger itself, and as usual, nine times out of ten, discovers a way to match it.

A physician explains to me that the heart's action, under the terror excited by danger, is in many cases equivalent to apoplectic paralysis. The blood is left to gorge the poor brain, and the person is insane. Or, in the reverse case, the arterial blood is not sent out, the brain is empty, so to speak, the sufferer is powerless. This is in either case shock. Shock is the result of dread. Dread is the mind's action by imagination. The thing to do is to break the spell of imagination. One may accomplish this by resolutely putting away all thought of self and thinking, insisting on fastening the attention on the cause of the alarm. It must be achieved early before the heart is affected. I may be disputed as to imagination of the pangs of being hurt. It is not asserted that one is conscious of imagining, "Oh, I shall suffer so, if I am burned." No; that is too long a sentence to be thought out, consciously, in a moment of terror, yet the impression, instantaneous as lightning, is nevertheless there. If you afterward recall your thoughts, you will confess that I am correct. In battle men do not think of being hurt; the sight of shocking wounds does not awaken any thought of pain. It is before the battle that legs tremble and nerves of the whole body quiver with anticipated pains, till the man is a coward in spite of himself. In action the cause, those guns over there, those lines of the enemy, fill the mind's eye; consequently the soldier is cool.

I recently heard a lady relate that, when a fire began in her room the blaze was so curious as it licked in along the cornice that she found herself saying, "How pretty that is!" As a result she was able to act coolly in escaping from the chamber. In another case a gentleman was saved from being run over by a horse, from the fact that, as the mad animal was about to spring upon him, he thought, "What a close resemblance between that animal and my off one of a pair!" This gave him sufficient self-control to grasp at a passing street-car and swing himself out of harm's way. Whereas it is a well-known fact that many people are "struck powerless" by the very sight of, a frantic runaway, and so neglect the opportune second of escape.

I have yet another case in mind. A gentleman in the wild West, about to be assaulted by a scoundrel in a way-side ranch, says: "I saw him draw his weapon. I knew he was crazy drunk, and that he had mistaken my peaceable, commercial self for a pal with whom he had had a quarrel. As he drew on me I thought. Is he German or American? I shouted to him in German, 'When did you leave Fatherland?' It struck his ear in time. The next minute I had what they call out there 'the drop on him'; that is, I covered him with my own weapon."

Then, evidently, mere panic, ducking the head, or raising an elbow, or a shout of terror, would have been utterly useless. The conception of nationality abstracted the imperiled man's mind from terror; he was then instantly ready to appeal to the man's love of the old home across the seas. The reasoning was quick as lightning, but as correct as arithmetic, for if the brute could be caused to think of something else beside his rage, even for an instant, the volition to murder would be for that instant impossible.

There is scarcely any danger which does not change its phases as it approaches, like a cloud in an angry sky. The changes are the things to be looked out for—they are your openings of possible escape. "Certain destruction" has never happened till you are actually destroyed—at which time, it is hoped, all fear is forever over, if you have behaved well in this world. Never submit to be killed without an effort. While there is life there is hope, if your mind is cool enough to snatch at the hope; it may be a very small and obscure hope, but it is always there—yes, always—while you are yet breathing. It is not, in my opinion, a matter so much of custom, of having been often in danger, that makes the cool man. Fatigue, hunger or any previous overstrain of the nervous system will often cause the usually cool man to forget himself. Good health and a clear conscience are helps. A cheerful disposition and a profound trust in God's care are the best of all contributors to the hour of peril—an hour, by the way, that no one ever escapes meeting some time.

The President's Private Flag.

Probably most persons are not aware that in addition to the regular American flag there is an official flag of the President which he alone is authorized to use and which is never displayed except in his honor. The flag is a dark blue, with a white eagle with outstretched wings and holding a shield in its claws. Above this eagle and between its wings are seven white stars and beneath it, half on each side, are six more, the thirteen being emblematical of the original States. This same design was the official flag of President Washington and it has not been altered to the present time.

A Turtle That Eats Plank.

A turtle weighing eighty-eight pounds was caught in Walnut creek, Henry County, Ga., by a party of fishermen. Its head was as large as a dog's and when cut off snapped in two an inch plank which Mr. McKibben placed in its mouth. Its shell measured twenty-eight by eighteen inches and will hold nearly a bushel.

SOCIETY IS ALL AGOG.

A Carpet Mill Manager Disappears with a Pretty Mill Hand.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—Society in the northeastern section of the city is agitated over the rumored elopement of Newton H. Kerr, manager of Dornan's carpet mill, with Josephine Shields, a young and pretty weaver employed in the mill.

Kerr, who is a married man, bade his wife good-by on Tuesday morning, saying that it was necessary for him to be at the mill earlier than usual. He has not reached there yet. Miss Shields, a tall and graceful brunette, started for work, her parents thought, at about the same time and has not been seen by any of her friends since.

She wore a fashionable new summer suit and a becoming hat. She waved her hand in farewell to her parents as she passed out of sight.

Mrs. Kerr was unsuspicious until a young man came from the mill to see if Mr. Kerr was sick. When convinced that he was gone Mrs. Kerr searched among his effects and was surprised at being unable to find the certificate and book of the Constater Building association, into which she had paid over $400 in her husband's name. She hastened to the officers of the association and learned that Kerr had sold his shares several days before.

Mr. and Mrs. Kerr appeared to live happily. They have been married six years and have no children. The elopers, it is now said, have frequently been seen walking together.

Removing Gen. Cameron's Remains.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 28.—The special train bearing the body of Simon Cameron, accompanied by the immediate relatives, left Marietta for Harrisburg at 8 o'clock last evening. No services were held at the old home in Donegal.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 28.—General Cameron's remains have arrived here. Rev. Geo. F. Chambers will have charge of the funeral services which will begin at 1 p. m. Saturday.

The pall-bearers will be Insurance Commissioner Forster, Major Bent, Superintendent of the Pennsylvania Steel works; ex-State Printer Lane S. Hart, Col. W. W. Jennings, John Weiss and Wm. J. Calder of this city; Arthur Brock of Lebanon, and Col. James Young of Middletown.

THEY WANT THE MONEY.

Johnstown Survivors Ask for a Distribution of the Funds.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 28.—A letter signed by James McMillen, chairman, and Cyrus Elder, secretary, of the Johnstown Finance committee has been addressed to all committees holding funds for the relief of sufferers by the flood in the Conemaugh Valley. It declares that the community needs everything which the prompt and wise use of the funds so generously contributed can supply. The Finance committee urges that the proper way to relieve is to place the money in the hands of the individual members of the community, with which they can supply their needs. This step has been determined upon only after waiting as long as the committee could for the committees throughout the country to indicate what steps they intend taking. The Finance committee has been obliged to adopt a plan for using its own pittance, and will soon have an accurate registration of all survivors and will divide its money among them.

WEDNESDAY,

JULY 3,

WILL BE

Dr. E. KIMBELL,

The Celebrated CHIROPODIST'S

—LAST DAY—

In Plainfield at the City Hotel, where he is hourly receiving calls from the elite of the city, and in every case gives unbounded satisfaction.

Every form of disease of the Feet are cured by him. HOURS—9 A. M. till 6 P. M.

Servants will be in waiting to conduct ladies and gentlemen to the Doctor's parlors at the CITY HOTEL, Plainfield, for a FEW DAYS LONGER.

People who desire the services of a skillful CHIROPODIST, had better improve the opportunity and call at once, as his stay in Plainfield is limited.

IS YOUR BAKING POWDER PURE?

Do its Manufacturers Publish all the Ingredients Used?

IS IT FREE FROM AMMONIA?

As is well known, ammonia is unhealthful in food, and dries up the bread material.

Protection to consumers of food compounds lies in their ability to choose those made from healthful substances. Unless manufacturers publish just what their baking powder is made of, do not use their goods, but buy instead

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER.

This powder is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, and strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, with a little wheat flour to preserve it. This is attested by the official analyses of Government and State chemists, and physicians, and chemists of Boards of Health throughout the country.

NO FUSS OF OURS

Uncle Sam Out of the Delagoa Bay Row.

NO CALL MADE FOR HELP

And Consequently No Man-of-War of Ours Has Been Ordered There

Not Likely That Great Britain Would Make Any Such Request of Our Government—News by Steamer Just Arrived Reports that Extreme Disquietude Prevails and Serious Trouble May Result.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—At a late hour last night a reporter showed Walker Blaine a brief of the cablegram stating that his father, the Secretary of State, was reported to have ordered a warship to Delagoa Bay to protect American interests. Mr. Blaine said simply, "There's nothing at all in the statement."

It is hardly likely that the British Government would make any such request of the Government of the United States. If the interests of American citizens were in danger at Delagoa Bay, so that it might be desirable to send an American man-of-war there, the request would be expected to come either from the Americans whose interests are at stake or from the American Consul at the nearest point, not from the British Government; but the State Department denies having been called upon from any of these quarters.

The railroad, which the Portuguese Government has practically confiscated, is the Delagoa & East African Railway, between Delagoa Bay, on the east coast of Africa, and the Transvaal frontier, fifty eight miles inland. It runs entirely through the Portuguese colony, and it was intended to join a longer line which, running from the Transvaal frontier to Pretoria, the Transvaal capital, would give a continuous railroad service from the Transvaal capital to the east coast.

The short line through Portugese territory was started four years ago, while the longer line through the Transvaal was not begun until two years later. According to reports hitherto made by the railroad company, the fifty-eight miles from the coast to the Transvaal frontier must have been, almost, if not entirely, completed when the Portuguese Government, which had granted the concession, stepped in and revoked the concession on some technical ground which has not been explained. Possibly the recent discovery of a waterway from the sea coast to the interior, which was not known before, has something to do with the action of the Portuguese Government in thus attempting to squelch the railroad.

DISQUIETUDE PREVAILS.

Late Intelligence Concerning the Disturbance in the Bay Islands.

NEW ORLEANS, June 29.—The City of Dallas, just arrived, brings the latest information respecting the recent trouble in the Bay Islands.

Three vessels had arrived from Ruatan crowded with foreigners, who reported the islands to be in a state of extreme disquietude.

Of thirty men and women who immigrated into British Honduras, fifteen were on June 7 declared to be conspirators, disturbers of public peace, and assaulters of the barracks, and Senor Lopez, Governor of Ruatan, issued an order to arrest them at all hazards wherever found.

The explanation is that at a dinner given to Capt. Dugmore, while in Ruatan, reference was made to the former possession of the island by Britain. This reference was favorably received. So favorably, indeed, that Senor Lopez considered it seditious. This accounted for the subsequent capture of Capt. Dugmore and the orders for the arrest of the supposed conspirators.

Captain Dugmore of the Rosalind had arrived in Belize from Ruatan Monday June 10. He reports that while sleeping on the Islands he awoke and found himself surrounded by a strong force armed to the teeth. They threatened to shoot him if the gun was fired from the Rosalind. Fortunately this did not happen, and he was finally conducted to the vessel, the Islanders firing the royal salute of twenty-one guns and the Rosalind returning the compliment with a like number.

All the British inhabitants of the islands, it appears fled to the mainland, having been charged with treason against the Government of Ruatan.

DOUGLASS GOES TO HAYTI.

The Great Colored Leader Recognized by the President.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The President yesterday appointed Frederick Douglass, the colored Republican leader, Minister to Hayti. His appointment is a popular one here.

Mr. Douglass succeeds John E. W. Thompson, who is just now having a pretty tough time of it, situated as he is between the army of Legitime behind the walls of Port-au-Prince and the besieging forces of Hippolyte, which menace the city. The State Department has experienced great difficulty in procuring news at to the exact situation in the dismembered republic, and therefore, it has been at times embarrassed as to what policy to pursue.

Mr. Douglass will go to his post very soon. Inasmuch as Germany, England, France and other European governments have recognized Legitime, the question is what Douglass' instrctions will be in that respect. The State Department will not give any information on the subject.

Fire-Bugs at Work.

ERIE, Pa., June 29.—Three buildings at Edinboro were fired to-night in such localities that, without fire protection, the town would have been doomed. Some students of the Normal School discovered the fires and extinguished them. It is supposed to be the work of fire-bugs.

DON CAMERON TO RESIGN.

His Father's Death His Excuse for Retiring to Private Life.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—Though Simon Cameron was not a United States Senator, his death will, in all probability, lead to a vacancy in Pennsylvania's representation in that body, through the resignation of his son, Donald.

For several years Donald Cameron has been tired of political life, and on a number of occasions has expressed himself as anxious to leave the Senate.

At his father's solicitation, however, he remained there as a sort of protection for the faithful followers in office of the old Lochiel Chief. Now that the elder Cameron is dead, Donald will follow his own bent for a quiet life and refuse to become a candidate next year.

This is the general belief in Pennsylvania and so generally is it accepted by Pennsylvania politicians that a host of them have announced themselves as candidates for the place.

WOULD TAKE NO FOOLING.

Legitime Compelled to Release the O'Zama and Pay Indemnity.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Late advices from Hayti state that the Commander of the United State steamship Ossipee in demanding the release of the Clyde Line steamship O'Zama, seized by the Legitime gunboats, refused President Legitime's offer to release the vessel on condition that she would not go to Gonaives.

Captain Kellogg, of the Ossipee, informed Legitime that the vessel would have to be surrendered unconditionally and $5,000 to be paid over as indemnity for her detention.

Legitime immediately complied and the O'Zama was escorted out of the harbor and sailed directly for Gonaives.

A Big Rival for the Standard Oil Co.

PITTSBURG, June 29.—It is understood here that the Kentucky Oil and Gas company of Louisville, Ky. and the Southern Oil and Pipe Line Company of Cincinnatti, are preparing to consolidate, thus forming a gigantic company with a capital of millions of dollars. These two companies control leases on over 150,000 acre of land in one vast tract in Tennesee and Kentucky. Oil and gas in this region are practically inexhaustable, and a pipe line to convey the oil to Bowling Green is being built. It is thought that the consolidation will make the most formidable rival the Standard Oil Company ever had.

Pope Leo Enjoins the Faithful.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The Catholic News has received the following cablegram from its Roman correspondent: "The Pope has decreed the Feast of the Sacred Heart, which occured yesterday, a feast of the first class to be celebrated on the octave, July 5. This is also the bi-centenary of the devotion and the Pope enjoins the faithful throughout the world to hear mass and offer prayers in expiation for the insults offered in these days to religion when infidels are memorialized in oratorio and the church hampered by their followers in her work for the salvation of man."

Funeral of Mrs. Hayes.

FREMONT, O., June 29.—The funeral of Mrs. R. B. Hayes was held at Spiegel Grove, the General's home yesterday. Nearly all the different business houses of the city were closed and the day was one of general mourning. Congressman Haynes conducted the ceremonies which were simple and impressive. The venerable Dr. McCabe of Delaware college preached the funeral sermon. Many people from abroad were present and the procession was a lengthy one. The Loyal Legion and G. A. R. also took part. The remains were laid away in the vault.

Railroad Officials Seriously Injured.

BATAVIA, Ohio, June 29.—A serious accident occurred on the Ohio and Northwestern railroad, one mile east of here, last evening, a passenger train being thrown from the track by the washing out of a culvert caused by heavy rains. Receiver Samuel Hunt, General Passenger Agent Rhodes, Conductor Kain and several others were injured. Receiver Hunt's injuries are said to be dangerous. The officials hurt were on a tour of inspection of the road.

AN EXTRA SESSION.

Information from the White House That It Will Be Called in October.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Positive information came from the White House last night that an extra session of Congress will be called about October 20.

It had been represented to the President that delay was better, but he insisted that the people demanded tariff legislation, and that the Republican party was pledged, and that there would be difficulty at the best in organizing the House expeditiously and proceeding to business under the proposed new rules, which now seemed generally desired. There was no time to be lost, therefore, and October 20 would be the best date.

Big Fire in Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 29.—A fire burned the six story brick building corner of Van Buren and Canal streets, which was filled with manufacturing implements. The buildings of the Curry White Lead Company and the Chicago Cab Company which adjoined. The loss will probably exceed half a million dollars.

Yale After More Laurels.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—It is rumored in University of Pennsylvania and Schuylkill Navy circles that Yale will enter the People's Regatta on July 4th, against Cornell and University of Pennsylvania for the Sharpless Cup. The race will be 1¼ miles over the National course.

Narragansett Weavers Resume Work.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 29.—The Narragansett Mill Weavers, who have been out on strike, voted to-day to return Monday. Long, the man whose discharge caused the strike, will not be taken back.

Detailed By the President.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The President has detailed First Lieutenant Herbert E. Southerly, First Cavalry, as Professor of Military Science at Cornell University, N. Y., from October 2.

PLOTTING FOR POINTS

The Cronin Murder Mystery Far From Solution.

SULLIVAN THE CENTRAL FIGURE

Testimony that Will Probably Result in His Indictment.

It Is Believed that the Grand Jury Has Dropped All Phases of the Conspiracy Except that Concerning the Great Irish Leader—His Statement that Cronin was a British Spy Is Now Being Worked Against Him.

CHICAGO, June 29.—It is sincerely believed that the Grand Jury has dropped all phases of the Cronin murder conspiracy, except that in which Alexander Sullivan appeared as the central figure and the moving spirit.

Testimony is so weighty that it must almost positively result in his indictment has been submitted to the Grand Jury showing that Alexander Sullivan had several times attempted to show Dr. Cronin to be a British spy, not only to members of the Clan-na-Gael but to the world.

Shortly after Dr. Cronin's disappearance—some of the evidence before the Grand Jury goes to prove—Alexander Sullivan told a friend of his that Dr. Cronin was suspected by leading Irish Nationlists of being a spy of the same stripe as Le Caron, and that they daily looked for his appearance on the witness stand in the Times-Parnell case. Sullivan did not make this statement on hearsay or on suspicion, but as a fact, and in proof of it he showed the man a telegram from an English member of Parliament with an intimation that it was Henry Labouchere, which was sent to Patrick Egan in Sullivan's name.

The telegram, Sullivan's story went on, was in a cipher to which he did not possess the key, so he was forced to forward it in the same form in which he received it. Patrick Egan, being away from here at that time, Sullivan sent the cipher telegram to Thomas Brennan, Egan's confidential friend at Omaha, for transmission to Egan. He also sent a telegram to Brennan asking for information as to the meaning of the telegram. In reply, he received, so he said, a telegram from Brennan. This telegram he showed to the man who testified before the Grand Jury. It read:

"Message is: 'Another witness expected to follow Le Caron for the Times. I think this must be your Doctor. Watch steamers about May 12, as I think he will probably sail then. (Signed) B."

The suspicious part of this proceeding was that a close search of the files of the different telegraph companies failed to reveal that Sullivan ever received any such cipher cablegram.

State's Attorney Longenecker has as yet made no appointment to meet the mysterious individual who wrote him an anonymous letter several days ago, giving an account of a secret trial in Camp 20, which ended in Dr. Cronin being condemned to death. Judge Longenecker's confidence in his unknown informant is somewhat shakened by the first letter, and the one received yesterday is in different handwriting.

INTERNATIONAL DISPUTES.

The Dominion Government Anxious to Come to a Speedy Settlement.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 29.—The event of the week has been the announcement from Washington that negotiations for a settlement of the various international disputes are now under way.

So far they have not assumed definite shape, but a line of action will be made public shortly.

The Dominion government is apparently anxious to come to a speedy and honorable settlement. This was instanced by yesterday's backdown, the export duty on logs having been reduced from $3 to $2 per 1,000 feet board measurement.

It was learned yesterday that the Dominion government, through the medium of the English government, has invited the American government to enter into negotiations for the removal of all import and export duties on lumber and wood.

Canada Would Lose the Most.

BOSTON, June 29.—An Ottawa special concerning yesterday's Cabinet meeting says the Minister of Customs informs the correspondent that decision has yet been arrived at with regard to suspending the bonding goods passing through Canada from United States port to another United States port, in view of the refusal of the United States Government to permit transportation of goods over the short line through Maine from one Canadian port to another port in Canada. From what can be gathered the Cabinet has concluded that such a step of retaliation would be a suicidal policy, as in the end it would be more disastrous to Canadian interests than the suspension entirely of the bonding system in the United States.

Playing Tricks on 49.

NEW YORK, June 29.—A mysterious looking tin box, filled with a dirt-colored substance and having a fuse attached, was discovered this morning in Pythagoras Hall, the late headquarters of the disrupted District Assembly 49. The box was found in the room formerly occupied by Edward Kuntze, who was secretary of 49, and a member of the faction of Master Workman James E. Quinn when the organization split. The janitor who found the box ascribed its presence to a plot of the Quinn faction to blow up the building.

Drowned in the Susquehanna.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 29.—William Saul, aged 19, was drowned in the Susquehanna river last evening. When last seen he was sitting on the bank of the river fishing, and it is supposed that he accidentally fell in.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herbst, and Miss Kate Ricket, of Fanwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Beekman and Charles Dencklau, Jr., of this city.

Plainfield Reform Club.

The services will be varied to-morrow evening, by a lecture from Mr. Wm. E. Hall, editor of the New York Christian Editors, who know how to boil it down, and Mr. Hall is no exception to the rule. The title of his lecture is, "John and Demijohn." Mr. Hall is at once a logician, a delineator and a master-player on the chords that vibrate sympathy.

President French will direct the procession, and the musical programme will be of a high order.

Those who go, will do well to start early, as no seats are reserved.

UNION DEDICATION SERVICES.

The Pastors of the Several Churches Join With Rev. Dr. Ketcham in a Service of Praise.

A union dedication services, in charge of Rev. W. R. Richards was held in the new First Presbyterian church, last evening, which was attended by most of the clergymen of the city. The new edifice was comfortably filled when the service begun with an organ voluntary by Dr. E. W. Hedges, followed by Te Deum, Crane, by the choir, and invocation by Rev. Mr. Richards. The congregation joined in singing a hymn and Rev. Mr. Richards read the 68th Psalm, beginning with the 24th verse. Rev. Dr. Yerkes led in prayer.

Mr. Richards said that an interesting fact in connection with the dedication exercises, was that it brought the churches together—the unity of the church. He extended to the church the congratulations of the State Synod, and also of the Presbytery of Elizabeth.

After a few preliminary remarks, Rev. Mr. Richards introduced Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church. The latter congratulated Rev. Dr. Ketcham upon his anticipation and realization. He expressed himself as highly pleased with the surroundings, and stated that the Presbyterian church had in it the element to stay. "We have a new house," he said, "but an old church. Members and pastors have passed away, but the church still lives."

Mr. Richards next introduced Archdeacon Rodman as a "good apostolic Christian Bishop," adding that the only difference between their premises was a fence, and the latter's brood of intelligent chickens never knew it was there. Archdeacon Rodman spoke at times in a humorous strain, and stated that perhaps some of the brethren had better be looking around among their flock, for the people were very favorably impressed with the new structure.

Rev. Mr. Schenck was the next speaker. He conveyed to Dr. Ketcham and his church the greeting and gratifications of the people of Trinity Reformed church. The relationship of the two churches, he said, was somewhat similar, being alike in organization and development. He congratulated the new church, first: On the dedication of so useful a structurer. Second, upon the completion of an edifice practically free from debt; and lastly upon the erection of such an attractive church.

Rev. Mr. Dilts, the next speaker, considered [illegible] he knew a good thing when he saw it and knew how to enjoy it with others. He spoke of the harmony of color in the interior decorations, as representing the pure character of Jesus Christ, and the beautiful organ, he said, might teach the doctrines of Christ.

Rev. Mr. Goodrich spoke of the beauty of the church and the memorial window. He expressed his belief in handsome and attractive edifices, and admonished those who enter the church to bring a lighted taper to shed rays for those who are out in the World.

Mr. James McGee, a layman, spoke in behalf of the M. E. church. He considered that the church was Orthodox, because the contractor and builder was a Methodist. The pulpit, pews, policy and perseverance of the church, he concluded, were based upon Orthodox principles.

Mr. Chas. W. McCutchen was the next speaker. He gave a sound, logical talk upon the future use of the new church.

Mr. W. D. Murray spoke on behalf of the Young Men's Christian Association. He said the relationship between the church and the Y. M. C. A., was their fellowship in the Master's Vineyard. Geo. Williams, he continued, organized the first Y. M. C. A., in London, in 1844. The first Association was organized in this country in 1851, and now there are 1,273 Associations.

Rev. Dr. Ketcham said he gratefully appreciated the sentiments expressed by the several speakers, and stated that the church would heed the suggestions. While the collection was being taken up, Miss Fellows of Albany, sang a delightful soprano solo, and the service closed with a hymn and the benediction.

Special music for the occasion was rendered by the regular church choir, including a contralto solo by Miss Kemp.

Netherwood will Surpass Herself on the Glorious Fourth.

The guests of the Hotel and cottages of Netherwood, will even surpass themselves and their past records, in celebrating the Fourth of this July.

At the first meeting for the consideration of the event, held Wednesday evening, $250 was at once subscribed, and as much more will follow. The display of pyrotechnics will be finer than in past years, and other means and ways of entertainment will be generously provided.

Is Advertising a Failure?

This question is answered in the negative by Doane & VanArsdale who say that their business has doubled in two years by keeping a large stock of saleable goods and then letting the public know they have them through the columns of THE PRESS.

Another Ornament to Plainfield.

The building that Mr. E. C. Mulford is erecting at 41 and 43 North avenue, opposite the station, is another ornament to the street besides being one of the most commodious and complete business and apartment buildings in the city.

It is from plans by Mr. W. H. Clum, and covers an area of about 1,500 square feet. The front is of Philadelphia brick and terra cotta—very ornamental, but in thorough good taste. The basements are large, airy and well lighted. Two stores will be included in the ground floor, while the second and third stories will be fitted up as flats, with one suite of apartments on each floor.

These flats will have bathrooms, with running water at all times; a parlor and and sitting room on the front; and bedrooms, dining room and kitchen, thoroughly ventilated, lighted with gas and electricity, and with open fire places. They will be ready for occupancy by September.

President French Almost a Victim of Arson.

What is believed to be a bold attempt to set fire to the Knickerbocker Conservatory, 34 W. Fourteenth street, New York, was discovered shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and one of the managers of the concern was pulled out of bed and arrested on suspicion of knowing something about the matter.

The building is a four-story brick structure with sandstone trimmings. The first floor is occupied by French & Boughton, children's outfitters, of which firm, Mr. John H. French, of this city, President of the Reform Club, is the senior, and Mr. Arthur Boughton, formerly of Plainfield, is the junior partner.

PEERLESS DYES Are the BEST. SOLDBY DRUGGISTS

RECALLING THE GRAVEL PITS.

A Very Disrespectful Answer to ex-Mayor Randolph's Communication.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In reading over the article published in vour paper of June 15, by ex-Mayor Randolph, it seemed to me the gentleman is somewhat astray. He speaks of a system of "artificial" water supply. Now as I understand the laws of nature, there is but one system of water supply, and that is the system of God's natural laws. There may be various systems by which that water may be distributed for the accommodation of all mankind—one man may prefer the old crotch and sweep; another, the old windlass; others the hand pump; while others, farther progressed in the ease and comforts, will adopt the windmill, the steam engine, the pump, or the electric motor power; and last, but not least, a class that would like to have the privilege of obtaining their water supply by some mode that was most convenient and the least expensive to the consumers.

There are many people in the city that have not the means to own three or four acres of ground situated on the bank of a stream which can be adapted as the receptacle of their waste water and sewage. But they are human beings, and should be entitled to some of the comforts of life as much as if they were millionaires.

Mr. Randolph in his first paragraph says: when he entered upon his duties as Mayor, some eight years ago, he was partially impressed with the idea that a system of water works would be beneficial to the city of Plainfield. Now, then, it has taken eight years of diligent search, according to his letter, to get that partial impression out of his head. He says he ascertained the trend and grade of the territory to be covered, ("without cost to the city.")

At that time, if I remember correctly, stagnant pools or ponds of water were damaging the health of the citizens of Plainfield, and must be removed at once, or else pestilence of a very serious nature would be caused by allowing those ponds situated in the "deep bed of uncontaminated or well nigh uncontaminable gravel," just East of his residence. It did not take him eight years to find that out and have that nuisance abated. I think there was a little cost to the city, but it was certainly a benefit to the city. Now, what were those two little ponds of living water with a subterranean outlet, compared to 1,360 cesspools situated right in the most thickly settled portion of the city as receptacles of all the filth that the human family are subject to. And yet, according to his eight years of partial impressment, these cesspools are healthy, but the gravel pits were not.

Now in the same paragraph he says that irresponsible and anonymous statements have recently been published by the croakers. First, were all of the medical fraternity of the city "croakers," for stating that the city stood very much in need of a proper supply and distribution of water in our city, in connection with a proper system of sewerage? They were one class, and another class I presume he has reference to, were those who signed the petition presented to the Common Council for immediate action in granting a franchise to some one of the applicants that would be the most beneficial and economical to the city and the inhabitants. These petitioners were generally physicians and ministers of the gospel, with some of the largest builders and real estate owners. These, I presume, are also "croakers."

Now, he says, these must be combined with a spirit of reckless speculation. I never before was aware that dominies and doctors were imbued very largely with a reckless spirit of speculation, taking them as a class. He further says: in his judgment it would be unwise to bond the city to build water works—sound for once, he will find a large majority of the citizens that will agree with him upon that point. In fact, I know of no one who is in favor of bonding the city to erect or maintain water works, unless some one who would like to hold the bonds for a safe investment. The only propositions so far, as I can learn, that have in any way been entertained by the Council, are to grant a franchise to some party or company, who is willing to invest their own money in erecting and constructing a good and sufficient water distribution on economical terms to all of such consumers as voluntarily saw fit to take it, no compulsion upon any one—not even the city for hydrants unless they saw fit to do so—the city having the right to purchase within twenty years.

Mr. Randolph says: some day, if the town is allowed to grow naturally, instead of being abnormally boomed, we shall have a pretty solid settlement of three or four miles square, and then we will bond the city and have water works and sewerage. He doesn't use the word "bond," but what does he mean when he says the city should "take hold of it manfully?" He knows when he says that, there is no other way for the city to build it only by direct taxation—which means bonds. Now when this city becomes built up solid, three or four miles square, as he says in all probability it will, a larger portion of our streets will have been paved and macadamized. He well knows it will cost nearly double the amount to build water works and sewerage then than it will at the present time; and that means double the amount of bonds.

Now, can it be possible that the honorable gentleman anticipates that while the city is growing to that magnitude of three or four miles square, that he will occupy again the position to take hold of the water works and sewerage in that manful manner he so emphatically refers to?

Oh, how little do we know when the human heart will cease to beat for the emoluments of notoriety. G. W. B.

GOSSIP FROM SCOTCH PLAINS.

Who Mr. Sykes Met at Princeton—An Old Scotch Plains Minister Shows Up at a Single-Tax Meeting—Thanks to Mrs. Marsh—The Tale of an Umbrella.

I met Mr. Sykes on the street the other day; he had just returned from the Princeton Commencement, having also taken part in the reunion of the Class of '59. He told me that while there he ran across Dr. J. A. Coles, in the Campus, and that he also met Dr. Abraham Coles. The latter had been made an honorary member of Clio Hall, of which Mr. Sykes is a member. This is an honor indeed, and no small one, and in this connection it may be remarked that out of the thirty-one prizes distributed at Princeton this year, Clio Hall received twenty-one. Of profound scholarship and renowned as a man of letters and a poet, Dr. Coles is well fitted to receive this unusual honor; I think it was James Russel Lowell that pronounced the Doctor's English version of "Stabat Mater" the finest in the language.

While we are on the subject of clergymen, I have a little item that may be of interest to the Methodists of Scotch Plains, and indeed to all who were living here about ten years ago. Looking over the Standard, Henry George's paper, the other day, I saw a short account of a Single-Tax meeting recently held at Staten Island. At the foot of the article it was stated that the meeting was presided over by the Rev. Pascal Harrower. Pascal Harrower! for a long time the Methodist minister here, and long to be remembered by his own parishioners and the people of other denominations as well, a man of no small ability, and one whose departure was a real loss to the place.

The school teachers, and the Trustees, and all the people who enjoyed the benefit of Mrs. Marsh's hospitality at the reception held after the school Commencement, are desirous that their thanks should be extended to her for her kindness on that occasion. To throw open one's house to such a large gathering and especially upon such a warm evening is a matter of considerable inconvenience, to say the least; Mrs. Marsh may be sure that her hospitality was appreciated.

What a lot of red tape there is when you are dealing with a railroad. A week or two ago, I was so unfortunate as to leave an umbrella on the train. I discovered the fact just as I left the car, and asked the brakeman to keep it for me until I should see him again. This would have been a very simple thing to do, and the affair would have been through in twenty-four hours. But observe. The brakeman had to obey rules and so he turned the umbrella in at Dunellen. I inquired the next morning at Jersey City, and was referred to the telegraph office. One of the men there said that he would telegraph for it and told me to call later. When I went there the next day I found that the man who had telegraphed was off with the Patrick Fogarty Association on an excursion to Harlem Flats, and no one there seemed to know very much about it; and then I did what I ought to have done in the first place and saw Station-Master Brown. He sent for the umbrella and two days later delivered it to me, but not before he had made me sign three papers, the first a receipt for the umbrella, the second a stipulation not to sue the Railroad Company for damages and the third a long indemnity bond with a big red seal, to recompense the company in case the umbrella should turn out to belong to somebody else, given in the penal sum of two dollars and a half, for which payment, well and truly to be made, I bound myself, my heirs, executors, administrators and assigns forever, firmly by these presents. Station-Master Brown always was a careful man.

The Women's Exchange got wind of the affair somehow or other, and I was waited upon by a Committee of three ladies the next day to know if the umbrella was for sale. A sub-Committee was appointed to make an examination and appraisement and they ended by asking to take the umbrella for three days on trial. It happened to rain the next day and the next day but one and the Committee seemed to be satisfied; they offered ninety-four cents, half cash and the balance in striped calico and tooth powder. I will say in confidence that I bought the umbrella last Winter at Macy's during a great bankrupt sale—entire stock must be sold in thirty days regardless of cost, goods given away—and paid a dollar and seventeen cents. So I informed the Committee, politely but firmly, that one dollar and ten cents was the lowest price that I could possibly take.

They are going to hold a special meeting of the Directors, when the question will be considered and acted upon.

SUBURBAN SAUNTERER.

P. S. I have just received the following note, which explains itself.

OFFICE OF THE WOMEN'S EXCHANGE,
No. 2 TOMCLEAVER BUILDING.
SCOTCH PLAINS, June 27, 1889.

Mr. Suburban Saunterer,

DEAR SIR:—At a special meeting of the Board of Directors held this day, at Tomcleaver Hall, it was resolved that the Umbrella Committee be instructed to offer you for your umbrella the sum of ninety-eight (98) cents. This is our final price, and can not be increased.

Yours very truly,
THE WOMEN'S EXCHANGE.

P. S. If you won't take ninety-eight please communicate with with us before you sell it to anyone else.

DEATH DOOMS.

The New York Court of Appeals Decide Adversely in Several Murder Cases.

SARATOGA, June 29.—The Court of Appeals has decided adversely in the appeals of Carolin, Nolan, Lewis and Giblin, the New York murderers, who have been convicted during the past year.

In the case of Nolan the point was raised by the prisoner's counsel that for murder committed previous to January 1st. last and tried after January, the prisoner could not be hanged, because the law for hanging was abolished by the new law for death by electricity, and he could not be killed by electricity because that law was not in force when the crime was committed.

The Court decided that the point was not well taken.

This is the largest number of death confirmations ever passed upon by the Court of Appeals at one time.

MARIA MITCHELL'S DEATH.

The Noted Astronomer Passes Away at Lynn, Mass.

LYNN, Mass., June 29.—Maria Mitchell, the noted astronomer, who died here yesterday morning, was born October, 1818, in Nantucket, one of nine children in a Quaker family and at the age of eleven helped her father, William Mitchell, in astronomical observations.

She discovered her first comet in 1847 and received therefor a gold medal from the King of Denmark. She subsequently discovered eleven other comets.

She visited Europe about 1847, and was the guest in England of Sir John Herschell and Sir George Airy.

She was Professor of Astronomy at Vassar College for 22 years, resigning about January 1, 1888.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Archbishop Schreiber, of Bamberg, is dying.

Thirty-six soldiers were sunstruck in Dover, England, yesterday.

Forest fires are raging in Montana and have already covered an area of over 1,000 square miles.

Mrs. Harrison and her daughter, Mrs. McKee, left Cape May this morning for Deer Park, Md.

The Anarchist editors of the Gleichheit have been sentenced to four months' imprisonment at Berlin.

The German government has reduced the working day of the royal mines of Silesia by one hour.

The schooner yacht Dauntless, which went ashore off Gull Island, was floated yesterday and found to be leaking.

The World's Sunday School convention will assemble in London next Monday. Three hundred Americans will attend.

Beckman and Peterson, the insane asylum attendants, were convicted of the murder of a patient named Coombs and sentenced to the penitentiary at Rochester, Minn., yesterday.

Rochester Irishmen Protest.

ROCHESTER, June 29.—At a meeting of the Monroe County Branch of the Irish National League, a committee composed of the most influential members, presented a report stating that the postponement of the national convention was a grave mistake. In view of Mr. Parnell's recommendation of postponement, however, the committe reluctiantly expresses acceptance of his advice and approves of awaiting his acquiescence before holding the convention.

It is hinted by leading Irishmen here that the postponement of the convention was arranged for the benefit of persons implicated in the Cronin murder.

Cora Grimes' Murderer Committed.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 29.—The inquest in the case of the murder of Cora Grimes by Eugene Emery, at Oak Orchard, in the town of Ridgeway, was finished yesterday. The mother of the murdered girl is very ill, her mind being unsettled by the terrible tragedy. The verdict is as follows: "We find that Cora Grimes came to her death by a blow or blows on the head with a stick in the hands of Eugene Emery on the 24th day of June, 1889, between the hours of 6 and 8 p. m., at her father's home, in the town of Ridgeway." The accused was formally committed for trial.

Gen. Cameron's Funeral.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 29.—The funeral of General Cameron took place to-day. An order was issued from the Adjutant General's Department directing that the Department be closed to-day, and that the flags on the several armories throughout the State be displayed at half-mast. The other State departments were also closed. A letter of condolence was received from the President.

Death of Hon. C. H. Weed.

WEEDSPORT, N. Y., June 29.—Hon. C. H. Weed, one of the most prominent citizens of this place, died yesterday, aged 79 years. Mr. Weed was a large real estate owner and owned considerable property in the central portion of the village. He was elected Member of Assembly from this district several years ago.

WILL BE

Dr. E. KIMBELL,

The Celebrated CHIROPODIST'S

—LAST DAY—

In Plainfield at the City Hotel, where he is hourly receiving calls from the elite of the city, and in every case gives unbounded satisfaction.

Every form of disease of the Feet are cured by him. HOURS—9 A. M. till 6 P. M.

Servants will be in waiting to conduct ladies and gentlemen to the Doctor's parlors at the CITY HOTEL, Plainfield, for a FEW DAYS LONGER.

People who desire the services of a skillful CHIROPODIST, had better improve the opportunity and call at once, as his stay in Plainfield is limited.

☞ Ladies often make up parties of from two to six and call upon Dr. Kimbell together. The most timid lady, aged person or child can have the most aggravating feet troubles radically and permanently cured and suffer nothing from the treatment.

MOLES AND WARTS OF THE FACE, NECK, OR ANY PART OF THE BODY, are removed without pain, and without cutting.

During the past six years Dr. Kimbell has treated 15,000 persons, ladies and gentlemen.

From many thousand Testimonials in Dr. Kimbell's possession, he begs to submit the following

Plainfield Testimonials:

From J. B. Probasco, M. D.: "I have had personal experience with DR. KIMBELL'S skill in removing corns, and heartily recommend him to the afflicted.

Twenty Thousand People Wave Silken Colors and Cheer their Favorites.

The Fourth Successive Victory for the Dark Blues—For the First Mile the Contest was a Pretty Struggle, but "Bob" Cook's Training Told—Grand Reception Tendered the Victors at New Haven.

NEW LONDON, June 29.—Yale beat Harvard without a spurt. It took three special trains to carry away the enthusiastic victors and their friends. The town of New London was too small to celebrate in, so the triumphal procession went from here to New Haven, with cannon, crackers, tin horns, blue banners, and blue fire marking the way. The water could not have been better. There was not a ripple. Darkness postponed its coming a few minutes, and the finish was seen in the clear twilight. The time was fast, and might have been faster, but the Yale crew was not pressed after the second mile. The winning oarsmen are prouder than if each of them were a double valedictorian. Their success was witnessed by over 2,000 people on an observation train, 3,500 more in yachts and boats, and thousands more on the grand stand and hills. It was an inter-college family gathering—Cornell, University of Pennsylvania, Columbia, Harvard, and Yale together witnessing the last and biggest race of the series.

The race had been set down for yesterday morning but it was not rowed then. The New London people wanted it postponed as long as possible for one thing, and Col. Bob Cook did not want it rowed in the morning either. If the race had been rowed in the morning everybody would have left town on the afternoon trains, and the New London hotels and tradespeople would have made thousands of dollars less. Besides that there are superstitons about boat racing. Harvard thinks it is luckier to row in the morning. Yale believes morning races are hoodooed. Then the Harvard crew was thought to be the better crew in rough water, although, as it turned out, Yale won so easily that it is doubtful if the roughness or smoothness of the water could have made any difference. Col. Bob Cook did not want to have the race rowed until evening, and he usually has his way. It was decided that if the race was rowed in the morning it would be rowed down the stream, and if it was rowed in the evening it would be rowed up the stream

THE GREAT RACE.

A few seconds after 7 o'clock the crews started. The girls and the men on the train were too excited to give the regular cheers, and only yelled and shot off cannon crackers. Yale got the quicker start, with 35 strokes to Harvard's 34. By the first quarter mile Yale had pulled ahead fifteen or twenty feet. Harvard's bow was even with Yale's No. 3. By the half mile Harvard pulled up, and the boats passed the half-mile flag almost even; Yale perhaps five feet ahead, not enough to show in seconds, for an eight-oared crew goes too fast to be timed with a quarter-second stop watch. Beyond the half Harvard's bow seemed to go a few feet ahead. It was the only time they had the lead. Yale dropped its stroke to 33 and Harvard to 32. The swing was long and even. There was not a splash or a wave to meet the returning oars. The shells went faster than the tugs, faster than the steamers.

At the mile and a half the strokes of both crews continued at the same rate. Yale began to pull ahead at the two-mile flags. No. 5 of Harvard did not pull with ease. He labored. Yale quickened the stroke to 34. No. 6 of Harvard stooped with exertion. Yale gained a length. Then the clear water showed between the boats, the swirls showing where a second before Yale's shell had been. Before the 2½-mile flags were reached the race was won for Yale. Caldwell let down the stroke two pegs. Harvard quickened to 33. There were three lengths of clear water between the boats. The Yale guls and men saw it from the train and cheered with exultation. The Harvard girls and men saw it from the boats and cheered for encouragement. The Harvard crew spurted. That showed the race was lost. Yale pulled easily and steadily. Harvard No. 5 and No. 7 were tired and bent their arms to ease the strain on their backs.

Half a mile before the finish the race was over. The Yale crew did not need to spurt. Four lengths of water was between the boats. The course lay over by the west bank, near the observation train. The Yale crew rowed near the foot of its sympathisers, and near enough to read the "Yale" on the blue flags. The finish was near the shore. It was too dusky to see the individual oarsmen plainly, but the water dropping from their oars gleamed in the rhythm of the strokes. The Yale crew crossed the line with more than five lengths of clear water between the drops flying from their rudder and the brass tip of the Harvard boat. The Harvard crew were under the lee of the bank. They went in the dusk to their quarters, and a fog descended over the course.

Winners at Cedarhurst.

NEW YORK, June 29.—First race, ⅝ mile—Futurity, 1; Bassanio, 2; La Belle Helene, 3.

Second race, ¾ mile—Longitude, 1; Donald, 2; Bill Brien, 3.

Fourth race, same as the third—Clontarf, 1; Rosarium, 2; Dago, 3.

Fifth race, ⅝ mile—Donald, 1; McLaughlin and Revolt gelding dead heat for the place.

Seventh race, open hurdle race, 1¼ miles over six hurdles—Mentmore, 1; Zangbar, 2; Wellington, 3.

Eighth race, open handicap steeplechase, about 2½ miles—Elphin, 1; Monte Christo, 2; Liberator, 3.

Charter Oak Races.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 29.—The closing day at Charter Oak Park resulted as follows:

The 2:27 race was won by May Bee; Stephanie second. Best time, 2:25.

The 2:19 race was won by Gene Smith; Thornless second. Best time, 2:16¼.

WORK FOR SUMMER DAYS.

Trifles to Be Concocted in Shade or Piazza Vines.

How to Make Bamboo and Bead Portieres. New Things in Cushions, Hammock Cloths and Screens—Gobelin Novelties for Table Linen.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

What will you do on cottage veranda or hotel piazza on those delicious gray-green Summer days when the rain it rains alway? While the reader of the party is swinging to and fro in her low rocker, giving you the initial chapters of that latest study of the marriage question, Florence Finch Kelly's "Frances, a Story for Men and Women," suppose you experiment with one of those bamboo and bead portieres, which are the most approved Summer hangings. You can buy one if it suits you better, but the stores do not furnish, for a sum within the reach of the ordinary sweet woman who keeps her house and cares for her babies, any such choise of colors, designs ahd dimensions as the bright home genius with small expense of time and less of money has at her own command.

Fishlines are cheap at the seaside, and fishlines, glass beads and bamboo cut into short lengths are all the materials you need. Measure the opening of your doorway, have a slender strip of pine to fit it set with small hooks from which your cords will depend; then when the needle is a burden and the delicate colors of embroidery fade and soil in perspiring fingers select cool green or clear glass beads and—string.

Out on Long Island there is a country cottage owned by a young woman. All Winter she paints in a little room up in the top of a swell apartment house not far from Gramercy Park, all Summer she vibrates to and fro, in an out of another little room which is cut off from the world of greenness and beauty by a Roman scarf bamboo and bead portiere. Oiled pine is her woodwork, terra cotta and cream her walls and ceiling, Indian red and olive the beads which are strung so as to form broad and narrow color bands across her curtain. She has used big beads and a large short pieces of bamboo, and wrought in her monogram in the middle at the top. Each strand of the portiere is terminated by a tiny bell, so that her comings and goings are heralded by a musical tinkle.

Much easier than this, as requiring no care in the placing of the beads on the cord, is a curtain made by stringing bamboo and beads alternately, using only green beads, or employing a dozen different but harmonious colors. The more beads the more effective the curtain, and some of the handsomest and simplest use, without regard to color, six or eight or a dozen harlequin beads between every two strips of bamboo. To imitate the Chinese and Japanese designs of birds and beasts and flowers is almost too difficult for hot weather, involving nice calculation as to the position of each bead.

Some days ago I saw a unique portiere in a seaside cottage. The room itself was as far from commonplace as may be imagined. The ceiling was tinted a pale sea green, the side walls taking a deeper tone. Fishnets were draped from frieze to flooring and in the meshes were tangled many-colored fish, bought at Japanese shops, lobsters and the long ribbons of sea mosses. Oars were crossed above the windows and doors. In the large doorway was first a curtain hung straight of small fishcord woven into a network with the long netting needle. Many visits to the beach had resulted in a large collection of scallop and jingle shells, gold and silver shells the little people call them, and these had been perforated and knotted in. Outside the netted curtain hung a pair of portieres made of coffee sacking and decorated with rings of green plush and fringes of shells. The effct was wonderfully picturesque and had been obtained at small trouble and time.

I number among my acquaintances a half dozen young teachers in a New York private school who have spent the weeks of their warm weather vacation for two or three years past camping in a building which in its former estate was a woodshed on the picturesque Massachusetts coast, near Gloucester. Last year the main room of this festive establishment had its side walls, which are not plastered, covered with burlaps laid on flat and fastened by a strip of oiled pine which answered for picture moulding. Autumn leaves stencilled on in metallic colors gave character to the frieze. All through the Spring months these young women have been busy with decorative work for the 1889 campaign. An important feature of the room this Summer isto be a portiere made of hempen rope just out of the store. The article of furniture was manufactured, so to speak, in position. A pole was adjusted at the proper height and the rope tied over it. The cords were then knotted to form a diamond patterned network, making a band perhaps sixteen inches deep across the curtain. A quantity of perforated wooden balls had been turned out by a carpenter, and these were next strung on the cords three or four deep, as in the making of the bamboo portiere. Below the balls came more knotting and then more balls, and so on to the floor. When completed the balls were given a coat of gold paint and the cords were painted a coppery bronze. Two of the holiday makers are now at work on knotted twine window curtains of the same sort, with smaller balls to correspond. The curtains are to be all of the gold color, I believe.

A good deal of a woman' Summer leisure connects itself with screens. They shut off draughts from open windows and are invaluable in cutting off awkward corners in hastily furnished summer cottages. For July and August use there are few materials better than rough burlaps if the design is to be painted somewhat sketchily. For Summer work to be enjoyed in Winter days we have now a revival of the tapestry screen work so popular in the eighteenth century. The pretty, graceful, affected Watteau and Boucher designs will this Summer occupy the brushes of skilled amateur artists who delight in the light-hearted, pink and white gayety of Marie Antoinett's era. For women who embroider, linen, silk, sateen, satin sheeting and bolton cloth are the favored screen materials, and much more artistic work is required than served to make a "show piece" formerly. Embroidery has reached as high a plane in decorative art in this country as painting, and fancy work with no fancy in it is best hidden in the attic or left undone. Needlewomen with the requisite skill turn for subjects to lilies, goldenrod and the brilliant cardinal flower, fleur de lis and bunches of all posies rich in color. These are worked not in outline, as for cushions, but in satin embroidery and it is possible to show great skill in the choice of stitches and in the blending of colors. It is really required to transfer the painter's method to textiles. A beautiful design shows a foundation of cream white silk canvas, on which is worked mountain laurel in soft bright pinks shading into lighter tones. The leaves are wrought out in natural colorings, with a little brown and dull red added to represent those that may be fading.

Women who do not paint or embroider should make their Summer screens of cretonne, choosing the designs which show figures in the quaint costumes of the fifteenth century. Much may be done with chintzes and pretty effects are produced by the use of solid color thin silks in yellow and dull blue and olive tones. Where more money can be spared brocaded stuffs produce rich effects mounted in white and gold lacquer or enamel with tiny mirrors set in the frame.

The scarfs for the table this Summer should be square and should hang over the sides by the width of the border. A pretty table spread designed by a Boston artist is made of a soft green twilled cloth with a wide border of dragons, with beaks, claws and wreathing tails, done in outline in three shades of gold floss. Another spread on which no less a person than the Russian princess who has graced New York with her presence was working some days ago is of a soft sage green finished texture with border of glowing chrysanthemums in deep yellow reds, shading in to yellow.

Cushions are made of pongee embroidered in wash silks of low tones. The fringed gentian gives a beautiful contrast of color on the natural gray pongee background. Gold braids and laces are lavished on the satin and plush cushions meant for winter luxury, and one might spend many words on exquisite daffodil patterns wrought in pale yellow silk on ivory white sateen, but more to the point at this season are the hammock and piazza, and boat cushions for rough wear. Gay stout cretonne is good material for these and clever women make two or three slips for every cushion so as to change them when soiled.

A brown-eyed girl up among the Catskills last Summer spent a good share of her leisure embroidering hammock cloths. The prettiest product of her needle exhibited was a strip of fine grass linen three yards long and showing branches of the clematis vine with the flowers outlined in white and blue. Another pretty coverlet was of the same material worked with a conventionalized rose design. Equally useful for wraps and much less trouble are strips of bright Japanese cotton stuffs, gaily figured and needing no decoration.

Half the women of one's acquaintance are embroidering bedspreads. These are always planned to harmonize in color with the chamber furnishings. Bolton sheeting is the best material. It is not easy to embroider, being close and liable to draw, but when carefully done the sheen of the silk makes a beautiful background. A spread just completed shows apple blossoms outlined in natural colors of buds and leaves. The sides and ends are fringed and a couplet from "Marmion" furnishes a motto in the middle:

"To all; to each a fair good night,
And pleasing dreams and slumbers light."

This goes into a charming chintz bedroom. The woodwork is an olive green, the walls cream colored with gilt picture rail, the frieze pale olive, cornice, pale terra cotta and ceiling cream. The hangings are of soft-finished chintz in a Morris apple blossom pattern.

The Russian craze has affected our table linen fashions. Many women are embroidering tea-cloths, carving trays and even large dinner cloths with detached figures in the old-fashioned cross-stitch, done in two shades of red or blue. The effect is not good unless the embroidery is kept near the edges. No parts of it should be on the table. The simplest fine linen table scarfs are hemstitched on all four sides. Next these come those which have borders of drawnwork or cutwork on the ends, but plain sides. The most elaborate are a cobweb tracery of needlework. The cutwork which Catherine de Medici learned in Venice, the drawnwork which Mary Queen of Scotts used to delight in, the Gobelin work for which the desgin is partially colored and is finished by embroidery, are equally popular, the last named being the chief Summer novelty. Cutwork is very beautiful when applied to colored pongees. For a pink and white lunch, for example, a scarf of pink silk has a design worked with silk floss in buttonhole stitch, and then the intervening spaces are cut out, producing a lace-like effect when laid over the white tablecloth. Napkins sometimes admit borders of drawn work, but are better simply hemstitched and embroidered in white on white, with the monogram, or better with a spray of the same flower which is dotted over the centr cloth. Doilies are the finest linen you compass, so sheer as to be cobwebs. They match the centre cloth in color. Drawn work is the prettiest decoration for them, embroidery in wash silks coming next. Tea cloths admit very intricate embroidery. A yellow cloth may be wrought with detached flowers in white well covering its surface. Blue linen with simple cutwork pattern outlined in white is effective. Carving cloths, corn napkins, &c., are interesting subjects for the industry of the Summer needle.

THE DOINGS OF WOMEN FOLK

Some June Gossip From the World of Feminine Affairs.

That was a wonderfully pretty breakfast and suggestive of summer table fashions which was given to Mrs. William Todd Helmuth before the City of Paris sailed for Europe on her last voyage. Everybody knows that yellow is the color of colors at the present hour. In the middle of the table was set a huge greenish bowl filled with golden marigolds. From the bowl extended to each plate a broad yellow ribbon to the end of which was fastened by a crescent shaped silver pin a cluster of yellow rosebuds. The soup plates were figured with greenish yellow sea mosses, the dinner plates were marked with yellow bands, the salad bowl and plates were a deep yellow strewned with Japanese lilies in red orange, the desert and fruit plates showed a green ground sprinkled with buttercups and daisies, and the bone plates, olive dishes and bread plates were graced with chrysanthemums, corcopsis dandelion and other yellow blooms in odd and attractive designs. There were branches of the yellow green-foliage of young maples wined in the chandeliers, and the candles with which the table was lit had yellow silk shades. When the ices were served they proved to be contained in large yellow roses from which the stamens and heart petals had been cut, tied together in threes and not deprived of their own rich foliage. These ice roses were brought to table in a yellow dish representing a garden hat tied about with green ribbons, the thorny stems and fresh leaves drooping over the edges. The dinner favors were tiny hats of the same pattern filled with candied fruits and posies. The hostess wore a skirt of lettuce green silk with little pinked ruffles set about the bottom. Over this fell a skirt of pale yellow mull, embroidered with tiny sprigs of flowers in the same color. The bodice was of green velvet with surplice vest and sash of yellow mull. When the guest of the day was driven to her train at the Orange station the carriage was one bank of yellow roses.

Sorosis people gathered in numbers on the deck of the City of Paris the day that Mrs. Helmuth sailed. The lady was a candidate for the Presidency of the famous Woman's Club at its recent election and lost the office to Ella Dietz Clymer, the successful officer having a plurality of one. Mrs. Helmuth was brought into some prominence at the time the Woman's Congress held its session in New York a year and a half ago by rescinding the invitations she had sent out for a reception to the delegates on learning that three members of African descent would necessarily be included, whereupon Mme. Demorest threw open her house, showing special courtesy to the colored women in a magnificent entertainment. Mrs. Helmuth defended her action to the more liberal club women who criticized it on the ground that her father, who was a Southerner, would have closed his doors on her had she done otherwise, and she preferred to respect the feelings of her own family in preference to those of outsiders. Whatever loss of prestige Mrs. Helmuth suffered on this occasion was more than made up by the graceful way in which she took her defeat in this heated contest for office, jumping up with a smiling face the moment after the vote was announced to invite the club to perhaps the most elegant breakfast that has been served in a private house in New York for years. Sorosis appreciated the little attention and flocked to the steamer dock to bestow a vinaigrette on its entertainer by way of good-bye. Sorosis runs to vinaigrettes and diamonds badges. When it wants to make a gift to a member it presents one or the other, or first one and then the other, the vinaigrette when a member high in favor braves a sea voyage, the badge when an officer resigns or her term of office expires. Mrs. Clymer got the vinaigrette when she went abroad five years ago, and it is supposed she will get the gold S studded with jewels when she lays the Presidential gavel down. The vinaigrette is silver, with the monogram on one side.

Laura C. Holloway's large musical club, the Siedl Society, the latest organization mothered by a woman, is finding great favor in the eyes of the sex masculine which begins to look to it to set a fashion for married women of remaining in town through the Summer with their husbands. Just previous to the big dinner with which its 400 members opened the season of Wagnerian concerts at Brighton Beach a week ago a man applied to Mrs. Holloway to be admitted as a member. The rules of the society compelled a refusal, but the gentleman was anxious to make the club a gift of money, saying that since every woman who could raise the funds deserted her family in June and was ashamed to be seen on the city streets again before fall, he thought it high time that the abandoned members of the households began to encourage every scheme which had in it the possible germ of a fashionable Summer season in town. The club badge is the letter S in silver in a sixteenth century scroll. Its headquarters at the Brighton Hotel are cosily furnished and in them it possesses what no other woman's club in New York or Brooklyn has yet aspired to, a rendezvous of its own. Some of the best known women in the two cities have placed their names on its rolls, and it looks now as if the outcome of the project would be the setting aside of one near by seaside resort for the pleasure of woman and children. With private cars, club parlors, ladies' nurseries and playrooms, and with the prohibition of smoking in the music pavilion except in a little pen railed off for men in the gallery Mrs. Holloway and the ladies have Brighton Beach pretty much in their own hands. Already some women of wealth, who were packing their Saratogas have laid aside that pleasing occupation to see if the Seidl Society won't make things just as pleasant at home. Social meetings, receptions and gatherings of woman's organizations of all kinds are promised throughout the Summer.

There are strange stories going of the severity of the diet which fashionable women resort to in order to reduce their avoirdupois. Mrs. Olive Risley Seward, so the gossips say, fasted twenty days, and felt only the keenest regret when the time came for her to eat again. Mrs. Ravenhill, Kathrine Kidder's young-looking grandmother, is said to contemplate an ordeal somewhat similar. Three days is the common limit of the starvation period before dieting. On the first day you are hungry, on the second day you are famished, on the third day you are faint, but if you last out the probation you care less for food afterward and get on better on the nitrogenous diet and the two meals, or the one meal a day. It is wonderful how much it takes to kill a woman.

The contest over the question, Who started the agitation for a national flower? bids fair to wax as warm as that over the authorship of "Rock Me to Sleep, Mother." An art firm which has circulars out asking for a vote as between the arbutus and the golden rod, attibutes the beginning of the debate to Jean Kincaid, a Boston newspaper woman, who set the ball rolling a year ago. But I have before me a letter from Margaret B. Harvey, of Philadelphia, who claims to have written a poem called "Valley Forge Arbutus," advocating the Pilgrim's flower above two years ago. Miss Harvey says the arbutus was the first flower seen by the patriot army after the terrible winter in Valley Forge, and is more closely entwined than any other with American History. I have received a letter from Mrs Frances Hodgson Burnett, in which that writer advocates the choice of the magnolia. Louise Imogene Guiney believes in the fringed gentian, and Mrs. John Sherwood in the mountain laurel.

The occupation of the lace mender is assuming sudden importance. The peasant cloaks of black and cream chantilly lace which women are wearing this Summer are frail as they are beautiful, the airy draperies and wing-like sleeves requiring attention after every afternoon's promenade. The lace mender goes from door to door as regularly as the dressmaker and much more frequently. She makes an art of darning and charges such prices as are an artist's due. A dollar for a small rent, $3 or $4 an hour is about the least you can get her for, but she repairs the breaks in flouncings, scarfs, draperies and cloaks so deftly that the laces remain a joy. If the lace mania continues the darner with her bobbins and balls will have a decidedly remunerative business. E. P. H.

Just Ruined the Line.

Mrs. Peterson—That suicide of farmer Brown is certainly one of the most inexplicable things. I suppose Mrs. Brown took on terribly.

Farm Hand—Yes, indeed; Brown had cut off a piece of the new clothes-line to hang himself with, and you never saw a madder woman in your life!

Crushed Between Powerful Rolls.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 29.—This morning Mark Reeves, an employee at the Bridgeport Rolling Mill while engaged in adjusting the heavy rolls on his machine had his left arm caught and drawn between the rolls. The arm was crushed its entire length and Reeves skull was fractured. He was about 50 years of age and belongs in Syracuse, N. Y., where he has a family.

Cadetships Secured.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Cadetships at the Military Academy have been secured by Frank C. Gore, Gainsboro, Tenn., 4th District; James P. Harbeson, Flemingsburg, Ky., 9th District; Walter L. Briscoe, Marshall, Ill., 6th District, and Joseph H. Hurst, Towanda, Pa., 15th District.

Five Years for Swindling a Minister.

NEW YORK, June 29.—George B. Deane, the "lightning calculator," who was convicted of swindling $900 out of Rev. George H. Chappelle, a Methodist preacher, in a game of faro, was to-day sentenced to State prison for five years and six months.

Short in His Accounts.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—George W. Wright, a well-known business man of this city, and the Supreme Treasurer of the Order of Tonti, is reported to be $40,000 short in his accounts with that Order, and a warrant for his arrest has been issued.

Big Collection of Paintings.

PARIS, June 29.—Intending buyers began to-day to inspect the Secretan Collection of paintings. The gallery was crowded. Various rumors about prices offered are afloat. One is to the effect that Mr. Vanderbilt has offered $1,600,000 for the collection.
